Feb. 28.—Lyman Memorial at Colchester.

LYMAN HIGH DEFEATS STONINGTON AT CROSS COUNTRY

The Lyman Memorial high school cross country team defeated the Stonington high school harriers in a close meet, 27 to 28. Howard, for the fourth time in the last four meets finished first; closely followed by a Stonington man. Greenberg finished third, Spellecy fifth, Bartizek eighth, and N. Manning tenth. All of these were Lebanon runners.

The Lebanon team runs its last meet Thursday at Lebanon, against the Aggie freshmen.

Time 13:14. Timer Grant. Scorer, Cummings.

BEAUREGARD-NADEAU BOUT WILL BE TORRID AFFAIR

The feature bout of the Shyma boxing club show at Parish hall tomorrow night is bound to be a torrid affair while it lasts. In this bout Buster Nadeau of Holyoke meets Al Beauregard of Taftville, over the eight round route. Now Nadeau is a real tough little egg who has created quite a show record for knockouts himself. He is one of those human buzz-saws who keep throwing gloves from gong to gong. It was his aggressiveness that won him a decision over Johnny Pena of New York who in turn gave Beauregard one of the worst shellackings of his career.

Any boy that can stop Johnny Pena is a good boy. Nadeau is the same type of boxer as Beauregard which means that both boys will seek to end the bout with a knockout. For real, genuine slugging and no quarter given this feature bout looks like the real goods.

Y Volleyball Team at Meriden

The Y. M. C. A. volleyball team, which lost a close match to Ansonia Y last Saturday in its season's opener, is to play Meriden at Meriden tonight and will leave the association building at 5:30 o'clock.

LUDLOW ELECTED LEADER OF Y SENIOR QUINTET

Howard Ludlow, veteran guard, was Monday night elected captain of the Y Seniors basketball team for the coming season, at the practice session held at the Y gym. The election was unanimous.

Ludlow, who has played on the Y. M. C. A. teams probably longer than any other member of the squad, is expected to make a popular leader and will undoubtedly be a bulwark of strength in the quintet that Coach Howie Demarest is building up to represent Norwich in the state Y league. Ludlow succeeds Roland Harris, who has left town.

The Seniors will play a practice game Thursday night at Willimantic with the Willimantic Y as a preliminary to the opening of their campaign here a week from Saturday night. The team is shaping up well and Coach Demarest, although mindful of the fact that he has a few young and inexperienced players, is confident of making a good impression during the coming season.

The girls team, which will play all the preliminary games for the Seniors this year, is also coming along fast. Another practice session is scheduled for tonight.

The golfing world received a stunning blow yesterday with the announcement that Bobby Jones, the greatest golfer the world has ever seen, had decided to retire from tournament play to instruct in golf through the medium of the motion picture. Bobby's decision removes from the game one of the most colorful figures that ever teed a ball, one who has done more to interest the public in the royal and ancient game than any other living person. Starting to play the game when he was eight years old Jones has dominated the golfing world for 20 years. Even at the tender age of eight his star appeared on the horizon and it ascended gloriously, reaching its zenith this year when he captured the four most coveted golf honors in the world. His brilliance on the field of battle, his charming personality, his cool and calculating play and his youth early caught the fancy of the public and when he reached man's estate his popularity did not wane.

That the public, young and old and from every walk of life, was interested in Jones can be testified to by any sports room of the daily press. When Jones was playing in a tournament nine out of every ten calls were to ask about Bobby Jones. And they didn't all come from golfers by any means. People who never swung a golf club and wouldn't know a driver from a tee-marker were interested in the outcome of the day's play. All of which goes to prove that King Bobby was idolized outside the realm of the sport.

Many a good golf course has taken terrible punishment from the thousands of feet that followed in the wake of Jones as he played. In any tournament Jones was the magnet that drew the spectators who fought for a chance to see Jones, his swing, his perfect timing and his deadly accuracy with his putter, Calamity Jane. There was never any need to ask where Jones was, all one had to do was to pick out the largest gallery and there he was in the middle of it.

But what a relief to some of the other golfers to know that Bobby Jones will be in no more tournaments. It was a most discouraging fact to know that Jones was competing in a tournament for it was almost a foregone conclusion that the king of golfdom would take the high honors. Many a golfer went into a tournament with his only ambition being that he finish second to Jones. And what a handicap it was to be an opponent of Jones' in match play. There was always a large gallery and this gallery came only to see Jones, his opponent meant nothing to them. As soon as Jones drove from the tee the gallery started to buzz and even would rush off in pursuit of his ball entirely neglecting to show any consideration for the other player. If the opponent lost his ball he looked for it alone, but if Jones was in the rough a thousand willing persons trod the grass to find it. Such was Jones' popularity.

But Jones has quit tournament play at the psychological moment. He is at the peak of his career and the public has been with him. But will the crowd be with him next year? He has won all there is to be won in the golfing world and now that he has the public cry for his overthrow next season. The public always likes to see a new champion regardless of the sport. But Jones will never be forgotten and that form of the master golfer will be preserved for posterity through the motion pictures.

ARMY-NAVY TICKETS TO COME AS HIGH AS $50

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.— (AP)— Fat wallets will be pitted against each other to aid the unemployed in the sale of seats for the Army-Navy football game at Yankee stadium December 13.

If the citizens' committee of the Salvation Army, which will disburse the proceeds of the contest to the needy, can make it so the game will be the highest priced sporting event in history.

SHYMAS OPEN SEASON TONIGHT

The basketball season will be opened in this section of the state this evening at the Parish hall, Taftville, when the Oxfords one of the leading teams in New London invade the mill village to take on the Shymas led by Les Pingree, former N. F. A. star and for the past few seasons one of the mainstays of the local Y. M. C. A.

The Shymas management are to be congratulated in being able to secure the New London team for the opening game for the visitors are reputed to be about the best in New London county besides being runner up in the City league last season. The New London boys have been practicing for the past few weeks for the opening of the City league and feel sure that they will return to the Whaling City on the long end of the score. They will take the floor in the following order: Edwards, one of the leading scorers in New London City league last season, and Terry, forwards; Long, formerly of the Sub. Base and who has performed on two championship teams at center; the backcourt will be taken care of by Kaplan and Griffin. These two are considered the best guards in the city. Burgess will be held in reserve.

The Shymas under Mgr. Sullivan have been hard at practice during the past three weeks and feel sure that they are in perfect condition and that they will be able to defeat their more experienced opponents. The team this season will be captained by Les Pingree, one of the best basketball players ever turned out in the village and will have the most promising material turned out in the last few seasons. It will be made up of the following players: Rabbit Gauthier, Lefty Wilke and Lefty Dugas as forwards, Tom Coleman at center, while in the backcourt will be Capt. Pingree, Lemieux and Adams.

There will also be a fast preliminary game between the Shyma Juniors and Jack Chance's All Stars. The Juniors will lineup as follows: Dugas and Peltier forwards, Pete Raymond, center; Durr and Capt. Sammy Raymond, guards; Pepin and Laflesh, subs. The preliminary is to go on at 7:45. The Shymas as an added attraction have secured one of the leading orchestras in Norwich, The Musical Aces, who will furnish music for dancing which is to follow the basketball games during the coming season.

COMPLAINT AGAINST ATT. DAVIS ON EVASION CHARGE IS WITHDRAWN

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Nov. 17.—Withdrawal of the alleged violation of Connecticut motor vehicle laws against Samuel H. Davis, Westerly attorney, which was scheduled for hearing on Monday in Groton town court, was made on Sunday. The charge of leaving the scene of an accident grew out of a collision between the auto driven by Attorney Davis and a car operated by Duncan Carson of Noank as they were both proceeding up Fort Hill in the town of Groton. No one was injured and the two cars just grazed in passing as Mr. Davis was reported to have blown his horn to pass the other auto which put on speed. Neither auto stopped and on arriving in Mystic Carson took up the matter with officers of the Groton barracks of the Connecticut state police with the result that the Davis car was stopped in Pawcatuck and the court summons followed. By recommendation of the state police Carson withdrew his complaint and an absolute nolle was made in the case.

TWO CASES COME UP AT SUPERIOR COURT SESSION

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Nov. 17.— The first day's session of the November term of superior court for Washington county was held on Monday at the county court house at West Kingston, with Justice Jeremiah O'Connell on the bench. The attorney general's department of the state of Rhode Island was represented by Assistant Attorney General J. Clifton O'Reilly.

Following the qualifying of the grand jurors they retired to the jury room on the first floor and the judge called the assignment docket and also listened to cases on the motion calendar.

There were but two cases to come before the grand jury for indictment and in one case an indictment was made while in the other no true bill was found.

Romeo Inderimperatore, 18, of Providence, against whom was found the complaint of driving off the automobile of Halsey Kenyon on Grove avenue, was up for pleading and was given a deferred sentence. He was ordered committed to the home at Slocum, R. I., until a suitable home could be found for him.

Walter R. Pierce of North Kingstown was appointed foreman of the grand jurors. The other members of the jury are: Herman F. Anderson, John F. Casey, John J. McNulty, Jr., Percy A. Smith and Norris E. Tucker, of South Kingstown; Walter A. Cooke, James D. O'Hare and Willet A. Tisdale of North Kingstown; John A. Hogg, James Lawson, Arthur R. Roode and Frank E. Saunders of Westerly; William L. Hoxie and Thomas W. Nye of Hopkinton; Leslie W. Dawley, Richmond; Clifford H. Joslin, Exeter; George W. Bliven, Charlestown and Trassar F. Tucker, Narragansett.

It was announced by the court that all cases on the criminal appeal docket will come up on Wednesday and the divorce cases will be heard tomorrow.

Washington county members of the Masonic grand lodge from Franklin lodge, No. 20, Westerly, Charity lodge, No. 23, Hope Valley, R. I. Hope lodge, No. 25, Wakefield, R. I. and Washington lodge, No. 5, Wickford, R. I. attended the semi-annual communication of the grand lodge in Freemasons' hall, Providence, on Monday. M. W. Henry S. See of Providence presided and much of the time of the session was given over to the discussion and adoption of numerous constitutional amendments. A number of jurisdictional lines in and about Providence, East Providence and Pawtucket, R. I., were voted changed by the grand body.

Judge Oliver H. Williams of the Third District court late Sunday held a special court session. On complaint of a trooper of the Hope Valley barracks Edward R. Shaefer of 135 West 183rd street, New York, was brought before the court, charged with the driving of an automobile at a rate of speed greater than reasonable and proper. The state police officer testified that on the Nooseneck Hill state highway the defendant passed three highway intersections at a clocked speed of from 55 to 57 miles per hour. On his plea of guilty the accused was fined $25 and costs which were paid.

Palmer chapter, No. 28, Royal Arch Masons of Pawcatuck, Ex. Francis M. Johnson, high priest, held a regular convocation on Monday night in Masonic hall. A business session was held. Palmer chapter is the sponsor for the Westerly chapter, Order of De Molay for Boys, which also meets on Monday evening in the Masonic hall.

George E. Phillips, summer cottager at Misquamicut, returned to his Providence home on Monday afternoon from a business trip by motor to Westerly.

Leverett A. Briggs, wife and daughter, Miss Maude Briggs, of Ashaway, left Westerly on Sunday to pass the season at their winter home at Daytona Beach, Fla.

Dwight R. Stillman, proprietor of the Stillman house, Weekapaug, left Westerly on Sunday for New York city and to continue to pass the winter at his southern home in Daytona Beach, Fla.

Water Commissioner Farquhar Smith and wife were Westerly visitors on Monday by motor to Providence where they attended a regular monthly meeting of the Rhode Island unity of the Floral Despatch association, of which Mr. Smith is a member.

Al. Bailey was a Westerly visitor in Boston on Monday to return with his daughter, Miss Cecelia Bailey, who has completed a course in training at the Deaconness hospital, Boston.

W. M. Norman E. Randall of Charity lodge, No. 23, F. and A. M., attended on Monday the semi-annual communication of the grand lodge of Rhode Island.

On Sunday night Miss Frizelle, sister of Mrs. Clarence E. Roche, returned to Boston after a several days' visit in Westerly.

Attorney Albert Langworthy Saunders returned to his Boston home the past week, after visiting at his summer home on the Shore road.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Amelia Holt

The death of Mrs. Amelia Holt, in her 76th year, occurred on Sunday at the Pawcatuck home of her daughter, Mrs. Amelia Morse, 9 Prospect street. She had been in poor health for the past several months.

She was born at Blackburn, England, being the daughter of the late George and Catherine Duerden. Coming to this country in 1892 with her first husband, Jacob Kenyon, the family settled at New Bedford. They came to Westerly in 1898.

Mr. Kenyon died in 1914, and his wife married a second time to Edward Holt, who survives her. She also leaves four sons, John George Kenyon, William Robert Kenyon and Arthur Kenyon of Westerly and Harry Kenyon of New York city, and three daughters, Mrs. Amelia Morse of Westerly, Mrs. Florence Fitch of Noank and Mrs. Martha White of Pawcatucket. There are also a sister and a brother, Mrs. Martha Morris and Samuel Duerden, both of England.

John Tatro

Westerly relatives and friends have learned of the death of John Tatro, aged 75 years, which occurred on Saturday at his home in Manchester, N. H., where he has resided since leaving Westerly.

Mr. Tatro spent the greater part of his life in Westerly, being employed for many years at the local silk mill. He left to find employment at Manchester, N. H., about seven weeks ago.

His wife, Ellen Tatro, died a number of years ago, and the only immediate relatives surviving are his daughter, Mrs. John Radigan of Westerly, and a brother in Canada.

Mrs. Charles Kroener

On Sunday night occurred the death of Mrs. Lena Hudson Kroener, wife of the late Charles Kroener, at the Westerly hospital. She was in her 66th year.

Mrs. Kroener lived for many years at Wakefield. She came here about two years ago to make her home with her sister, Miss Kate M. Hudson of 27 Moss street.

Thomas W. D. Burdick

Thomas W. D. Burdick of Burdickville died in the South County hospital at Wakefield Sunday, after a brief illness. He was in his 81st year.

Mr. Burdick was the son of Reuben and Susan E. Burdick, and was born at Burdickville, where he had always lived. His wife was the late Mary Gallagher, who died some years ago. He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Robert Baker of Peace Dale and Mrs. Susan P. McWilliams of West Mystic.

MYSTIC

COP CURBS COUGH

Gets quick relief thru Triple Action

J. V. Ahlquist

"During a recent blizzard I caught a beauty. What a cough! I was miserable. The druggist on my beat gave me a bottle of Smith Brothers' Cough Syrup. In less than no time—in fact after the first swallow—I began to get better. The soreness in my head, nose and throat disappeared—and very soon I stopped coughing altogether. Smith Brothers' is great stuff for coughs and colds all right!" J. V. Ahlquist, Rockford, Ill.

SHORT SELLING CAUSED DROP IN PRICES IN THE STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—(AP)— After five days of prosperity, share prices withdrew behind minus signs today.

With the short interest reduced by last week's covering and the public obviously unwilling to apply the "buy now" philosophy to the stock market, profit taking and short selling encountered little resistance.

The averages showed a loss of 4.4 points, which bit a sizeable chunk out of last week's rise of 11.9. Not only were the Friday and Saturday gains erased, but part of Thursday's improvement was also cancelled. Many important stocks dropped 3 to 4 points net; a few more volatile issues closed 5 to 9 lower. Sales were small compared with the activity on the recent rally, totalling only 2,137,770 shares.

In contrast to the weakness of stocks was the strength of wheat, which closed 3-4 to 2 1-2 cents higher in response to the farm board's program for halting "panicky" conditions in that market. Corn rallied one to 2 3-8 cents net, but cotton futures here were only steady, 2 points lower to 3 points higher at the close.

Copper shares lost their lustre. Doubt was expressed in some quarters as to whether the 12-cent price would hold. A few dealers, in fact, cut to 11 1-2 today, although the large producers held at the upper level. Nevertheless, uncertainties in the situation were sufficient to bring in substantial realizing in the red metal stocks which dropped 1 to 4 points. American Smelting was the largest loser.

The strength of the general credit position kept Wall street from being alarmed by the flurry of bank closings in Tennessee, Kentucky, and Arkansas. The difficulties of these institutions, it appeared, has been caused by public nervousness that had its origin in the insolvency of a prominent southern banking house.

The foreign trade figures for October were not particularly stimulating. Exports last month, valued at $828,000,000, were only $10,000,000 above September whereas the normal seasonal gain is five or six times that amount. Also, the total valuation was the smallest for an October in sixteen years. Imports up $21,000,000 to $248,000,000, showed the smallest aggregate since 1921. The balance in this country's favor was $80,000,000, but in October, 1929, it was $137,000,000.

All classifications of stocks participated in the day's declines. Utilities comprised the weakest group, although the industrials ran them a close second and the rails slumped rather broadly. Amusements displayed considerable stability, and rallied for a time under a continuation of Saturday's covering, but sagged in the late trading and closed slightly off.

The many shares down 3 points or more included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem Steel, American Can, North American, Consolidated Gas, New York Central, and Westinghouse Electric. American Telephone, American Water Works, Atchison and Western Union lost 4, while General Electric, Sears Roebuck, International Harvester, National Biscuit and Johns Manville closed 2 points lower. General Motors was off 1 3-4. Larger losers were Case off 5, Eastman Kodak 6, Ingersoll Rand 7, Allied Chemical 8, and National Lead 9. Lackawanna and Trans-American were among the few stocks touching new lows.

Foreign exchanges were irregular, featured by break of about one third of a cent in the Spanish peseta, which was affected by disturbances in Spain. Sterling was steady, although bankers here were inclined to discount reports that France was prepared to extend a billion dollar long term credit to Great Britain.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 17. — (AP)—The bond market remained under the spell of stocks today. The quiet firmness of last week which netted the best gains in many weeks gave way to irregularity as stocks turned reactionary, in one of the dullest sessions of autumn.

The volume of trading dwindled to $7,332,000 par value which was a third less than the turnover in the latter part of last week, when bonds moved upward. The average for 30 bonds declined 2-10ths of a point, after holding an upward trend for three days.

Unsettling reports from both South America and Europe in recent days influenced some selling and gave a heavy tone to the foreign list. The one bright spot in the whole market was the Treasury group. Reflecting the easy tone of the money market, all Liberty and Treasury issues that were active advanced, while on a reduced turnover in contrast with some recent sessions many of the governments duplicated their peak prices of the year.

In view of the weakness of stocks investors were hesitant toward bonds, and many issues were in supply a small fraction below Saturday's close. The irregular movement was reflected throughout the whole domestic section, and progress of any consequence was confined to a comparatively small list.

American and Foreign Powers 5s, Anglo-Chilean Nitrate 7s, Atchison adjustment 5s, International Telephone 5s, McKesson and Robbins 5 1-2s, New York, Boston and Westchester 4 1-2s, Seaboard All Florida 6s, were among the domestic bonds under pressure.

There was a good inquiry for Armour and company 5 1-2s, General Steel Casting 5 1-2s, Kansas City Terminal 4s, Louisville and Arkansas 5s A, New York Central 3 1-2s, Pennsylvania 4s, Remington Arms 6s, Shell Pipe Line 5s, Southern Railway 6 1-2s, and Wabash 4 1-2s. Generally the small fractional changes reflected the desultory condition of the market.

Pressure against German bonds was felt most by the International 5 1-2s, which reacted 1 1-4 points to 71 5-8, a new low. The Dawes 7s held firm but industrials and municipals of Germany generally eased. Polish governments after earlier weakness closed about steady. Belgian and British governments yielded small fractions. The Latin American group was irregularly lower. The 5 1-2 per cent loan of the Cuban Republic, now under martial law, sagged 1 point to its year's low.

Offerings for the day totaled $43,000,000, the largest for a single day in several weeks. Three bond issues were announced for public marketing tomorrow. They are $5,000,000 Province of Saskatchewan 4s, $3,600,000 Central Ohio Light and Power 5s, and $2,595,000 City of Chicago 5s.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—(AP)—The curb market sank back in quiet trading today, losing much of the gains of Friday and Saturday. The transactions aggregating 514,200 shares were the smallest for a full day's session in two weeks.

The reaction was regarded as primarily technical, after the steady rebound from the low points reached a week ago. Profit taking by in-and-out traders was in substantial volume and the cushion of short covering was gone for the moment.

Electric Bond and Share lost 2 3-4 points in a large turnover, but American Super Power, also active, moved up a fraction, in contract to the general trend elsewhere. American Gas, frequently a wide mover, dropped back six points, losing about one third of last week's gains. Niagara Hudson, St. Regis, United Corporation warrants and United Light "A" lost about a point. Northwestern States "A" however, gained 6 in a few transactions.

Coppers reacted substantially as dealers quoted the red metal at 11 1-2 cents, after last week's high of 12. Noranda lost 2 and Newmont 3 points. In the oils, Standard of Kentucky was a weak spot, losing more than 2 points. Gulf, Vacuum, and Humble lost nearly as much. Cities Service and Indiana reacted about a point.

In the industrials, a few lightly traded issues moved higher. Glen Alden Coal advanced 3 points, Columbia Pictures, 2, and New York Steam new stock fractionally. American Cyanamid "B," Ford of Canada "A," General Aviation, and Dimond Match new, declined 1 to 1 1-2. In the specialties, Goldman Sachs trading slipped back 3-4.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Horace Havemyer, a director of the Bankers Trust company, and a member of the board of managers of the Lackawanna railroad, has been elected a director of Standard Brands, increasing the directorate from seven to eight.

Subjects affecting all angles of the railroad transportation problem, including legislation pending in congress or about to be introduced, will come up for discussion at the annual convention of the National Industrial Traffic league in New York Thursday and Friday of this week. Shippers from all sections of the country are expected to attend the sessions.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Climbing up in lively fashion as much as 3 3-8c a bushel, the Chicago wheat market today closed with most of the gains tightly held. The rise was attributed to extensive new purchasing operations on the part of the U. S. farm board allies and to a statement from leading Canadian banks that the Canadian growers' pool would not be compelled to sell out on a depressed market.

Estimates were current that government sponsored agencies in the United States now have acquired ownership of more than 20,000,000 bushels of future deliveries of wheat, and there were authoritative statements that further purchases, of like character, might be expected if necessary to sustain the domestic wheat price level.

Chicago closing quotations on wheat were nervous, 1-4a3 3-8c a bushel higher than Saturday's finish. Corn closed 1 1-8a1 3-4c up, oats showing 1-2ca1 1-8c advance, and provisions varying from 10c decline to a rise of 20c.

SHORTS IN GRAIN FUTURES

tonight to discuss the problems presented by the sagging market with officials of the federal government tomorrow.

Questioned about the possibility of a fixed minimum price for wheat, Premier Bracken said, "that is a matter for Ottawa."

The bankers made no statement on the conference and refused comment on the delayed-payment proposal approved by delegates of the Manitoba pool to enable liquidation of the pool's 1929 losses over a period of years.

MOVEMENT AGAINST SAGGING WHEAT PRICES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17—(AP)—The federal government today was openly holding the line it secretly had maneuvered against sagging wheat prices last week in a brand new grain stabilization campaign.

Chairman Legge of the farm board and George S. Milnor, general manager of the grain stabilization corporation, joined in the public announcement of this second effort to dam the flood of wheat price depression with government resources.

A year ago, at a cost estimated at around $75,000,000, the corporation penned up 60,000,000 bushels of grain which it still has on its hands.

The new stabilization move, which became evident in Chicago last Saturday when enormous quantities of December wheat disappeared regularly at 73 cents a bushel, was unofficially reported late today to have absorbed another 10,000,000 bushels.

Chairman Legge said the total holdings of the stabilization corporation now could be "conservatively" estimated at 70,000,000 bushels but other estimates at the capitol approached 104,000,000 bushels.

WAR DEPARTMENT TO HELP RELIEVE UNEMPLOYMENT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17—(AP)—The war department has decided to build and shovel and dig now to help relieve unemployment.

Through the winter it will set hammers ringing, steam shovels puffing and dredges scrapin gat more than $20,000,000 of work which otherwise would have been distributed ever the spring months.

In accord with an announcement today by Secretary Hurley, between $20,000,000 and $25,000,000 will be released for work on the army housing program, rivers and harbors and flood control.

Seven Helps In One For Difficult Coughs From Colds

Creomulsion is a better help than some coughs need. It combines seven major helps in one, to do the best that men know for any cough from colds.

There is creosote—the world's supreme help—blended, emulsified and palatable. There are white pine tar, wild cherry bark, menthol, ipecac, etc. Each is best for a certain type of cough. But even doctors might disagree on what is best for yours.

So experts have combined in Creomulsion all major helps in one. This to deal with all conditions in a most effective way. No narcotic in it.

Creomulsion is for people who wish to do the utmost. In coughs from colds that hang on it is essential. One dare not trust such coughs to any lesser help. But don't you think that any cough calls for the best help known?

Creomulsion costs a little more than some helps—$1.25. But your druggist guarantees it. So it costs you nothing if you think it fails to render help that is quick and complete. Careful people, more and more, demand this maximum protection. Use it promptly.

HERBERT H. O'NEILL, MIDDLETOWN STRICKEN IN CAR IN NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 17—Herbert H. O'Neill, formerly of New London, but for several years a resident of Middletown, died suddenly this afternoon at Lawrence-Memorial hospital from paralysis, having been stricken while driving his automobile in the heart of the business district. Mr. O'Neill resided in New London for several years, occupying one of the apartments at 121 Broad street with his family. He was driving across State street at the corner of Union street about 2:30 o'clock when he was stricken with the shock. When the automobile came to a stop and pedestrians went to his assistance, O'Neill was unconscious behind the wheel. He was transferred to another seat and driven to the hospital, where he died a few minutes after being admitted, and without regaining consciousness. Mr. O'Neill, who was with the U. S. Rubber company, of Boston, married Miss Mary Gill, of Norwich. They have one son, Harold O'Neill, a lawyer in Middletown. He also leaves his mother. The son arrived in New London early this evening and a short time later went to Coventry, where the wife of Mr. O'Neill was summoned recently because of the gravity of the condition of Mr. O'Neill's mother, who is of advanced years and has been ill for several weeks.

PROVIDENCE AUCTIONEER ARRESTED, HAD NO LICENSE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 17—John Goldsmith, 40, of 26 Astral avenue, Providence, R. I., was arrested this afternoon by Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith on a warrant charging him with violation of the state statutes in failing to procure a state or city auctioneer's license or depositing collateral with the state treasurer in the sum of $500 for the purpose of conducting auctions. He furnished a surety on his bond of $500 and will be in court tomorrow. Goldsmith has been engaged for a fortnight in disposing of the jewelry stock of Sol Ockooneff, State street jeweler, who is retiring from business. His partner possesses a license as auctioneer, but Goldsmith does not, although both men engage in the sale of the articles disposed of. Complaint was made to the authorities and today Prosecuting Attorney Max Boyer issued a warrant for Goldsmith's arrest.

Arthur Ayer Struck by Truck

An auto truck driven by Isadore Diamond, 122 Montauk avenue, hit Arthur Ayer of 27 Blinman street late this afternoon. Ayer is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital suffering from abrasions, lacerations and contusions of the head. At the hospital it was said that the man's condition was favorable. Ayer was walking on Bank street and when north of Tilley street he attempted to cross the street. As he stepped from the curb the truck hit him and knocked him down.

Charge Against Sailor

The state and New London police are seeking the arrest of Kenneth Smith, 20, believed to be a sailor stationed at the submarine base, who is wanted in Orlean, Mass., on a charge of rape. The authorities of that city have issued a warrant for Smith's arrest and have requested the local police to assist in effecting the man's apprehension. Smith was in Orlean today and when he left he was riding in and presumably driving a Willys-Knight automobile, carrying Connecticut registration, N-2543, which is registered in the name of William Chase, also of the submarine base. Smith is described as weighing about 140 pounds, about five feet three inches in height, of light complexion. He had a gray raincoat, but wore no hat.

Guard Property of Careless

Patrolman George Bruhns discovered the entrance to the Southern New England Ice company, Howard street unlocked and with the keys in the door. The officer secured the door and left the keys at police headquarters. Patrolman John Sullivan found the front entrance and a window of the Star garage, 525 Bank street, open last night. The proprietor was notified and made the building secure. Patrolman Frank Philopena found the entrance to a furniture storage building on Potter street unlocked last night, but was able to secure the door.

A still alarm was received at fire headquarters late Sunday afternoon for a chimney fire in the residence of William Hyslop, 69 Hempstead street. Northwest Hose company and Allen Hook and Ladder company extinguished the blazing soot with chemicals and without damage of consequence.

Alfred H. Pollock, 144 Montauk avenue, supervisor of silks in the employ of the Corticelli Silk company, has been transferred to the company's mill at Florence, Mass., the transfer being the result of the thread department of the New London mill having been removed to the Florence mill several months ago.

WEDDING

Chapman-Rieger

Elbert Chapman, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Chapman, Poquonoc Bridge and Miss Rose Rieger, daughter of Mrs. Mary Rieger, Waterford, were married at the parsonage of the Second Congregational church Saturday night by Rev. Dr. J. Beverage Lee. Russell Coon, of Groton, was best man and Miss Lina Denison attended the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Chapman will make their home at Thames View, Waterford.

Jetmore-Parisi

Melvin W. Jetmore, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Jetmore, Montauk avenue and Miss Josephine T. Parisi, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Trafaganda, 12 Home street, were married Sunday afternoon at the residence of the bride's parents, the ceremony being performed by Justice of the Peace G. Curtis Morgan. Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Giri, brother-in-law and sister of the bride respectively were the attendants.

TWO STEAMERS ASHORE AIDED FROM LOCAL PORT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 17. — Two steamers, one a boat hailing from this port, are ashore in waters adjacent to New London tonight, one of the steamers being the trawler Petrel, owned by the Portland Trawling Co., and the other is the collier Harry Bowen, of Norfolk, Va. The Petrel is partially filled with water and is on Block Island while the Bowen is ashore off Montauk Point, on the south side of Long Island. Both steamers are badly damaged it is believed and coast guard boats and life saving corps are standing by. The Petrel is laden with 60,000 pounds of fish, consigned to the Atlantic Coast fisheries, Groton. The collier is filled with coal and is en route from Norfolk to Boston. The crew of the Petrel was taken off by the coast guard destroyer Wilkes and late this afternoon were brought into port where they were landed at the wharf of the fisheries company. The crew of the collier, with one exception, is still on the Bowen, but a coast guard destroyer and live savers are at hand to take the men off in the event that the collier starts breaking up.

The Petrel went ashore in a fog at 2:20 o'clock this morning. An S. O. S. call was immediately sounded. The coast guard destroyers, Wilkes, Cummings and Tucker and the patrol boat Legare, moored at the state pier, at once put out to sea and arrived alongside the grounded steamer about 8 o'clock. The crew of the fisherman was transferred to the Wilkes, which destroyer started for port about 4 o'clock this afternoon. The other boats remained alongside the Petrel, together with the life saving crew of Block Island station, which went to the grounded steamer in a power-surf boat. A short time after the arrival of the coast guard boats alongside the Petrel word was received of the grounding of the Bowen and the Cummings was dispatched to her assistance. Arriving beside the collier a hawser was made fast to the Bowen and the life-saving crew at Ditch's Plain sent a breeches buoy to the collier. But one member of the crew, the mate, was taken off, the others remaining on the collier, which is in no danger of sinking. The cutter Champlain and a wrecker of the fleet of the Merritt-Chapman-Scott Wrecking company, of this city, arrived alongside the collier late today, the Champlain responding to the call for assistance from New York. The collier, it is understood, went ashore when the master lost his course in attempting to locate the buoy off Montauk. She is lying in 19 feet of water and her entire hull is deep in the mud.

FOUND MAKING WHISKEY IN CELLAR AT MYSTIC

Joseph Soba, 7 Division street, Groton, and Donald C. Forbes, Allen street, Mystic, were arrested Saturday night when State Police Officer Arthur Whitmarsh conducted a one-man raid upon the Forbes residence. Soba and Forbes were arrested on three counts of violation of the liquor law, keeping with intent to sell, illegal possession and manufacturing. They furnished a surety on their respective bonds of $1,000 and will be tried in the Stonington town court tomorrow. Officer Whitmarsh obtained evidence that Forbes was dispensing liquor at the Allen street house and late in the day made a visit there. He was admitted by Forbes and a search of the house revealed Soba in the cellar making whiskey. The liquor in process of manufacture was seized, together with other liquor found in the house. Soba and Forbes are brothers-in-law.

Charges Against Mullen Nolled

Thomas Mullen, 220 Broadway, Pawtucket, R. I., a former resident of New London, was in the police court this morning, charged with manslaughter. The count was nolled. Coroner Edward G. McKay, of Norwich, recently rendered a finding in which Mullen was exonerated of any act of criminality in connection with the death of Miss Rebecca Leatch, of 43 Thames street. Miss Leatch, an aged woman, was standing on the highway south of Thames street, on Montauk avenue, on the evening of Oct. 25 when the automobile driven by Mullen hit the woman, inflicting such injuries that she died at Lawrence Memorial hospital five hours later.

Ignatz Kaika, 31 Brooks street, charged with breach of the peace, had his case continued to Feb. 9th. Kaika had been drinking Sunday and when he went to his home shortly before noon he and his wife entered into one of their customary quarrels. Kaika went into a rage and taking a pair of scissors he mutilated apparel, including dresses belonging to Mrs. Kaika.

Robert J. Patterson, 34, a salesman, residing at the home of Mrs. May Oddo Gammons, 2 Fay street, was charged with breach of the peace and intoxication. The complaint was amended to that of simple intoxication and although Patterson did not appear in court, the complaint as amended, was nolled. Patterson was intoxicated yesterday afternoon and when he went to his rooming house, he entered into a wordy argument with Mrs. Gammons. When Patterson became demonstrative and boisterous, Mrs. Gammons made complaint to the police and Patterson was arrested by Sergeant Samuel Hick and Automobile Patrol Officer Thomas Cavanaugh.

Irving Melvin, of Stonington, was arrested in that town Sunday by State Police Officer Arthur Whitmarsh, charged with reckless driving. The driver will be presented in the Stonington town court tomorrow.

Burton Martin of Danbury, Edward Wheeler, Mystic and Mrs. Peter Presage, 30 Harrison street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

FUNERALS

Charles Reilly

Funeral services for Charles Reilly, late of 11 Perry street, former assistant engineer of the steam yacht Narada, were held at St. Joseph's church at 9 o'clock this morning and attended by a large assemblage of mourners. The mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. William C. Fitzsimons. The bearers were Daniel McKowan, Joseph Yaines, Emil Mendez, Ray Allen, Bine Haskell and Harry Jessett, members of the crew of the yacht. Burial was in Northport, L. I.

Percy W. Brailey

The funeral of Percy W. Brailey, of Hope street, Niantic, was held this afternoon with a prayer at the family residence at 12:15 o'clock and services at the Niantic Methodist church at 2 o'clock. Rev. Joseph S. Pennepacker and Rev. George Warren Potter, Norwich Town, conducted the services. The bearers were William Manwaring, Edward Maynard, Edward Havens, Dwight Beckwith, Francis Faulkner and Clarence Faulkner. Burial was in Union cemetery, Niantic.

INJURIES CAUSE DEATH OF MRS. LAWRENCE EVANS

Theresa Costello, 19, wife of Lawrence L. Evans, of 92 Terrace Boulevard, died last night at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, where she had been a patient about a week. Death resulted from injuries Mrs. Evans sustained last September when the automobile in which she was riding was wrecked in Rhode Island. Besides her husband, Mrs. Evans is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John P. Costello, four sisters, Mrs. Rodney James, Mrs. Frank Carello and Mrs. William B. Ryan of this city and Mrs. H. J. Suprunowski of San Pedro, Cal., and by two brothers, Frederick W. and George C. Costello, both of this city.

Station House Keeper Frank Corcoran resumed his duties today after his annual vacation of two weeks.

Car Hits Bus

An automobile driven by Henry Pettis of Waterford, hit one of the buses of the Short Line, on State street, corner of Huntington street last night. Both the pleasure auto and the bus were damaged.

NEW LONDON CITY COUNCIL IN SESSION THREE HOURS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 16.—The city council held a session of three hours' duration this evening, marked by severe criticism of the board of school visitors in their report by the president, and strictures made upon Fire Chief Engineer Edmunds by Councilor Twomey. Councilor Minor took the school board to task for representations made by its president in his annual report.

The tentative budget for the ensuing year was offered and is to be presented at a public meeting on the 24th inst.

Councilor Twomey objected to the tentative budget and said that it needed more careful consideration; there were some items, which it was understood in committee might be reduced, but they were back to the original figure. He said still further reductions might be made and wanted it referred back to the committee for further consideration. He thought some of the items were placed in the budget without authority of the committee. Councilor Scott wanted the budget read for the second time and then it could be altered after the public hearing.

Councilor Minor said that the budget had been under consideration two and one-half months and he thought there would be no advantage of withholding the reading of it, after the public hearing. Councilor Fox quite agreed with Mr. Minor and said any changes might be made after the hearing. He said: "We don't want a patched-up budget but one that would be acted on finally."

Councilor Twomey insisted that the budget should be gone over carefully studied, compared with the budget of last year. It was impossible to go over the budget in a few minutes. He said: "There are items we know nothing about here," and mentioned the city garage where there are a number of men employed but the council knew nothing of what they do. He wanted to check up the tentative budget with the original.

The budget was gone over Thursday night and its presentation tonight was the outcome of that meeting.

He said he had understood that the motorcycles for the police were to be cut off and that would save a few hundred dollars. The expense of grade school is about what it was in the original budget, but that several items varied. First of all, it was the purpose to cut $100,000 from the budget and such items as could be eliminated were so treated.

City Manager Holt explained that the division of night school was changed at the suggestion of the school board and Councilor Scott said that the change of classification of night school had no effect on the budget.

The cut from the police department for motorcycles would have been about $1,500. City Manager Holt pointed out that the decision was to spend $135,000 for the police and that was what was provided for.

It was decided to put in the motorcycles to continue the efficiency of the police department.

The vote to refer the budget back to the committee was five to one against and it was adopted by roll call. Councilor Fox wanted the board of education to be notified that items had been eliminated from their proposed budget, so that there would be no dipping into an appropriation that did not exist.

Councilor Minor claimed that the city charter was ambiguous and said that a movement would be made in the next legislature for correcting it so that a tax might be made on the next grand list instead of the last list perfected.

The mayor suggested that a postscript should be put upon the notification to the school board calling their attention to the items eliminated.

In the matter of Christmas lighting the council accepted a report of the committee, Councilor Minor, to abandon the use of vari-colored lights on the streets at holiday-time. Finally, the Connecticut Power Co., is to be notified of that and then they will await a public hearing upon it. The contract will effect a saving of $3,000 for two years and the bulbs are to be turned back to the city for $800 to become the city's property. Councilor Scott wanted action by the public hearing before any contract was abandoned but that was not adopted. He said there were many people on each side of the question.

Reduction In School Expense

Councilor Minor said it was most unfair to tax all the real estate of New London to provide this money when it was beneficial to only a small business section. A long report from Councilor Minor in reply to the report of the president of the board of education was presented. Mr. Minor pointed out that the abandonment of the School of Commerce was of very great saving to the city. He said that the Williams Memorial institute cost the city $27,182 and to that amount $8,318 was added this year, making about $35,500. The High School of Commerce asked for $30,710 last year. W. M. I., to which pupils of the High School of Commerce were transferred, was taking care now of 432 students, against 114 in the High School of Commerce, and this at an additional expense of $8,318, contrasted with $30,710.

The report of the school board represented that the council was interfering with the management of the schools. Mr. Minor said that the council should appoint the board of school visitors, or give the school board unlimited authority in its expenditures.

The council voted against buying land for the extension of Sanders street.

Councilor Minor said that the matter of collection of ashes and dry garbage should be investigated. The business section of the city has six collections during the week and others one, or maybe none. It is unjust to tax property for the payment of this bill of something like $22,000. Some of the garbage collected was of commercial value. He referred to the matter of purchasing an incinerator. The whole affair was one for investigation and said that the city manager should get the data.

Central Fire Station

Councilor Scott moved that the city manager secure plans for the erection of a central fire station. He said it would give much work, also would wipe out three or four stations that now exist. Councilor May seconded his motion. Councilor Fox was opposed to starting any such work, saying that there were many things to be considered and that the council was moving in the dark. There is no land and no mention of any site that could be secured. The cost of plans was large and the proposition was one that needed careful consideration. There was not unemployment enough here to warrant such a proposition. He had known of architects offering plans for nothing. Councilor Scott said that he knew of architects willing to do such a thing and that plans were now in the fire headquarters.

Fred At Fire Chief

This brought Councilor Twomey to his feet and he criticized the fire department chief severely for statements he had made about volunteer firemen not responding to alarms. He said that such a central fire house as proposed would involve the city $250,000 in debt. The city was not paying all the fire department debt now, but that members contributed very freely. The chief now has 25 men laying around and he expects the volunteers to do their work. He advised the chief to get busy and study the department. The chief had an aerial truck that cost $17,000 that was practically useless to a city like New London, and the apparatus could only be used on State street. He said it was a joke!

Of the chief wants to visit the fire houses he has a chauffeur to take him around. Two men are employed at the aerial firehouse to keep track of the telephones. He was sent to New York to a fire school and then came back here to put into practice ideas that were prevalent in New York city. If the city had a proper fire alarm, volunteers would be more punctual in attendance at fires. A sounding apparatus gives the alarm to those in the fire-houses 17 seconds before the public alarm is given. Call firemen answer alarms and do not go back to the houses to answer the roll call.

He claimed New London was a three-story city and noted that it would be a long day before New London had any use for the aerial truck. The central fire-house would require three shifts of men. It was all right to go around in blue suits and brass buttons but that didn't do fire duty.

Councilor Scott defended the chief and said that when he introduced the motion he didn't expect he would bring out such a tirade against the paid fire department. His purpose was to give employment and that the expenditure of the money now would be a wire move.

Norwich Woman Sues

Anna Shea, of Norwich, fell on the street in this city, Nov. 12, 1929, and she has brought suit for damages and the case comes up for trial in the superior court on the first Tuesday in December. Referred to director of law.

Councilor Fox moved for the distribution of all charities under the direction of the city's charity department. All contributions will be sent to that office. This would avoid duplications, it was pointed out.

Property Valuation Too High

Councilor Twomey asked how the valuation of city property was made and was told that it was done two years ago by parties especially engaged for the work at a cost of $2,000. He pointed out that the valuation of the property was entirely too high and said that the property would not bring within 25 per cent of that valuation now.

The Coast Guard football team gave notice that they were to give receipts of a game to the city for charity. Application was made for the removal of a lunch wagon from the Winthrop's Cove bridge to the land south of the custom house. Permission to remove it will be given when an application for building it is granted to the applicant.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

Starting at the Palace tomorrow for three days a gigantic double feature bill is presented headed by the great Paramount spectacle The Sea God, with Richard Arlen, supported by Fay Wray and Eugene Pallette. Drama to the depths-action and adventure to the crested tips of the topmost palm is offered in the Sea God, the all talking romance dealing with the experiences which befall a bronze young sea dog, a primitive-tempered maid of the South Seas, and a brutal trader, on about, over and in the waters surrounding a cannibal isle.

Extravagance, the co-feature on this fine bill is a story of women and men. Two wives of opposite types are the illustrators of one of the commonest marital problems in this feature and the two are played by June Collyer and Dorothy Christy opposite Lloyd Hughes and Owen Moore.

One is extravagant and with her extravagance goes a sophistication which doesn't please her husband. The other is a thrifty hand at buying clothes and such things. She frequently dashes downtown to secure some new article of clothing or jewelry at some place "where they are practically given away."

The gentleman who "practically gives them away" is portrayed by Jameson Thomas, considered England's most popular screen actor.

Today for the last times you can see the greatest story of all time, the Doorway to Hell, the story gangland dared Hollywood to film, featuring Lewis Ayers, who leaped to fame in All Quiet on the Western Front, and Common Clay.

Broadway Theatre

The blues won't have a chance when Radio Pictures' wartime comedy, "Half Shot at Sunrise," opens at the Warner Bros., Broadway theatre, Wednesday, for three days' run. Then, according to advance stories about this production, featuring Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey, comedians of "The Cuckoos" fame, "you can put the undertakers to digging wells."

Previewers have said: "A triumph in fun making!" "The funniest men in the talkies today . . . or tomorrow!" "A comedy with a STORY!" "Go ahead and laugh . . . there's nothing you can do for it!"

Here are some of the things they are talking about: Five song hits by Harry Tierney, who wrote the music for "Rio Rita" and "Dixiana;" the famous Tiller Sunshine Girls; songs—"Riviera Moon," entrancingly romantic! "Nothing but Love," a rare treat in laughter. "Whistling the Blues Away," a foot teaser. "On Parade!" an inspiring marching song. "Kiss Me, Cherie," will make you hold hands even with somebody's grandfather.

The story: "Two American doughboys go A. W. O. L. in Paris during the big scrap and learn about . . . everything!"

The cast: Wheeler, Woolsey, Hugh Trevor, Dorothy Lee, Roberta Robinson, Edna May Oliver, John Rutherford, George MacFarlane, Katya Sorina and Leni Stengel.

HOPKINTON, R. I.

The Needlecraft club met with Mrs. Harry Hoxie last week Wednesday.

TAFTVILLE

Peter Gallan post, No. 104, American Legion held the first meeting of the fiscal year Monday evening in the Red Cross rooms in the Ponemah building, with Commander Arthur X. Bessette presiding. The newly elected officers were in their respective chairs and conducted the meeting. Plans were made for a drive in an effort to fill the last year's quota of 92 members, and for getting more ex-service men interested in Legion work.

Because of the annual meeting of the Eastern Connecticut Mills association being held Wednesday evening at Ponemah hall, the members of the Legion auxiliary are to be entertained by Mrs. Thomas Perkins Sears of North Fifth avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert J. Aberg of North A street have sent out announcements of the marriage of their daughter, Dorothy Marie Aberg to Ernest Alton Maynard on Saturday, November 15th, 1930.

Mrs. Edward St. Amour of South B street has gone to Montreal to attend the funeral of her brother Henri Poitice.

Wilfred Linderson has returned to his home in Bridgeport after spending the weekend at the home of his parents., Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Linderson of North Third avenue.

The new issue of the Group association Year book being received in town, lists the local members at the Ponemah Mills, the Prentice Co., and the Totokett Manufacturing Co., who are members of the Eastern Connecticut Mills association.

AIM TO BUILD CABIN AT BOY SCOUT CAMP

The scout leaders of Norwich will meet Wednesday evening at 7.30 in room 215 Thayer building, to hold the fourth session of the advanced training course but of chief importance to spend an hour in discussing ways and means of developing the new camp site. Dr. R. R. Agnew, for many years chairman of camping and always active in Boy Scout affairs, is making strenuous efforts to be able to report to the scout men that materials for a 12 by 20 foot cabin with verande, fire place, and wallboard interior, have been entirely contributed. According to Dr. Agnew there should be enough materials unused lying around in the yards of Norwich citizens to afford materiols for several cabins. If the scout leaders decide to take over the job of building the cabin, the local headquarters believe that the job can be done before severe cold weather sets in. If the cabin is built, a number of fir trees will have to be cut for the bases upon which the rafting and frame will be built. Slab boards will be used on the outside giving the structure a log cabin appearance and a fireplace will be built on the side. An A shaped roof is planned.

The speaker for the evening will be Rev. A. H. Abbott, a member of the executive board of the local scout council, who will speak on some phase of scouting in its relation to the sponsoring institution, C. V. James, chairman of the troop organization, will give a five minute talk on "How the work of organizing new troops in Norwich can be strengthened."

NEW COUNTY HOME BUILDINGS COMPLETE FOR PUBLIC INSPECTION

DR. EVELINE DICKINSON
Superintendent

Residents of New London county and visitors from other parts of the state are to have the opportunity during reception hours from 2 to 5 o'clock this (Tuesday) afternoon to visit the new county home buildings on Laurel Hill road. The site is on a part of what was known as the "Davis farm," which is a portion of the grounds of the Norwich State hospital, this tract being purchased from the state by the county commissioners when they made choice of a location for the new county home buildings.

Preliminary construction work was started shortly after the contracts were awarded early in October, 1929, at a price which was expected to bring the total cost within the appropriation of $250,000. The buildings constitute a group of three brick structures, with the main building in the center, flanked on either side by the school building and the isolation cottage.

The main building, which is fireproof, has a frontage of 127 feet, with three wings. The two wings on the end are out at angles of 60 degrees to the main part, this arrangement giving light and air from all sides. There are two floors above the ground floor, the latter containing the heating plant, laundry, meter room, etc. On the main floor the center wing contains the kitchen and dining room, while the center of the main portion of the building on this floor contains a living room, sewing room and main office. The two diagonal winge on the ends of the building contain large playrooms, the northerly side for the boys and the southerly for the girls.

On the floor above, in their respective wings, are the dormitories for the boys and girls, and the central wing contains the rooms for the staff. Occupying the main portion of this floor are the rooms for the older boys and girls, with toilet rooms. The building has a large porch on the front, and the roof is slate with copper gutters and conductors.

In the school building are three class rooms so arranged with a moveable partition that one can be used with a hall to give a seating capacity of 125 for assembly purposes. A corridor about 60 feet long to the main building allows the children to pass between the two without going outdoors. The class rooms are arranged with modern heating, lighting and ventilation and there are toilet accommodations in the building.

The isolation cottage contains eight rooms in addition to baths. It is of brick, colonial design, and is set apart from the other buildings, but like the school building is heated from the central plant in the main building, which consists of two boilers, so valved that either one or both may be used. All plumbing, electric wiring and lighting has been given much attention so as to secure the best results.

BIG STEAM SHOVEL FOR RIVER HIGHWAY WORK

A big steam shovel, which was loaded on a trailer behind a motor truck, went through the city on the way towards Jewett City Monday afternoon and is to be used by the contractor on the new highwey work on the river road to Jewett City.

The steam shovel had a 65 foot boom, which was fastened so that it extended towards the front and could be swung from side to side to make better progress around corners.

Officer Patrick Murphy accompanied the caravan through the city so as to handle any traffic difficulties which might arise.

COTTON MILLS EXHIBIT ATTRACTS MANY VISITORS

Slater Memorial museum had over 100 visitors on Sunday afternoon to see the exhibits of the cotton manufacturing business made by the Ponemah Mills of Taftville and the Aspinook company of Jewett City. It was noted that many of the visitors were employes in the two mills, who showed great interest in the display made of the processes with which they are familiar in their everyday employment.

The exhibit is to be continued for two weeks, with week day hours from 10.30 a. m. to 5 p. m. and Sunday hours from 2 to 4 p. m.

BAD WEATHER CAUSES AUCTION SALE POSTPONEMENT

Rainy and unfavorable weather on Monday afternoon cut down the attendance so much at a proposed auction sale of the so-called Jennings block, 190-191 Laurel Hill avenue, that the sale was indefinitely postponed after it had been duly called and bids had been asked for by Witter Bros., auctioneers.

The property is a three story frame building containing eight apartments and has a frontage of 110 feet on the street. It belongs to W. Harry Jennings.

ASTON WAS COMPLAINANT, NOT THE ACCUSED

In an item appearing in the Norwich Sunday Record, Nov. 16, it was incorrectly stated that John Aston of Montville was arrested Saturday by State Police Officer Arthur Whitmarsh of the Groton barracks on a charge of reckless driving. Mr. Aston was not arrested, but was the complainant in the case, for the machine driven by him was forced off the highway by another operated by John Chyinski of Colchester, who was arrested on the reckless driving count, later presented in Montville justice court and fined $25 and costs.

Marriage License Applications

The following applications for marriage licenses have been made at the office of Town Clerk Harold S. Burt:

Joseph W. Zahaba, 16 Yantic street, butcher, and Miss Josephine D. Walulik, 28 Cove street.

Haywood L. Sisson, New London, boxmaker, and Mrs. Josephine Misarsky, 30 Rose street.

Thomas P. Murphy, Norwich, captain of police and Miss Anna Boldrighine, 44 Forest street, Norwich.

It's a poor rule that refuses to work either way.

NORWICH GIRL SCOUTS GROWING IN NORWICH

Under the auspices of the Girl Scout Leaders association of Norwich, Miss Esther Ansell of Chicago, gave the leaders and members of the Girl Scout council a two weeks training course in scout leadership. The course was held in the new scout room of the United Congregational church. Miss Ansell, who is a trained leader, taught new songs, games, troop management and qualities of leadership. The following scout leaders took advantage of this excellent course; Miss Marion L. Bishop, Mrs. Frank S. Grieve, Mrs. Frank Rinella, Mrs. Ernest Bean, Mrs. Patrick F. Sweeney, the Misses Esther Evans, Margaret Leith, Helen Gallup, Katherine Sullivan, Sadie Kilroy, Sigrid Manty, Marjorie Sibley, Mildred Fox, Emma Thompson, also Mrs. Marcus Leith, Mrs. Benedict C. Pullen, Mrs. Walter F. Clark, Miss Ann Plante, Miss Marguerite Foley and Mrs. Hugh B. Campbell, members of the council.

Friday, November 21, Mrs. Harry Locke, Commissioner of Brownies of the state, will be here to give a short Brownie demonstration. This will be held in the United church rooms at 3:30. Miss Mildred Fox and Miss Emma Thompson are the Brownie leaders and if there are any others interested in Brownies they will be welcome to meet with Mrs. Locke Friday afternoon.

The Scout Leaders association held a successful bridge and tea of about 85 tables at the Norwich Inn, Saturday afternoon. The Inn was attractively decorated in green and white, the scout colors, and five girls from each troop, dressed in their uniforms served tea at 4:45. Miss Katherine Sullivan was general chairman of all of the committees. The 350 green and white baskets for the candy were made by Miss Helen Gallup, chairman. Misses Esther Evans, Margaret Leith, Emma Thompson. Candy was solicited by Miss Sigrid Manty. The tea and sandwiches were in charge of Mrs. Frank Grieve, chairman, Misses Mildred Fox, Emma Thompson, Eileen Kennedy and Mrs. Ernest Bean. Chairs and tables Miss Sadie Kilroy, chairman, Mrs. Patrick Sweeney, Misses Esther Evans and Dorothy Heilman. Mrs. Marcus Leith, commissioner of Girl Scouts, Mrs. James J. Dutton, Mrs. Hugh B. Campbell and Miss Marguerite Foley, all members of the council poured tea.

The association appreciates courtesies from Mrs. Harry E. Higgins and P. F. Sweeney.

Miss Marion L. Bishop and Scout Executive John Sellman are planning a supper for all of the Boy and Girl Scout leaders to be held in the United church rooms the second week of December. The Girl Scouts of Troop 1 of the United church are to be the hostesses and are to cook and serve the supper for credit in merit badge work.

There are three new troops in Norwich, one of 20 girls in the Samuel Huntington school under the leadership of Miss Marjorie Sibley and Miss Sigrid Manty, the Academy gymnasium teachers, one recently started of 26 girls in the Elizabeth Street school under the leadership of Miss Mildred Fox and Miss Emma Thompson and one in the United church of 28 girls lead by Miss Esther Evans and Miss Dorothy Heilman.

About a year ago Miss Bishop (who was director of Girl Scouts in greater New York, and had the second troop in New York city) started the first troop of 40 girls in the United church. From that one troop have grown two troops and one pack of Brownies, totaling 83 scouts in the United church, leaders Mrs. Frank Grieve, Misses Margaret Leith, Esther Evans, Dorothy Heilman, Mildred Fox and Emma Thompson; three troops in St. Patrick's church totaling 90 scouts leaders, Misses Katherine Sullivan Sadie Kilroy, Katherine Madden, Eileen Kennedy, Mrs. Frank Rinella and Mrs. Patrick Sweeney and Mrs. Ernest Bean, one in Bishop Street school of 45 scouts, leaders, Miss Helen Gallup and Miss Adams. Besides the new troops already mentioned, making a total of 263 Girl Scouts in Norwich, there is to be a troop started in the county home in the near future.

Norwich-New London busses pass the entrance.

POWER ENGINEERS HAD ENTERTAINMENT AND DANCE

The entertainment and dance held at Samuel Huntington school Saturday night was well attended by the members of the local branch of the National Association of Power Engineers, their families and friends. An hour and a half of vaudeville, preceeded the dancing.

The following members and friends contributed to the success of the entertainment: James Lockhart sang a group of tenor solos. He was followed by Mrs. Susan Lillibridge and Mrs. Eliza Walker in a comedy sketch entitled "Dumb as a Door Knob." Following this, came a children's sketch entitled "The Toy Makers Dream," in which some clever and dainty dancing numbers were performed by Virginia Hastedt, as Little Bo Peep, Edith Blackburn as the Tin Soldier, Helen Taft as the Rag Doll, Frank Jordan as the Drummer Boy, Ellis Bentley as the Bugler Boy, Eugene Wood Jr., as the Toymaker.

Then followed Scotty Powers in a group of Scotch songs rendered in a manner which would do credit to Sir Harry Lauder himself. Then Barnacle Bill (impersonated by Bill Walker) and the fair young maiden (impersonated by Len Staubley) arrived from "furrin parts" and made things lively with cut ups and capers. The sketch "Memories" (of which the following comprised the cast), concluded the entertainment: Soloist, Mrs. Amy Coles; School Girl, Marian Buckley; High School Girl, Inez Smith; College Girl, Lucille Hayden; Summer Girl, Arline Lillie; Winter Girl, Dorothy Waterman; Dancer, Edith Woodmansee; Widow, Dorothy Rogers; Bride, Catherine Turner; Bachelor, Thurston Lillibridge.

Mrs. Harry Stebbins was the accompanist for the entire entertainment. Fitch Dolbeare was the announcer and Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Coit stage manager and director. Following came the dancing for which the music was furnished by those snappy syncopaters, "The Musical Aces," with Clarence Lillibridge for the prompter. The committee in charge were William Walker, Fitch Dolbeare, George Thomas Dugas and John Jones.

SCOUT DEPUTY CHIEF IS TO VISIT NORWICH

Deputy Regional Chief George Felker who spent two weeks in Norwich a year ago in organizing the local Boy Scout work will return here for the first week in December. Mr. Felker will spend practically all of his time in organization work in the teritory. According to Scout Chief Sellman, the number of scouts per ten thousand outside of Norwich is very small and the regional chief has been asked to come to this teritory to assist in finding ways and means to increase the number of troops. According to the scout executive the number should be doubled or trebled. Many towns such as Jewett City, Danielson, Colchester, etc., do not even have a Boy Scout troop. Other towns which should have several have at the present time but one. This condition is due to the lack of supervision which in turn stabilizes the turn over in scout leadership.

SIX FINED IN COURT ON DRUNKENNESS CHARGES

In the city court Monday morning, three Norwich men arrested for drunkenness on Sunday were each fined $10 and costs. One went to jail because he could not pay $19.75 and the other two paid $20.75 and $19.50 respectively.

Three men who were arrested on Saturday for drunkenness were each fined $5 and costs, two going to jail in default of paying $16.35 and the other two paying $14.50. On a breach of the peace charge a Norwich man was fined and paid $10 flat.

Will Attend Campaign Dinner.

According to the local scout headquarters, a delegation of Norwich scouters will attend the opening campaign dinner of the New London Scout council, Thursday of this week. Among the men who will probably attend are Harold E. Robbins, H. D. Larrabee, and John L. Sellman. The delegation will attend the dinner in order to get ideas for the coming Boy Scout campaign which will be held beginning the third week in February.

Has Food For Poor Family.

The local scout headquarters has a bushel basket of apples, turnips, canned fruit, etc., for some worthy family. Please report need through a Boy Scout in your neighborhood or call scout headquarters. Many troops plan to give Thanksgiving baskets.

Pinochle Club Play Continuing.

Play in the City Pinochle league continues this (Tuesday) evening with the Duwell club acting as hosts. The high scores in last week's play were made by Raymond of the Lafayette club with 7,870, and Ciesluk of the West Side Independents with 7,650. The teams will compete as follows:

First half—Thermos vs. Duwells, Eagles vs. Icy Hots, West Side Independents vs. Italians, Lafayette club vs. Swedish club. Second half—Eagles vs. Thermos, Lafayette club vs. West Side, Italians vs. Swedish club, Duwells vs. Icy Hots.

How to End RHEUMATISM

New Medicine Drives Rheumatic Poisons from Joints and Muscles

EASES PAIN FIRST DAY

Poisons in the blood settling in the joints and muscles cause rheumatism. You cannot get rid of rheumatic agony till every trace of these dangerous poisons is driven out of your system. That's why external remedies and pain deadening drugs only give temporary relief.

What you need is RU-MA, the new medicine that acts directly on the liver, stomach and blood, and expels through the natural channels of elimination the dangerous poisons that cause rheumatic misery.

No long waiting for your suffering to stop. RU-MA eases pain the first day and is the one rheumatism remedy guaranteed to free muscles and joints from all painful stiffness, swelling and lameness.

Lee and Osgood has so much confidence in RU-MA that they want every rheumatic in town to try it and guarantee money-back if it does not end rheumatism.

COLDS
Break Up in a Jiffy
This Quick Way

Feel Like A New Man Almost Before You Know It

People have found out that newfangled ideas and notions don't break up colds. So millions have turned back to first principles and use what they know breaks one up in a jiffy. Even a "little" cold is too dangerous to trifle with.

The thing to do is to get Hill's Cascara Quinine at any drug store. Take two tablets now. Then follow directions on box. Drink lots of water, too—that's all.

Soon you'll start to feel like a new person. Things will loosen up, your head will clear; aching go—you'll be back on the job with a wallop.

Get Hill's now. It is a scientific formula made to do one thing well: to knock a cold—not to cure a thousand ailments. Get your money back if it doesn't work with twice the speed of anything else you've ever tried.

A Healthy Body
Is In Tune

It needs no treatment. Common sense in the CHIROPRACTIC PRINCIPLE recognizes this truth. In communication with all parts of the body, the brain controls by means of

A Network of Nerves

These nerves follow a course through the spinal column. That column is the shock absorber of the system. When in smooth action, all these nerves, communicating to the brain insure bodily harmony. When a fall or twist or other causes displace the vertebrae, this displacement produces a pressure or impingement of the nerves at that point. PAIN OR DISEASE follows inevitably. The body goes out of tune.

That Is Sickness

CHIROPRACTIC GOES STRAIGHT TO THE SOURCE OF THE TROUBLE BY ADJUSTING THE SPINE, THUS RELIEVING THE PRESSURE UPON THE NERVES AND ALLOWING THE BODY TO READJUST ITSELF TO A CONDITION OF HEALTH.

PLAUT-CADDEN ANNOUNCES THE NEW Florence Oil Burner

FOR KITCHEN RANGES AND PARLOR HEATERS

At last—here is the perfect oil oil burner for your kitchen range or heating stove—the FLORENCE made by a company which has specialized in the manufacture of oil burning products for fifty-eight years.

The Florence burns furnace oil, one of the cheapest household fuels and uses it sparingly. It is quickly and easily installed. It operates on the dependable "constant level" principle and uses a special valve that assures a clear uniform flow of oil to the burner. It delivers quick intense heat, free from smoke and smell, and is easily controlled.

The perforated cylinders are made of cromium steel treated to withstand intense heat indefinitely. Has 3 1-2 gallon metal oil tank with glass bullseye, keeping oil supply in full view.

W.C.T.U. DELEGATES WARN ANY AND ALL POLITICAL PARTIES

Delegates Pledge Themselves Not to Vote For Any Wet Political Candidate—After Adopting the Union's General Prohibition Platform the Delegates Raised Their Hands and Cried "We'll See This Thing Through"—All National Officers Were Reelected

HOUSTON, Tex., Nov. 18—(AP)—Delegates to the 56th annual convention of the National Women's Christian Temperance union pledged themselves today not to vote for any wet political candidate and warned political parties to nominate only drys.

The convention re-elected national officers and adopted a program calling for a widespread "education" campaign in public schools in behalf of the 18th amendment.

Mrs. Ella A. Boole of Brooklyn was chosen president for her sixth term. Other officers re-elected were:

Mrs. Ida B. Wise Smith of Des Moines, Iowa, vice president; Mrs. Anna Marden De Yo of Evanston, Ill., corresponding secretary; Mrs. Margaret C. Munns of Evanston, treasurer; Mrs. Sara H. Hoge of Lincoln, Va., recording secretary, and Mrs. Nellie G. Burger of Springfield, Mo., assistant recording secretary.

After adoption of the union's general prohibition platform, which declared opposition to "any and all political parties adopting a repeal or modification plank," the delegates swept to their feet and, at the direction of the officials, thrust their right hands high above their heads and cried, "We'll see this thing through."

Then they began to sing, first "Blest Be The Tie That Binds" and later "A Charge To Keep I Have."

As Mrs. Boole beamed upon them, Mrs. D. Leigh Colvin of New York called out: "Let north and south join hands." All over the hall they clasped each other's hands.

The plank adopted read:

"We reaffirm our position taken in the last presidential campaign in favor of dry planks in party platforms. We will oppose any and all poitical parties adopting a repeal or modification plank. We declare our determination to support candidates who by personal example, public acts and public utterances show themselves the undoubted friends of prohibition."

The union also passed a resolution requesting the creation of a federal board of film censorship.

Miss Maude M. Aldrich, head of the motion picture department, said the movies would be "constantly used against the 18th amendment from now to the 1932 campaign" unless action was taken.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19—(AP)—Propellers on ships and airplanes hummed today in renewed activity as a four-day fog vanished before an autumn sun.

Slight wisps of fog still lingered along the coast, but the weather bureau promised a clear day tomorrow.

As the haze lifted coast guardsmen worked to transfer the 5,400-ton cargo of coal from the hold of the freighter Harry Bowen, fast aground off Montauk Point, to a swarm of lighters surrounding it. Later cutters and salvage boats hoped to pull the Bowen free of the rocky reef where she had been perched since yesterday morning.

The 25 men of the Bowen's crew were still aboard the vessel, almost worn out by continuous manning of the pumps. They spent last night aboard ship despite a violet electrical storm.

More than 2,000 passengers on a dozen liners which had been held in the lower bay by the fog landed during the day.

The Bowen was one of three vessels stranded in the fog yesterday. Twenty-two fishermen were rescued by coast guardsmen in surf boats from the trawler Petrel, which had gone ashore on a rocky point off Block Island, and a score more were saved from the fishing steamer Tattler, which went aground while responding to a distress call from the Bowen. The Petrel later was towed into Block Island harbor by the coast guard destroyer Wilkes.

Transport and mail planes left the Long Island and New Jersey airports on schedule for the first time in days.

INDICTMENTS FOR ALLEGED SMUGGLING BY AIRPLANES

DETROIT, Nov. 18—(AP)—The federal government tonight held indictments against 14 alleged members of airplane smuggling syndicates believed responsible for the dumping of scores of aliens and thousands of cases of Canadian liquor within the United States during the past year. Twelve airplanes have been seized.

Ten of the indictments were returned today by a federal grand jury. The counts included alleged violations of the tariff, immigration and prohibition acts and also cited conspiracy. The ten men indicted today were among 18 named last spring in connection with a large conspiracy case. The other four indictments also named men include din the original 18 but were continuations of old indictments.

SUGGESTIONS IN CUBA FOR ELECTORAL REFORMS

HAVANA, Nov. 18—(AP)—With quiet restored throughout the island after several days of disorder, the senate electoral committee today took up a number of suggested electoral reforms.

Propositions before the committee include:

Compulsory voting with non-voters liable to a fine; elimination of duplicate ballots; voting for political parties instead of individual candidates; ballots to be filed before being brought to the polls; forbidding coalition of parties and making government employes ineligible to membership on electoral boards unless their resignation had been filed a year previous.

The reform proposals call for a new census before the new electoral code should be inaugurated.

ABDUCTORS RELEASE RACE TRACK BOOKMAKER

TULSA, Okla., Nov. 18—(AP)—George H. Hurford, wealthy Tulsa race bookmaker, was free again tonight after being held by kidnapers almost 36 hours. Police bent efforts toward apprehension of the plotters and determination of the motive.

Accompanied by two detectives, Hurford was on his way home from Chetopa, Kans., where he was put out of a motor car about 3 a. m. (C. S. T.) today. J. H. Lancaster, night policeman at Chetopa, quoted Hurford as telling him his captors had sought a ransom, but that he had refused their demand.

MIGHT BE CLUE TO MISSING MAIL AND PASSENGER PLANE

BURBANK, Cal., Nov. 18—(AP)—Aviators flying over the Tehachapi mountains searching for a missing Pacific Air Transport mail and passenger plane reported this afternoon they had sighted a parachute flare on the side of Liebre Mountain, about 25 miles south of Lebec. The flare, used by flyers seeking a landing spot at night, was seen through binoculars.

WINTER WEATHER WEST OF ROCKY MOUNTAINS

DENVER, Nov. 18—(AP)—Winter took a firm and icy grip on a widespread area from the Rocky Mountains to the Pacific coast and from Arizona to Canada today as snow fell in depths ranging to 24 inches. The fall was heaviest in the mountains.

The loss of two lives had been attributed to the storm; mountain passes were snowbound; air travel was made hazardous and many highways were clogged with drifted snow.

Exposure was blamed for the death of William C. Godfrey, chief forest ranger in the Crater Lake National park, who died last night after battling his way on foot through 44 inches of snow from Fort Klamath to the government camp.

Anxiety was felt for Allan Larson, timber worker of Fairview, Utah, who was last seen Friday walking in a snowstorm between Thistle Junction and Springville.

A disabled National Park Airways, Inc., plane, forced down Sunday between Syracuse and Layton, Utah, was found last night on the shores of the great salt lake. Ray Peck, pilot, wandered in the storm several hours before finding a farmhouse.

The plains country of Wyoming was blanketed by snow varying in depth from three to six inches and in the mountains the snow was piled 18 inches deep.

Depth of snow in Colorado ranged from a trace to eight inches but in the mountains many passes were blocked, apparently for the season. Monarch, Cumbres and Red Mountain passes were snow clogged and the Chief Ouray highway was closed.

ANOTHER VICTORY FOR THE TARDIEU CABINET

PARIS, Nov. 18—(AP)—The Tardieu cabinet won a 348-248 victory on a minor military question in the chamber of deputies today, but on Friday is facing a socialist resolution for investigating the financial operation of the Oustric bank and other bankers who recently have been in difficulties.

If the socialists insist on investigating these financial questions, the government will be obliged to pose another question of confidence and a sharp fight no doubt will ensue.

Premier Tardieu's appointment of Henri Cheron to succeed Raoul Peret as minister of justice has caused a good impression in financial circles and was well received from most groups of the chamber. Peret had come under fire because he had formerly acted as counsel for Oustric interests.

The socialists, however, announced they would demand the appointment of a parliamentary investigation committee such as that which probed the financial operations of Henri Rochette twenty years ago. Rochette was a promoter who had handled deals involving more than $2,000,000.

WOUNDED DARIEN POLICEMAN SHOWING SOME IMPROVEMENT

BRIDGEPORT, Nov. 18—(AP)—Although Jerome Melville, alleged New York gangster, is said to have confessed under prolonged questioning that he shot Sergeant Amos Anderson, "Lone Wolf" of the Darien police, he has made no signed statement to the police, according to Attorney Charles Altman, New York, who appeared in the state's attorney's office today to defend him.

Attorney Altman said that, if Anderson's condition warrants it, an attempt will be made on Monday morning to secure bail for Melville. Anderson was said to have shown some slight improvement tonight at the Stamford hospital. According to Dr. J. Howard Staub, physician in charge, Anderson is still in a critical condition, although he is slowly recovering from the shock of his wounds.

CHICAGO SUBPOENA SERVER FAILS TO FIND MAYOR'S WIFE

CHICAGO, Nov. 18—(AP)—Mrs. William Hale Thompson is the wife of Chicago's mayor, but that doesn't make it any easier to serve a subpoena on her, Deputy Chief Bailiff Charles Mugler explained today in criminal court, adding that he had tried and failed, three times.

To Mugler had been assigned the duty of handing the mayor's wife a summons which would require her appearance in the trial of Sam Battaglia, who is charged with complicity in the robbery of $17,000 worth of jewels from her.

"I will ask issuance of a subpoena every day for Mrs. Thompson," Defense Attorney Louis Reznik said. "She will testify, I am sure, that Battaglia is not one of the robbers."

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

LONDON, Nov. 18—(AP)—The former King Hussein of the Hedjaz tonight lay dangerously ill at his quarters on the Island of Cyprus.

LONDON, Nov. 18—(AP)—The Prince of Wales will be accompanied on his visit to South America next January by no less eminent an aide that his brother, Prince George, runner-up for the title of "Britain's greatest ambassador."

RIO DE JANEIRO, Nov. 18—(AP)—Sergeant Instructor Bianor Fadoul and Student Flier Sylvi Martins Dealmeida were killed today when their army plane crashed a few miles from Rio De Janeiro along the Sao Paulo highway due to motor trouble.

VIENNA, Nov. 18—(AP)—Speculative eyes throughout Austria and Hungary today were turned towards Belgium where, at the castle of Steenokerzeel, Prince Otto, the last monarchical hope of the toppled house of Hapsburg, attains his majority on Thursday.

VIENNA, Nov. 18—(AP)—Protesting his innocence vigorously, Charles A. Levine tonight was being held on suspicion of counterfeiting while the police waited for the crown attorney to determine whether the evidence against him justifies charging him before open court.

BORDEAUX, France, Nov. 18—(AP)—The French fliers, Coste and Bellonte, stole the show from Germany's big Do-X today, and the tremendous crowd which turned out to see them arrive for a banquet tonight made yesterday's jam of sightseers watching the caplane fly over the city look like a corporal's guard.

FORMER WAITRESS TO BECOME THE WIFE OF REP. TIMBERLAKE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18—(AP)—A former waitress in a capital hotel will become the wife of Representative Charles Bateman Timberlake of Colorado on Dec. 23.

Timberlake announced today he would wed Mrs. Roberta Wood Elliott during the Christmas holidays. They met last spring at the George Washington Inn, where he was a guest and she was in charge of the dining room.

Mrs. Elliott is a widow, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Wood of Salisbury, North Carolina. She is in her early 30's and has a daughter. Her husband died about a year ago. Recently she has been employed in the census bureau.

Timberlake has been representing the second Colorado district for 16 years and was reelected to the 72nd congress. He is a widower, his wife having died more than a year ago. He is in his 70's.

Arrangements for the ceremony Timberlake said, have not been made. While in Washington, they plan to live in a fashionable hotel.

CONNECTICUT TO GAIN ONE REPRESENTATIVE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18—(AP)—The representation of 32 states in the house of representatives will be affected by reapportionment figures announced today by President Hoover unless congress changes existing law by March 4.

Twenty-one states lose 27 seats. Eleven gain, including California with 9, Michigan 4, Texas 3, and New York, New Jersey and Ohio with two each. Connecticut, Florida, North Carolina, Oklahoma and Washington gain one each.

The reapportionment figures were determined by the secretary of commerce on the basis of the 1930 census, with the population placed at 122,093,455.

Missouri loses three members. Georgia, Iowa, Kentucky and Pennsylvania lose two each, and Alabama, Indiana, Kansas, Maine, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Mississippi, Nebraska, North Dakota, Rhode Island, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Vermont, Virginia and Wisconsin each drop one.

STENIO VINCENT ELECTED PRESIDENT OF HAITI

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti, Nov. 18—(AP)—Stenio Vincent, opponent of American occupation, was elected president of Haiti by the national assembly today to succeed Eugene Roy.

The choice was somewhat surprising, for the strongest candidates considered previously were Constantin Maynard and Seymour Pradel. When the balloting began this morning, however, the race was principally between Vincent and Pradel, with the former chosen on the fourth ballot.

Vincent, who is editor of the anti-American Haiti Journal, is 56 years old and a member of the extreme opposition. He is a lawyer, now serving as president of the Bar Association of Port-au-Prince, formerly was in the diplomatic service in Paris and Berlin, at one time was president of the senate and again was minister of the interior.

He is the first regularly elected president of Haiti since American intervention in 1916.

DECLINE IN BUILDING INDUSTRY NEARING END

CHICAGO, Nov. 18—(AP)—Indications that the long continued decline in the building industry was drawing toward an end were pointed out to the Illinois Manufacturers' Costs association tonight by Charles F. Abbott of New York, executive director of the American Institute of Steel Construction.

Speaking at a conference on "Problems and Present and Future Conditions in Basic Industries," Abbott said there were many indications of an early recovery of all business and that "with an increasing activity in the construction industry there should be no further basis for pessimism.

BOYS FLEEING IN STOLEN AUTO CAUGHT AT DARIEN

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 18—(AP)—The flight of two Haverhill, Mass., boys riding in a stolen automobile, was stopped today by a policeman's bullets.

The boys, Leland Swap, 16, and Raymond Butler, 14, were arrested in Darien after they had abandoned one stolen car in New Haven and had driven off with another. They ignored a policeman's signal to stop in Darien, but when the officer fired after the car they halted their flight and were brought here.

Police said the boys admitted stealing a car in Medford, Mass., and that they were recently placed on probation in Haverhill for the theft of a machine.

Hold-Up In Wholesale District, Providence

Five Bandits Get Between $6,000 and $8,000 From Office of the Hood Mi[illegible] Company

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 18—(AP)—Five bandits, held up a score of employes in the office of the Hood Milk company in the wholesale district here at 4 o'clock this afternoon, obtained the day's receipts of between $6,000 and $8,000 and escaped in a blue sedan. The men were armed.

Police say the getaway car bore District of Columbia license tags number S-4288.

Employes of the concern told police the hold-up men spoke with a "New York accent."

Allie C. Aldrich, of Norwood, manager of the plant, was sitting in his private office when the men walked in. One of them covered Aldrich with two guns. A second bandit, also armed with two guns, ordered 15 men and women workers in the main office to bend over.

"First one to lift his head gets it blown off," he snapped.

A third man went to the doorway of an adjoining room and covered 15 drivers who were balancing their accounts there. The remaining pair ordered Miss Alice Harrahan, in the cashier's cage, to place the firm's money in a canvas bag and hand it to them.

With the money, the five backed out of the office.

"If anyone leaves this office before we get away, he will be mowed down by machine guns," one of them shouted back.

A large dark blue sedan, said by witnesses to have carried District of Columbia plates S-4288 stood at the curb with doors open and motor running.

The men leaped into the car and drove away.

A sixth man, according to one witness, stood outside the office door as the hold-up men emerged. He ran across the street to where a small slate-colored sedan stood, with motor running, and drove off the car in the opposite direction toward the downtown section of the city.

MIGHT HAVE BEEN SLAIN IN CONNECTION WITH HOLDUP

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 18—(AP)—Charles E. Carpenter, 26, of Pawtucket, a garage mechanic, was mysteriously shot and killed tonight. His body was found in a dark alley, in the rear of a factory building. Marks on the ground indicated it had been dragged a distance of about 40 feet from an open window in the factory.

Police found Carpenter's cap and one glove inside the factory, and about 20 feet away from the window, behind an abandoned auto, his coat was found. In one pocket were six .25 calibre automatic pistol bullets, while $107 in bills and change were found in other pockets by police.

Police, informed that Carpenter was employed in the garage of the Whiting Milk company, are trying to link the murder with an $8,000 holdup at the office of the H. P. Hood company, a short distance away from the Whiting company's garage.

One small bullet wound was found in the man's abdomen. A search of the vicinity failed to reveal a weapon.

THIEF TRIED TO SELL COAT TO POLICEMAN OWNER

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 18—(AP)—Patrolman H. M. Morgan met a man with a bundle.

"Buy a coat?" asked the stranger.

The proffered sheepskin looked familiar, Patrolman Morgan's inquisitive fingers reached into a pocket. The fingers found a pair of gloves that had covered them a few hours before.

Tonight Ludwig Charmings, the bundle carrier, was at the municipal farm, working out a $25 fine.

PHILADELPHIA TO PROVIDE SHELTER FOR THE HOMELESS

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 18—(AP)—An eight-story building, equipped to house 1,000 men or, if necessary, 5,000, will be opened within a week to provide quarters for some of Philadelphia's homeless.

Horatio G. Lloyd, chairman of the committee for unemployment relief, announced today that a vacant warehouse of the Baldwin Locomotive works at 18th and Hamilton streets had been obtained through the courtesy of the locomotive concern.

The structure will be equipped with beds, blankets, kitchens, shower baths, sterilizing equipment and other facilities.

C. V. BOB'S WHEREABOUTS KNOWN TO HIS FRIENDS

NEW YORK, Nov. 18—(AP)—A report that Charles V. Bob, missing mining engineer and promoter, had been indicted for grand larceny adduced today from District Attorney Crain the information that Mr. Bob's whereabouts are known to his friends.

General Strike In Sp[illegible]s Subsiding

A[illegible] Week of Labor Riots [illegible]at At Times Bordered On Revolution—Promoted By Communists

MADRID, Nov. 18—(AP)—The capital seemed to sit back and catch its breath tonight after nearly a week of labor riots and general strikes which some believed had brought the country perilously near to revolution.

At Barcelona, where the disorders struck as Madrid's troubles began to abate, street fighting was still going on today. At Alcante, far to the south of Barcelona, disorders broke out today for the first time. There was continuing trouble at Valencia, but Granada and Oveido, at opposite ends of the kingdom, were quiet.

The trouble appeared to be by no means over, but in all quarters there was a belief that from now on, if it continues, the disturbance will be strictly a labor problem without political ramifications.

In all the cities to which the strike extended—even at Barcelona—workers were returning to their jobs. There appeared to be no danger of food shortage, but police and soldiers were ready to take a hand at several points in case new rioting should break out.

People were in the streets of Madrid and Barcelona again; trolley cars and taxicabs were running, some with armed guards; cafes were reopened and normalcy was returning.

But in the hospitals here and at Barcelona were several hundred wounded, both strikers and police. It was impossible to get definite estimates of the number of casualties, but at Barcelona five were known to have been killed and it was feared that one policeman would die of his injuries. At Alcante the first outbreak of violence this morning left three wounded, one a boy of 5.

Three of Barcelona's dead fell today in two riots which the authorities characterized as the last desperate attempt of the die-hards who saw victory in the strike slipping away.

Throughout all this trouble, which had its apparent beginning in the death of four workmen here last week in a building collapse, the general strike has had as its avowed objective more pay for shorter hours in all crafts.

But underneath that, the authorities assert, was the agitation of communist organizers who were driving toward revolution.

Several hundred suspected communists have been arrested, but many of these were released today and others were believed to have fled into France until things in Spain become quieter.

COMMUNIST PLOT IN SPAIN TO OVERTHROW MONARCHY

MADRID, Nov. 18—(AP)—The government tonight discovered a plot which it says was designed by communist agitators to overthrow the monarchy and arrested 60 alleged leaders.

Officials charged that the arrested movement had as its object the establishment of a republic, with communists working with certain republican elements.

It was believed that the plot was broken up by speedy arrest of the leaders.

After discovery of the plot, heavily armed forces of police and civil guards were placed on the principal streets, around public buildings and in all strategic centers.

The government telegraphed all provincial governors and ordered them to round up strike agitators promising that those arrested would be severely punished.

SIX NEW YORK BANKS HAVE RIGHT TO SUE OTHER BANKS

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 18—(AP)—The court of appeals ruled today that six New York city banks had the right to sue other banks and Charles D. Waggoner to recover $500,000 deposited to the credit of the defunct Bank of Telluride, Colo., of which Waggoner was president.

The court decided that the facts in the complaint filed by the National City bank, the First National bank, Harriman National bank, Chemical bank, Equitable Trust Co. and Guaranty Trust Co. against Waggoner and the Chase National bank, the Central Hanover Bank of New York, and the First National Bank of Peublo, Colo., warranted trial.

THEFT OF AN ALLIGATOR REPORTED FROM MIAMI

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 18—(AP)—A certain thief who stole a certain creature in Miami is a daring person or else he's to be pitied for what he doesn't know about certain things.

On the list of stolen articles at police headquarters today was the following:

Alligator, seven feet, four inches long; jaw 14 1-2 inches long; waist line 11 1-2 inches.

Police haven't a very definite idea about the procedure they will adopt in recovering the loot if it is found.

DOMESTIC GRAIN PRICES HELD STRONG WORLD PRICES SINK UNDER SELLING

CHICAGO, Nov. 18—(AP)—The domestic grain markets rode out a storm today while world prices sank in a deluge of selling.

Pits at Winnipeg and abroad were almost demoralized by selling orders and wheat on the Winnipeg exchange collapsed 8 1-2 cents a bushel for a time.

At Chicago, in sharp contrast, net losses for the day ranged from 1-2 to 3 5-8 cents and December wheat contracts finished the session still at 73 cents, a price maintained for several days despite evaporating values elsewhere.

Buying by government sponsored agencies and the encouragement lent by their stabilization policy to private traders was credited with holding the domestic market on even keel. The spread of Chicago prices over Winnipeg increased from yesterday's 11 cent advantage to approximately 15 cents today, and Chicago gained another cent on Liverpool.

At the final gong December wheat, old contracts, sold at 73 cents here; March at 73 3-8 to 5-8, May at 75 to 75 1-8, and July (new contracts) at 72 7-8 to 73 1-8.

Buying orders for 1,000,000 bushels appeared through several grain firms here without a fixed price limit and these gave adequate support to the market despite the tremendous sales in foreign centers. These orders were ascribed to the government supported stabilization agencies. Another supporting factor was spreading operations, involving sales on foreign markets against equal purchases here.

Corn paralleled wheat on the local exchange, dropping from 1 3-4 to 2 cents a bushel, while oats lost 1 1-8 to 1 3-8 cents.

LAWYERS 2 TO 1 FOR REPEAL OF THE 18TH AMENDMENT

Vote of About 75 Per Cent of the Membership of the American Bar Association Shows 13,779 For Repeal and 6,340 Against Repeal—Former Vote Resulted in 14,702 in Favor of a Referendum and 5,625 Opposed

CHICAGO, Nov. 18—(AP)—The American Bar association was placed on record today as favoring repeal of the 18th amendment.

A favorable vote of 13,779 to 6,340 was revealed by the association's headquarters on a referendum proposing "that the American Bar association favors the repeal of the eighteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States."

The result of the poll, in which approximately 75 per cent of the membership voted, will be officially announced in the December issue of the American Bar association journal.

Two ballots were mailed to association members. The first was on a proposal whether the association should take a referendum among its members on the repeal of the amendment and the other was on the proposal to repeal itself. The votes on each proposition were cast simultaneously.

The referendum proposal carried 14,782 votes to 5,625. Had the vote been adverse to the referendum, the ballots on the repeal would have been destroyed.

The votes on both proposals were counted by a sub-committee appointed by the executive committee. The sub-committee consisted of Orie L. Phillips, chairman; Major Edgar B. Tolman and Earl W. Evans.

Mr. Tolman said the referenda were not submitted with a view to formulating policy on possible legislation, but simply to determine the attitude of the membership.

The vote was instigated by petitions filed with the executive committee early this year by a large number of members. In line with the organization's policy, the referenda were officially announced in the June issue of the American Bar association journal and ballots were then distributed.

A spirited controversy over the proposed vote arose at the association's annual convention here in August when opponents of the plan petitioned the executive committee to recall the ballots and abandon the poll. They argued that prohibition was a question of national policy and not a legal question.

A motion to rescind the poll was overwhelmingly defeated on the convention floor.

TO REQUEST ABOUT $17,400,000 FOR DRY LAW ENFORCEMENT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18—(AP)—Plans for a stricter enforcement of prohibition were forecast today as the dry chiefs of the justice and treasury departments prepared requests for appropriations totalling approximately $17,400,000, the highest figure ever placed in the budget for the work.

Prohibition Director Amos W. Woodcock said the total to be requested for his department—including the cost of adding 500 new dry agents—would reach $11,200,000. This bureau was allotted $9,000,000 for the fiscal year of 1931.

Dr. James M. Doran, commissioner of industrial alcohol of the treasury, said he planned to ask for about $6,200,000, with the increase of $200,000 over his current appropriation covering the cost of adding 50 medicinal liquor and industrial alcohol inspectors.

TAMMANY MEN TESTIFY IN HEALY-TOMMANEY TRIAL

NEW YORK, Nov. 18—(AP)—Present and former Tammany factors took the witness stand today in supreme court in the trial of Martin J. Healy and Thomas T. Tommaney, charged with barter of a judicial office, and testified to the methods of Tammany Hall.

George W. Olvany, former leader, John Mara, a present district leader, and Judge William Allen of general sessions, former leader of the district Healy now heads, were the witnesses.

Their questioning by Hiram C. Todd, prosecutor, was designed to show that Healy's recommendation as district leader was tantamount to appointment and that when Mrs. George F. Ewald loaned him $10,000 shortly before her husband was appointed a magistrate it was to obtain that recommendation.

The questioning of Mr. Olvany, Tammany Hall's leader at the time of Ewald's appointment, was characteristic of the questioning of all three men.

"What were the functions of the district leader in relation to appointments of persons in his district?" Mr. Todd asked.

"If there were any vacancies," Mr. Olvany answered, "the leader would submit them to me and then I would submit them to the appointing power."

"Did they usually get the appointment from the appointing power?"

"If they were good men for the job they got the appointment."

VIEWS ON ESSENTIALS OF SUCCESSFUL NEWSPAPER

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 18—(AP)—Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of the Chicago Tribune, today described the newspaper as the achievement of an individual or a "happy combination of individuals," rather than a business enterprise.

Speaking on "the newspaper as a business enterprise," in the first of a series of lectures conducted by the Paul Block foundation of Yale university, he said:

"The newspaper as a business enterprise raises the question of a newspaper as an investment. I have always been accustomed to think of the newspaper in the terms of a man or a group of men associated together, the achievement of an individual or a happy combination of individuals and that with the passing of these the newspaper falls into a slow and steady decline unless or until it comes into the possession of another man or group of men suited to the occasion."

MURDER REVEALED BY FLASH OF LIGHTNING

TEANECK, N. J., Nov. 18—(AP)—A lightning flash that rent the early morning darkness today revealed a bullet-pierced body lying in a rain drenched driveway. It led to an arrest and an alleged confession, but it failed to throw any light on the motive.

Neighbors of Harry Elbers, a candy salesman, thought they heard five shots during a terrific thunderstorm. They called police who ran to the scene and, as the lightning cracked, saw the body of Richard Graham, former member of the Bergen county republican committee, lying in the Elbers' driveway.

Inside the house they found Elbers calm and his wife hysterical. "I shot that man," Elbers was quoted as saying.

Taken to the county jail Elbers refused to talk about a motive. His wife was held as a material witness.

REDUCTION REPORTED IN REV. FREIGHT LOADINGS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18—(AP)—Revenue freight loadings for the week ending November 8 were announced today by the American Railway association as totalling 881,401 cars.

This was a reduction of 53,239 from the preceding week and 167,567 below the corresponding period last year. Part of the decline was attributed to election day.

Miscellaneous freight loadings totalled 329,686 cars, a decline of 74,264 below the same week last year.

SOVIET DELEGATE AT GENEVA IS DISCORDANT

GENEVA, Nov. 18—(AP)—Maxim Litvinoff, Russian foreign minister and chief soviet delegate to the prepartory disarmament commission, was the center of debate today as the commission started drafting a plan to limit naval armaments.

Day by day since the commission began its session, Litvinoff has tirelessly bombarded his colleagues with radical plans for arms reduction and has carried on a verbal warfare with those who have challenged the wisdom of his measures.

Today he scored his first victory when he succeeded in inserting the words "to reduce" into the text, which as formulated by the great naval powers at the London conference provided only for limitation of tonnage.

But a few moments later the commission modified the text in a way which reduced the size of the soviet victory.

At another time during the day's session he managed before he was stopped by the chairman to express his indignation against France for having since 1920 retained part of the Russian Black Sea fleet in what he termed "captivity."

DRASTIC CUT IN SALARIES OF STATE OFFICIALS IN ITALY

ROME, Nov. 18—(AP)—In a forceful attempt to recoup considerable deficits shown in the current national budget Premier Mussolini pushed through the council of ministers today a measure providing drastic slashes in salaries of all state officials from top to bottom.

In effect the reductions amount to about the same thing as a general tax increase—an alternative which foreign observers had anticipated—since they reach down the line even to the humble government clerk whose salary now is not much more than $10 a week.

But the measure has the advantage diverting the money saved directly into government channels, and at the same time the cost of tax collecting is eliminated.

The council faced a deficit of 29 million lire today and admitted frankly that the heaviest expenditures of the last fiscal period were for military purposes and the extension of public works to relieve unemployment.

The salary cut, while it will produce its largest revenue from ceraoin privileged classes, actually affects about 60 percent of the entire population of Italy, including the conscript army.

DISCUSSION AT WHITE HOUSE OF LEGISLATIVE SITUATION

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18—(AP)—President Hoover called in Vice President Curtis and Senator Watson of Indiana, the republican leader, for a luncheon conference today on the legislative situation confronting the approaching short session of congress as new problems arose to threaten the plan for avoiding an extra session in the spring.

Disposition of the controversy between the senate and house over government or private operation of the Muscle Shoals power and nitrate plant and the new apportionment of the house announced today are potential trouble makers for the short session.

The republican leaders after their white house visit reported no conclusions from the conference and said it was confined to a general discussion of legislative and party questions. Beyond that neither ventured.

DAVID BELASCO CRITICALLY ILL WITH LOBAR PNEUMONIA

NEW YORK, Nov. 18—(AP)—For the first time in the 51 years he has been producing plays in New York, David Belasco missed one of his own premieres tonight.

Instead of hovering in the wings as the curtain ascended on "Tonight or Never," the Belasco production which opened tonight at the theatre which bears his name, the white-haired dean of the theatre lay critically ill with labor pneumonia in his hotel room.

An evening bulletin by Dr. Jerome Wagner, his physician, and Dr. Evan Evans, specialist, said Mr. Belasco's condition was "still serious" at 6:30 p. m., despite a restful day, and cited a temperature of 103 degrees.

Connecticut Boy is Brightest

FROM three to twelve. That's the period which is most important to your child's development. And that's the time many are retarded mentally and physically by constipation.

Watch your child, mother! At the first sign of bad breath, coated tongue, headache, biliousness, lack of energy or appetite, give a little California Fig Syrup.

This pure vegetable product cleanses, regulates a child's bowels without discomfort. No danger of forming the laxative habit when California Fig Syrup is used. For it tones and strengthens weak bowels. In colds or children's diseases, employ its gentle aid to keep the system from becoming clogged with germs or waste.

Mothers everywhere are eager to tell of the benefits secured for their children. Mrs. James McCarter, 29 Rowe Avenue, Hartford, says: "I have used California Fig Syrup with Bobbie for four years in cases of upsets, bad breath, coated tongue or constipation. It keeps him the brightest, happiest six-year-old I know!"

Look for the name California when buying. That is on every carton of the genuine, for your protection.

SELECTMEN TO MAKE PLANS FOR THE RE-FINANCING OF TOWN OF WINDHAM

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 18.—The formulation of a constructive plan for refinancing the town of Windham is to be undertaken by the selectmen following a more careful perusal of the auditor's report filed by Musgrave & Co., certified public accountants, Monday afternoon.

The selectmen, who for the present refuse to make any comment on the report, hope to prepare recommendations to present to the voters of the town for their approval at a special town meeting. There is the possibility that among these recommendations will be a proposal to establish a sinking fund for those bond issues which are outstanding and which are to come due in a relatively short time. At the present time no funds to meet the payments on these funds is apparent and it is obviously impossible to raise the amount required for these issues by taxes in one single year. It is, therefore, considered that a sinking fund will have to be established so that payments on the outstanding issues may be prolonged over as long a period of years as possible. Available figures at the present time indicate that $100,000 of the bonds will become due in 1940 and $150,000 in 1944, a total of $250,000 to be made available on or before 1944.

In order to avoid the precarious position of demands for payment of some $300,000 of floating debt in the form of short term notes and town orders, it is proposed to have a bond issue floated, the proceeds of which will be used solely to retire and pay this outstanding indebtedness. The new bond issue will probably be in the form of a serial issue, running over a term of about 20 years, payable in installments. At present nearly five mills of the town's taxes are required in paying interest and installments on debt and the aim of the selectmen is to secure the cooperation of the taxpayers to relieve the town of indebtedness while working the least possible hardship on the people. As stated in Tuesday's issue of The Bulletin, the total town indebtedness, bonded and current, is $1,308,450 as shown in the report of the auditors.

As the result of an interview this afternoon regarding the audit, Frank P. Fenton, who was town treasurer during the period of the audit, indicated that the amount of the unexplained deficiency, $87,476.60 given in the report, was incorrect, and is credited with the statement that he would confer with his attorney on the matter of having an audit of his own made of the town books, as he feels confident that there is no shortage on his part. Sympathy for Mr. Fenton because of his present position ran high today and there were many expressions of sincere hope that he would be able to clarify at least part of the alleged deficiency. For the past 30 years Mr. Fenton has been one of the most powerful and beloved vote-getters in the town as well as a staunch worker for community betterment and the report of the auditors was accepted as necessary but unwelcome news by his host of friends.

Tired Feeling Called Nature's Protest for Poor Care of Body

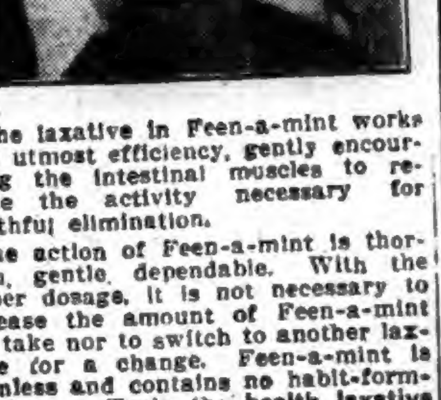
Constipation more apt to be cause than ordinary day's work . .

A regular well cleaned system is the first and perhaps the biggest step toward health and strength, according to many modern specialists. Bad skin, pimples, headache, biliousness and general run-down or tired feeling may all be signs of poor bowel functioning.

Yet there is now no real need to suffer from constipation and thousands and thousands of people are finding relief in Feen-a-mint—the modern chewing gum laxative that you can purchase everywhere. This is because Feen-a-mint works on an important new principle—that of uniform internal distribution.

Because you chew Feen-a-mint it is effective in milder doses than ordinary laxatives. For the effectiveness of a laxative is not so much dependent upon the quantity swallowed as upon the thoroughness of its distribution throughout the alimentary tract.

While you chew this delicious bit of gum the tasteless laxative it contains is gradually released and mixed with the saliva. Thus it is carried to the intestinal tract smoothly, evenly, without shock to the system or the distressing after-effects so common with old-fashioned laxatives. Each particle of the laxative in Feen-a-mint works with utmost efficiency, gently encouraging the intestinal muscles to resume the activity necessary for healthful elimination.



The action of Feen-a-mint is thorough, gentle, dependable. With the proper dosage, it is not necessary to increase the amount of Feen-a-mint you take nor to switch to another laxative for a change. Feen-a-mint is harmless and contains no habit-forming drugs. Truly the health laxative Ask for a package at any drug store.—Adv.

JEWETT CITY

MRS. HEBERT'S HUSBAND DIES IN MYSTERIOUS WAY

Mrs. Beatrice Prentice Hebert, of New York, came the latter part of last week to spend a few days with her mother, Mrs. Sarah Prentice in Lisbon. While there she received the news of her husband's sudden death in their apartment at 29 East 177th street. As he had always been in perfect health, the news was a terrible shock. The cause of his death was uncertain, as he had fallen over a rug apparently, whether from a cerebral hemorrhage or by accident, will never be known. Blood appearing on the ceiling of the apartment beneath, caused the occupants to notify the police who found Mr. Hebert dead, lying on the floor.

Martin Stenson Hebert, the son of Henry B. Hebert, the latter being a former president of the New York cotton exchange, was associated with his father in that business until a few years ago. He was captain in the 107th infantry for thirty years in the N. Y. national guard. He was formerly a member of the company of the old 7th regiment. Mr. Hebert is survived by his wife and four sisters. Mrs. Hebert is well known here, for she has always been a frequent visitor both in Jewett City and Lisbon. She also lived in Norwich when her mother's home was there.

FISHING OUT OF NOANK PRODUCES RARE SPECIMEN

During the summer of 1929, sailing out of Noank, a Jewett City crew manning one of the native smacks was overhauled by a coast guard cutter while cruising off the eastern end of Block Island. Heaving to, in response to the hail of the government boat's commander, the Noank vessel was boarded and searched, as a probable rum-runner. No wet goods were found, not even a personal snifter. This last summer, also on one of the little fishing village boats, a borough man hooked and brought to gaff, a 7-foot shark. Now comes William Lord with the goods to back up his exploit. In a Noank vessel last week, while fishing down off Shinnecock light, on the south shore of Long Island, Bill landed an alligator fish. Three days after the party came in, William had his fish to show in Jewett City. In the A. and P. store admiring friends crowded around to get a sight at this strange denizen of the deep. About two feet long, as big around as a frankfort sausage, with a five-inch stinger for a tail, and dry and hard as a T. D. pipe stem, it was passed from hand to hand.

DANIELSON

DANIELSON ARTIST SERIOUSLY INJURED IN NEW YORK

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 18.—Miss Cora Chase, an artist long resident in Danielson, lies dangerously injured in the New York hospital at 8 West 16th street as the result of being run down by an automobile. Miss Chase, who paints for the Lund Art Co. in New York, was on her way home from a lecture last Friday night when the accident happened.

She was hurled violently to the pavement by a car driven by a medical student whose home is in Baltimore. She sustained a broken right hand, a badly lacerated left hand and a head injury at first feared to be a fracture, but since established to be a severe bruise. Miss Chase is a sister-in-law of Attorney A. G. Bill of Maple street. She has been resident in New York for a number of years, but spent most of her life here.

FUNERAL

Joseph B. Stetson

Many people gathered at the home in the western part of the town of Brooklyn this afternoon for the funeral services for Joseph B. Stetson, long a figure in the public life of that town. Among those who came were numbers who had known him for close to half a century, and had been associated with him in various of the activities in which he participated as a fair official or an officer of the town. Rev. Charles Graves, a Unitarian pastor of Hartford, conducted the service. Burial was in the Witter cemetery at Stetson's Four Corners, where many of the early residents of Brooklyn are at rest. Bearers were Judge Oscar F. Atwood, Frank D. Spaulding, Irving Frink, Marshall J. Frink, Fred Millet and Willis Kenyon. There were many beautiful floral pieces. L. E. Kennedy had charge of the arrangements.

Two Trucks Collide

This territory appears to be bad medicine for Cornelius Wines, giant ByRolly truck driver who was operating the truck the silver bandits held up at South Killingly a few weeks ago and was gagged, bound and blindfolded by the crew. Rolling westward toward his home city of Waterbury aboard his truck at 6 o'clock this morning he was in a crash with another huge truck owned by Tobin & Garceau of Providence, at the junction of Franklin and South Main street. State Officer Lionel Poirier investigated the accident. He found no reason to file charges against Wines, but ordered William Vigeant, Cranston, R. I., operator of the other truck, to appear in the Killingly town court Wednesday to answer to a charge of failing to observe the rules of the road applying in such cases. The two ponderous vehicles were somewhat but not seriously, damaged in the accident.

County Game Warden Thomas Daniels today delivered to County Warden William Brittenham of Middlesex county one William Baldwin of 263 First street, New Haven. PLAINFIELD CONSTABLE CENSURED BY CORONER IN BOUCHARD CASE

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 18.—William M. Vincent, a constable of the town of Plainfield, is censured in a finding made this afternoon by Coroner Arthur G. Bill in connection with the accidental death of Joseph Bouchard, an elderly man who was struck and fatally injured by a truck being operated in Plainfield by Abraham Steinman, a resident of that town. The accident occurred on the night of Saturday, Nov. 8, at about 7:40 p. m.

Coroner Bill says during the course of his finding: "I viewed the body of said deceased and on the 12th day of November, 1930, I held an inquest as to the cause and manner of such death, at my office in Danielson. From the testimony taken at said inquest, I find that the said Joseph Bouchard was standing in front of Mercier's drug store in Plainfield, and was intoxicated and creating a disturbance by using profane language.

"William M. Vincent, a constable of the town of Plainfield, finding him in this condition, procured a taxicab and took the said Bouchard to a place nearly opposite the residence of Charles E. Hopkins on the state highway leading from Plainfield to Central Village, and there putting him out of the taxicab and leaving him to go where he saw fit.

"In about a half hour afterwards, the said Bouchard, in attempting to run from the left to the right hand side of the highway a short distance from the place where he was left, ran directly in front of a motor truck driven by Abraham Steinman. He was thrown violently to the ground, fracturing his skull, from which injury he soon died.

"I therefore find that the said Joseph Bouchard died in said Plainfield on said Nov. 8, 1930, from a fractured skull caused by being struck by a motor truck driven by the said Abraham Steinman. I further find that said death was not caused by the criminal act or carelessness of Abraham Steinman or any other person or persons.

"I further find that the action of said Vincent in taking Bouchard and leaving him upon the highway in the night season where he would be exposed to a large amount of traffic, instead of arresting him and putting him in a place of safety, as was his duty as an officer, is open to severe criticism."

Lang is Exonerated

In another finding given out by Coroner Arthur G. Bill here today, Sumner G. Lang of West Somerville, Mass., is exonerated from carelessness or negligence in causing the death of George T. Platt, 81, of Andover, who was struck by Lang's automobile on the night of Oct. 20 and who died later from the injuries received, in St. Joseph's hospital at Willimantic. Coroner Bill viewed the body and, subsequently, on Nov. 7, held an inquest relative to the accident.

The coroner finds that Mr. Platt after nightfall, was pushing a wheelbarrow along the Willimantic-Hartford state highway. He was on the right side of the highway and the wheelbarrow contained mail being transported from the Andover postoffice to the railroad station. Lang's car approached Platt from the rear as another motor vehicle that was following Lang's came along and passed as Lang came upon Platt. Lang was confused by the lights of this passing motor car and did not see Platt until he was just upon him. The coroner further finds that the wheelbarrow Platt was propelling was [illegible] light, as required by law, and that when Lang first saw Platt he was too close upon him to avoid striking him.

The coroner's finding further shows that Platt died from a rupture of the left kidney, and traumatic ileus, caused by being struck by the automobile.

NO. GROSVENORDALE

At Tourtellotte Memorial high school Friday evening a chorus of 58 pupils presented a minstrel revue under direction of Miss Dorothy B. Roy, music supervisor in the town's schools. Two of the sixteen numbers were given by grade school pupils. Jeanette Martel featured with her song and clog dancing, as did also the instrumental trio, Lawrence Bayer, Raymond Bayer and Louis Molinaro, junior high and grade school pupils, with song "Moonlight on the Colorado." Miss Roy, music director, and Milton Vinton played a piano duet. The girls wore costumes of red and white, the boys wearing black and white with black berets. The cast included Interlocutor, Wade Chubbuck; end men, James Maitland, James Demetric, Carl Langer, George Tefft; end girls, Doris Bousquet and Mary Brew. Chorus: Lois Strait, Sara Rhodes, Martha Strand, Gladys Evans, Edith Tefft, Pauline Bell, Muriel Stone, Lois Cassells, Phyllis Colby, Madeline Ciderre, [illegible] Johnson, Virginia Lee, Julia Niewedzal, Elizabeth Walker, Viola Trudeau, Virginia Tatlobae, Myrtle Strait, Bernice Evans, Rose Demetrie, Julia Peterson, Margaret Canty, Mae Pizzotti, Florence Pray, Josephine Budzynkiewicz, Doris Johnson, Gertrude Menoche, Theresa Auger, Stasia Rogalska, Eleanor Brayton, Virginia Hopkinson, Sarah Ballard, Marie Hazlett, Merrill Seney, Raymond Ierardi, Axel Johnson, Frank Lynch, David Sherry, Normand Seney, Francis Lohse, Merton Buck, John Niewiedzal, Daniel Bousquet, John Witkowski, Edward Ierardi, Latham Morse, Rene Martel, Jeanette Martel, Alexander Maitland, Jr., Harry Shaw and Clinton Ormsby.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy P. Tourtellotte have returned from Boston where they spent the week-end.

Miss Helen A. Mack and Miss Sybelia Gilman, instructors at Tourtellotte, motored to Storrs' college Saturday and attended the football game when the Connecticut State college squad met Rhode Island, the game resulting in a tie.

Henry Loiselle of River Point, R. I., was the week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. Omer Loiselle.

Miss Vivian Lucier, student nurse at St. Vincent's hospital, Worcester, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lucier.

Miss Anna Feige of Webster called on friends here Saturday evening.

Joseph, Benjamin and David Bellerose of Chartley, Mass., and Lionel Bellerose of Attleboro were visitors Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Amedee Seney.

Leonard Johnson has returned to his work in New Jersey after a short stay at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Johnson.

Tickets have been sent to the members of Tourtellotte Alumni association for a concert to be given in December in the high school auditorium. This concert will be under the direction of Miss Marguerite C. Burns, former music supervisor in the schools of the town of Thompson. Miss Burns will be assisted by one of her pupils, a young boy, and by two members of the White bureau, of Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rawson and family left Tuesday morning by machine for Florida, where they will spend the winter. On their way they will stop in Washington, D. C., and visit points of interest.

The Girls' club and Firemen, Co. B, sponsored a dance at the Community house which was attended by more than 250. The special award, a live turkey, went to Philip Poirier. The committee in charge was Misses Katherine Laposta, Alma Swanson, Noella Mailloux, Albina Bourque, Antoinette Olson, all of the Girls' club, and Daniel Cunningham, John Swanson, Philip Poirier, Charles Duchesne, Delores Rivers and Delphis Chausse, of Co. B.

Mr. and Mrs. Leon Baker, of Saxonville, were guests of Joseph Baker for the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Brodeur and sons, Wallace and Robert, and Patrick L. Peterson were guests of friends in Orange, Mass., Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Rawson and family have returned to Worcester, after being guests of Mr. Rawson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wyman Rawson.

Miss Mildred Swanson, of New York, is with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Swanson, for several weeks' stay.

Mr. and Mrs. N. Verne Rawson and son Kenneth have gone to Worcester, where they will spend two weeks as guests of Mrs. Rawson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Weir.

The Grosvenordale Co. baseball club is planning a benefit dance at the Community house. The preparations are in charge of Leo Bernard, manager of the team.

The town of North Providence, R. I. found some practical use in an endurance "pole sitter." Joseph Rao, sixteen-year-old youth, was sitting on his perch as night came, when he spotted flames in the distance. He called his brother, who was keeping vigil on the ground, and a telephone alarm was quickly dispatched to the fire company.

PUTNAM

NO TRACE OF FIREARMS BANDITS HAS BEEN FOUND

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 18—Lieut. Ross V. Urquhart, commanding officer of the state police barracks at Danielson, said this afternoon that neither associate barracks of the state police department nor the municipal police departments throughout the state reported any further trace today of the Lawrence firearms bandits who were hunted in this section Monday afternoon.

The systematic and well planned trap that was carefully laid by police Monday when word that the bandits were thought to be headed toward this city, was received, aroused the curiosity of several people in the business section who gathered about the strategic points at Front street and on Pomfret street, to create a scene reminiscent of that which occurred in Bugbee square on the night of April 6, 1928, when State Policeman Irving H. Nelson of the Danielson barracks while attempting to apprehend the Worcester "icebox" bandits was fatally wounded.

In the rural sections it was reported today that water is beginning to flow into wells which have been dry the greater part of the summer months, due to the extent of the drought. The coming of new water supply is the result of substantial rains received during the past two weeks. Although many of the wells are filling up, the present supply is still far short of water necessary to stave off a winter shortage. Farmers anticipate that the unseasonably warm weather will continue sufficiently long enough to permit their water fonts to fill up.

Robert T. Hurley of Hartford, commissioner of the department of state police was in this city Monday on official business pertaining to his office.

Frank Donovan, former Putnam high school football star, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Donovan of Lyons street, is among several Connecticut boys enrolled in the first class of 310 freshman students at Holy Cross college in Worcester, a press dispatch from that city said today.

The theft of a Ford coach from its parking place in Grosvenordale last night was reported early Tuesday morning to state police at Danielson barracks by Joseph Stein of North Grosvenordale, owner of the car. The owner believing the car to have been removed from its parking space by practical jokers, conducted a search of the various out of the way nooks about the village and after failing to find his automobile reported it as stolen. Police said this afternoon no trace of it had been found.

Directors of the chamber of commerce were in session Monday evening at the Putnam Inn. Only matters of routine business came to the attention of the body and were quickly acted upon.

Sergeant Ames Anderson, whose daring exploits in connection with the single handed capture of criminals using the Boston Post road earned him fame in the town of Darien, and who was seriously and perhaps fatally wounded in a gun duel with bandits yesterday, was well known in police circles in this section. Sergt. Anderson known as the "Lone Wolf" of the Boston Post road, was an intimate associate of the late Captain William J. Jarvis and numbers of members of the personnel of the state police barracks at Danielson are among his statewide circle of acquaintances.

Local merchants as well as employes of the post office department are preparing for the seasonal rush preceding the Christmas holidays. In many of the stores, arrangements are now being made for the opening of Christmas gift departments.

Mr. and Mrs. William E. Smith of New London have moved to their new residence on South Main street. Mr. Smith is assistant superintendent of the New Haven division of the New Haven railroad. Recently his headquarters were changed from New London to Putnam.

Damase Larose of 28 Mill street, for many years a resident of this city died this morning after an illness of many weeks. He was in his 73rd year. Mr. Larose was a native of Canada, having been born in St. Hyacinths on August 11, 1857. During the years of his life spent in Putnam, he worked as a textile operator in the mills here.

Arthur F. Hughes, general chairman of the roll call of the local chapter of American Red Cross said this afternoon that a report of the results of first week's canvass by district team workers will be released Wednesday afternoon. The public response to the roll call thus far has been most gratifying, the chairman said.

A post season thunder storm broke over the city shortly after one o'clock Tuesday morning, accompanied by a heavy downpour of rain. The lightning flashes were brilliant, but caused no damage hereabouts, as far as could be learned today. None of the service lines of the telephone or power companies, which usually suffer under the beat of electrical storms, were affected today, according to late reports.

EAST WOODSTOCK

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Townsend have been entertaining the former's twin infant and niece, Gerald and Geraldine Rondeau, of Worcester.

Frank Foskett's new house is nearing completion. His house was burned last June.

Mrs. Mary Hopkins and Mrs. Lillian A. May attended the D. A. R. whist at the home of Mrs. Mary Bishop in Putnam, Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Emily Butler was hostess.

Elwyn Morrison, employed by the Stillwater Worsted Co., is taking a two weeks' vacation, spending it at his home in Maine. His sister, Mrs. Ray Eddy, and little son, Byron, accompanied him.

Miss Abbie Scott, of Putnam, met the members of the Sunday school at the chapel Sunday evening.

Club Election.

At a meeting of the Community club held last Wednesday evening, the following officers were elected: President, Lester Pearce; vice president, W. R. Bosworth; secretary, Annutte May; treasurer, Herman Marcy; directors, Louise Pike, George Sampson, Irene Viens, Herman Marcy, Ethel Uphams, George Westhaver, Ella Child, Everett May, Mrs. W. R. Bosworth. There was a college whist with 11 tables in play. Prizes were won by Mr. and Mrs. F. N. May, Mrs. Fred Meyeres, Harold Foskett. Refreshments were served by the committee in charge.

Miss Ethel E. Upham, president; Mrs. F. W. Johnstone, treasurer; Mrs. Edward Chandler; Miss Nellie Chandler are delegates of the Woodstock League of Women Voters attending the annual state convention held in Bridgeport today (Wednesday) and Thursday.

THE NEW COUNTY HOME

If numbers mean anything, there is a deep interest in the new county home that was opened for inspection Tuesday. Hundreds made the most of the opportunity to look over the plant that has been provided for taking care of the county's charges, and those who did so cannot fail to have been impressed by the excellence of the institution.

At a location that is healthy, sightly and easy of access, there has been erected a county home that will stand for a century, a modern institution of fireproof construction concerning which there need be no fear of waking up some morning to find that it has been destroyed by flames with serious loss of life. It is in marked contrast to the county home that has been in use on Smith avenue for so many years, where the children were housed in wooden buildings and where opportunity for adequate expansion is lacking.

In the new home the county has an institution that will stand to its credit and serve as an example of protective housing and care for its wards, a home that cannot fail to be an inspiration to any and all who come under its influence and share its advantages. The commissioners have built for the future as well as the present and it is no small degree of satisfaction to the towns of the county to know that the up-to-date home has been entirely paid for.

When it comes to taking care of children, too much attention cannot be given to safeguarding lives and providing the best in health conditions. Though this may involve expense for the time being, it is preferable in the long run, and, in fact, the only course that should be adopted when such a problem has to be met. With the dangers and limitations of the old home eliminated the county has every reason for pride in the new home and the judgment of the commissioners in providing it.

CHRISTMAS MAILING

If you haven't given any serious consideration to the fact that Christmas is only about five weeks away, the postoffice department has. It knows what a burden is placed upon the postal facilities at that season of the year, the congestion that results from the failure of the public to avoid 11th hour mailing and the need of public cooperation if satisfactory results are going to be obtained.

Thus, when it urges early mailing, it speaks from experience. It recognizes the inclination of many to expect the impossible from the postal service. If the individual is dilatory and forgetful, the department is expected to get the mail to its destination on time just the same. If allowance isn't made for the transportation of mail to other countries or to distant points in this country, the department is expected to overcome it somehow. There is a disposition to feel that if a Christmas package can only be gotten into the postoffice, even though the destination may be half way across the country and the mailing date the 24th of December, it should be left on the doorstep of the person addressed Christmas morning.

The department makes no claims that it will do the impossible. It cannot be expected to and it is none too soon for those who are intending to mail their Christmas packages to give attention to the task and see that they are in the postoffice well in advance of the holiday. This means that the Christmas business can be distributed over a longer period and the rush of the last few days can be greatly decreased. The appeal of the department that this be done is a fair one and those who give it a thought cannot fail to see the importance of doing their part. The department's appeal is for the best interests of those using the postal service.

Furthermore, the plea of the department that those sending packages should see that they are securely wrapped with strong paper and tied with heavy twine so that they will remain intact until delivered is timely. Many Christmas gifts are undeliverable because the packages become undone and the articles fall out, and the same is true of those parcels on which the address is so badly or incorrectly written that the intended destination remains a mystery. It requires little effort to insure the prompt and safe delivery of mail if the department is given a fair chance.

CLAIMS NOT PROVED

Who was responsible for the Black Tom fire in July, 1916, when great quantities of munitions and property were destroyed, and the Kingsland, N. J., fire in January of the following year, may be firmly fixed in the opinions of many people but it has been impossible to prove that Germany was to blame.

These disasters occurred during the war but before this country had entered it. It was during the neutrality of the United States when representatives of Germany were active in this country and when the destruction of such supplies destined for export was advantageous to Germany. The situation was such that suspicion would naturally be attributed to the German agents and it was in keeping with such belief that claims for $40,000,000 because of those fires were submitted to the mixed claims commission. On that commission, which sat in Germany, there were two Americans and one German. Opportunity was provided long after the disasters to present all available facts and such was done by counsel backing the American claims, but it was the unanimous verdict of the commission that it had not been proved that it was done by Germany or its agents.

Producing proof of such a claim 14 years after the occurrence is by no means an easy task. There was no denying on the part of Germany that German secret agents committed many violations of neutrality, but the point made was that the disasters had not been shown to have been caused by such agents. Proof was demanded and the commission found that proof was lacking and with the commission two-thirds American every possible consideration was probably given to the alleged proof. Allegation is not proof and suspicion is not proof. Because German agents were violating neutrality here doesn't necessarily mean that they caused those fires and explosions. If they did it was to be expected that they would take every precaution to cover it up, and if that destruction was really caused by such agents the verdict of the commission discloses the difficulty in furnishing the proof.

According to the commission, Germany is absolved and that will probably mark the end of the matter. It is an instance which emphasizes the desirability of such a method of dealing with such a claim or dispute. The commission insisted upon facts rather than suspicion and it was impossible to produce them.

THE BOY SCOUTS' CABIN

This is the season for many appeals, but the suggestion that there is much material of no particular value as it is but which might be brought together for the construction of the Boy Scout cabin which is to be erected on the site offered them by the Eastern Connecticut Power company, is one which should awaken an interesting and gratifying response.

There are times when such material is freely offered to those who will take it away. When buildings are being torn down it is a drug on the market. No doubt there are many who would be glad to give timber, boards, flooring, doors, windows, blinds for which they have no further use and yet which would furnish good material with which to construct the cabin that has been planned.

Many are the occasions when persons have saved material of this character against the time when some worthy use could be made of it. They had no particular use for it but there was value in it and they hated to see it go to waste. If there are such who are willing to contribute it to the Boy Scouts there can be no question but what it will be gratefully received and that good use will be made of it. The organization is one which has been making an excellent impression in this city and vicinity. Its objects and its work have won repeated commendation. Its worthiness is beyond question and it would be a generous bit of encouragement if the appeal for such contributions would result in the offer of so much material that not only the projected cabin but perhaps several buildings might be constructed on the camp site along the Quinebaug river. Interest in the development of that site as a permanent summer camp for the Scouts of this city has been growing since the property was offered and accepted.

KNOWING AND RESPECTING DANGER

It has been realized that if those who are so reckless with their own safety are permitted to have their own way and to hasten their own ends through a refusal to abide by warnings, there may come a time when such fatalities as they figure in will be greatly reduced through the process of elimination.

It is too early to say that such a development is taking place in regard to grade crossing accidents and yet when the interstate commerce commission shows that there has been a decrease of 14 per cent in the total number of crossing fatalities during the first half of this year, in contrast to the same period last year, it reveals an improvement which cannot fail to get attention.

Evidence aplenty has existed that there was no excuse for such fatalities as have occurred at grade crossings. There has been utter disregard for danger which is known to exist there. There has been a willingness to take chances that could have no other than fatal results and there has been a refusal to abide by warnings and signals, and flagmen have been bowled over and killed in the mad insistence on beating out the locomotive.

If there is a definite recognition on the part of hitherto reckless drivers to yield to the safety first pleas, there is cause for satisfaction. It is to be hoped that the decrease in grade crossing fatalities and accidents for the first half of the year represents a permanent change for the better and not simply a temporary indication of improvement which will be more than made up by the records for the second half of the year.

With new or old drivers there can be no dodging the fact that crossings represent a real peril, and no escaping the claim that with due respect for such danger spots the peril could be practically eliminated.

HOUSEKEEPING BY PROXY

"I'm simply exhausted from the frightful time I spent yesterday!" announced the lady of the kitchenette apartment. "So many troublesome things turned up, and then Betty Louise was cross."

"You're overworking yourself. First thing you know you'll break down," cut in her husband sternly. Her brother, who was visiting them spoke up. He was a professor of sociology and famous for his theories. His favorite subject was "The Family and the Home," and editors of women's magazines clamored for his articles.

"This is a day of brilliant scientific inventions designed to eliminate household drudgery," lectured the professor in the superior tone commonly assumed by bachelors when speaking of housework.

"Are you chained to a washboard? Are you compelled to grind your own meal for bread?" He paused just long enough to allow time for the digestion of these questions, then shot out triumphantly, "No! You modern women have no reason for being 'simply exhausted'!" His sister was silent at this onslaught. Then she said sweetly, "I'm so glad you feel that way about it, Horace. Then you wouldn't mind staying home today with Betty Louise while I go downtown?"

"Won't mind it a bit," replied the professor easily. "I have an article to write, and Betty can draw pictures."

"Well, Betty Louise, we've been deserted," said her uncle gayly to that 2-year-old, blue-eyed cherub an hour later. "Here's a picture book and some crayons. You demonstrate your artistic ability, and I'll proceed to elucidate my theories on paper." The clock ticked on in silence and he wrote contentedly. A very comfortable situation for five minutes. Then the telephone rang. Horace laid down his pen.

"Hello—yes—you say you didn't receive today's grocery list yet? (Don't show me pictures now, honey). Hello—no, I wasn't talking to you!" roared Horace. "About the list—leave that ink alone!" (A tardy warning as a crash answered and the black liquid spread itself on the thick rug). "Please forget the groceries today," he begged.

Slamming down the receiver, the professor rushed to carry off his screaming, ink-stained little ward to the sink. After the necessary ablutions were completed and Betty Louise had been quieted with a lollipop, Horace spent the next half hour on his knees in a vain attempt to eradicate the stains on the rug.

"I'se hungwee, Unca Howace," wailed Betty Louise.

"Uh—yes, darling. We'll get something to eat," promised her harassed guardian and betook himself to the kitchen. Better make her toast and hot milk first—nothing to cooking that—and then fry some flapjacks for himself, his one culinary accomplishment. While he measured and mixed and stirred, he discovered that his niece had a genius for getting under his feet.

"Sit down like a good girl for just five minutes," he pleaded and then dashed over to the gas range in time to save the milk from boiling over. While he was congratulating himself on this hair-breadth escape from disaster, he beheld Betty leaning out of the open window and joyously dropping his precious reference books into the courtyard below.

"Stop!" he thundered, closing the window and then racing hatless down eight flights of stairs to the street. Feverishly he searched the sidewalks and located all except a $15 volume which had fallen into the lily pool. Then, to his consternation, upon returning to the apartment he found himself locked out. There was only one solution—climb the fire escape. This time Horace descended to the first floor in the elevator, carrying books stacked to his chin in aching arms.

As he began his climb a small crowd collected in the courtyard to view the ascension, especially as a policeman appeared on the scene, shouting at him to come down. But he persisted and finally reached the fourth story, perspiring and breathless. Stumbling over scrub pails and window rakes littering the landing the professor entered his sister's apartment, dumped the books on the table and sank limp and disheveled into a chair.

A cloud of smoke was issuing from the toaster and filled the apartment. Betty Louise climbed upon his knee and tried to revive him with proffered licks of her lollipop. Then a latchkey sounded in the door and into the haze walked his sister.

"Why, Horace! What in the world is the matter?" she cried in alarm, snatching out the cremated remains of the toast.

Her brother pulled himself together sufficiently to gasp weakly, "Housekeeping. I'm s-simply exhausted!"—Chicago News.

YOUR HEALTH

Prevent Childhood Tuberculosis

By F. E. Harrington, M. D., Commissioner of Health, Minneapolis.

(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

As American Education Week comes to a close, one of the health problems in the minds of some of us is the importance of the prevention of childhood tuberculosis. For the past three years, scientific teaching has emphasized the importance of early discovery of tuberculosis. Nationwide compaigns on this subject have been directed particularly to the recognition of the disease in early childhood. The unquestioned importance of the discovery of childhood tuberculosis reflects itself in the deaths from tuberculosis among the so-called teen ages, and early adult years of life.

Diseases of the lung seem to act in a manner contrary to other forms of contagious diseases. Most contagious diseases with which we are familiar confer a reasonable lasting immunity. Diseases of the breathing apparatus, however, do not seem to produce a condition tending toward protection from further attacks of the same disease. Persons have been known to have several attacks of pneumonia, and tuberculosis follows the rule of this exception. Contrary as it is, it has been scientifically proven that the infection caused by the germ of tuberculosis known as the tubercle bacillus, does not protect the body from future attacks. One reason probably is because this disease, although more or less sudden or acute in its first manifestations, runs a course over a period of months or years, producing practically a chronic condition.

The first infection with the tubercle bacillus produces a definite disease process which when recognized is classified as the childhood type. With a small percentage of exceptions to the rule, subsequent infections produce in the human body a form of the disease known as the adult type. Fortunately, the childhood type tends to spontaneous healing. The process of such healing is a walling-off of the point or area of infection with lime. This process usually takes place during the growth period of the body when nature is using lime salts in noticeably large quantities to complete a formation of teeth, and the calcification of bone tissues. X-ray studies of the chests of twelve thousand children has shown in a large percentage these calcified or lime deposit areas in the lung, which means that nature has already partly or completely checked the progress of the first infection. Some authorities advise that this infection and process of healing is not a disease, but a warning. As a matter of fact, the process of nature following the infection with the tubercle bacillus is a disease and remedial process. After the healing process or calcification deposit is manifest, disease in the sense of gross pathology no longer exists, but its scar is there, and it is at this point that the greatest susceptibility is present rather than an immunity or protection. How long this heightened condition of sensitization continues has not been definitely determined. It is true, however, that with the knowledge already in hand, the prevention of spread of the tubercle bacillus in infants, children, and young adults must be an unremitting toil.

Tuberculosis is a preventable disease. Consumption, as this disease is popularly known, is a result of continued or periodic exposure to the disease infection. Once in everyone's life, nature does its part to arrest the ravages of this infection. Following this effort, on the part of nature, the struggle is entirely within our own hands. In infection with the tubercle bacillus must take place, no effort should remain unused to prevent a further infection. Nature will help us to accomplish only what intelligence dictates.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 — With both senate and house on a one-vote party majority basis, the 72nd congress ought to be a continuous two-ring circus from a press gallery point of view. It never has happened before.

Probably it will not happen in 1931, despite what the count showed immediately after election. For the accident of death among elected house members must be reckoned with, as well as recounts, contested elections, and vacancies due to other causes.

Either party may have a slim but workable majority in the house when it actually goes on the payroll March 4 next—at $15,000 a year per head, counting in secretarial allowances.

Maybe Surprises

Regardless of the final showdown on party majority in the house, the 72nd is bound to be a salty congress. You never will know in advance what it will do. It will take a roll call to find out.

Absenteeism may be a vital factor in legislation. Pair clerks will lead tough lives.

How, for instance, is a one-vote majority either way to be reflected in the committee setup? What ratio will be adopted as to the number of majority and minority members on each? To be strictly accurate, it would have to be fractional.

Little Difference

Yet probably the almost 50-50 division of voting strength will have little effect on legislation. Strict party votes are a rarity. In recent years the party line has been drawn sharply in either house or senate only at long intervals.

Take the last session. The house had 46 roll-call votes. Ten were on tariff matters. And none showed party lines held fast. By virtue of their considerable majority, however, the republicans dominated. A few defections made no difference.

During the same session the senate voted 167 times by roll-call. Of those 105 votes were on the tariff; but about 40 other legislative roll calls were necessary. And none of the lot saw either republican or democratic strength intact. Senators voted all over the shop.

What is clear is that no steam-roller legislative tactics will go. The republican "horsemen" of the present house, Longworth, Tilson and Snell, may have the same jobs, but they'll be afoot.

They will have to negotiate, not merely roll opposition under. The 72nd ought to go down as the great compromise congress.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Peter Arouses Curiosity

A hint or two and nothing more
Will set tongues wagging by the score.
—Old Mother Nature.

It is true. If you want to start something just drop a hint or two in the right places and in no time at all you have a neighborhood by the ears, as the saying is. Curiosity grows fat on hints, whereas it would starve on plain facts. All this Peter Rabbit long ago found out by experience.

For a long time Peter had been the laughing-stock of the Green Meadows. He had been teased until he had quite lost his temper. And it was all because he had innocently tried to find out who was the singer of a new and strange song in the Green Forest. No one else had heard that song, so no one believed that Peter had. They said he had been dreaming. They used to ask after his dream singer. They hadn't believed him when he had said that he had heard the song and he didn't think that they would believe him now if he should tell them that he had found the singer. They would only tease him the more.

"If I should tell them that that singer was Whitefoot the Wood Mouse they would only laugh at me. Anyway, most of them would. There may be a few who know that Whitefoot can sing, but I don't believe many do any more than I did. I have got to get them over to the Green Forest to hear that song," said Peter to himself, and straightway sat down to scratch his long ears with his long hindfeet as an aid to thinking.

"Curiosity will do it," thought Peter. "Yes, sir, curiosity will do it. If I can just drop a hint here and there that there is something to see or hear over in the Green Forest every blessed one of them will go sooner or later to look around. But if I come right out and say that there is something worth seeing over there, they will merely laugh at me and not one of them will go over there. I've got to make them curious somehow."

So Peter gently scratched a long ear with a long hindfoot. Then he scratched the other long ear with the other long hindfoot. Finally he went home to the dear Old Briar-patch, and he was a particularly happy looking Peter Rabbit. Little Mrs. Peter noticed it right away, but said nothing. The next morning Sammy Jay came around and he noticed it.

"It must be that you have had another dream and found out who the dream singer is," said Sammy, trying to tease Peter.

"You are pretty smart, Sammy, but "Wrong," declared Peter. "I haven't had a dream, but that isn't saying that I haven't found out who the unknown singer is. You are pretty smart, Sammy, but there are some things that even you don't know. I know what I know and you won't find it out from me."

That was all that Sammy could get from Peter and right away Sammy became curious. It was just the same with Blacky the Crow and the others who had teased Peter about dreaming that he had heard that song in the Green Forest. Peter dropped a hint here and a hint there and presently there are some things that even you don't know."

he had all his neighbors curious, very curious indeed. All this put Peter in high spirits, and the higher his spirits the more sure became his friends that Peter had a secret, and the more curious they became. They took to watching Peter. They tried to let him know it, but he did know it and had many a quiet grin.

They began comparing notes and all agreed that Peter had a secret, or at least thought he had a secret, and that it was somewhere in the Green Forest. Meanwhile Peter was visiting the Green Forest every night to meet Whitefoot the Wood Mouse. They would chuckle a great deal, but never once did Whitefoot sing. They didn't want that song to be heard by any one else until—well, I'll tell you about that some other time.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Elevators

Mr. Editor: That was a deplorable accident that happened when Professor Rich, the young and talented musician, lost his life. Something should be said and done to make elevators in public buildings still safer. There are many state laws governing the use of the auto, which is well. There should be state laws more stringent in the use of the "lift," so that the repetition of such a sad affair could not so easily happen again.

The New County Home

Mr. Editor: It was my privilege some few weeks since to visit both the old, and also the new, county homes. At the first named we found a new, modern, fireproof schoolhouse built about 12 years ago and which would cost to build today at least $75,000 to $80,000. It is true that the old frame buildings there are obsolete and should be torn down and replaced by a group system of living quarters and dormitories as needed, with this new brick schoolhouse as a nucleus. There may be some sane reason for abandoning the present location, but like "the man from Missouri" we would like to be shown what it is.

An article in this morning's issue of The Bulletin pays a well-deserved tribute to the retiring matron of the home, Miss Gibson, and further has this to say: The children have been kept healthy and happy, well fed and well cared for. It would seem from this that the conditions and surroundings at the home were satisfactory. Then why this costly change of location?

At the new home we were at once struck with the manner in which the county funds have been spent in the erection of these buildings. Having followed the building business for 40 years, we do not hesitate to state that substantial and suitable buildings could have been erected at a far less expense. The material in the outside walls is all of face brick, costing double what good hand-burned common brick could have been purchased for. (All of the group of buildings at the state hospital just below are of common brick). The interior is likewise finished with apparently no regard to cost, tiled bathrooms, to no end, the last word in expensive plumbing and everything else in the same manner.

The children are not obliged to leave the building to go to their school room. While I do not advocate treating these children in any but a humane manner and giving them the benefit of a good education, still why should they be given more consideration than so many of the taxpayers' children receive? How many hundreds of children in the country towns of New London county are obliged to walk long distances over lonely country roads through rain, snow and cold, to a one-room schoolhouse indifferently heated by a wood stove, to sit all day with wet feet, drink water from a pail brought from some brook or farmhouse well while these dependents are provided luxuries? While this added burden of taxation falls heavy on all it is felt most keenly by the taxpayers of the country towns, which are largely agricultural, Salem, Lebanon, Franklin, Ledyard and others whose grand lists are either at a standstill or steadily shrinking. Is it to be wondered at that the number of abandoned farms is ever increasing?

The sorry part of this expenditure of county funds is that the taxpayers have had absolutely nothing to say about building this costly home, the then county commissioners apparently having the whole say in the matter and not responsible to the citizens of the county; a case of "like it or lump it."

It is high time that this board of commissioners should cease to be a "melon" for the party in power to hand out to the faithful and that they (the commissioners) were elected by the people of the county.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The A. C. Gilbert Company, New Haven.

The A. C. Gilbert company was originally established in 1909 in a very small plant in Westville, by Alfred C. Gilbert. This company was first known as the Mysto Magic Manufacturing company. Mr. Gilbert started to manufacture in a small way prior to his graduation from Yale, and produced at that time "magic" only. He then had a force of less than one-half dozen but now employs 600 people.

Mr. Gilbert invented Erector which is considered one of the world's greatest toys. Soon after this invention, it was necessary to move into a larger plant. From 1912 to 1915 this company occupied a building on Foote street. This was new and considered large enough to take care of the present and future business. Before 1915 had expired it became evident that a still larger plant was necessary, and many other toys besides erector were added to the line, such as tool chests, chemistry, motors, etc.

In 1917, a still larger plant was purchased which is the present plant located on Blatchley avenue. This plant occupies six acres with 160,000 square feet of floor space, with car sidings taking care of incoming and outgoing freight.

Gilbert products are now found all over the world. In fact, every foreign country carries the various lines that are manufactured in the present plant.

Most of the machinery has been developed right in the A. C. Gilbert company plant. Products are manufactured from the beginning to the final sets and boxed complete for shipment within the plant.

Each year additions have been made to various departments on account of the tremendous increase forecasted. All the die-making is done in the plant. A large experimental room is kept busy with alert up-to-date engineers, and they are constantly inventing new toys and electrical products and improving old ones. A daylight office has been erected on the top story of the building, which has natural daylight on all sides.

In addition to the erector and other top products, which consist of chemistry sets, carpentry sets, magic, puzzles, electrical sets, toy motors, and the white line of "big boy" toys, which in itself is a tremendously popular line of fire engines, trucks, dump trucks, conveyors, steam shovels, derricks, polar cub fans, hairdryers, vibrators, heaters, vacuum cleaners, mixers, juice extractors, and similar devices are also manufactured in this plant. A new device known as "vital-aire" (electrical humidification) will be on the market within 30 days.

Electric motors have been entirely designed and developed in this plant, and the original lowest priced smallest motor devised has been produced here. Even to this day the polar cub small fan leads the world in low price and in number of pieces manufactured.

There is every indication that this company has not reached its peak and will continue to grow and improve and be an industry that New Haven will be proud of. Its workers are happy and every one is loyal to the company.

President Alfred C. Gilbert has been a magician, a maker of magicians' equipment, an athlete, a doctor, and now is one of the world's greatest toy manufacturers. His first serious struggle was to develop a frail body into a strong one. This he did so well that before he was grown, he had won distinction as a wrestler. In 1908 he broke the world's record for pole vaulting and won first place for the United States at the Olympic games in London in 1908. Born in Salem, Oregon, he attended the Pacific university and then entered Yale, where he won the degree of doctor of medicine. Instead of practicing, however, he turned his attention to mechanics.

The present officers of the company are: Alfred C. Gilbert, president; Arthur B. Alling, secretary and treasurer.

'CHRISTMAS TREE' FARMS IN PROSPECT IN FUTURE

DURHAM, N. H. —(AP)— Christmas trees of the future will be grown on special plantations, says Clarence S. Herr, who has completed a study of northern New Hampshire woodlots.

He believes prices may increase slightly and that farmers with good land to spare should find this new sideline a good business undertaking.

A large proportion of Christmas trees are cut from pasture lands on which they have encroached.

Another source of supply rarely tapped is the tops of spruce and balsams cut in logging operations. Millions lie in the woods, when they are ideal for commercial supply.

Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

"Drought" Rates Move Feed

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Reports from 469 counties in the drought area show that 18,307 carloads of feed have been shipped to farmers at reduced freight rates.

A strange accident happened to Mrs. Arthur Haught, of Bell, Cal., when her baby girl suddenly snatched at her right eye and lacerated a section of the surface, causing intense suffering and necessitating the services of an eye specialist. For several years Mrs. Haught had been deaf, but for some reason, since the accident, her hearing was improved until it is almost normal.

Did your child have a Sick Spell this Winter?

A sick spell is always bad enough, but its after-effects are often worse. If your child has been sick recently, now is the dangerous time.

Resistance is at a low ebb, vitality is lowered, and your child does not have the reserve strength to resist infection.

For over 75 years Father John's Medicine has proved its worth as a body builder, as a tonic for weak run-down children, as an aid to healthy vigor.

It supplies in easily assimilated form the food elements your child vitality needs and which are missing from so many modern diets. Pale, half-sick children pick right up. Colds become few and far between. Weight is added, strength returns.

Father John's Medicine is a combination of valuable ingredients, none of which could harm an infant. It contains no alcohol or drugs. Because of its scientific preparation it brings to your child all the benefits of cod liver oil in its finest form. It is rich in vitamins. Children thrive on it amazingly. And they love to take it, because it tastes good.

If your child has been sick recently, if it catches cold easily, if it is run-down, underweight, try Father John's Medicine. Over 184 hospitals and institutions use it regularly. Countless mothers are never without it. Just ask your druggist.

Always Dead Tired?

How sad! Sallow complexion, coated tongue, poor appetite, bad breath, pimply skin and always tired. What's wrong? Chances are you're poisoned by clogged bowels and inactive liver. Take this famous prescription used constantly in place of calomel by men and women for 20 years—Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. They are harmless yet very effective. A compound of vegetable ingredients. They act easily upon the bowels, help free the system of poison caused by faulty elimination and tone up liver.

Rosy cheeks, clear eyes and youthful energy make a success of life. Take Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets, nightly. Know them by their olive color. 15c, 30c and 60c. All druggists.

Life Was a Misery

"Before I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was weak and rundown, could not sleep and had troubles which come at my age (forty-three). Life was a misery. Nothing did me any good until I tried the Vegetable Compound. I am on my third bottle and I cannot recommend it too highly. I feel like a new person and I really think I would have been dead if I had not taken it. I think every lady ought to take it at the Change."—Mrs. Eunice M. GAVE TRAVEL TALK FOR WOMAN'S CRUSADE MEETING

At the November meeting of the Woman's Crusade held Tuesday afternoon in the woman's room of the Central Baptist church, Mrs. Nathan Gilman, the president, was in the chair. The devotional service, led by Mrs. Charles P. Hall, was enriched by a vocal solo rendered by Miss Lottie Jackson. Preceding a travel talk by Mrs. Mary E. Stearns, of Willimantic, Mrs. Frank Tyler, an official delegate to the state convention of the W. C. T. U., recently held in Norwich, gave an interesting report of the sessions which she had been appointed to attend.

Before describing her foreign itinerary Mrs. Stearns said she had gone to Europe to enjoy its charms, not to look for its defects. In spite of this purpose, here and there some of the saddest conditions of life were forced upon her attention.

In a racy manner the speaker touched upon the "high spots" of a "summer in Europe," taking her hearers through Scotland and England, then into the great European circle of travel. A rising vote of thanks was given Mrs. Stearns at the close of her informing message.

At the business session following, a complete report of the float committee was given by its chairman, Mrs. David A. Pitt. Special appreciation was expressed by the Crusade of the cooperation of George Gifford in the trimming of the float, also of the fine help of his assistants, Nelson Packer, William Prothero, Earl Swan and Gavin Pitt.

The report stated that much of the expense connected with the float had been met by special contributions of friends and members of the Crusade. After the reading of a formal letter of thanks from Robert O. Fletcher post, No. 4, American Legion, the meeting was adjourned. The float committee consisted of Mrs. Harold A. Johnson, Mrs. Robert MacNeely, Mrs. Emma Harding and Mrs. David A. Pitt, chairman.

DISCUSSES QUESTION OF PRACTICAL CHRISTIANITY

"Is Christianity Practicable," was the subject of the sermon delivered by Rev. Dr. Charles A. Jefferson of New York city at the United Congregational church Tuesday evening in the third of a series of special meetings under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian association with the churches of the city co-operating. His interesting and enlightening sermon was based upon the seven most important sentences in the sermon on the mount, which sentences he declared were most puzzling to Christians and others.

What is Christianity? and where are we going to find it? were the questions asked by the preacher. We are to find it in the sermon on the mount, near the close of the fifth chapter beginning with the sentence, Resist Not Evil and concluding with Love Your Enemies. These are the most difficult sentences in the whole Bible. A great many people outside the church do not believe in Christianity because of these sentences. We are unable to explain them.

People reading these sentences are inclined to believe that Jesus was not a sane man, but we should not condemn him, said Dr. Jefferson. It is possible that He might have been misreported or that we might not have grasped the meaning of the sentences. It is the only fair way for He has lived down through the ages as the sanest man in the world. The preacher also pointed out that Jesus was obliged to use the illustrations and language of the common people and use the literary devices of the teachers of those days, which are crude.

In an interesting way Dr. Jefferson went on to explain in his opinion what Jesus was trying to convey in those sentences, bringing out that Christianity is workable, and that God was willing to give, lend, love his enemies. We ought to be like God, concluded the preacher.

Rev. P. A. Kilmister of the First Baptist church conducted the devotional part of the services and Secretary Edwin A. Hill of the Y made several announcements, including the fact that Dr. Jefferson is to be the speaker at today's meeting of the Rotary club.

John Pessy

The funeral of John Pessy was held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at his home at Trading Cove with a large attendance of relatives and friends. The service was conducted by Rev. R. H. Parkes, rector of Grace Episcopal church, Yantic, and he also conducted the committal service at the grave in Maplewood cemetery. The bearers were Fred Bush, John Yetke, Roland Barrows, Joseph Cantwell, William Kilburn and John Basher.

The many mourners present included people from Pittsburgh, Pa., Chester, N. Y., New York city, Boston and Jewett City and there were a number of beautiful floral tributes. Hourigan Bros. had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Andrew A. Stevens

With many relatives and friends present, the funeral of Andrew A. Stevens was held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of John M. Reily, in Colchester. Rev. Herbert H. Tompkins, pastor of the Colchester Congregational church, conducted the service and the burial was in Lynwood cemetery, Colchester. Rev. Mr. Tompkins conducted the committal service. The bearers were Daniel J. Webster, John M. Reily, C. A. Kramer and Nelson Webster. Mourners were present from Westchester and Hartford and there were a number of beautiful flowers. Undertaker C. A. Gager had charge of the funeral arrangements.

OBITUARY

Mrs. James H. Smith

After a lingering illness, Eliza Ringland Smith, 76, wife of James H. Smith of No. 24 Winchester street, died Tuesday evening about 8:15 o'clock at her home. She was born in Scotland, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Ringland, and, in the land of her birth at the age of eighteen, 58 years ago, was united in marriage with James H. Smith. Two years after their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Smith came to this country and for a time resided in New York state. About 43 years ago they came to Norwich and had since made their home here. Mrs. Smith was a member of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church.

Surviving are her husband, two sons, William H. Smith of Stafford, this state, and Dr. James R. Smith of Erie, Pa., four daughters, Mrs. John D. Rogers of Norwich, Mrs. Charles L. Rowney of Lancaster, Pa., Mrs. Charles M. Dunn and Mrs. George H. Eastland of New London, three brothers, John and Samuel Ringland of Pittsburgh and James Ringland of Norwich and a sister, Mrs. William Dilworth of Norwich.

Through her long residence in Norwich Mrs. Smith made many warm friends and acquaintances by whom she was highly respected and who extend heartfelt sympathy to the family in their great loss.

REPORT NORWICH INDUSTRIES IN IMPROVED CONDITION IN MONTH

Reports that a number of Norwich industrial plants showed increased employment conditions this month over last, that the first loom had been started Tuesday by the Millbrook Woolen company in the mill at Yantic, and that the Knoll-Brayton Aeronautical company on North Main street was making a good start were optimistic notes sounded at the membership dinner of the chamber of commerce Tuesday evening at 6:15 at the Wauregan hotel with an attendance of close to 100.

R. W. Belcher of New York, manager of the eastern division of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, was the speaker of the evening, delivering an interesting address along the lines of chamber of commerce work.

After the meeting had been called to order by President Charles V. James and a verse of America had been sung, Rev. Arthur B. Sullivan of St. Mary's Memorial church said grace. Flint Brayton was song leader during the dinner and Henry J. LaFontaine was at the piano. Past President Frank R. Murdy gave much pleasure with a solo, Sunrise and You, with an encore number, and Kenneth Sharp of Putnam was heard in a musical burlesque on Jack and Jill, which ran the gamut from Wagner to jazz and the blues, and was highly entertaining.

Report by Secretary Mary Bundy

President James called on Secretary Mary Bundy, with some words of commendation for the way in which she is discharging the duties of her office, and she responded with the following report:

"Since I have been associated with the chamber of commerce office, I have learned that the duty of a chamber secretary is to keep everybody happy. It's not an easy task, as perhaps you all know, but could be a mighty easy one if all of the members would cooperate. After all, the benefits that any member derives from the chamber of commerce are apportioned to the amount of work he puts into the chamber. In other words, if you do not put anything into the organization, naturally you do not get anything out of it.

"During the past week the chamber sent out to every member a copy of the organization roster, giving the names of the officers and directors, together with the names of the men who are serving on the different committees. This was sent out for the members' use—for instance, sometimes a member may have a good suggestion that he would like to convey to the chamber, and rather than go direct to the chamber office he could talk it over with one of the men on that special committee.

"As you all know, one of the civic improvements that the chamber of commerce has worked on during the last year has been the deepening of the Thames river channel. I have been informed today that the engineers from the war department have been in Norwich during the past few days inspecting the work that has been completed on the channel. The large dredge has completed its work and a smaller dredge has taken its place to finish up two or three small places. This means that the Thames river deepening will be completed within the next few days.

"Another matter that has been brought to the attention of the chamber is the parking situation. Of course you all know that the present parking system in Norwich is inadequate, especially for the out-of-town purchaser coming in to do his or her shopping in Norwich. After all, we want to retain the out-of-town person's good will, as good will is the desire to go back to the place where you were treated well. We hope to be able to obtain one or two spaces that can be used for free parking in time enough for the Christmas shopping.

"There are, of course, a great many other things that the chamber of commerce is striving to accomplish, and in this respect we ask that you kindly give your cooperation and moral support, and do not hesitate to bring in suggestions, as, after all, many hands make light work, and two heads are better than one."

In conclusion Miss Bundy gave figures from a number of Norwich industrial concerns comparing their employment this month with last, which showed a gradual improvement in most cases. In three or four cases the reports were that employment had reached 100 per cent this month. The general level was somewhat better than last month, but there were one or two cases in which there had been no change.

She also mentioned that two new industries had started, the aeronautical company and the woolen mill already referred to.

The meeting voted approval of the directors' endorsement of Rocky Neck park in East Lyme, after Arthur L. Peale had spoken of the desirability of having a state-owned shore park in this part of Connecticut.

The report of Henry D. Johnson, chairman of the industrial survey committee, was read, which mentioned a gain in bank debits and gross savings deposits, in contrast with the general experience in the state, fluctuations in building permits, public utilities and gas consumption, but gain in electricity use.

To Build Amphibians

Felix Knoll, head of the Knoll-Brayton Aeronautical company, which is starting in business at 195 North Main street to build amphibian planes, told of some of the reasons why he selected Norwich as a location for the industry. There was its geographical location with the river nearby, its midway location between New York and Boston, favorable for the shipment of supplies, its proximity to places where skilled boat builders could be secured and its nearness to summer vacation territory for which he said there would be increased use of planes, particularly of the amphibians. He said the company intended to build a plane that would sell at a little lower price than present amphibians on the market and would build up its business in a solid way. There would be employment for 20 men in shop and office for the construction of the first two demonstration planes.

He thanked the chamber of commerce and Miss Bundy for inducing him to come to Norwich and was warmly applauded.

Millbrook Woolen Company

President James called attention to the fact that the Yantic Woolen mills are soon to be re-opened by the Millbrook Woolen Mills, Inc., and will be under the personal management of Emanuel Kaplan, as president and general manager. Some two months ago, Mr. Kaplan secured an option for the purchase of the property from the American Woolen company, who owned and operated it, prior to its closing, some six months ago. He came to Norwich and submitted a proposition to a group of citizens, and stated that if local interest warranted, he would buy the mill, deed it to a corporation to be formed, and put in $100,000 cash, if Norwich citizens would purchase $50,000 of a 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock to be issued. Inasmuch as the period of the option was limited, the committee voted to endorse the proposition submitted, and agreed that if he did take up his option, they would later assist him in selling the desired amount of preferred stock in Norwich.

Believing that he could count upon the support of the local public, Mr. Kaplan bought the mill, and has organized the Millbrook Woolen Mills, Inc. In addition to the plant, he has turned over to the corporation, in accordance with his agreement, $100,000 in cash, and he proposes to ask the local public to cooperate with him in his plans to re-open the property, which will be of great benefit to the entire community. He expects soon to employ 300 people with a weekly payroll of $8,000.

President James introduced Mr. Kaplan, who was greeted with enthusiastic applause. He expressed his pleasure at the welcome back to Norwich and referred with appreciation to his previous years here. He declared his belief that the period of depression is past and went on to say that woolen stocks in the country are short by millions of yards. We lack nothing but courage now, the sincerity of bankers and the help of every fine man in the street, he declared, stating that he could see nothing but favorable prospects ahead for this country.

Mr. Kaplan referred to his previous operation of woolen mills in Norwich, where in 1921 they manufactured over $7,000,000 worth of cloth. Now is the time to acquire plants and rehabilitate them and the opportunity is ripe here for good business results.

Today, he said, we started the first loom at the Millbrook mill at Yantic and will have the first piece of cloth by the end of the week, not sold, but ready to be shown to the trade.

Mr. Kaplan said he had shown his faith in the enterprise by investing $100,000 besides what was paid for the buildings and he was asking the citizens to invest $50,000. The plant is not to be limited to one kind of cloth, but will produce a knitted cloth on knitting machines, which do a much greater amount of work than the old looms. Instead of 40 yards per day on the old looms, the knitting machine will produce 300 yards of cloth of better quality, very desirable and saleable. A man serving two or three machines would have a minimum wage of $16 per week, and each machine would turn out 1,500 yards of cloth. The knitting machine will augment the product of the looms in the mill, for the looms will be used.

Mr. Kaplan was loudly applauded as he concluded his interesting talk and he was followed by Christopher M. Gallup in a brief talk upon Improvement in Weather Bureau Service.

Wants State Weather Report

Mr. Gallup spoke as follows:

You are doubtless familiar with the "wise crack" by Mark Twain that "Everybody talks about the weather, but nobody does anything about it." My appearance before you tonight is to recommend that the chamber of commerce do something about the weather, and for the benefit of the whole state of Connecticut.

For more than a century scientists have been studying weather, but the development of worth while forecasting had to await the invention of the telegraph in 1844. Progress was slow for several decades, and the United States weather bureau was not organized until some years after the Civil war. The invention of wireless carried weather observers out over the oceans, but it was the World war with its after development of aviation and radio that gave us the marvelous performance that we take as a matter of course every day. Weather forecasters are still handicapped by having to use observations taken at the earth's surface while the dynamic strata of the atmosphere are from one to three miles up, yet their daily predictions are among our modern miracles. I can only mention the frost warnings for cranberry growers on Cape Cod, fruit spray forecasts for Connecticut and other apple growers, haying forecasts for farmers and alfalfa growers, sheep shearing forecasts for ranchmen in the far west, and rain forecasts for raisin dryers in California.

Now go out on the street and ask the first man you meet what he thinks of the weather bureau predictions. He'll tell you they're a joke. Turn to the last page of The Morning Bulletin and see how yesterday's weather compared with the forecast. For the year 1929 it was wrong one day in four. During the crucial months for the farmer, April, May, June and July it was wrong one day in three. We found that out in North Stonington when all of our 1928 hay got wet. During the two years since we have learned something about such discrepancy.

When you listen to the daily forecasts given over the metropolitan radio stations, you hear New York city and vicinity, eastern New York, western New York, eastern Pennsylvania, western Pennsylvania, northern New Jersey and southern New Jersey. But do you hear Connecticut. You do not. Connecticut is so small and insignificant that it goes like a tail on the hide of southern New England. All because the weather bureau organized a New England section fifty-odd years ago, and nobody has asked for anything better.

Now Connecticut holds a unique and peculiar location on the Atlantic seaboard. Its elevation runs from sea level to almost half a mile up. Its topography, delightful to look upon, is highly irregular. Its weather varies widely over comparatively short distances. Consequently weather forecasts for southern New England simply do not fit Connecticut about one day in every four.

What we all need is weather forecasts for Connecticut—tailor made if you please. For the benefit of farmers, contractors, and out-door workers generally, the daily weather map should be published by the New Haven office at night, so that all subscribers could have it with their morning mail. For the sake of comprehensive study of the hail storms that devastate certain areas in summer, and ice storms that cripple our public utilities in winter, there should be a Connecticut section of the weather bureau. The ultimate benefit from such changes would be enormous.

The weather bureau observers stationed in Connecticut concur in the foregoing, and would like to see the changes made. The expense items involved are trivial, and we do not anticipate serious opposition in Washington. Hence we shall expectantly hope that you will provide strong moral support for any effort by the Norwich chamber of commerce to put Connecticut into the picture as it goes out from the United States weather bureau day by day.

Address by Guest Speaker

Mr. Belcher, guest speaker for the evening, held the close attention of his hearers as he gave an earnest talk upon chamber of commerce work, stating that cooperation is one of the reasons for American prosperity and that the new type of chamber of commerce is one with an objective to make its community better and a better place to do business in. The local chamber of commerce is part of a great national movement which is affecting American business prosperity.

He went on to speak of a number of things with which the chamber of commerce might interest itself, such as preventable fires, preventable accidents, retail store business, and industrial growth, which he said was 85 per cent from within, and in the establishment of new industries, such as Norwich is doing.

He spoke of the curbstone orator and fault finder who blames everything on the chamber of commerce as one of the greatest menaces to a community and also referred to the cooperation which members ought to give through service on committees instead of leaving all the chamber of commerce work to the officers and directors. There should be no absenteeism in committee service, for the chamber of commerce will succeed only to the extent to which each member is willing to do his best.

The meeting closed with the singing of The Star Spangled Banner.

STATE DEPARTMENT OFFICERS INSPECT D. OF V. TENT

A banquet and after dinner program marked the annual inspection of Clara Barton tent, No. 7, Daughters of Veterans, at Buckingham Memorial, Tuesday evening. Nearly 100, including state department officers were numbered in the gathering. The supper was served at 6 o'clock at attractively decorated tables, red predominating. On the tables were red chrysanthemums and red candles, with a red carnation at each cover and the favors were red cups with peanuts and mints. The menu:

Fruit Cup
Roast Turkey
Celery Olives
Rolls
Mashed Potatoes Mashed Turnips
Squash Pie
Coffee

Immediately following the supper there was a reception for the state officers who included: Miss Alice Slater, state president, of Hartford; Mrs. Lillian E. Brewster, junior department vice president, Norwich; Mrs. Augusta Ranney, department secretary, Hartford; Miss Florence Hoffman, department musician, Norwich; Mrs. Annis Osborn, department guide, Hartford; Miss Jennie Evans department guide, Glastonbury; the following department council members: Mrs. Jennie Newberry, Norwich; Mrs. Minnie Mathieu, Willimantic; Mrs. Minnie Tyrol, Hartford; and the following department color bearers: Miss Adelaide Mitchell, Hartford; Miss Lois Wakefield, New Britain.

Other guests included Comrade Homer Northrop, of Waterbury, representing the Connecticut department of the Grand Army of the Republic, Comrade George Crocker, commander of Sedgwick post, No. 1, G. A. R., and A. O. Fairbanks of Sedgwick camp, Sons of Veterans.

A regular business session of Clara Barton tent followed during which the annual inspection was made by the department inspector, Mrs. Lura E. Dutton, of Waterbury. The full ritual took place. Eleven past presidents of Clara Barton tent were escorted to the hall with full honors. Gifts of gold pieces were presented to the department president and the department inspector. Remarks were made by the visiting department officers and guests who represented all sections of the state. The meeting closed with the salute to the flag and the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

OLD TIME MUSIC IN WOMAN'S CLUB CONCERT

An appreciative audience of well over 600 persons was entertained Tuesday evening at Slater hall, at an Old Folks' concert given under the auspices of the Woman's City club. Sacred hymns, songs of bygone days and instrumental numbers by a trio comprised the delightful program. All participating in the program were costumed in styles of olden days, and the stage setting was most appropriate, representing an old time parlor with the familiar organ and antique furniture.

According to the unique program, printed in Old English style, the "informal musicale" was given at the "palatial home of J. Slater Hall, Esq." While the trio, George Guile, violinist, Zigmund Bondonanski, New London, cellist, and Miss Annie Taft, pianist, softly rendered the opening number, the "guests" all in old time costume, arrived at the stage, in groups, from the rear of the hall, and were heartily welcomed by the "host," George L. Ingalls and "hostess," Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham. After mutual greetings had been extended the "guests" finally were seated, and with Miss Taft at the piano and the "tynist" George A. Turner, leading, the program got under way. All of the numbers were heartily applauded and the singers were forced to respond to encores. The program:

Sound the Loud Timbrel, chorus; The Last Rose of Summer, Mrs. Josephine Stewart; Invitation, chorus; Cousin Jedediah, chorus; four part songs, Breathe Soft Ye Winds and Now is the Month of Maying; Before Jehovah's Awful Throne, chorus; Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes and All Through the Night, Frederick J. Maples; Anvil Chorus, chorus; intermission.

Jerusalem, My Glorious Home, chorus; The Song That Reached My Heart, Mr. Turner; Reuben and Rachel, Mrs. James J. Moore and Robert Gray; Minuet (Haydn), trio; Amaryllis, Mrs. Leonard Prentice, Miss Doris Myott, Miss Lucille Howard, Mrs. Olive Roberts, Mrs. James J. Moore, Miss Mary E. Gray, Miss May Adams, Mrs. Josephine Stewart, and Miss Catherine Gallup; Strike the Cymbal, chorus; Auld Lang Syne, chorus, all present joining.

During intermission home-made candy was sold to those in the audience. The members of the chorus were:

Mary Gray, Margaret Leith, Martha Reynolds, May Adams, Muriel Hynd, Margaret Driscoll, Mrs. Herbert Stewart, Mrs. David Disco, Mrs. Charles Olson, Mrs. James Bidwell, Mrs. Theodore M. Shipherd, Mrs. George Ingalls, Mrs. Olive Roberts, Mrs. Edward A. Rich, Mrs. Watson, Mrs. Dominick Bailey, Mrs. William Bailey, Mrs. James J. Moore, Nellie Howie, Katherine Hempstead, Katherine Gallup, Lucille Howard, Rosalie Bennett, Lois Leffingwell, Gladys Thornes, Doris Myott, Mrs. William Elliott, Mrs. E. E. Bent, Mrs. L. C. Prentice, Mrs. William Dawley, Mrs. William Buckingham, Mrs. Elijah Burdsall, Mrs. Charles Schwenck, Mrs. Frank Lathrop, Fletcher Wilson, Lyle Fillmore, Robert Gray, C. I. Smith, Fred Maples, Stuart Hynd, George Stanton, George A. Turner, Mervin Leffingwell, William Lund, H. E. Robbins, Marcus Leith, William Buckingham, Frank Steinke, Dr. Levine, George Ingalls, Dr. Rowland, William Finlayson.

Mixed quartet—Mrs. James Bidwell Mrs. Charles Schwenck, Lyle Fillmore William Lund.

The ushers were the Misses Agnes Greenman, Eunice Ingalls, Barbara Taylor, Virginia Chase and Ruth Genter. Many of the stage settings were loaned by Bruckner. These included a hair cloth sofa, and chairs, Windsor chairs, table and ottoman.

"DAD" LYNCH GOES TO JAIL FOR DRUNKEN DRIVING

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Nov. 18—J. A. Lynch alias "Dad" and brother, Joseph, of North Stonington, residing near Boombridge, were arraigned in the session of North Stonington court Tuesday before Justice Bard Bill on several counts. The men were arrested on Monday by Officer Arthur Whitmarsh of the Groton barracks of Connecticut state police, following a near accident while "Dad" was driving an automobile on the state road in North Stonington. The men were taken to the Stonington lockup and held pending their arraignment on Tuesday afternoon.

"Dad" Lynch was charged with operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor on one count and on a second count of operating with faulty markers. On the first count he was found guilty and sentenced to pay a fine of $100 and costs. The charge against Joseph Lynch was not pressed. "Dad", being without funds, was committed to Franklin street jail in New London.

EVENING OF CARDS BY MERCIER ASSEMBLY

On Monday evening in their assembly hall, Mercier assembly, No. 12, Catholic Ladies of Columbus, held an interesting bridge, whist and pinochle party of 35 tables. Miss Katherine Hallihan was general chairman and was assisted in the distribution of tickets by the members of the social committee.

In charge of whist were Mrs. Nellie McHale and Mrs. Isabelle Hogan. Miss Margaret Sullivan arranged the bridge section, while Miss Julia Ulrich and Miss Helen Barry attended to the pinochle.

The prizes of the evening were won by the following: Whist—ladies' first, Miss Winifred Clabby; second, Mrs. O'Brien; gentlemen's, William McGuinness. Bridge—Ladies' first, Miss Rose Godbout; second, Miss Anne Carroll; gentlemen's first, John Mara; second, Leonard Desmond. Pinochle—Ladies' first, Miss Margaret Shelly; second, Mrs. Crawford; third, Miss Mae Danihy; gentlemen's first, A. Kriker; second, Sam Mascarelli.

SUSTAINS DECISION FOR PLAINTIFF IN SOMERS SUIT

By a decision of the supreme court of errors filed Tuesday in the office of the superior court here, Judge Allyn L. Brown of the superior court is sustained in his decision made for the defendant, William A. Somers, of this city, in a suit for accounting brought against him by his brother, John J. Somers, of Bridgeport.

The plaintiff sued for an accounting of rents and moneys received from a lease of premises at No. 212, No. 214 and No. 216 Main street, Franklin square. At one time the brothers were engaged in the grocery business as Somers Bros., on Franklin square. According to the decision, William A. Somers is not required to make any accounting or pay any damages to his brother.

Sent Wreath For Funeral

The laundry and sewing room department of the Norwich State hospital sent a standing wreath for the funeral of Mrs. John Wozniak of No. 10 Hill street, instead of the employes of the state hospital as stated.

Best Man At Wedding

(Special to The Bulletin)

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 18.—Edward V. Gleason, of Norwich, Conn., was best man at the marriage of Miss Agnes Julia Murphy, daughter of Mrs. Mary F. Murphy, and Donald C. Kelly, both of this city, which was solemnized this morning at 9 o'clock in Blessed Trinity church here, the Rev. Albert Fritton of this city performing the ceremony.

MACFARLANE DECLARES THAT JONES WILL BE BACK IN TOURNEYS SOON

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Willie MacFarlane, the tall, slender Scotch professional who once gave Bobby Jones one of the most surprising lickings of his golfing career, thinks the chunky master of the links will be back in action within three or four years.

"Bobby will be back," he said today, discussing the retirement of the Atlanta wizard. "He loves competitive golf too well to stay on the sidelines. He'll see one open championship and then he'll race to the clubhouse for his bag and his shoes. It'll be the old firehorse hearing the bells again."

MacFarlane, like all other professionals, has a deep affection for the stubby, smiling southerner who has shot so many lucrative open championships away from them. With Johnny Farrell, Willie shares the honor of once having beaten out Jones for the national open crown in one of the two most sensational play-[illegible] history of the competi[illegible] at Worcester, Mass., in the [illegible] heat of late summer, that the tall Scot tied with Jones at 291 strokes for top honors in the 1925 open championship. They were tied with a pair of 75's at the close of the regulation 18-hole playoff, then in effect. They set out to decide the title in another eighteen holes and Bobby finished the first nine with a four stroke advantage, taking a 35 to Willie's 39.

The aura of invincibility that shrouds Jones today hadn't settled as definitely on his shoulders then, but there was no one in the steaming gallery who dreamed that any golfer could spot the Atlantan four strokes and beat him in nine holes. But Willie shot as he never had before—or since—blasted through the final nine in 33 strokes while Bobby took 38, and wound up with a single stroke margin and the open championship.

It was during that final round that Jones remarked that it was around 110 in the shade.

"Isn't it nice," said MacFarlane, "that we don't have to stay in the shade."

So the affable Scot knows his Jones. He wasn't surprised to hear that Bobby has accepted a contract to make 12 one-reel talking pictures demonstrating his swing and shots.

"I expected that would happen," he said. "I knew about it some time ago. We professionals have a way of hearing about such things. I'd do the same thing myself. He'd be foolish not to make all that money while he can.

"Bobby Jones is an amateur and he always will be an amateur. He will play in open championships in three or four years, both here and abroad, I think, but he will never take the money that goes with the open prize. Ask any professional if he thinks Bobby is a professional now and he'll tell you he isn't and never will be.

"The professionals are sorry to see Bobby go. He is a grand sportsman.

"I'd rather finish second in an open championship that had him in than win one without him. All the rest of the pros will tell you the same thing, too.

"So remember what I say, now. They may rule him out as an amateur—which I don't think they should do—but he will compete again on both sides of the water. He loves golf and he loves a battle. He's proven himself the greatest golfer in the world."

"And besides," he added, "there's a new ball coming into tournament play next year. There'll be a public demand to see what Bobby can do with that light ball. Bobby'll want to try it out too. He'll be back."

ACADEMY-BULKELEY CLASSIC SLATED FOR SATURDAY

Attention of high school fans will be centered on the Academy campus this week end when the Academy tackles Bulkeley in their 66th grid meeting Saturday afternoon. This game will close the season for the Academy and as usual, both teams will throw everything into the big effort to capture the objective clash. Bulkeley was also to have closed shop with this tilt but now has a postponed game with Chapman Tech on the books.

Neither team has an impressive record. Bulkeley has won three games, tied two and lost two while N. F. A. has won only two, lost five and tied one, giving the two schools only five victories between them.

These last few days before the battle are being devoted mainly to polishing off the attacks. Toward the latter part of the week pep rallies will be held at both camps and then everything will be ready. Both school bands will be on hand.

Recs Beat Jolly Five by 71 Balls

At the Recreation Billiard Parlours last night the Recreation Five beat the Jolly Five in the second match of the series.

Al Benson, anchor man for the Recs, finally came through by beating Baker 100 to 65 in what proved the star game.

In a one-sided match, but one in which many good shots were made by both men, Jimmy of the Recs beat Liberty 100 to 57.

Recs		Jolly Five
Harris	100	Gromko	75
Maxey	87	Aremoney	100
Williams	81	Juber	100
Jimmy	100	Liberty	57
Bennett	100	Baker	65
Totals	468		397

Tonight the Rec. Jrs. go to Jewett City to play the Lucky Strikes in their return match.

FAST BASKETBALL PLAYED IN S. N. E. LOOP LAST NIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PLAINFIELD, Nov. 18—Four fast games of basketball featured the play in the Southern New England Basketball league here tonight. One game, that between the Danielson and Plainfield teams, resulted in a tie although many were led to believe that the Danielson team had won by a point margin. It was not until a check-up of the game was made later in the evening that it was found that the result was a tie at 27-all. Willimantic beat the New London Telephone team 40 to 21 in the Telephone team's first start. The New London Boys club upheld the honor of the Whaling town by defeating the Westerly five 33 to 17 while Stafford Springs won easily 34 to 12 from the Jewett City club. The summaries:

BLACK HAWKS WHITEWASH FELL'S ALL STARS

The Black Hawks whitewashed Fell's All Stars by a score of 30-6 on Tuesday afternoon. The outstanding players were Kos and Sol. Their line plunges resulted in most all the Black Hawks' points. Benny Tribenski played an excellent game at center, making many good holes for his ball carriers. The line-up:

Re, Badugel; rt, Brooky; rg, Bizaik; center, B. Tribenski; lg, Toomey; lt, Dinty Moore; le, Tudino; fb, Sol; lhb, Seragosea; rhb, Hoffman; qb, Kos.

Poreda Gets Verdict.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Stanley Poreda of Jersey City gained the judges' decision over Al Friedman, Boston heavyweight in a fast ten round bout at the St. Nicholas' arena tonight. There were no knockdowns and neither was hurt appreciably at any time. Poreda weighed 200, Friedman 192½.

BASEBALL FOOTBALL BASKETBALL BOXING

[illegible] now we pick them for tonight: Beauregard to pound out a close decision over Nadeou; Darr to stop Sweeney before the sixth round; Koziol to knock out Porter before the fourth round; Rossi to outpoint Blaine; Lacey to outpoint Comfort.

But as we all know this picking the results of bouts beforehand is just a guess especially if you have never seen one of the opponents. In the first bout we pick Beauregard because he is in perfect shape and has been hitting hard in his workouts. Nadeau is tough but he's got to be tough to stay with the Taftville boy. Darr is our choice simply because of his showing in his last two bouts. Sweeney has a good reputation as a boxer but Darr is a hitter. Koziol is chosen for the same reason. He can hit and the only way he can be stopped is by somebody who can hit harder. Rossi is named because of his recent bouts while Blaine apparently is attempting to stage a comeback. Lacey is our choice because of his cleverness and that left hand of his.

The A. A. U. yesterday awarded the National A. A. U. 10-mile championship run to the Connecticut association. This in a word means that Norwich is awarded the 10-mile national run for next Memorial day for there is little doubt but that the run will be awarded to Norwich by the Connecticut association. Last year's run was so successful and so well conducted that the association was pleased to such a degree that the run was virtually promised to Norwich.

PRO GOLFERS ELECT HALL AS PRESIDENT

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—(AP)—The Professional Golfers' Association of America tonight elected Charles Hall, of Birmingham, Ala., president, picked June 26 and 27 as the dates for the 1931 Ryder cup matches at the Scioto Country club, at Columbus, Ohio, and voted to increase the qualifying bracket for its annual P. G. A. championship from 64 to 100 players.

Sand Hill Reds Win Title

PINEHURST, N. C., Nov. 18—(AP)—Opening the Pinehurst polo season, the Sand Hill Red team defeated the Sand Hill White team here today 8 goals to 7.

R. A. Balsam, New York, with two goals, and James W. Tufts, Pinehurst with three, featured the play of the winners. Tom Netterfield, Colorado and Jack Lucas, New York, scored three goals each for the Whites.

LOCAL BOYS FAVORED TO COME THROUGH IN TONIGHT'S BOUTS

THREE STAR BOUTS—8 ROUNDS
Al Beauregard of Taftville vs. Buster Nadeau of Holyoke
Vic Darr of Norwich vs. Barney Sweeney of Providence
Al Koziol of Norwich vs. Al Porter of Fall River
Six Round Preliminary
Julio Rossi of Westerly vs. Mickey Blaine of Plainfield
Four Round Preliminary
Snooks Lacey of Norwich vs. Young Comfort of Westerly

Norwich boxers dominate the all-star card of the Shyma Boxing club at Parish hall, Taftville, this evening, local boys appearing in four of the five scheduled bouts. The local youngsters who will do battle against tough opposition are Al Beauregard, New England bantamweight champion, Al Koziol, Vic Darr and Snooks Lacey. All of the Norwich boys are given more than an even chance to win their bouts although they are up against tough opposition.

Topping the card is the Al Beauregard-Buster Nadeau bout of eight rounds which should be one of the most torrid affairs of the evening. Nadeau, who claims Holyoke as his home, is no setup for the Taftville slugger as Nadeau has an enviable record of knockouts. The Holyoke boy claims the distinction of being the only New England boxer to ever gain a decision over Johnny Pena of New York who is fast coming to the top as a bantamweight contender. Nadeau slugged out a decision over Pena who in turn gave Beauregard one of the worst shellackings of his career. Pena was very clever against Beauregard who did not fight the bout he is capable of. Nadeau will make a more suitable opponent for the Taftville Frenchman as Nadeau is of the same type of fighter as Beauregard. That this bout will be a slugging match is a foregone conclusion for everyone knows that Beauregard throws gloves and plenty of them while he is in the ring. Nadeau likewise delights in wading into an opponent with his gloves flying. For a real fast bout the fans could ask for nothing better.

In another eight round star bout Vic Darr, who has conquered Ero Peterson and Al Koziol in successive bouts, takes on Barney Sweeney of Providence, a former Brooklyn boy. Sweeney is a stranger to Norwich fans but is known by reputation as a clever boy who packs a most potent punch. The only local comparison that can be made is that Sweeney holds a decision over Joe Barrie of Brooklyn who has performed in the local ring and impressed the fans with his showing. A boy that can take Barrie is a good boy for Barrie has taken over a number of the New England lads. Darr is in good shape and intends to stop Sweeney the same as he stopped Peterson in the last bout at the hall.

The third star bout brings together Al Koziol, local knockout king, and Al Porter of Fall River. Little is known of Porter other than press reports from the Bay State papers which credit him with being a tough boy who fights a hard fight from start to finish. Porter holds decisions over some mighty good Massachusetts boxers and should be no set-up for Koziol, although the local boy intends to take Porter before the end of the third round. Koziol is in the best of shape and his timing is fast improving as he is working out steadily every day. In his bout with Darr Koziol was not hitting with the snap and deadliness that marked him as a dangerous opponent a year ago. In his bout with Aldo Nocchi last week Koziol flattened the Worcester lad in the second round displaying a decided improvement over his showing of two weeks before when he lost to Darr. In his bout tonight Koziol will look even better as he is fast hitting the stride that took him far up the ladder last year.

The six round preliminary will be between Julio Rossi of Westerly and Mickey Blaine of Plainfield. Rossi is known to local fans as a good boy but Blaine is somewhat of an unknown quantity although he claims to have met some mighty good boys during his career as a welterweight. He has fought Romeo Roche, Kid Kaplan and a number of others according to his book of clippings. If Blaine, who is now instructing boxing at Plainfield, is as good as reports make him it would seem that Rossi is in for a very torrid six rounds.

Snooks Lacey, ebony hued scrapper from the West Side, meets Young Comfort in the opening four rounder. Lacey widely outpointed Young Gauvin at the last show but tonight meets a much more experienced boxer in Comfort. Lacey depends largely on a terrific left hand that is fast as lightning and spells plenty of trouble for an opponent.

Taken all in all this card looks as though the fans were due to get their money's worth in action as all the bouts loom as slugging matches.

BOBBY JONES' NAME HEADS LIST OF AMERICA'S FIRST TEN ATHLETES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18—(AP)—With the name of Robert Tyre Jones, Jr., at the top, a list of America's "first ten" athletes in amateur sport was announced today at the closing sessions of the Amateur Athletic union convention.

The others thus placed in nomination for the James E. Sullivan memorial trophy, a gold cup, which is being awarded this year for the first time, were:

Clarence DeMar, veteran marathon runner.

Miss Helene Madison, youthful swimming sensation from Seattle

Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, queen of the tennis courts.

Barney Berlinger, all-around track and field athlete of the University of Pennsylvania.

Miss Stella Walsh, record-breaking girl sprinter from Cleveland.

Ray Ruddy, Columbia university swimming ace and former Olympic team member.

Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., captain of America's international polo team.

Harlow Rothert, Stanford university football, basketball and shot put star.

George Simpson, sprinter from Ohio State.

Although the names were given in that order it was explained that no attempt had been made at ranking the athletes.

In announcing, the Sullivan memorial committee of the A. A. U. said that in the light of Jones' announcement yesterday of his retirement from amateur golf "he has eliminated himself in the opinion of the committee."

Jones' name, however, will be sent with the others to the members of a nation-wide tribunal of prominent persons interested in athletics whose votes will decide which of the ten is to receive the trophy.

A total of 165 athletes were nominated by this tribunal and from that number the Sullivan memorial committee named the ten announced today.

The trophy is to go to "that athlete who by his excellence of performance or improvement therein coupled with the influence of his character has done that which has made of him an outstanding figure in the world of amateur sport and an inspiration toward the ideals for which the A. A. stands."

Among the other developments of a busy closing day were the re-election of Avery Brundage of Chicago as president to serve a third one year term; the selection of Miami Beach for the 1931 convention, and the announcement that an anonymous donor has offered the A. A. U. $2,000,000 to establish an endowment fund.

The gift undoubtedly will be accepted and the income, amounting to $90,000 to $100,000 a year, is to be used in expanding the activities of the union, especially in providing adequate facilities for the development of young athletes.

President Brundage was re-elected by a vote of 90 to 43 over Patrick J. Walsh of New York, who became first vice president. The other officers chosen were T. Morris Dunne, Portland, Ore., Dr. Harold A. Bruce, Schenectady, N. Y., and Ben Giffin, Pittsburgh, second, third and fourth vice presidents, respectively; and Daniel J. Ferris, New York, re-elected secretary-treasurer.

The post-olympic track meet between the British empire and the United States was awarded to San Francisco for 1932.

On a question of how strict to make the amateur code, a middle ground was chosen. In place of a proposed amendment requiring that athletic representatives of a commercial organization in any A. A. U. sport must have been bona fide employes for at least 90 days, a substitute proposal was passed making the period 60 days and referring only to basketball and volley ball.

SHYMAS LOSE OPENING GAME TO OCKFORDS

The Shyma basketball team opened its season Tuesday evening at Parish hall with every thing a success but the outcome of the game. There was a large crowd for an opening. The Shyma Juniors started off the evening by whipping Jack Chance's All Stars, 45 to 35, but the big team ran into a tough one in the New London Ockfords and fell, 29 to 25.

It was an exceedingly fast game and kept the fans hopping every minute. New London held a half time lead of 15 to 11 and held just exactly this four-point margin all through the laft half.

Young Lefty Wilk, at right forward, was the leading scorer for the locals with eight points and Captain Les Pingree hit it up for five points. Long, the visiting left forward, was top scorer for the evening with ten points.

LETZELTER DECLARED TO BE INELIGIBLE FOR ARMY TEAM

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 18.—(AP)—Cyril Letzelter, of Pittsburgh, former Carnegie Tech football star, was dropped from the varsity squad of the United States Military academy today. Authorities said an investigation had revealed that Letzelter was over the age limit of 22 years when he entered the academy and that it would be "against the best interests of the military academy to allow him to participate in any further varsity athletic activities." He will be permitted to remain at the academy as a student, the official statement added.

Letzelter, a football star at Carnegie Tech for three years, entered the military academy in July, 1929, giving the date of his birth as Aug. 8, 1907. An investigation by military authorities, however, has established the date of his birth as Dec. 8, 1906.

Questioned in the matter, Letzelter said he had been raised by an aunt and uncle after the death of his mother, and always had been given to understand that the date of his birth was that he had given on his application for admission to the academy.

YALE'S VARSITY PREPARES FOR HARVARD GAME

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Yale's varsity football squad today began perfecting its offense and defense for next Saturday's game with Harvard.

Ducky Pond, who has been scouting the Crimson all season, organized a team of scrubs which had been instructed in Harvard plays and lined it up against the varsity eleven in a dummy scrimmage. Harvard forward and lateral passes were stressed.

The varsity eleven, with Albie Booth as quarterback, also held a dummy scrimmage during which new plays were practiced. A signal drill completed the day's program.

Jim Steward replaced Truxton Hare at left guard today, while Linehan, who was given a rest yesterday, returned to his position at right guard. Johnny Madden, substitute left end, who was injured in the Dartmouth game, also returned to the wars and is expected to be in condition for Saturday's game.

FRIGARD, DARTMOUTH BACK, HAS INFECTED LEG

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 18.—(AP)—Aarie Frigard, star Dartmouth halfback, was removed to the college infirmary here today suffering from an infected leg which will keep him out of practice for the remainder of the week, the last the Green Indians will have to prepare for their intersectional clash with Stanford at Palo Alto on Nov. 29.

Frigard, however, will make the trip to the west coast with the Green squad and Head Coach Jackson Cannell has high hopes that he will be in shape to face the Californians.

WASHINGTON STATE INVITED TO PLAY ROSE TOURNEY GAME

PASADENA, Cal., Nov. 18—(AP)—Washington State college, 1930 Pacific coast football champions, will be invited to represent the west in the annual Tournament of Roses gridiron clash at the Rose Bowl here New Year's day, Hal C. Reynolds, president of the association, announced tonight.

Trojans, Attention!

The L. H. A. C. will play the Trojans Sunday at 2:30 o'clock at Waterloo field on Laurel Hill.

The Trojans state in their challenge that they have played better teams than L. H. A. C.

In their list they name the Belding Bulldogs and the New London Boys' club. The L. H. A. C. has played and beaten better teams than the New London Boys' club, whom the Trojans defeated, and we feel they shouldn't have mentioned the Belding Bulldogs, as they defeated the Trojans, 12 to 0. The scoring stands 87 points for L. H. A. C. and 18 for opposition, while the Trojans have broken even all around, 18 points for Trojans, 18 for opposition; 1 won, 1 lost and 1 tie, whereas the L. H. A. C. have wone six straight.

UZCUDUN-CARNERA BOUT MAY GO TO MILAN

BARCELONA, Nov. 18.—(AP)—The bout between Paulino Uzcudun and Primo Carnera may be held in Milan, if strike conditions in Barcelona do not show rapid improvement, Jeff Dickson, American promoter of the match, said today.

Dickson has been forced to suspend the ticket sale because of the strike but plans to try again tomorrow or Thursday. The promoter is pessimistic, however, over chances of holding the match as scheduled, on Sunday.

FOOTBALL PLAYER DIES FROM A BROKEN NECK

MARIETTA, Ohio, Nov. 18.—(AP)—John Wightman, 21, of Northampton, Mass., tackle on the sophomore class football team, died from a broken neck today after participating in the annual Sophorome-Freshman game at Marietta college.

Wightman was injured during a series of line plays and coaches believed he took part in two plays after his injury. He died en route to a hospital. The body will be taken to Northampton tomorrow.

INTERSCHOLASTIC CROSS COUNTRY MEET THURSDAY

At least six schools will send cross-country squads here Thursday afternoon to compete in the annual Eastern Connecticut-Western Rhode Island conference run at the Academy campus. The schools definitely listed are Bulkeley, Chapman Tech, Windham, Westerly, Stonington and N. F. A., bringing together over 100 athletes.

Practically every one of the entries has a strong representative this year and a very interesting race is in prospect. The starting time has been set for 3 o'clock. Last year's winner was Westerly, which also won in 1928.

Hebrew Institute Wins

The Norwich Hebrew Institute defeated the Pearl St. Pigeons by a score of 12 to 6 in a game played Monday afternoon. Syril scored two touchdowns.

PITTSBURGH—Lots of weak spots in Carnegie's attack and defense will have to be eliminated if Temple is to be held on even terms. Tartan coaches sent the varsity through a long workout ironing out defects that were revealed in Monday's scrimmage.

SHYMA SPORT FLASHES

The Shyma Volley Ball league opened Monday evening with Wilk's Notre Dame team furnishing an upset by winning three games from a meek and weak Princeton team. The flashy work of "Speed" Gaudette "the mainstay of the Fighting Irish" was no doubt outstanding.

The real thrills of the evening came in the opening game of the league between Sullivan's scrappy Yale team and Tato's courageous but weak Columbia team. After losing the first game Sully rallied his fighting Bulldogs to smashing victories in the next two games. Sully himself led the onslaught.

A fighting Harvard team set back an equally matched Army team 2 to 1. This game lacked the thrills and beautiful teamwork of the powerful Notre Dame and Yale sixes.

The league standing:

	Won	Lost	Pct
Notre Dame	3	0	1.000
Yale	2	1	.666
Harvard	2	1	.666
Army	1	2	.333
Columbia	1	2	.333
Princeton	0	3	.000

Many of last year's basketball players have evaded Shyma practice to practice with the Polish club. Considering the circumstances which prevail at the club, it is only proper that if these players are satisfied with the turn of the tide there is no reason why they should comment on the handling of this year's team or in any way object to the way things are being handled.

The Shyma boxing card this week looks like plenty of action. The high spot, of course, is the main bout, and we will all be there rooting for a Beauregard K. O. Between the Darr fight and the Koziol scrap, it doesn't look as though there is going to be much time to discuss the prospects of Saturday's Yale and Harvard football game, because things should happen fast and plenty.

NEW YORK—Major Frank Cavanaugh, Fordham coach, is trying to evolve a defense to stop the rushes of Clark Hinkle, outstanding backfield star of the Bucknell Bisons. Hinkle was the east's leading scorer last year and has played heads-up football this season. The Fordham varsity went through a long dummy scrimmage against the scrubs today and used an aerial attack with good effect.

WEST POINT—Despite a muddy field, Major Ralph I. Sasse gave the Army football squad a hard workout in preparation for the Ursinus and Notre Dame games. Only five more practice days are available before the team leaves for Chicago to meet Notre Dame Nov. 29, and there is plenty of work yet to be done.

16 GAMES FOR N. F. A. COURT TEAM

Sixteen games are scheduled for the Academy basketball team which will open its season on Friday, Jan. 2, playing Putnam high at Putnam and closing with Bulkeley at New London, March. 3. The schedule was released Tuesday evening by Coach Paul Bitgood, the physical director at N. F. A. Seven of the games are away and nine at home.

The Academy this year resumes the sport after one year's intermission and will have one of the best surfaces for games in New England in the new Norton Memorial gymnasium.

Although the squad will, of necessity, be at a handicap because of the whole year without the sport, nevertheless Academy fans are optimistic regarding Wildcat chances for success on the court. Mr. Bitgood comes to the school from Conn. Aggies where he was freshman basketball and varsity track coach last year. He is a former all-around athlete at Storrs and also took a year's course in physical education at Springfield college.

He has a squad of 51 at present working out, drilling them in the fundamentals of the game and about the first week in December, after the football and cross-country seasons have closed, another call summoning the gridmen and harriers will be sounded, after which Mr. Bitgood will start the drive for the opening game just after the holidays.

The opening game at the Norton gym will be fittingly enough, with Killingly high of Danielson, Mr. Bitgood's alma mater. It will be played Friday, December 9. All of the games will be played on Tuesdays and Fridays.

For the first time in history the Academy and Bulkeley will officially meet in basketball this season, both schools having teams this season, the first time this has ever occurred. The first game of their two-game series will be played here Jan. 30, and the second at New London, March 3.

The schedule follows:

Friday, Jan. 2.—Putnam at Putnam.
Friday, Jan. 9—Killingly at home.
Tuesday, Jan. 13 — Saybrook at home.
Friday, Jan. 16—Chapman Tech at home.
Tuesday, Jan. 20—Killingly at Danielson.
Friday, Jan. 23—Conn. Aggie Frosh at home (pending).
Tuesday, Jan. 27—Chapman Tech at New London.
Friday, Jan. 30—Bulkeley at home.
Tuesday, Feb. 3— Stonington at home.
Friday, Feb. 6—Windham at Willimantic.
Tuesday, Feb. 10 — Plainfield at Plainfield.
Friday, Feb. 13 — Stonington at Stonington.
Friday, Feb. 20—Windham at home.
Monday, Feb. 23 — Plainfield at home.
Friday, Feb. 27—Putnam at home.
Tuesday, March 3—Bulkeley at New London.

SEVERAL PROBATE MATTERS DISPOSED OF BY JUDGE BURKE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Nov. 18—Westerly Probate Judge Edward M. Burke held the November bi-monthly session of Westerly probate court on Tuesday afternoon in the probate court chambers of the Westerly town hall when probate matters were disposed of as follows:

Estate of Thomas Winn. Petition received from son, Thomas H. Winn, represented in court by Judge Oliver H. Williams, that his father died a resident of Westerly, intestate, on Nov. 1, 1930, that he be appointed administrator of estate. Heirs-at-law, the son, and two daughters, Mrs. Evelyn E. Dinwoodie and Rebecca I. Winn, had signed waivures of notice. With no objection court appointed Thomas H. Winn administrator. Bond was made $500 with surety, Mrs. Evelyn E. Dinwoodie. Frank E. Bliven was named appraiser.

Estate of Donna B. Bliven. Petition was received from Beverly M. Bliven, administratrix of the estate of the deceased, late of Norwich, with the presentation of certain decrees and letters of administration and certification of appointment as administratrix under the seal of the appointment in the district of Norwich, in which court the estate has been administered with the request that copies be filed in the registry of the probate court of Westerly. These were received, granted and ordered recorded.

Estate of Jeannie S. Smith. Inventory received, examined, allowed and ordered recorded.

Estate of Ethel M. Ansell.: Inventery received, examined, allowed and ordered recorded.

Estate of Ethel M. Ansell. General receipts and releases from Margaret A. Pengelley, mother and sole heir-at-law of deceased who died intestate, given to Ada M. Pengelley as administratrix, received and ordered recorded together with releases of administratrix from bonds and surety.

Estate of Hannah Crandall. Petition received from conservator, Attorney Samuel H. Davis, to have leave to sell certain real estate, and continued to Dec. 2nd next with order of notice.

Estate of William H. Barnes. Final account taken up of Attorney John A. Eanos of Providence, conservator, continued to this court session covering the period from Feb. 28, 1930 to Oct. 21, 1930. In the presence of Howard A. Barnes and Attorney Eanos, the account was examined, allowed and ordered recorded.

WEDDING

Green-Brennan

At a Pawcatuck wedding which occurred on Monday at St. Michael's church, at 8 p. m., Miss May Brennan became the bride of John Leonard Green, the double ring ceremony being performed by Rev. J. F. X. Quinn. The church was beautifuly decorated with chrysanthemums. The wedding marches were played by Mrs. Thomas Murray, organist of the church, and the attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Hart of Allenton.

The bride was attractive in a gown of white crepe with Chantilly lace, and she carried white chrysanthemums. Her veil was of Princess lace with a crown of orange blossoms.

The maid of honor wore apple green crepe and carried yellow chrysanthemums.

Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at Elm Tree Inn to the bridal party and invited guests. Later the couple left on a short honeymoon, and on their return they will make their home at 26 Moss street.

FUNERALS

Louis C. Kenyon

From his Hope Valley, R. I., home on Monday afternoon was held the funeral of Louis C. Kenyon former resident of that place who died on Friday. At 2 p. m. the services were conducted by Rev. Oswald H. Rankin, pastor of the Hope Valley Baptist church.

The bearers were Adelbert P. Clark, Herbert E. Lewis, Harry Shepard, C. Edward Dockrey, Henry R. Dockrey and Walter H. Barber, all members of Mechanics lodge, I. O. O. F., of which the deceased was a member. Odd Fellows services were conducted at the grave, burial being in Wood River cemetery.

John Tatro

On Tuesday morning the funeral of John Tatro, 75, former resident of Westerly, who died Saturday at Manchester, N. H., was held at 8:30 o'clock from the home of his daughter, Mrs. John Rathgan, 26 Mechanic street. A high mass of requiem was celebrated at 9:00 o'clock at the church of the Immaculate Conception by Rev. J. B. Capesius, S. M.

Interment was in St. Sebastian cemetery, where the committal service was also conducted by Fr. Capesius. The bearers were Antonio LoPresto, James Parkinson, Louis Fontaine and John Demers.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry D. Lewis and two children, of Woody Hill, were callers Saturday at E. G. Barber's.

The raccoon and chicken supper served by the Loyal Workers in the parish house Saturday evening was well patronized and a good sum was cleared.

The rain for several days and nights is very welcome to those who have had a shortage of water supply for some time.

Since the first agricultural short course was established at Michigan State college in 1897 there have been 4816 graduates.

INTOXICATION, BREACH OF PEACE AND LIQUOR SELLING CASES BEFORE COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Nov. 18—In the Tuesday session of Stonington town court Judge William A. Wilcox of Pawcatuck disposed of court matters as follows:

Dennis Ceidel, 18, of Stonington, pleaded guilty to a charge of breach of the peace when arrested on Nov. 11th by Stonington Patrolman William Ostman, who found him also intoxicated and using obscene language on the public streets of Stonington. With Joseph Mattos, as his guardian ad litem appointed by the court on suggestion of Prosecutor Henry P. Hammacher, a plea of guilty was entered. It was also represented that the defendant had never been in court before. Being found guilty a fine of $5 with costs of $10.95 were imposed and paid. John Maderia, 19, pleaded guilty under a similar complaint following arrest by Officer Ostman at the time the first arraigned was apprehended. With similar court action fine and costs totalling $15.95 were imposed by Judge Wilcox and paid.

James McCormick, 23, of Stonington, was arraigned in court on a charge of breach of the peace and disturbance following the Westerly high-Stonington high football game in Stonington on Armistice day afternoon. Some 15 or 20 Stonington high school students "took recess" from their school work to attend the court session. The accused pleaded not guilty. Police Patrolman William Ostman, who made the arrest took the witness stand to testify to the fracas which occurred off the football field and the officer declared the defendant had been drinking and got into a fight with John A. Altimari, of Pierce street, Westerly, who also was a spectator at the football game. Three times the officer said he drove the belligerants back and the fourth time when a "pass" was made he took the defendant in.

The defendant, McCormick took the stand in his own defense and declared that the fight resulted from the Westerly visitors calling the S. H. S. players "a bunch of tomatoes," and this was followed by the return epithet, "a bunch of Wops" referring to the W. H. S. football players. The defendant stated that he was hit and knocked against and seated himself on the running board of an automobile. He was found guilty and sentenced to pay a fine of $2 and costs which totalled $12.95 which was paid.

John A. Altimari, 42, of 81 Pierce street, Westerly, was also before the court charged with disturbance and breach of the peace following his participation in the Armistice day football field racket. He also pleaded not guilty. Officer Ostman who arrested Altimari said that when he placed the accused under arrest he was in the midst of a milling crowd and Altimari had said, "Let me get some more whacks at him." It was on the defendant's third return to the melee that his arrest followed and at the time he was also under the influence of liquor. Found guilty he was sentenced to pay a fine of $2 and costs of $10.95 which were paid.

Following a short court recess awaiting the return of state police officers from an inspection at the Groton barracks, Harold Chappell, 17, charged with operating a Conn. registered auto with only a R. I. driver's license was recommended by Prosecutor Hammacher for a nolle and costs were ordered paid remitted down to $5.

A week's postponement was made in the case against Irving T. Melvin, Broad street, Stonington, charged with reckless driving by State Police Officer Arthur Whitmarsh.

Donald Forbes, 33, represented in court by New London Prosecutor Max Boyer, was fined $100 and costs of $10.95, on charge of possession of intoxicating liquors following the Saturday afternoon raid by state police officers at his home, 12 Alden street, Mystic.

Joseph Saba, 105 Elderkin avenue, Groton, found mixing liquors in the Forbes home at the time of the raid was not prosecuted on the possession charge. An absolute nolle was granted.

STONINGTON

Approximately 200 acre sof land with shore front facing on Little Narragansett bay has been leased by the newly organized club known as the Barn Island Gun club. The tract of land is known as the Brucker property and extends from Cox's cove to the wooded section on Osbrook Point and includes Barn Island. There is a five-room cottage on the property which will be used as a club house by the members. The land is to be posted to prevent outsiders from using it. The 50 acres of wooded section will furnish plenty of brush shooting. A set of by-laws and rules will be presented by the secretary, Joseph Cushman at the next meeting.

Took State Examination

Miss Olive Delagrange has returned from a sta yof a few days in Providence where she took the state board examinations for nurses.

Mrs. Frank F. Dodge has returned from New York, where she has been spending a vacation with her mother Mrs. Eugene Atwood.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Brown are to occupy the Hyde house on Elm street for the winter.

Miss Fannie Stanton of New Haven has been spending a few days with borough relatives.

W. A. Gariepy of Fall River, was a business caller here Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Graham of New Haven are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Carl Graham of Elm street.

Nina Council, No. 149, D. of A., will meet in the Holy Ghost rooms this (Wednesday) evening.

Social for Members

The Ladies' society of the Second Congregational church will hold a supper and social for the members of the church in the church parlors this (Wednesday) evening. Supper will be served at 6:30. This is the beginning of a series of winter activities for the members of the church.

Sunday afternoon from Station WEAF a song relating to the Battle of Stonington was broadcast by Mr. Maxwell.

The response to the Red Cross roll call has been very encouraging so far. Already the sum of $260 has been received. The quota for the local chapter this year is $400 and it is hoped this amount will be received before the close of the drive.

MICHIGAN'S BEAN OUTPUT YIELDS TO CALIFORNIA'S

EAST LANSING Mich.—(AP)—Michigan yields to California in bean production.

Estimates indicate that the coast state will surpass Michigan this year in the bean output, upon which the Wolverine state usually has held a corner. Indications are that Michigan's crop will total 5,165,000 bushels, with 5,948,000 forecast for California.

MYSTIC

The Friendly league of the Union Baptist church held an afternoon and evening session with Mrs. Artis Stoddard Monday. A good amount of White Cross work was accomplished during the afternoon, after which a covered dish supper was served to about 25 or 30 members. In the evening, following the regular business session, a fine program was given, in charge of Mrs. Helen B. Chapman, leader, as follows: Piano solo, Rustling Leaves, Barbara Chapman; Scripture reading, a poem, "I Shall Not Pass This Way Again," and prayer by Mrs. Chapman; musical recitation, "The Master in His Garden," with Miss Jessie Fish at the piano and Mrs. Artis Stoddard, reader; a very interesting account of the conference held in Northfield the past summer, Miss Dorris Bindloss; poem, "The Builders," Mrs. Chapman; vocal solo, Mr. Moody's favorite hymn, "The Sands of Time are Sinking," Mrs. L. J. Shepler; glimpses from the book "India on the March," Miss Happie Brown; hymn and reading of the covenant.

P.-T. Ass'n Probable

It has been suggested that a Parent-Teacher organization be formed in connection with the Broadway and Old Mystic grammar schools, for the purpose of affording a better opportunity for parents and teachers to become acquainted and co-operate for the best interests of the children, and for the purpose of assisting the schools to provide some advantages for pupils which they could not otherwise enjoy. All parents have been invited to attend a meeting to be held in the auditorium of Broadway school Thursday evening at 8 o'clock, for the purpose of organizing, if thought desirable. There will be a good speaker and refreshments will be served.

OBITUARY

Eugene Horace Davis

Eugene Horace Davis, 82, died at his home at 39 Denison avenue, Mystic, Monday. He was born in the town of Groton, May 24, 1848, the son of Horace Davis and Harriet Ashby. He is survived by a daughter, Miss Edna Davis, who kept house for her father.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Elliott, of New London, visited the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Frink, of Wolf Neck district, Old Mystic, Tuesday.

J. W. and Thomas W. Pollard have returned from attending the meetings of the National grange in Rochester, N. Y. They report a fine time. They claim that the drought was much worse in New York state than here.

To Attend Garden Club Meeting

Mrs. N. Stanton Gates, Mrs. John R. Gould, Mrs. John W. Phillips, Mrs. G. S. B. Leonard, Mrs. Frank M. Bindloss, Mrs. Frank Kahl, Miss Elizabeth Mallory and Miss Lillian Miner will attend the meeting of the Federated Garden clubs of Connecticut held in New London at the Mohican hotel today (Wednesday). Mrs. L. P. Allyn and Miss Annie Greenman will also attend as delegates from the local club.

RICHARD WALKER INJURED WHEN CAR STRIKES A POLE

Richard Walker, son-in-law of George W. Wallace of Mystic, was injured on Saturday when his car skidded as he drove out of the navy yard at Portsmouth, and hit a telephone pole, throwing him through the windshield. He suffered a fractured skull and other injuries and was removed to a hospital where an operation was performed. He recovered consciousness but is still in a serious condition. Mrs. Walker was here visiting her parents and was called to her husband's bedside.

Brothers To Entertain

Mystic grange, No. 171, P. of H., will meet Thursday evening. The program will be provided by the men who lost out when a competitive program was given by the sisters and brothers, the first of October. As was agreed then, the loser was to furnish the program at the meeting of November 20th. Mrs. Ellery Burdick will give several readings.

When the Winthrop club of New London played whist with the Mystic Hook and Ladder company, in the latter's rooms on Gravel street Monday evening, the following scores were made: John Bailey and Henry Mochon, New London, 3322; Otto Wilhelm and Warren Chapman, Mystic, 3270. NIANTIC

The state highway department has trucks and men working on the road between Pine Grove and Niantic removing a curve which has been a dangerous one to traffic since there was a road to Pine Grove. Already a large amount of dirt has been removed and a decided improvement to traffic has been made.

Mrs. Emma Fisher of Bristol is making a few days' stay at the Niantic House. She was a recent guest of Mrs. Ella V. Weir in the Grove.

George Elton and party of friends from Kensington were in the Grove over the week-end on a fishing trip.

Maurice Wilson, manager at Dickinson's station is ill with a severe cold.

A vestibule has been erected at the entrance of the Niantic post office which will be an improvement and protection when cold weather arrives.

Mrs. Eli Dorman has returned to Willimantic after a brief visit with her brother-in-law, Almus Dorman, in the Grove.

Raymond Randall is making repairs to the foundation of his home in the Grove.

Mrs. William Dorman is in Hartford with Mr. and Mrs. Homer Dorman.

Mr. and Mrs. William Banning of Hartford spent Sunday at their Pine Grove summer home.

Mrs. Lucy Johnson has been ill for several weeks. Her daughter, Mrs. Arthur Curtiss of Hartford is caring for her.

Maurice Wilson and George Kuhne while at the Niantic river drawbridge on a fishing trip, reported poor luck.

Mrs. Ernest L. Spencer who recently acquired Mrs. Gibson's property on Pennsylvania avenue is making many improvements to same.

Turner Harding has returned from a few days' business trip to towns along the Connecticut river.

MONTVILLE

LEWIS STATION-STORE CLEANED OUT OF STOCK

The gasoline station and store which is conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Michael Lewis on the Palmertown-Oakdale road in the town of Montville was broken into between Monday evening and early Tuesday morning. The thieves cleaned the place out completely of cigars, cigarettes, candy and canned goods valued at about $100. State Trooper Donald Brown of Groton barracks and Police Officer Howard Lamphere of Montville are investigating the break. Entrance was gained by breaking in one of the front windows of the store.

The annual chicken pie supper, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid society of Palmertown Union Baptist church, which was held Tuesday evening, proved a great success. The affair was in charge of Mrs. F. H. Rogers, president of the Ladies' Aid society.

A delegation of members of Oxoboxo lodge, A. F. and A. M., attended the Shriners' parade held in Middletown Saturday afternoon.

The much needed rain that has fallen for the past three days caused a slight increase of water in wells which have been dry for a long period. Water has begun flowing over the dams.

Carl F. Johnson, of Uncasville, was a recent visitor in New Haven and called on his brother, George Johnson, of Pequot, who is undergoing medical treatment in the New Haven General hospital.

Charles Young, of New London, was a business caller in Palmertown Tuesday afternoon.

ARBITRATION TO DECIDE ON SCHNEIDER RACE FEE

PARIS—(AP)—The fate of the 1931 Schneider cup seaplane classic will be decided in November by an arbitration board meeting here.

If satisfactory arrangements are made by the board, it is probable that at least Great Britian France and Italy will engage in the epic speed contest scheduled for next fall.

England, because of her victory in 1929, will again be host, but the Royal Aero club of Great Britian rejected French and Italian entries on the grounds that they were not accompanied by adequate entry fees.

The entries were in accordance with the fees recommended this spring by the Federation Aeronautique Internationale, but less than the fees ordinarily charged.

The arbitration board will endeavor to settle the question brought up by the British club that the federation had no right to change the regulations for a competition during the current year.

Pear growers have spent $885,000 in an effort to curb blight, department of agriculture figures show.

Norwich Produce Market

Furnished by Bureau of Markets Conn. Dept. of Agriculture

Interest in products of importance for the coming Thanksgiving dinner assumed a fair degree of activity on Connecticut markets. Turkey talk developed in larger cities with retail-store buyers showing more interest in the native product than was the case a year ago. The price spread between fancy native and best western grown turkeys is considerably reduced from last year's quotations and is tending to turn trade to the dependable native product.

Connecticut grading regulations have assisted in providing a market for the native turkey crop. Previous to the introduction of the Connecticut native fancy grade, buyers hesitated in stocking with the native product but recent enlightenment in feeding methods and preparing the birds for market, together with the assurance of uniform quality, have revolutionized the demand for the home-grown turkey.

Several grocers who bought sparingly of native fancy turkeys last year due to prevailing prices are ordering increased numbers of Connecticut fancy turkeys this year. The present prices asked for genuine milk fed native turkeys, bearing the official yellow tag, range only 8 to 10c more per pound than the prices of quality birds received from the west.

A total price of a dollar more for a tender fresh killed native turkey is not stopping consumers from buying. The official yellow tag is a stamp of identification that is cheap insurance where quality is concerned.

Inspectors from the state department of agriculture were in the field early in the season assisting growers in developing turkeys to the point where they would pass rigid inspection when dressed.

Turkeys Thrive On Drought

RICHMOND, Va.—(AP)—Pumpkin pie may be scarce, but Virginians will have more turkeys for Thanksgiving. The drought is estimated to have cost Virginia agriculture $100,000,000, but the federal state crop reporting service says turkeys thrived on it. The crop is bigger than usual.

The South Dakota wool growers' co-operative is marketing 3,806,000 pounds of the state's wool crop this year, says Carl Nadasdy, manager.

HERE ARE THOSE AMAZING "PEP UP" SALTS

So Many People Are Asking About

They are ordinary JAD Salts, and thousands of people tell wonderful tales about them. Everywhere you go, people are taking them and singing their praises; especially folks who have to work hard o rlong hours, and those who know they shouldn't drink alcoholic beverages, yet do.

Fat or overweight people take them to reduce moisture weight in the body and to end that puffy feeling most overweight people have.

What they do is this: Clear up the Systemic Poisoning that makes you feel so miserable most of the time. Clean out those mean, intestinal poisons that often go to the kidneys and form pus and trouble. 30 minutes after taking, you feel those poisons go. No more dull headaches, no more dragging yourself around "half-sick" most of the time. You "pep-up" and pack a new wallop in a hurry.

You take a spoonful in a glass of water a half hour before breakfast, a sparkling, wonderful drink. For these salts are a product of citrous fruits and grapes, with just the right touch of lithia to make them marvelous to take.

So that nobody will be fooled in buying them, you get your money back if they don't make you feel finer, snappier, more vigorous and interested in life than ever before. Get at any corner drug store simply by asking for ordinary JAD Salts. You'll be glad that you did.

N. Y. STOCK MARKET TURNED QUIETLY UPWARD AFTER AN EARLY DECLINE

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Just as an extension of Monday's decline was assuming more than technical stature, the stock market turned quietly upward today.

Early losses of 1 to 3 points were converted into net gains of roughly the same size in a last hour rally which proved to be the most active movement of a dull session. Sales totaled 2,023,050.

The motor and motor accessory shares gave the market its lift and all groups except the rails got aboard for the upturn. Copper and utility shares had been heavy and although the former made a somewhat sluggish response to the rally the early losses were recovered. U. S. Steel, which had been off 1 3-4, was up 1 1-4 at the close and net gains of about the same extent appeared in most of the industrial favorites. American Telephone exchanged a loss of more than 2 points for a small improvement over the Monday close.

The wide break in Winnipeg wheat featured an otherwise calm day in the commodity markets. Extreme losses of nearly 8 cents a bushel there found Chicago futures, which normally rule within a few cents of Canadian quotations, moving narrowly, with December holding around 73 cents in contrast to Winnipeg's low of 55. Domestic quotations ranged 3-4 to 1 3-4 net lower. Corn was heavy, losing about 2 to 3 cents in reflection of a disappointing increase in contract stocks as well as the softness of other grains.

Business in copper was quiet and foreign sales, which have been active, tapered off. At least one custom smelter cut to 11 cents but producers held to 12 and scattered offerings below that figure were attributed to speculators who had bought at 9 1-2.

The decline of $181,000,000 in bank loans of securities indicated that the recent drop of $219,000,000 in Federal Reserve brokers' loans had not represented merely a juggling of position but actual liquidation which of course helps the general financial situation. Collateral borrowings of the reporting member banks are now $465,000,000 under a year ago. Other interesting items in the weekly bank statement were the $42,000,000 increase in commercial loans and the $63,000,000 rise in investments, the latter reflecting continued bond purchases.

After the early downward course of stocks had reached a point where considerable resistance to selling pressure was appearing prices became very stationary and the market seemed to be waiting for news, of one sort or the other, to rouse it into activity. When nothing developed the demonstration in the automotive group was started. It was especially vigorous in the rubber shares. Goodyear rose 6, Goodrich 3, U. S. Rubber 2 and the preferred 4 3-4, Murray, Hudson and Elec Auto-Lite 2 and Nash and Briggs 1. Auburn Auto gained nearly 6.

Sears Roebuck was firm on the declaration of the stock dividend for the first half of 1931, while Gillette and Auto Strop moved higher in anticipation of the merger approval. United Biscuit responded to the increased dividend.

Union Pacific, Norfolk & Western, Northern Pacific and Lackawanna failed to fully recover from their early weakness and lost about 3 points on the day. New York Central, Atchison and Baltimore & Ohio, however, firmed, the first named gaining 2 points net.

Advances in Radio, General Electric, Westinghouse, Texas Corp., Standard of N. J., National Biscuit, North American, Electric Power & Light and American Can averaged about a point. Allied Chemical rose 3 3-4.

Cotton here was quiet, off 6 to 14 points at the close, largely in sympathy with uncertainties in the other commodity markets.

Foreign exchanges were dull. The Spanish peseta again receded, but other continental rates were slightly changed.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Nov. 18—(AP)—Separate million bushel buying orders give. to many different houses at once formed an exciting order of procedure in the Chicago wheat pit today.

In at least one case, instructions to purchase wheat were absolutely without limit as to the amount. Under such circumstances, failure of efforts to obtain a Canadian government guarantee for minimum wheat prices at Winnipeg was accompanied by a whirlwind 8 1-2c a bushel collapse of wheat values there, while the Chicago wheat market held almost unchanged for the principal delivery, and showed for other deliveries a maximum setback of not more than 4 cents. Much of the big buying of wheat in Chicago came from U. S. government sponsored agencies, but a huge additional aggregate was to reverse gigantic spread trades in which wheat had been simultaneously bought at Winnipeg and sold in Chicago.

Closing Chicago quotations on wheat were nervous 1-2 at 3 5-8c a bushel lower than yesterday's finish. Corn closed 1 3-4 at 3c down, oats 1 1-8 at 1 3-8c off, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 15c.

COTTON

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Futures closed steady, 6 to 14 points lower; spot quiet; middling 11.00.

Citizens of the town of Goose Creek, Tex., plan to change the name to Southport, believing the latter more dignified.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(AP)—The curb market fluctuated uncertainly today, but managed to close irregularly higher. Further selling appeared during the morning but the list turned upward before mid-day. Trading was light, the day's sales totaling 512,400.

Some of the utilities moved up under the influence of short covering during the afternoon. American Gas gained 4 points, and Electric Bond & Share gained 1. Middle West dropped more than 2 points, and it closed off 1 5-8. United Light "A" closed about steady, after sagging moderately. American Superpower lost 3-4 of a point in a large turnover.

The copper issues again eased, as dealers offered the metal at 11 cents a pound, a full cent under the price recently set by producers. Newmont and Hudson Bay each closed 3-4 of a point off. Oils moved narrowly. Cities Service sold off more than a point during the morning, but rallied to close 1-8 higher. Standard Kentucky also recovered after a decline during the morning. Standard of Nebraska gained a point.

Industrials were highly irregular. Douglas Aircraft was a firm spot, rising 2 3-4. Technicolor recovered 1 1-2. Deere and Ford of Canada "A" each lost a point, and Anglo-Chilean Nitrate dropped more than 3.

In the holding company group, Cord Corp. gained a fraction, in sympathy with a rally in Auburn. Blue Ridge and Interstate Equity senior issues gained more than a point. United Founders was an active feature, closing at 10, off 1-4.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18—(AP)—Stockholders of the American Bosch Magneto corporation have approved the agreement for a merger with the Robert Bosch Magneto Company, Inc., When the merger is completed the company will be known as the United American Bosch corporation and authorized stock will be increased from 225,000 no par shares to 500,000 no par shares.

Offering is being made of $1,096,442 Shaker Heights, Ohio, school district 4 1-2 per cent bonds at prices to yield 4 to 4.25 per cent by a syndicate headed by the Guardian Trust company, of Cleveland. The issue matures serially from 1932 to 1949.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 18—(AP)—Moving sluggishly throughout the greater part of today's session, bonds steadied in the final hour under the firming influence of a mild rally in shares.

Prices were narrowly irregular, with high priced rails and utility bonds displaying a firmer tone than in the previous session. Activity was somewhat improved also, although still under the average day's transactions.

United States governments set the pace for high grade investment issues. Liberty bonds continued to advance, the 3 1-2s and 4th 4 1-4s attaining new peaks for the year and the first 4 1-4s selling at the best figures for 1930. Treasury issues however, sagged.

Scattered selling of Latin American bonds gave an irregular tinge to the foreign list where trading covered a broad field of issues. Bolivian 8s slumped 7 points to 77, and the 7s reacted 3 points. Brazilian 6 1-2s yielded more than a point and a few other issues of the South American republic were easier. In the European division German bank and industrial issues were well supported and the government 7s advanced 5-8. The International 5 1-2s, however, yielded 1 3-8 and closed at the bottom. At the closing price of 70 1-4 the Young plan loan is nearly 20 points off from the price at which it was offered last June.

With few exceptions the sharpest changes in domestic liens occurred in third grade issues. First and second grade bonds were steady to firm. Industrials, which were in the doldrums for a long period, displayed a little improvement.

Anglo Chilean Nitrate 7s dipped to a new low at 70 on a 4 point decline. A similar drop carried Lorillard debenture 7s to a new minimum. Fisk Rubber 8s, International Agricultural Chemical 5s, U. S. Rubber 5s and commercial investment trust sixes, were much improved.

Declines of 5-8 each in American Telephone debenture issues stood out in the utility group. Rock Island general 4s, St. Paul 5s of 1975, Big Four 4s, Wabash 2nd 5s, Pennsylvania 4 1-2s, Nickel Plate 4 1-2s, C, New Haven 4 1-2s, Erie 5s of 1967, and International Great Northern adjustment sixes were among the rails that moved contrary to the general upward trend maintained by carrier obligations.

Further evidence of a sharp increase in the volume of new offerings was given in the announcement of two large issues for tomorrow. New England Power association is offering $20,000,000 two year 5 per cent notes, and Central Ohio Light and Power company is marketing $3,600,000 in 5 per cent bonds.

EXPERTS ARE UNRAVELING NEW WAYS TO DETECT THE TRAILS OF CRIMINALS

By WALTER T. BROWN

CHICAGO, Nov. 18—(AP)—The unwavering finger of science is pointing out new ways to follow the criminal's hidden trail.

In Chicago—Chicago with its hundreds of unsolved gangster murders, a scientific crime detection laboratory, patterned after the best in Europe, quietly is assembling experts and data, to make discovery of law infractions more probable.

The laboratory, born of a wealthy manufacturer's dissatisfaction with the way officials handled the merciless St. Valentine's day massacre of seven gangsters, is part of Northwestern university.

The wealthy manufacturer, Bert Massee, lean-faced, clear-eyed yachtsman and sportsman, has paid most of the upkeep of the laboratory. And the upkeep is about $75,000 a year.

The Chicago laboratory—first of its kind in North America—eventually is to become a training school for scientific crime detection. So far it has been too busy expanding and attempting to handle the detection problems presented by virtually every state.

In its brief life—it was established in July, 1929—the bureau has established clues in such front page thrillers as:

The St. Valentine's day massacre.

Murder of Al Lingle, Chicago reporter.

Slaying of Mary Baker, Washington clerk.

Suspicious death of the wife of Maj. Charles A. Shepard, Denver army surgeon.

Unusual accidental death of William Vernon Harrison, wealthy Columbus, Ohio man.

Massee is not a mystery story reader; has no carry-over of childhood ambition to be a great detective; in fact, had his first contact with crime and its morbid magnetism when he was called to serve on a coroner's jury investigating the gangster killings.

"It's a burden, sure, to put about $50,000 or more a year on this project," he observed. "But it's an undertaking that will, I believe, result in a business-like, methodical way of combatting crime. If it does that, it will help me and you, and everybody not in the crime 'racket.'"

Massee, executive of a big business, methodical, alert and scientific, was foreman of the coroner's jury.

"Some place I had read of forensic ballistics; that men could tell that bullets had been fired from certain guns. A lawyer friend remembered having heard Calvin Goddard talk to a bar association on ballistic evidence. We got Goddard.

"After days of looking at bullets found in the garage where the St. Valentine's day massacre took place, Goddard said they were two sub-machine guns and a shot gun.

"That wasn't much, but it was a beginning. Had the garage been closed to visitors, and opened only to crime scientists, possibly many hidden clues would have been revealed."

Goddard was the keystone of the crime laboratory. It was made a part of Northwestern to free it from politics and political influence. Massee and Walter E. Olson, wealthy rug maker, paid Goddard's expenses as coroner's aid. Massee went along on the laboratory plan.

The ballistic expert, director of the crime laboratory, of cherubic countenance but martial lineage, is a physician. He quit as manager of Cornell university clinic to establish himself as an arms expert. He has been a firearms enthusiast since boyhood.

Massee sent Goddard to Europe. He was impressed with Scotland Yard's thoroughness, the medical perfection of the Paris laboratory with its fingerprint files of more than 6,000,000 persons, the scientific perfection of the Lausanne, Switzerland, police school, Rome's school of criminology, and Vienna's police laboratory with its notable "moulage" section.

Goddard found the European detectives are trained scientists and that the public is educated to remain away from crime scenes until police have gone thoroughly over the ground.

He learned that a single hair, a charred bone, automobile tire tread, ink prints, shoe prints, rubber heel marks, fingernail scrapings, bits of fabric, in fact any and all human traces convey individual messages to scientific detectives.

Assisting Goddard are Dr. Clarence W. Muehlberger, toxicologist and assistant director; Ferdinand Watsek, of Vienna, finger print and moulage expert; Leonarde Keeler, psychologist and perfector of a lie-detection machine, and Seth Wiard, a ballistic engineer.

As consulting members of the staff there are experts in handwriting, typewriting, manuscripts and documents, chemists, psychiatrists, physiologists, experts in violet ray, poisons and analysis of materials.

One consultant is Jay Fordyce Wood, who showed that the warning typewritten notes sent Bobby Frank's father had been written by Nathan Leopold and that other incriminating documents bore the handwriting of Richard Loeb.

Next story tells how Dr. Goddard found leading clues to the St. Valentine's day slayings.

PICTURES TAKEN THREE MILES UP AID CROP CENSUS

LOS ANGELES (AP)—For crop reporting an airplane is used by Harold J. Ryan, Los Angeles county agricultural commissioner.

Pictures made at a height of nearly three miles are used to check and supplement work of his crop reporters on the ground. The resulting records are used to compile estimates of crop production and making farm-price averages.

"Under the common system of collection, acreage records that are even reasonably correct are hard to obtain in diversified farming areas without an actual farm census," explains K. L. Wolff, Ryan's assistant. A census usually is both slow and costly.

"It is not possible for district inspectors to keep track of all changes caused through planting and removal of trees. Too, the acreage is not always accurately estimated form the roadside.

"Airplane photographs are used to check these records. The size and shape of orchards and vineyards as well as their exact location can be determined by comparing acreage maps and the aerail survey photographs. Even individual trees can be counted.

"The value in this system rests in the time-saving assistance it gives the crop reporter and the accuracy it puts in his figures."

Sets Air Mark

Establishing a new record for women for cross-country flight, New York to Los Angeles, Mrs. Keith Miller, above, British woman aviatrix, covered the distance in 25 hours and 44 minutes. The previous record was held by Laura Ingalls, New York flyer.

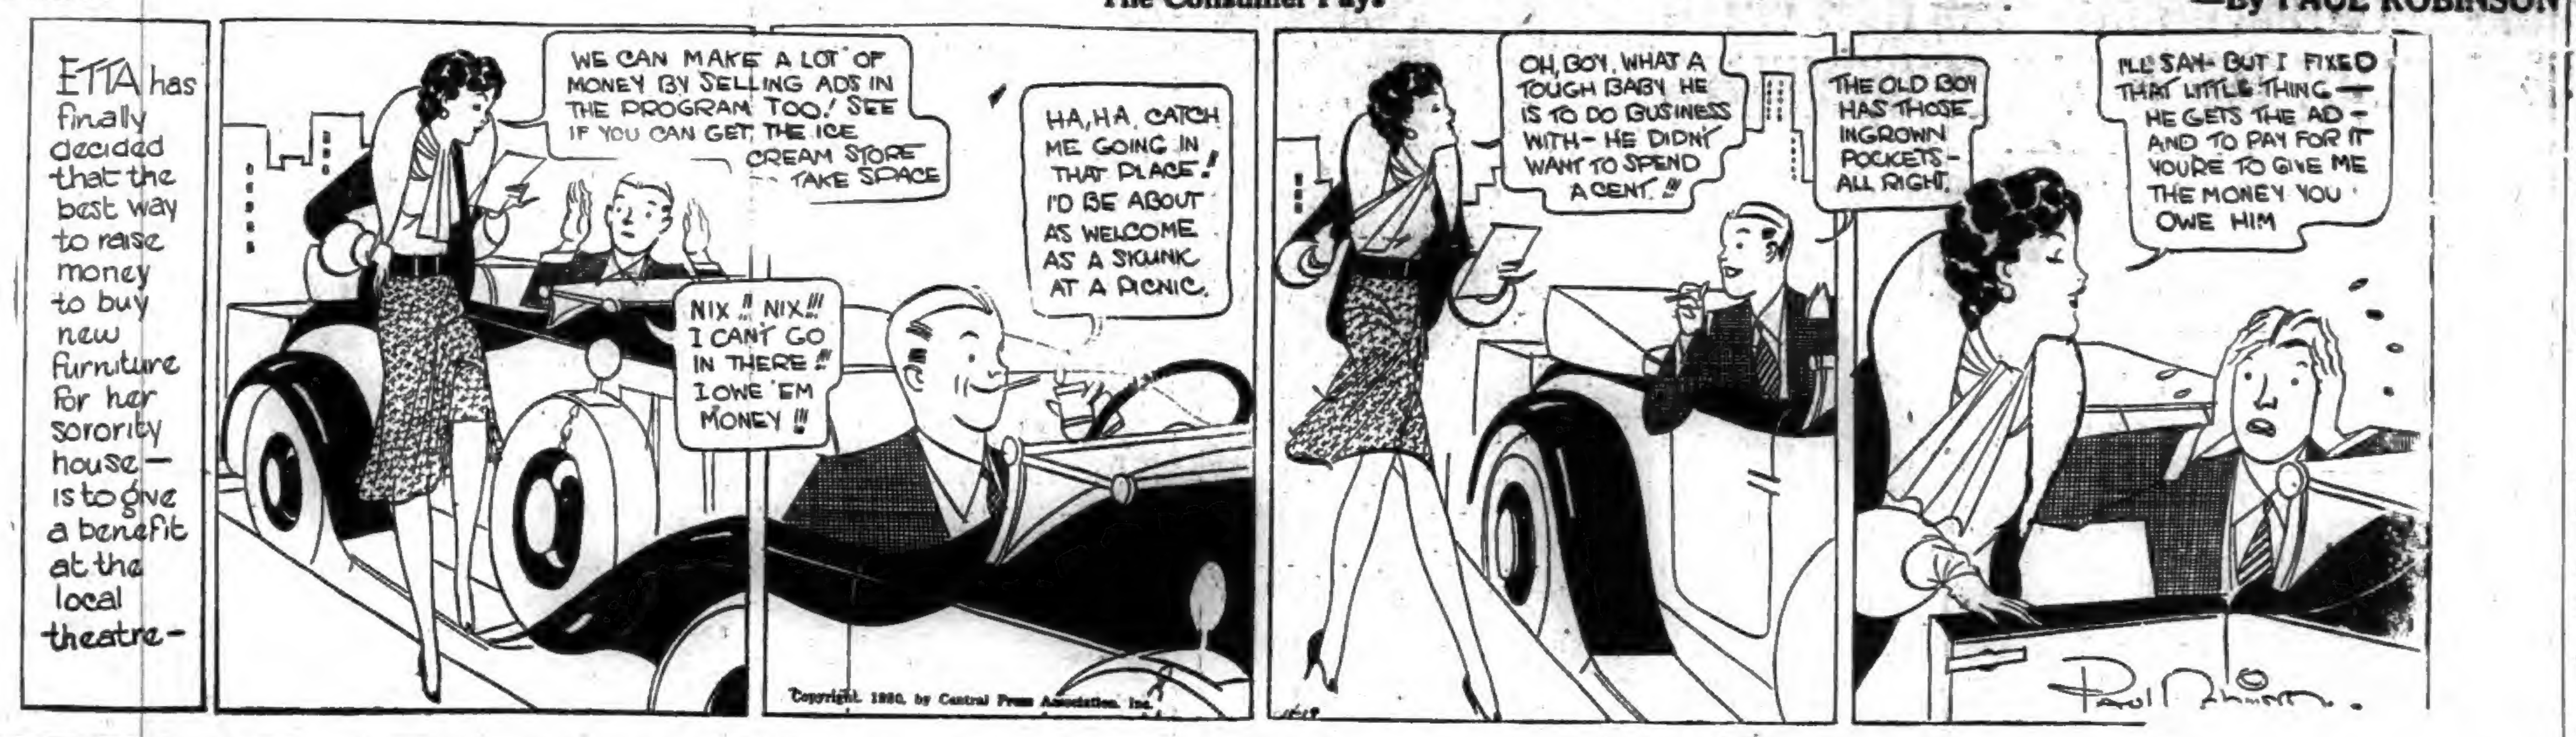
ETTA KETT

The Consumer Pays

—By PAUL ROBINSON



ETTA has finally decided that the best way to raise money to buy new furniture for her sorority house—is to give a benefit at the local theatre—
WE CAN MAKE A LOT OF MONEY BY SELLING ADS IN THE PROGRAM TOO! SEE IF YOU CAN GET THE ICE CREAM STORE TO TAKE SPACE
NIX!! NIX!!! I CAN'T GO IN THERE!! I OWE 'EM MONEY!!!
HA, HA, CATCH ME GOING IN THAT PLACE! I'D BE ABOUT AS WELCOME AS A SKUNK AT A PICNIC.
OH, BOY, WHAT A TOUGH BABY HE IS TO DO BUSINESS WITH—HE DIDN'T WANT TO SPEND A CENT!!!
THE OLD BOY HAS THOSE INGROWN POCKETS—ALL RIGHT.
I'LL SAY—BUT I FIXED THAT LITTLE THING—HE GETS THE AD—AND TO PAY FOR IT YOU'RE TO GIVE ME THE MONEY YOU OWE HIM

POETRY

Anabel Lee

It was many and many a year ago,
In a kingdom by the sea,
That a maiden there lived whom you may know
By the name of Annabel Lee;
And this maiden she lived with no other thought
Than to love and be loved by me.

I was a child and she was a child,
In this kingdom by the sea,
But we loved with a love that was more than love,
I and my Annabel Lee;
With a love that the winged seraphs of heaven
Coveted her and me.

And this was the reason that, long ago,
In this kingdom by the sea,
A wind blew out of a cloud, chilling
My beautiful Annabel Lee;
So that her highborn kinsmen came
And bore her away from me,
To shut her up in a sepulcher
In this kingdom by the sea.

The angels, not half so happy in heaven,
Went envying her and me;
Yes! that was the reason (as all men know,
In this kingdom by the sea)
That the wind came out of the cloud by night
Chilling and killing my Annabel Lee

But our love it was stronger by far than love
Of those who were older than we.
Of many far wiser than we;
And neither the angels in heaven above,
Nor the demons down by the sea,
Can ever dissever my soul from the soul
Of the beautiful Annabel Lee;

For the moon never beams, without bringing me dreams
Of the beautiful Annabel Lee;
And the stars never rise, but I feel the bright eyes
Of the beautiful Annabel Lee;
And so, all the night-tide, I lie down by the side
Of my darling—my darling—my life and my bride,
In her sepulchre there by the sea,
In her tomb by the sounding sea

—Edgar Allen Poe.

Night Of Departures

Blown leaves are flecks of rust
On the curved blade
Of the moon. The golden dust
Is blown to fade
On the wind, before the slow
Shears of the frost.
On the dark wind they go—
The saved . . . and the lost.

The leaves from the tossed bough,
The dust of gold
From the dried bloom! Even now
Winds cannot hold
What they lift. From the burst pod,
Seeds they would keep Drift back to the breast of sod—
Heavy with sleep.

Following wind we may find
In the flushed morn
How milkweed silk is twined
Around a thorn.
How leaves have pressed a wall,
How deep the thrust
Of seed in grass . . . All . . . as
But the golden dust!

—Glenn Ward Dresbach in the New York Sun.

Prospective Guest—"That is a new patent fire escape. If your hotel caught fire I could let myself down from the window easily—see?"

Hotel Clerk—"Exactly; our terms for guests with firescapes are invariably cash in advance." — Montreal Star.

KALEIDOSCOPE

Few states as yet have laws standardizing the weight of bread.

Ruins of a deserted Mayan city in northwest Guatemala are to be excavated by the University of Pennsylvania museum.

The largest apple pie ever baked in Kansas was cut at the Troy apple festival. The pie contained thirty bushels of apples.

Latest census statistics from the Irish Free State show 80 per cent. of the young men between twenty-five and thirty years old to be unmarried.

A man who dropped into the police station at Bangor, Me., to inquire as to health of a friend, one of twenty-seven held for intoxication on Labor day, was officially entered on the blotter as No. 28.

E. M. Thayer, of Battle Creek, Mich., went golfing and smacked a beautiful drive right down the fairway. The ball went eighty yards on a line and landed in the trousers pocket of a golfer in the foursome ahead.

J. C. Lewis, physical director at Santa Barbara, Cal., landed a five-foot shark with his hands on West Cabrillo beach. Several hundred persons saw him do it. Lewis was attracted by the cries of children, "O, look at the big fish." He plunged into the water and made a grab, but got a poor hold and the fish escaped. The shark returned to the attack and Lewis gripped it by the tail and dragged it ashore.

On leaving a Kansas City store, a salesman found this notice attached to his windshield: "Thanks for the grips. Don't like to steal, but am out of work and must feed the kiddies. An Honest Thief." Feeling very melancholy about the whole affair, the salesman was about to make a routine report to the police when the proprietor of the store let him in on the joke and confessed to taking the grips himself. "That will teach you to close the windows of your car when you leave it," the proprietor said in a reproving manner. And it has done so.

MISSING HERBERT HARDY WANTED FOR OAKLAND THEFT, NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 18.—A warrant for the arrest of Herbert Hardy, [illegible] Poquonoc road, Groton, employed until Sunday last by the Thompson Motor Co., of Bank street, was issued today by Prosecuting Attorney Max Boyer, charging Hardy with automobile theft. Hardy cannot be found for a thorough search, which it was hoped by the police would result in his hiding place being revealed, has failed and the detective bureau is entirely without clues as to where the young man is under cover, probably with friends. He has not been at his home, for the house was entered by the police Sunday afternoon. His wife is absent; with her baby of but a few months she is visiting relatives in Chelsea, Mass. Hardy is probably under the care of a physician, for he is known to have sustained severe lacerations through the partial wrecking of the car which he stole Saturday night, but he received his first aid treatment outside of the city. Notwithstanding that fact, the injuries Hardy sustained must have demanded additional medical attendance. However, if a physician is treating Hardy the identity of the former is not known to the police. Hardy, it is believed, is secreted in one of the many rooming houses in the vicinity of Huntington, Tilley, Washington and Brewer streets.

It has been ascertained by the detective bureau that Hardy, who stole a new Oakland car, owned by Frank Miller, of Waterbury, from the Thompson Motor Co.'s garage late Saturday night, sustained his injuries when the auto plunged through a fence at Branford. The state police at the Westbrook barracks caused Hardy to be provided with medical aid, and although he was in charge of officers an hour and a half, it was not revealed that the driver was using a stolen auto. After being released by the officers of the Westbrook barracks, the auto was driven to this city and abandoned on Washington street, where it was found Sunday forenoon by the police. Hardy's vest, a mass of blood, was in the auto, the quantity of blood on the garment indicating the seriousness of the owner's wounds.

At the office of the health department in the municipal building today, four new cases of chickenpox were reported. The patients are Isabel Hogan, 6, of 24 Cutler street; Robert Morris, 4, 23 Henry street, and Raymond and James Murphy, 5 and 3, respectively, of 23 New street.

Truck Drivers Raced

Walter Slivinski, of Guilford, and Charles Parke, Poquonoc Bridge, were in the police court this morning, charged with reckless driving. Each was fined $25 and costs. Slivinski and Parke, who are drivers of the Universal type of truck used in hauling automobiles from New York to Boston, were arrested by State Police Officer John Smith on Bank street last Saturday when the drivers raced their trucks.

A. Graham Creighton, architect, has brought suit for $378.06 against Antonio Bonnaci, of West Hartford, for services performed. Property of the defendant on Stuart avenue, Ocean Beach, has been attached.

Thomas F. Moran has instituted a suit for damages of $450 against Catherine Williams and property of the defendant has been attached. The plaintiff claims that he has furnished building material and labor to the defendant and that the latter refuses to make payment.

Frank Pepe has brought suit against Lena Grillo, claiming $400 damages.

Claude V. Kenyon has brought suit against the estate of Joseph Hardwick and the Scott Realty company, claiming damages in the aggregate of $895.74. Property owned by the defendants at 325 Pequot avenue has been attached. All of the suits are returnable before the next term of the court of common pleas.

Mrs. Theodore Risch and infant son, of 183 Norwood avenue, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

The fire department responded to two still alarms yesterday and today. A mass of soot in a chimney of the residence of John Enos, 272 Bayonet street, became ignited yesterday afternoon and Thomas Hose company went to the threatened building. The fire was extinguished with chemicals. This morning an automobile owned by James F. O'Leary became ablaze on Montauk avenue. [illegible] Hose company and Allen Hose and Ladder company, were dispatched to the burning auto, the fire being subdued with the application of foamite. The auto was not seriously damaged.

Found Man in Room

Philip Phenston, United States coast guard pugilist, reported to the police this afternoon that he discovered an intrduer in his room about 1 o'clock this morning. Phenston said that he was awakened by a man climbing through the window at 2 Fay street, where he is a lodger in the residence of Mrs. May Oddo Gammons. When the fellow had entered the room, Phenston grappled with him and soon found that the stranger had been drinking. He was led to the door and ejected. Phenston said that he delayed notifying the police of the visit of the stranger until today because the telephone in the house is in the apartment occupied by Mrs. Gammons.

AUCTIONEER GOLDSMITH REARRESTED TUESDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov 18—John Goldsmith, 26 Astral avenue, Providence, was charged in the police court this morning with violation of the state statutes providing that an auctioneer must obtain a license and deposit $500 at the office of the state treasurer before engaging in the public sale of real estate or articles of merchandise. Goldsmith was not in court and his bond of $500 was declared forfeited. Sol Ockooneff, State street jeweler and who is retiring from business, was surety on the bond. Goldsmith was rearrested by Detective Sergeant John Cavanaugh and he was held for trial in bail of $1,500 in the police court tomorrow, Attorney Harry Gruskin becoming surety on the bond. It is understood that Goldsmith will also be presented on a much more serious charge than violation of the auctioneer law when the case comes to trial and witnesses have been summoned to testify in the case, including an employe of the state treasurer's office.

Goldsmith and Joseph Gordon, the latter a Providence auctioneer, have been engaged about 10 days disposing by auction of the stock of Mr. Ockooneff. Gordon possesses a license, but Goldsmith does not. The latter has daily acted as relief auctioneer and has offered and sold many articles from the Ockooneff stock. Recently it became known to the authorities that Goldsmith did not hold an auctioneer's license and when he continued to offer goods for sale, a warrant for his arrest was issued by Prosecuting Attorney Max Boyer and it was served on the auctioneer yesterday. Goldsmith in explaining his reason for failing to appear in court today, said he had been advised by his attorney, G. Curtis Morgan to remain away from court until tomorrow. It is understood that the arrest of Goldsmith was upon complaint of other jewelers doing business on State street.

Steamers Still Aground

Fishing trawler Petrel, owned by the Portland Trawling company, which boat has been making New London her home port for several months, is still hard aground on Block Island. The collier Harry Bowen, laden with coal and en route from Norfolk, Va., to Boston, is still ashore off Montauk Point. Both steamers went aground during a dense fog early Monday. Neither steamer is in danger of breaking up. Today officials representing the owners of the trawler, went to Block Island and viewed the position of the trawler with a view to causing salvage operations to be started. The boat is loaded with 60,000 pounds of fish, which will be brought to the plant of the Atlantic Coast Fisheries, Groton. The crew of the Petrel was taken aboard coast guard destroyer Wilkes yesterday and brought into port. The crew of the Bowen remains on the collier, excepting the mate, who was taken off in a breeches buoy yesterday. The wrecker Willet of the Merritt-Chapman-Scott Wrecking company, which went from this port yesterday, is working on the collier and today the task of removing 1,000 tons of coal from the collier was started. When this has been done an attempt will be made to float the collier.

Mrs. Charles Renzoni and infant son of 87 Smith street; Charles White, 9 Hempstead street and Richard Newton, Westerly, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

Patrolman Henry Sylvia resumed duty last night, having spent his annual vacation of two weeks with relatives in Birmingham, Ala.

OBITUARY

John La Rocca

John La Rocca, 51, died last night at his residence, 79 Woodbridge street, where he had long been ill. He is survived by his wife, a daughter, Miss Angelina La Rocca; two sons, John and Frank La Rocca, all of this city; a brother, Francis La Rocca, Brooklyn, N. Y., and a sister, Miss Anna La Rocca, who is a resident of Italy. Mr. La Rocca, who was born in Italy, had resided in this city many years.

FORBES IS FINED $100— JPOSEPH SOBA GOES FREE

Joseph Soba, 7 Division street, Groton and his brother-in-law, Donald C. Forbes, of Allen street, Mystic, were in the Stonington town court today charged with violation of the liquor law. Soba was found not guilty, but Forbes was fined $100 and costs. The residence of Forbes was raided by State Police Officer Arthur Whitmarsh Saturday, and a quantity of homemade liquor was found and seized. Forbes and Soba were arrested. Soba, it was claimed, was in the act of manufacturing liquor, but the evidence introduced in court was not sufficient to substantiate the allegation and he was discharged.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today ordered the suspension of the drivers' licenses of Ole P. Jensen, of 80 Lower Boulevard and Andrew Trione, 637 Bank street. The automobile Jensen was driving a week ago in Milford hit and fatally injured a pedestrian.

WALTER ROBINSON, FRAUD, BROUGHT FROM PATERSON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 18.— Walter Robinson, of Stonington, charged on several counts of passing worthless checks and who was arrested in Paterson, N. J., several days ago at the request of the state police of Groton barracks, was returned to New London tonight and is a prisoner at police headquarters. Robinson is facing a state's prison sentence for the specific complaints charge him with negotiating fraudulent paper in Preston, Norwich, East Hartford and Stonington. After obtaining the cash of the checks that he issued and which ultimately were proven worthless, Robinson vanished, but was traced to Paterson. His arrest in that city resulted in extradition papers being necessary in order to bring about his return to the cities and towns where he passed the worthless checks. This was done and during the day Officer W. Elmer MacKenzie went to Paterson and took charge of the prisoner.

Lightest Railroad Traffic Ever

The New Haven railroad is experiencing lighter passenger traffic that at any time within many months. Excepting when a holiday occurs the trains are cut down in cars to a minimum. Today some of the westbound express trains did not haul more than seven cars, including a dining car, a condition never before known in the history of the railroad.

Getting Rid Of Leaves

A force of city employes is engaged daily making a tour of the streets and collecting the vast accumulation of leaves constantly falling from trees, clogging gutters and drain pipes. It is the intention of the highway department to get rid of the leaves before cold weather sets in.

Michael Sutera, 335 Huntington street, reported to the police tonight that last night while his automobile was parked in front of his home, thieves went to it and stole a spare balloon tire, tube and rim. The car was a Chevrolet.

Charles Parmelee, of Groton, one of the public service operators, who maintains a stand at the Union station, was arrested this afternoon by Patrolman Cornelius Moriarty, charged with breach of the peace. He was released upon furnishing a bond of $50 for his appearance in the police court tomorrow morning. Parmelee had two fishermen, employed at the Atlantic Coast fisheries, in his cab and when they were driven to the home of Thomas Dougherty, on Golden street, a row was precipitated, for the fishermen had been drinking. During the brawl, Parmelee became involved in the controversy and when Dougherty made the complaint against Parmelee he was arrested.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

A double feature bill of unusual merit is now playing at the Palace theatre starting today and running through Friday. The Sea God, starring Richard Arlen and Fay Wray, is a fast moving tale of the head hunters of the South Seas, where the fate of the white men depend on their wits. Arlen, South Sea adventurer, and Glecker, are unscrupulous rivals. Arlen and Fay Wray have been in love, but have had a misunderstanding and the girl stranded by the death of her father, is forced to promise marriage to Glecker to get a job in his general store on the island. Arlen is enraged at this and gambles with Glecker and loses only to bet his ship and cargo on the outcome of a race. He loses when he rescues a human derelict from the seas, and pays with his ship to Glecker. The rescued man in his gratitude gives Arlen a handful of perfect pearls and tells him of an island not far where there are many and larger pearls. What they go through to get these pearls and winning back the girl he has always loved goes to make up one of the most romantic and exciting tales of the land of strange people and stranger gods. Arlen is supported by Fay Wray, Robert Glecker, Bob Perry and Fred Wallace.

Co-featured on this unusual bill is Extravagance, a story that every woman, mother or wife should see. It unfolds a strange story of the primitive instinct of every woman, to have things that will adorn her body, no matter from who or how she gets them.

Extravagance is drama and can be taken as seriously or as lightly as you please, for it is treated in the modern vein of sophistication and gaiety so that if you don't want to swallow a moral you can find it just amusing entertainment.

This wonderful picture is full of beautiful ladies, beautiful clothes and beautiful sets. Lloyd Hughes plays the leading male role and is featured with June Collyer and Owen Moore.

A story with plenty of heart throbs. A tense, gripping drama lightened by bright comedy touches, intensified by startling tragedy, gladdened by delightful romance.

Broadway Theatre

If you are inclined to shed tears when you laugh, take a bath towel with you when you go to see Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey in Radio Pictures' war-time comedy, "Half Shot at Sunrise," opening today a three days' engagement at Warner's Broadway theatre. It is funnier than "The Cuckoos."

Wheeler and Woolsey, cast as doughboys, go A. W. O. L. in Paris and raise . . . well . . . everything but the dead.

They impersonate officers . . . pose as heroes . . . elope with their colonel's daughter . . . steal his car . . . pull down the wrath of the whole army on their necks . . . make M.P.'s wonder about themselves in connection with the Darwin theory . . . and emerge HEROES!

The cast includes Hugh Trevor and Dorothy Lee, who also scored in "The Cuckoos"; Edna May Oliver, the Parthy Ann Hawks of "Showboat"; Roberta Robinson, "Cinderella Girl" of the movies; George MacFarlane, John Rutherford, and the famous Tiller Sunshine girls, who do two unusual novelty numbers.

Minnesota farmers realized a gross cash income from sales of agricultural products of $384,665,250 in 1929.

Has Balance of Power

No senator in history has occupied so powerful a position as Hendrik Shipstead of Minnesota, Farmer-Labor senator. He holds the balance of power and can either throw his vote to the party which holds 48 votes, enabling it to organize the senate, or, cast it for the minority, thereby precipitating a puzzling situation. He always has been independent, casting his vote with Democrats as frequently as Republicans.

ACID CONDITION
the common cause of pain and discomfort after eating - -

GET RID of your dread of pain after eating. Eat without fear of "indigestion," sour stomach, disagreeable gas or headaches.

When your food ferments, "disagrees," lies like a lump in your stomach, it's a sign of too much acid. You need not resort to crude methods—take instead an anti-acid that will correct the condition. Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

A spoonful of this pleasant-tasting, soothing fluid neutralizes many times its volume of acid. It restores the proper alkaline balance to an acid-soaked stomach and bowels—assists these organs to function as they should.

Phillips' Milk of Magnesia is what you need when a bad breath, coated tongue, headaches, nausea or biliousness indicates an over-acid condition. Take a spoonful today and for several days and see how it sweetens the system. You won't be nearly so liable to colds or sickness. All drugstores—in 25c and 50c bottles.

GIRLS FRIENDLY ANNUAL MEETING HELD MONDAY

The Girls' Friendly society of St. Andrew's church held their annual meeting at the home of Miss Elsie Risley on Prospect street Monday evening with a large attendance. The meeting was opened by the president and minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary. The girls enjoyed two short and interesting stories read by Miss Edna Wallace, a member of the society. Plans were made to have a social time next Monday evening in the parish hall. After the meeting games were played and refreshments were served.

Mrs. Z. Cote has returned to her home on Central avenue after attending the funeral of her father, Adolphus Rail, which was held Monday morning from the home of his son, Frederick A. Rail, 185 Jackson street, Willimantic. Burial took place in a family lot in St. Mary's cemetery at Jewett City where Rev. Fr. Mathieu conducted the committal service.

The Greeneville H. club met Monday evening in the club rooms on Fourth street. Regular business was transacted with President Wallace Atterbury presiding. Following the business meeting a social hour was enjoyed.

The Gilmore Heavies football team defeated the Boswell Avenue Stars Tuesday afternoon on the Palmer Rogers diamond by the score of 24 to 18. The features of the game were the fine tackling of Tefft and the long gains made by the clever running of Michael Blackie for the winners. The line-up for the Gilmore team was as follows: Joseph Quinn, le; R. McNeil, lt; Edward Breen, lg; Edward Quinn, c; G. Tefft, re; Ouillet, rt; James Kelly, rg; John Martnecki, lhb; Michael Blackie, rhb; L. Wieland, fb.

Edward Riordan has accepted a position with the Economy store.

Storing Thanksgiving Barrels

As has been the custom in Greeneville for a long period of years the boys in this vicinity have been storing away barrels for the past two months for their annual Thanksgiving night bonfire. Some of the barrel gangs report that they have as many as 200 barrels which they string on poles for their night of pleasure. With the holiday a week away the boys will be on the alert so that their rival gangs will not raid them.

The Greeneville T. D. sewing circle met at the home of Miss Sadie Ahearn of Smith avenue Tuesday evening with a large class attending. The first part of the evening was devoted to sewing of fancy articles and lampshading. A social hour was enjoyed with piano and vocal selections rendered. Refreshments were served by the hostess which consisted of assorted sandwiches, cakes, cookies and coffee.

C. E. Meeting Has 39 Present

Thirty-nine were present at the regular Christian Endeavor meeting held Sunday evening at the Third Baptist church. The topic was Stewardship and Miss Dorothy Conckiin conducted the opening portion of the meeting. The pastor had charge of the remainder of the meeting, giving a very interesting message on the subject. A piano solo was rendered by Winnie Hayden, after which the benediction was pronounced. Several of the members of the society attended the address given by Dr. Jefferson at the United church.

The St. Andrew's Dramatic club has commenced rehearsals for their coming play, Safety First. Those taking part in the play are: John McNeil, William Hayden, Raymond Evans, Frederick Johnson, Arthur Fitch, Ruth McKinley, Elizabeth Hayden, Mae Adams, Edna Wallace and Viola Shaw. The cast is under the direction of Mrs. Fred Lathrop.

BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION HELD AT JOHNSON HOME

The Johnson Home family made merry Monday evening when the matron, Mrs. Madeline Martin, R. N., arranged a surprise birthday supper for Mrs. Elmina Hunt, who also received many gifts and a shower of post cards. The tables in the large dining room were decorated and on each table were lighted red candles, in candle sticks. A huge birthday cake on which were numerous smaller candles lighted, adorned the table. Mrs. Hunt and other members of the home family numbering sixteen enjoyed a special supper of several kinds of sandwiches and cake, as a special gift ice cream provided by Mrs. Charles C. Treat expressly in observance of Mrs. Hunt's birthday and for the enjoyment of the entire family.

Three automobile parties of Norwich Town residents and friends, thirteen in all, attended the meeting of Shore Line club No. 6, (Social Corner) held Tuesday at the First Baptist church, Westerly. A bountiful dinner was served at noon. A brief Thanksgiving programme was carried out during the social period following the dinner.

Miss Gertrude Hyde, professor of art at Mt. Holyoke college, has returned to South Hadley, Mass., having spent a brief time recently, with her sisters, the Misses Hyde of Washington street.

JUBILEE SINGERS PLEASE LOCAL AUDIENCE

Sunday night in the Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church in spite of the very stormy weather a congregation of over 150 gathered to hear the Norwich Jubilee Singers. The pastor, Rev. George Warren Potter, had charge of the service and in introducing the singers explained that the quartet was made up of men from the two Negro churches in the city. Several of the singers had appeared before in the church during the past two years. Rev. Wilfred M. Wilton, pastor of the First Congregational church of Norwich offered the opening prayer. In the absence of the regular organist, Mrs. Lewis E. Aldrich, the organ was played by Doris Rose. The quartet under the direction of Robert Johnson sang without accompaniment many songs, among the latter "The Chariot Is A-Coming," "Steal Away" and "Nobody Knows the Trouble I've Seen." Mrs. Florence Auten Whitted, a talented reader, gave a number of excellent readings.

At the Sunday morning service the pastor spoke on the theme "Where Can We Go," taking for a text St. John 6:68 "To Whom Shall We go." The vested choir sang as an anthem "The Love That Gave Jesus to Die."

Inez Edmiston's class in the Church school had charge of the opening exercises.

One of the most impressive and helpful talks heard in a C. E. meeting was given by Florence M. Bennett on the subject, "Jesus An Example of Stewardship."

Peggy Chidsey and Carl A. Anderson of Middletown were dinner guests at the Methodist parsonage Sunday. Mr. Anderson was an officer of the Portland Epworth league during the pastorate of Rev. Mr. Potter.

The Wolf Cub pack connected with the Methodist Episcopal church held a meeting Saturday morning. In the line of their interest in Indian work the pack voted to conduct a totem pole contest. Assistant Cubmaster Edward Jordan led in a song period, using the Boy Scout song books. The cubs voted to buy a supply of books for their own use.

At a meeting of John Mason Troop 2, Boy Scouts, held Friday evening the Wolf patrol, under direction of Leon Ladd scored the highest number of points. The standing of the patrols is as follows: Flying Eagle 420, Wolf 314, Stag 419. The scouts will meet at the church Friday evening at 8 in charge of Assistant Scoutmaster Lewis E. Aldrich.

The Norwich Town group of New London County Home and Farm bureau will hold a meeting Wednesday afternoon with the leader, Mrs. Arthur Fulton of Huntington avenue. Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Miss McDonald will be the demonstrator, subject: "Your Families' Health in Dollars and Cents." The meeting at first planned to be held with Miss Florence Browning of Plain Hill, was cancelled owing to illness in the Browning home.

The November meeting of Lucas Home Missionary society, Mrs. William Weaver president, will be held Thursday afternoon in the vestry of Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church. This also is to be a thank offering meeting with a programme. The mite boxes are expected to be turned in at this meeting which is scheduled for 3 o'clock. There will be a social hour meeting with refreshments.

Norwich Town relatives were saddened Monday morning to learn of the death of Edward Lillibridge of Naugatuck, which occurred Sunday night following critical illness of one week. Mrs. Lillibridge who was a brother-in-law of Mrs. Benjamin L. Kennedy, with his wife and son, Cleighton Lillibridge, have visited their relatives in Norwich Town on several occasions.

Mrs Lillibridge's sister, Mrs. Kennedy and another sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Dwyer of Webster, motored to Naugatuck Tuesday to attend the funeral services at the Episcopal church.

At Baptist Service

Attending the supper at the Central Baptist church Monday evening at 6:30, when there was a large assemblage of clergymen, officers and teachers of various church schools of Norwich, were seventeen from the First Congregational church. The pastor, Rev. Wilfrid M. Wilton, Mrs. Wilton and daughters, Misses Alma and May Wilton, also Dwight W. Avery and Miss Elizabeth Avery, Henry T. Frazier, Miss Jessie E. Hyde, Arthur Avery, Miss Louise Avery, Ralph H. Marsh and Misses Rose Durr, Elaine Barrett, Doris Seagraves and Louise Sterry, also Mrs. John L. Browning and Mrs. Charles Barber. From Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church were the pastor, Rev. George Warren Potter and Mrs. Richard Carter, making a total of nineteen from Norwich Town.

OVER 500 VISIT NEW COUNTY HOME BUILDINGS FOR PUBLIC INSPECTION

New London county people and visitors from other parts of the state were present in large numbers Tuesday afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock for the public inspection of the new county home buildings on Laurel Hill road, Military highway, and rendered a unanimous opinion of approval and praise for the provision which the county is making through there fine buildings for the care of dependent children. The registration of visitors at the reception numbered 561.

A reception committee met the visitors and members of the local staff of the state bureau of child welfare were present to show the different departments to the visitors. On the reception committee were the two county commissioners, Frederick A. Beckwith of East Lyme, Charles H. Smith of Noank, and Sheriff George H. Bradford, a former county commissioner, Dr. Eveline Dickinson, superintendent of the county home; Miss Grace Houghton of Hartford, deputy commissioner of the child welfare of the state department, and Mrs. Frank A. Mitchell of this city, a member of the state department of public welfare.

Those from the local office of the state bureau of child welfare, who served as guides, were Miss Irma Hutzler, supervisor; Mrs. Nancy Kromer, Miss Esther P. Hill, Miss Constance Raymond, Mrs. Julia Crandall and Mrs. Emma C. Bixby.

The fine situation of the three county home buildings with their splendid outlook over the Thames river was commented upon by all the visitors, but it was the interior arrangement of the buildings which drew their particular attention.

Entering the front entrance of the main building, which is in the center, the large living room for the staff is on the left of the main hall, with a sewing room adjacent to it. On the right of the entrance is the office, with a smaller private office connecting with it and a kindergarten playroom next to it, all these being in the front of the building. In the north diagonal wing, which is for the boys, is the large recreation room, with a sun porch along the rear. Connecting with the recreation room is a reading room at the front of the building, and also a toy closet. The same arrangement is carried out in the south diagonal wing, which is for the girls. In the wing back of the main hallway are the dining room and kitchen, with a smaller dining room for the staff between. In the kitchen equipment are an electric range, rustless metal sink and two Frigidaires.

Upstairs in the main building is a suite of three rooms for the superintendent, these being over the front entrance. The two diagonal wings are the dormitories, similar in arrangement in each wing. These include separate dormitory rooms for the older and younger children, a matron's sleeping room, with bath room, and toilets for the children. There are separate lockers for each child, and there is also a sun porch at the rear.

In the middle wing upstairs, over the dining room and kitchen, are eight sleeping rooms and the upper floor of the building is used for storage. In the cellar floor are the laundry and heating plant and rooms for other uses. The heating is by steam with oil burners under the two boilers.

In the school building, which is to the south of the main building and connected to it by a covered corridor, are the primary room, Mrs. Fern Savage teacher, intermediate room, Mrs. Hazel Murray teacher, and senior room, Mrs. E. L. Preston teacher. Mrs. Preston had a fine display of woodwork and clay work by the senior boys. At one end of the primary room is a low platform and folding doors are so arranged that this part of the room can be joined with the school room for assembly purposes. From the corridor there are exits to the playground.

In the two-story isolation cottage, which is north of the main building, there are eight rooms. The main floor consists of a parlor and two sitting rooms and a kitchen, while upstairs there are a matron's room, matron's guest room, and two bed rooms, one for boys and one for girls, each containing three beds. The bath room and toilet is between the two bed rooms and so arranged that it can be shut off, one side from the other.

In all the buildings the wall finishes are in light, soft tones, and the woodwork and doors contribute to the pleasing effect. In the main building, most of the doors are of birch, but some of hollow metal. All door frames are of metal and the woodwork is white pine. In the school building the doors are of oak and the woodwork trim is also of oak, while the same wood is used in the cottage.

Plans for the buildings and general supervision under construction were by Chandler & Palmer, the general contract was by O. & S. Lavigne of Providence, the heating and plumbing by Harold C. Dahl of this city and the electrical fixtures by Whitall Electric Co. of Westerly.

Following the general inspection a luncheon was served in the south dining room to a small gathering of persons who have been directely interested in the welfare of the county home. They were: Messrs. Bradford, Beckwith and Smith, Judge Nelson J. Ayling, Judge Arthur F. Libby, S. B. Palmer, Dr. C. C. Gildersleeve, Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, Dr. Elijah S. Burdsall, Dr. Hugh B. Campbell and Mrs. Frank A. Mitchell.

During the inspection hours, sandwiches, cake and coffee were served in the dining room.

COLDS
Break Up in a Jiffy
This Quick Way

Feel Like A New Man Almost Before You Know It

People have found out that newfangled ideas and notions don't break up colds. So millions have turned back to first principles and use what they know breaks one up in a jiffy. Even a "little" cold is too dangerous to trifle with.

The thing to do is to get Hill's Cascara Quinine at any drug store. Take two tablets now. Then follow directions on box. Drink lots of water, too—that's all.

Soon you'll start to feel like a new person. Things will loosen up, your head will clear; aching go—you'll be back on the job with a wallop.

Get Hill's now. It is a scientific formula made to do one thing well: to knock a cold—not to cure a thousand ailments. Get your money back if it doesn't work with twice the speed of anything else you've ever tried.

TAFTVILLE

CONG. MEN'S CLUB HEARS LECTURE ON BYRD EXPEDITION

Members of the Men's club of the Taftville Congregational church and their friends enjoyed a most interesting lecture by John L. Reinartz of South Manchester, radio operator for the Byrd North pole expedition of 1925, in the vestry of the church Monday evening. John Greene, president of the club, opened the meeting and acted as song leader, while the members of the club rose and sang one verse of America, followed by popular airs. Mr. Greene then introduced the speaker, who gave a most entertaining talk illustrated by stereopticon pictures taken by himself in the far north. The machine was operated by Jean Kieffer, who being a wireless enthusiast himself had been in contact with Mr. Reinartz while he was far north of Greenland with the expedition led by Commander Byrd in an attempt to reach the North pole.

The speaker described how the expedition got within 536 miles of the pole, and gave a short outline of the history of wireless and, later, radio. He told of reading of the experiments of Marconi while still in school, and how he made his first wireless set, doing odd jobs for a neighboring blacksmith, in return for which the blacksmith made him parts for his transmitting and receiving set. Other boys in the neighborhood had become interested in wireless and they were able to send messages to one another. Later some of these same amateurs transmitted messages to the Pacific coast and to Europe. Mr. Reinartz spoke of the international radio congress which is to be held at The Hague, Holland, in 1932, and advised fathers to help get their boys interested in radio. He predicted that in the not distant future, up-to-date churches will have their radio rooms where the youngsters of the parish could gather and make contact with peoples in other parts of the globe. It is a wonderful thing to have a hobby like that, he said.

In a humorous way the lecturer told of how hard it was for him to get his wife to consent to allow him to go with the North pole expedition. He had to buy her a new coupe, a hat and a couple of gowns, but when she consented she went to Washington and had a conference with those who were planning the trip. The navy department was interested but would not allow navy personnel to accompany Byrd unless they were assured that there would be constant contact with the department at Washington all the time they were away. This was agreed upon. Mr. Reinartz was taken as the radio operator and the expedition set out in two boats, the Peary and the Bowdoin.

At this point in his lecture, Mr. Reinartz showed some fine pictures of the Dr. Grenfell mission in Labrador, and told of the wonderful work it is doing in that bleak and isolated country. The inhabitants are all sea-faring, God-fearing people, he said, and while they are obliged to live in one room and suffer untold hardships, they are clean and well mannered. The church is the center of their community life and they all refuse to do a stroke of work on Sunday.

Pictures were shown of towns and villages along the Greenland coast. In this country the Danes have settled and they are fast pushing out the Eskimos, which is the fate of all native peoples when the white man comes among them. For an interpreter, the expedition had a Labrador Eskimo, and although widely separated as these people are from the Greenland Eskimos, and although there has been no contact between them for hundreds of years, the language is exactly the same. It consists of only 200 phonetic words. Nights and days are six months long, so time means nothing to the Eskimo. They keep no calendar and no one knows his age. Their diet is almost entirely raw meat. It is necessary to eat it raw, as cooking would destroy the vitamins and scurvy would result.

Most interesting were the pictures of the enormous icebergs, and the glaciers which move toward the ocean at the rate of from one inch a year to a foot a day. There were some very good snaps of fjords and bays where the expedition took shelter from the ice. One picture showed the Bowdoin fast in the ice; another the Peary stranded on some rocks from which it was pushed by a large iceberg which floated against it. Several pictures were of Commander Byrd taking off and returning in his amphibian plane from a trip to establish a food supply base farther north. So changing was the ice and snow in the places selected as bases, that it was very treacherous landing territory and the attempt had to be abandoned and the expedition started for home.

After the slides were shown, Mr. Reinartz showed some interesting curios of the far north. These included a 50-foot sealskin line; a small model of a kyack, or native canoe, and a crossbow which was used to shoot darts in hunting for sea pigeons. Questions were asked by several members of the club which were replied to in an instructive manner by the speaker.

Upon conclusion of the talk, the members gave the speaker a vote of thanks, after which President Greene called the business meeting to order and Secretary-Treasurer Robert E. Cooper made his report. Clayton Sharples, chairman of the entertainment committee, reported that the minstrel show that the club is to give in connection with the annual church fair is showing great promise and progress. During the meeting, Mr. Reinartz presented the club a silk American flag which he had carried with him to 536 miles south of the North pole.

Ham sandwiches, cakes, cookies and coffee were served after the meeting had adjourned by Edwin Heap, Laughlin Houston, Albert Mathewson, Earl Mathewson, Clayton Sharples and Howard Kloss.

CENTENNIAL SERIES IN NORWICH BUILDING LOAN

At the monthly meeting of the board of management of the Norwich Building and Loan association, held on Tuesday evening in the chamber of commerce rooms, it was voted to open a new series of shares, the 32nd, in January. As January will mark the 100th anniversary of the organization of the first building and loan association in the United States this new series will be called the centennial series and President E. O. Rodier was empowered to appoint a committee to arrange for the opening of the series and for a suitable celebration of the anniversary.

On January 3rd, 1831, a group of men met in a back parlor of a house in Frankford, Philadelphia, laid a few hundred dollars on a table and thus formed the first building and loan association in America. Now there are over 12,000 of these associations in the United States with assets of over $8,000,000,000, about one half of which has been accumulated in the last five years. There are now 39 of these associations in Connecticut with assets of over $29,000,000.

THERMOS LEADS FIELD IN CITY PINOCHLE LEAGUE

As a result of wins over their nearest rivals, the Duwells, and the Eagles, by large margins, the Thermos took a firmer hold of first place in the standing of the City Pinochle league, which met Tuesday evening with the Duwells acting as hosts. The Thermos is now leading the league with seven wins and one defeat to their credit, followed by the Duwells and West Ends in second position with 5 victories and three defeats. The Italian club will entertain the team members next week.

The results of Tuesday night's play follow: First half. Thermos, 28,740 vs. Duwells, 26,290; Eagles, 29,870 vs. Icy Hots, 24,020; West End, 25,960 vs. Italian club, 25,170; Swedish club, 28,730 vs. Lafayette club, 26,260. Second half. Thermos, 29,740 vs. Eagles 22,335; Duwells, 27,250 vs. Icy Hots, 27,110; Lafayette club, 26,620 vs. West End Independents, 26,740; Swedish lodge, 26,780 vs. Italian club, 25,240.

The league standing to date:

	W.	L.
Thermos	7	1
Duwells	5	3
West End Ind.	5	3
Eagles	4	4
Lafayette	3	5
Icy Hots	3	5
Italians	3	5
Swedish lodge	2	6

STORRS HENS START AT SPEEDY PACE

The pullets in the laying contest at Storrs are striking their stride pretty promptly as evidenced by the fact that in the second lap they laid nearly 1,000 eggs more than in the opening week. They are still a bit under the performance of last year in spite of their easy pick-up and quick get-away.

During the second week the total production for all pens was 3,949 or a yield of 56.4 per cent. These eggs scored 3,473 points, which means that the week's output of eggs from 1,000 birds was equivalent to 3,473 eggs, every one of which averages to weigh 24 ounces to the dozen.

The leading pens to date in each of the principal varieties are as follows:

White Wyandottes—Ebenwood Fm., W. Bridgewater, Mass., 69; The Locusts, West Cornwall, Conn., 54.

White Rocks—Davidson Bros., Upton, Mass., 104; Kalerok Farm, Westford, Mass., 100; E. A. Hirt, So. Weymouth, Mass., 90.

Barred Rocks—James Dryden, Modesto, Cal., 112; Lewis Farms, Davisville, R. I., 97; Spg. Bk. P. Fm., So. Wethersfield, Conn., 102.

Rhode Island Reds—Donald I. Goodenough, Torrington, Conn., 124; Harold G. Colt, West Hartford, Conn., 117; Norman W. Amidon, Abington, Conn., 120; Globus P. Farm, Attleboro, Mass., 118.

White Leghorns—Mt. Hope Farm, Williamstown, Mass., 120; Alfred J. O'Donovan, Katonah, N. Y., 111; A. E. Anthony & Son, Mansfield Center, Conn., 103; J. A. Hanson, Corvallis, Ore., 104; St. John's P. Farm, Oronogo, Mo., 101.

Motored Through New England

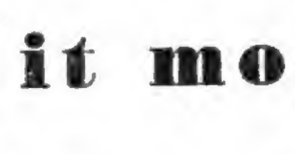
Mrs. E. B. Clark and youngest daughter, Miss Doris A., of Saybrook, have just returned from a ten days' trip through the New England states as far as the Canadian border, stopping a few days with friends in Keene, N. H., on their way. Miss Clark is head clerk in a Saybrook drug store and was on her vacation.

GAYE KITCHEN SHOWER FOR MISS VICTORIA BALCZUN

At the home of Mrs. Vincent Perkowsky, Jr., 58 Sunnyside avenue, Yantic, Saturday evening, a kitchen shower was tendered Miss Victoria Balczun in honor of her marriage to Walter Rec, of West Warren, Mass., now of Taftville, which is to take place on Thanksgiving day.

During the evening, Mrs. Perkowsky served refreshments, assisted by Mrs. Cimikowski, consisting of sandwiches, olives, cake, hot chocolate, fruit and candy. Games were played and music was furnished by radio for dancing. The bride-to-be was the recipient of many useful gifts, including kitchen utensils, crockery, pyrex, and a 50-piece china dinner set.

Those present were: Mrs. Mary Dow, Mrs. Georgianna Gilman, Mrs. Barbara Friese, Mrs. Josephine Dumais, Mrs. Blanche Cimikowski, the Misses Fannie, Blanche and Catherine Salkowski, and the Misses Lalia Allaire, Barbara Friese, Anna Carroll, Anna Rec, Lena Rutkowski, Helen Salkowski, Victoria, Sophia and Helen Balczun and Mrs. Vincent Perkowsky, Jr.



HOT WATER ...and PLENTY when you need it most

Children and grown-ups need hot baths to offset exposure to wind or snow. And why not avoid chapped skin, the cranky shave (or shaver)?

But remember with summer gone, most people are more indoors than out... they wear more clothes. The skin is less exposed to the air... it breathes less. And you who find health worth keeping... or beauty worth the getting... will bathe as often or more than before.

There are a thousand personal and family needs... kitchen, laundry, nursery... only served with hot water and plenty.

Have YOU enough in YOUR home? Don't put up with make-shifts. Gas automatically supplies hot water easiest. Ask your own gas company how little it costs. Convenient terms of course.

CREW RESCUED FROM SHIP SINKING OFF GRAND BANKS

One Woman and 27 Men Were Taken Aboard the Liner Mauretania—535 Men and Women Were Rescued From Vessel Fast on Rocks Off the Coast of Portugal—Five Seamen Were Drowned in Collision of Ships During Storm in Antwerp Roads

S. S. MAURETANIA, Nov. 19.—(AP)—A thrilling triple dash to rescue a sinking vessel in the Atlantic culminated at noon today with the transfer of 28 persons from the sinking Swedish freighter Ovidia to the famous dowager queen of the Atlantic, the liner Mauretania.

At 2:30 this morning Atlantic shipping was startled by a dramatic SOS call from the Ovidia, some 400 miles south by southeast of Cape Race, saying the freighter was leaking in the forward hold and in a sinking condition, with 28 persons aboard. These included one woman, Mrs. Carlsson, wife of the captain.

The Mauretania was 216 miles away but put on full speed through the heavy seas and sped to the rescue. At the same time two American vessels, the freighter Endicott and the liner America, also picked up the SOS and rushed to help.

But the speedy Mauretania ploughed through the waves and got there first. She found the Ovidia in a wild waste of tumbling waters, wallowing through waves that kept the decks awash. At times the freighter canted over with a tremendous list, tossing the cargo in her hold. Only the masts were visible as the heavy seas battered her. She lurched so her propellers stuck out of the water. Her engines were still working but she could make only one knot an hour.

The Mauretania circled around the little freighter four times; then was advised by Captain Carlsson he had decided to abandon ship. Even the dynamo furnishing current for the wireless equipment failed.

By this time the America had reached the scene but the persons aboard the distressed freighter decided to go to the Mauretania. First one lifeboat put off, then another. It seemed certain they would sink. Now and then they disappeared from view completely, as the hundreds of passengers lining the rail of the Mauretania cried "There's gone."

But the sturdy little boats would bob up again and finally, after strenuous efforts, the crew of the Ovidia clambered up rope ladders to safety amid the cheering shouts of passengers. Even the ship's cat was saved, brought aboard clasped in the arms of a sailor.

As the last view of the Ovidia showed the craft dipping deeper and near sinking entirely, Captain Carlsson remarked:

"Thank God we were on the track of the big liners. All last night the motion of our ship was uneasy. She was unlike herself and developed a very heavy list to starboard. We found water in No. 2 hold about midnight, and the heavy cargo of timber shifted so much that we decided to send out an SOS. Later, our prospects grew hopeless and we gave a great sigh of relief when the smoke of the Mauretania, with Captain MacNeill directing her, showed over the horizon."

Miss Viola Tree, a passenger on the Mauretania, immediately took charge of Mrs. Carlsson, who is a beautiful Swedish woman and was on her second voyage with her husband. Miss Tree outfitted Mrs. Carlsson with clothing.

The American freighter Endicott, third ship to steam up for the rescue, was not needed and resumed her course.

535 MEN AND WOMEN TAKEN OFF STRANDED STEAMER

LISBON, Portugal, Nov. 19.—(AP)—The proud ship Highland Hope stuck fast in the treacherous rocks not far from the village of Peniche tonight while the sea broke her to pieces, and 535 men and women taken off her just after dawn today were safe in hotels here.

She had lost her course in a heavy fog and at 5 o'clock this morning ran upon the rocks with a shock which shook the passengers out of their bunks. Lifeboats were lowered quickly, an SOS screamed through the morning and the officers and crew stood by until the last passenger was safely away.

Salvage boats tried to pull her off the rocks, but the task was hopeless in the fog and heavy seas, and was abandoned until the weather cleared.

FIVE SEAMEN DROWNED IN COLLISION OF STEAMERS

ANTWERP, Belgium, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Five seamen were drowned tonight in a collision of the British steamers Continental freighter and Hebble during a storm in Antwerp roads.

The Continental freighter sank.

The victims were members of the crew of the sunken ship, from which five others, including Captain Scott, were saved.

HIGHER WHEAT PRICES ON WINNIPEG GRAIN EXCHANGE

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 19.—(AP)—The efforts of bankers and western provincial leaders to restore wheat prices and to prevent recurrence of the present slump were reflected today in higher prices and greater confidence on the Winnipeg grain exchange.

The market opened strong and made a firm recovery from yesterday's sharp drop. Wheat held its early gains throughout the day to close 1 1-2 to 1 7-8 cents a bushel higher, with all futures except December above the 60-cent mark.

The premiers of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, the provinces of Canada's "Bread Basket," continued in Montreal their series of conferences with banking officials in search of aid for the western growers and sellers of wheat.

Premier Brownlee of Alberta answered with a ringing "no," the point blank question whether he expected the wheat pool to be broken by the present crisis.

A similarly reassuring statement came from A. J. MacPhail, president of the Canadian wheat pool, who recently returned to Ottawa from England.

PLACES INTRINSIC VALUE OF HISTORIC NECKLACE AT $75,000

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—(AP)—The diamond necklace which Napoleon presented to his empress when she bore him a son may have untold historical value, but it did not look like more than $75,000 worth to a federal customs man.

Archduke Leopold—who, his attorney said, might under other circumstances be heir to the Austrian throne—went on trial in criminal court today, charged with having connived in the sale of the necklace to a Fifth avenue jeweler against the wishes of its owner—his aunt, the Archduchess Maria Theresa, of Vienna.

John B. Kean, customs examiner, testified he appraised the necklace on its arrival in this country.

"As an historical antique," he said, "it might be worth $150,000. But its intrinsic value would be not more than $60,000 or $75,000.

HELD FOR ATTEMPT TO WRECK PASSENGER TRAIN

HAMMOND, Ind., Nov. 19.—(AP)—Stanley Socco, 28, of Chicago, was arrested here today after he is alleged to have attempted to wreck the "Michigan Flier," crack passenger train, en route from Chicago to Boston.

Shortly before the train passed through here, Al Holfin, a section foreman, came upon Socco strewing steel spikes along the rails. Socco was overpowered and the line was cleared of the obstructions in time to avert a possible wreck.

Socco, at the jail, displayed no emotion. Police said he apparently was demented.

ARRESTED FOR OPERATING AUTO UNDER INFLUENCE

NAUGATUCK, Nov. 19—(AP)—George A. Milson, Stratford, was arrested this evening on charges of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor and reckless driving after the Stratford man had been involved in an accident here with a car operated by Mrs. James Magner, Waterbury, wife of a police lieutenant.

HEAVY GOLD HOLDINGS BY UNITED STATES AND FRANCE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Gold holdings by the United States climbed to $4,550,000,000 during October with that month's increases bringing the total acquisition for the year to $140,000,000.

The federal reserve board in its monthly review of business and financial conditions, however, explained that the total holdings of this country still were $150,000,000 under the peak holdings reached in May, 1927.

The United States and France, the board said, controlled approximately 60 per cent of the world's supply of gold, their holdings being the largest held by any two countries since the World war.

The board found the gold holdings of the principal central banks and governments of the world had increased $470,000,000 during the last year as the result of new production and absorption into central reserves of gold previously held by commercial banks and individuals.

The United States, through the treasury and the Federal Reserve banks, holds $4,183,000,000, an increase of $160,000,000; France, $1,999,000,000, an increase of $422,000,000; and England, $782,000,000, an increase of $139,000,000. In the year Argentina lost $47,000,000 in gold, Brazil $108,000,000, Germany $12,000,000 and Japan $123,000,000, while Italy gained $6,000,000.

NATIONAL GRANGE FAVORS EXPORT DEBENTURE PLAN

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 19—(AP)—The National grange today by resolution went on record for an export debenture plan, for the deportation of aliens convicted of crime, and for establishment of an agricultural day.

By adoption of the report of its committee on agriculture, the grange also included in its policies a protest against destruction of trees along highways, approved establishment of freight rates to provide the greatest possible range for marketing live stock, and declared its support for efforts to bar dangerous alien insect and plant diseases.

This report also carried a clause opposing reclamation projects until such time as need is shown for more agricultural land.

MERIDEN MAN DROPPED DEAD IN DONCASTER, ENG.

MERIDEN, Nov. 19—(AP)—Stephen Hobson, of Meriden, who dropped dead in Doncaster, England, today, was about 65 years old, and a native of that country. He came to this country in 1900, and worked for the International Silver company until early this year, when he opened a silver repair shop of his own. He closed up his business about two months ago, and sailed for England for an indefinite stay. His widow several weeks ago left for Schenectady, N. Y., to visit with relatives.

COLLISION OF TRUCKS AT DEAD MAN'S CURVE

NEWTOWN, Nov. 19—(AP)—Jack Herwitz, of New Haven, and Stanley Gibson, of New Haven, are in Ct. Vincent's hospital, Bridgeport, with injuries sustained when trucks they were driving figured in a spectacular collision at Dead Man's curve in Botsford, this afternoon. The condition of neither is serious.

BORDEAUX, Grance, Nov. 19—(AP)—Departure of the German flying boat DO-X for Corunna, Spain, the next lap of its projected flight to New York, was tentatively set tonight for 8:30 a. m., tomorrow.

MEDELLIN, Colombia, Nov. 19—(AP)—Medical authorities tonight voiced definite hopes that 32 out of 34 children, who are ill as the result of being inoculated accidentally with diphtheria toxin instead of anti-toxin, will live.

LONDON, Nov. 19—(AP)—The Daily Express says that Idina, Countess of Erroll, will be married this week to Donald Halderman, an American who was educated at Eton college and served in the World war with the British Hussars.

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., Nov. 19—(AP)—Nicolai Ivanovich Bukharin, former leader of the right wing opposition in the communist party, today capitulated before the central committee of the organization, admitting his mistakes and condemning his previous activities against the party majority.

COLON, Canal Zone, Nov. 19—(AP)—Captain Roy W. Ammel plans to leave Anton airfield tomorrow morning, weather conditions permitting, on a non-stop flight to Chicago. Captain Ammel, who recently flew here from New York, flew to Panama late today and will leave for Anton early in the morning.

WATERBURY GROCER WAS KIDNAPED, BEATEN, ROBBED

WATERBURY, Nov. 19—(AP)—After a day of torture in which he was kidnaped, beaten and robbed and then left unconscious, John Vassello, 39, proprietor of a grocery store at 52 Clairmount avenue, this city, was found bleeding and helpless near his home late tonight. He had been missing since 7 o'clock this morning and a state-wide search had been started by police.

Vassello's clothing was cut into ribbons with a razor by two strange men whom, he said, forced him into his automobile when he went to his store this morning to open it for business.

According to information given police Vassello was driven to the woods near the W. H. Bristol company, at Platts Mills. There he was forced to get out. One of his assailants, he says, drew a razor and started to attack him. Throwing up his arms, he shielded his face but his arms bore many marks where the razor had cut through a heavy sweater he was wearing.

Vassello said they then pummelled him and finally one of them took out a blackjack and struck him on the head with it. When his family found him on the sidewalk a roll of bills containing $100 which he carried was missing and his clothes were in tatters.

Vassello says he doesn't remember the men taking the money from him and believes they did it after he was rendered unconscious by the blow on the head. He finally recovered consciousness and slowly made his way home.

GOOD PROGRESS MADE BY DISARMAMENT COMMISSION

GENEVA, Nov. 19—(AP)—The preparatory disarmament commission made good progress today, adopting a major part of the draft agreement for limiting the world's fleets.

Three articles approved today and one yesterday are parallel to the principles embodied in the Washington and London treaties. They provide a general global limitation of warship tonnage, additional limitation by classes of ships, right of transfer of a portion of the tonnage from one class or category to another and limitation of displacement and gun armaments of battleships.

Tomorrow the commission will take up aircraft carriers, which the Washington treaty limited to 27,000 tons, and details of naval limitation.

An effort by Maxim Litvinoff, chief Russian delegate, and supported halfheartedly by Japan, Great Britain and France, to limit capital ships to 10,000 tons and 12-inch cannon, met failure.

FACES LIFE IMPRISONMENT FOR SLAYING HIS MOTHER

HARRISON, Mich., Nov. 19—(AP)—Less than 24 hours after he had confessed that he had killed and robbed his mother, Albert Gruno, 21-year old farmer, tonight faced imprisonment for life at hard labor in Michigan branch prison at Marquette.

Mrs. Pauline Gruno, 65, his mother, was found shot to death in her farm home near here last Thursday. Gruno told officers of finding the body. Mrs. Gruno had been known to keep large sums of money in her house because she distrusted banks.

According to his final story, Gruno shot his mother because she refused to lend him $400 to meet a pressing obligation unless he brought his live-stock to her farm to be held as security for the loan.

PACKET WAS DRIVEN ASHORE BY SQUALL

BOULOGNE-SUR-MER, France, Nov. 19—(AP)—Caught by a squall as it was trying to make the harbor, the packet Engadine from Folkestone was driven on a Sandbank at 6 o'clock tonight and stuck there until it floated off at high tide nearly three hours later.

In the meantime its 176 passengers, including the Duke of Westminster, were landed none the worse for their experience.

SHEPHERD WOULD MAKE VOLSTEAD ACT STRONGER

HOUSTON, Texas, Nov. 19—(AP)—Senator Morris Shepherd of Texas today told the national convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance union that "all the Morrowites and all the Raskobites in both the republican and democratic parties cannot prevail against prohibition."

Senator Shepherd, termed the "father of the eighteenth amendment," bitterly denounced use of alcohol. "If the Volstead act needs anything, it needs to be made stronger," he asserted.

Oklahoma Tornado Kills 23 Persons

One Hundred Were Injured and Approximately 100 Buildings Were Destroyed in 200 Yard Path

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 19.—(AP)—A tornado cut a swath of death and destruction today through the little church colony of Bethany, seven miles west of here.

Twenty-three persons were killed. One hundred were injured.

Approximately one hundred buildings were destroyed.

Striking during a heavy rain storm, the tornado leveled a 200-yard wide path through the eastern edge of the town, burying many persons in the splintered wreckage of their homes.

All ambulances in Oklahoma City were rushed to the scene and the dead and injured were brought to city morgues and hospitals. Red Cross and Salvation Army workers rendered first aid.

Five companies of Oklahoma national guardsmen went into the area after the storm had cleared to protect the scattered valuables from vandals.

Dropping first a few miles south of Bethany, the twisting funnel of death wrecked the Camel Creek school house, killing two pupils and injuring the teacher and 12 other children.

The tornado whipped on north, through the eastern side of Bethany, state headquarters of the Nazarene church and home of Bethany Peniel college, a denominational school.

Like a gigantic scythe, the storm cut a sharply defined swath through a residential section, reducing frame houses to splinters and toppling brick buildings like toy block houses. Most of those killed were here.

The first organized relief unit to attack the wreckage was the football team of the nearby Putnam Consolidated school. Two members of this group alone carried eight dead from the wrecked homes.

Yates Hoover, an ambulance driver, found the body of his father where their home once stood. Unable to find his mother, he removed his father to the morgue and then rushed back in search of her.

When Mrs. W. L. Burton saw the storm approaching, she caught her baby in her arms and sheltered it as the house collapsed. Her husband found her, shivering in the rain, the child still clutched in protection. The baby escaped with minor scratches, but Mrs. Burton was badly lacerated.

MIGHT INCREASE ALCOHOLIC CONTENT OF BEER IN FINLAND

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Nov. 19—(AP)—Termed by opponents of Finland's prohibition statute as an opening wedge, a measure providing for increased alcoholic content of beer will be introduced by the government as a means of raising revenues and making smuggling of intoxicants less profitable.

The law, adopted in 1919, placed drastic prohibitions on whiskies but permitted two grades of beer, of 1.8 and 2.4 percent. It is now proposed to raise the content of the latter grade to five percent by weight or to almost seven percent by volume.

Opponents of the law have contended smuggling and other crime has increased under it.

Previous to the World war, Finland, as a dominion under the Russian czar, had local option almost generally except in some of the larger cities and the per capita alcohol consumption was one of the lowest in the world.

Upon obtaining its freedom from Russia, Finland, comprised of approximately 3,600,000 people and with an area of about three times that of the state of New York, formed a parliament and passed a prohibition law.

MOTIVE FOR SLAYING OF RICHARD GRAHAM

HACKENSACK, N. J., Nov. 19—(AP)—Police today believed Richard Graham, shot to death by his one time friend Harry Elbers, gave a written statement to Elbers sometime ago acknowledging undue intimacy with Mrs. Elbers.

Assistant Prosecutor Schmidt applied to the county court for an order permitting him to inspect the contents of Elbers' safe deposit box, in which detectives believed the statement would be found.

County Detective John Guidetti had in his possession several checks which he said Graham had given Elbers in the last year.

When Mrs. Elbers, held as a material witness, told police she had been intimate with Graham, it was the first intimation of a motive for the killing. Elbers readily admitted the crime but refused to tell why he shot Graham, whose body was found in the Elbers driveway in Teaneck Monday night after neighbors told of hearing five shots.

THREE PASSENGERS OF PACIFIC MAIL PLANE DEAD

BURBANK, Calif., Nov. 19—(AP)—The three passengers of the Pacific transport mail plane were found dead late today in the Tehachapi mountain foothills, where the plane had crashed on a sloping plateau. Discovery of the bodies ended a 48 hour search by scores of planes.

The wreckage had not burned. The plane piloted by F. A. Donaldson and carrying Miss Jean Markow, 18, of Los Angeles, and George Rogers, a mechanic, left United airport here Monday midnight and became lost in fog, snow and gales over Tejon, 80 miles north.

The end of the ill-fated flight came approximately halfway between Tejon and Antelope Valley emergency airports, the former in the Tehachapis and the latter in the flat at the edge of the Mojave desert.

The 319 pounds of mail the plane was carrying to Oakland and Portland, Oregon was intact.

30 PERSONS INJURED IN COLLISION OF CARS

NEW YORK, Nov. 19—(AP)—Thirty persons were cut and bruised today in Brooklyn in a collision between two surface cars, one of which had its side ripped out and a vestibule stove in.

For an hour or so the neighborhood looked like a battlefield, what with police emergency trucks and ambulances clanging through the streets and stores nearby turned into temporary hospitals.

Precautions Against Revolution In Spain

Troops Have Been Thrown Into Madrid With Orders to Use Any Means to Break Up Street Meetings

MADRID, Nov. 19—(AP)—Spain's widespread labor disorders extended today to Seville, [illegible] Cordoba, and an alarmed [illegible] posed troops at points [illegible] appeared to be needed most [illegible] recaution against the [illegible] a revolution.

In [illegible] furious fight developed [illegible] with three persons [illegible] seriously, as police [illegible] the offices of the "Sin[illegible]", the labor organizatigon [illegible] for the general strike [illegible] swept Barcelona with dis[illegible] for two days.

Raids on other Barcelona union offices continued, a report saying that six strikers were arrested at the Sindicato office in the Calle Gracia.

Today the cabinet believed it had scotched a revolutionary plot by throwing troops into Madrid with orders to use any means to break up street meetings.

But as labor unrest spread to two new cities, the feeling of comparative security appeared to evaporate. At Seville rioters shouted insults to the king and government. At Cordoba strikers fought with police in the streets. At Barcelona clashes of the past two days continued. At other points the worst seemed to be over.

From Alicante tonight came reports that a dozen or more had been injured when the civil guards put down a new riot. There was a general panic as strikers and police clashed in the heart of the city, but the disturbance was quickly under control.

There were several arrests, and one of the prisoners was the communist leader, Rafael Villard. Some of the fighters fled before the police attack, ran into the sea, and were almost drowned before the police rescued them.

Premier Berenguer himself remained on the job in Madrid ready for any emergency which might arise. Reports from several cities which have been affected by the strike were reassuring, but the government appeared to feel that it would be best to be prepared for renewal of the strife which has disrupted the nation for the past week.

A roundup of communist agitators was ordered in the provinces so that the movement could not get a foothold there. Reports that the army was involved in a revolutionary plot were quickly denied, and the fact that workmen were returning to their jobs in half a dozen cities was regarded as evidence that the strike had spent its force.

Barcelona, where the heaviest fighting occurred checked up its casualties today and found that five had been killed and at least two hundred injured.

Tonight the strike spread to the town of Vich, not far from here, a center famous for its sausage factories. Five thousand sausage makers walked out but there was no disorder.

Similarly, in the manufacturing town of Manresa, near Barcelona, fifteen thousand industrial workers threw down their tools today but made no trouble for the police.

INDEPENDENCE DEMANDS BY INDIAN EXTREMISTS

LONDON, Nov. 19.—(AP)—A torrent of Indian extremist demands for "independence" or for immediate "dominion status" and broadsides of charges of British oppression poured from two Indian radical spokesmen at the round table conference on Indian affairs today.

One of these was Dr. B. S. Moonjee, a Hindu, the other was Mouhammed Ali, a Moslem. Their clashing creeds appeared to have been forgotten in a common indictment of British policy.

Their impassioned appeals recalled the oratory of the American Revolution and Mouhammed Ali declared that unless he could return to a free India he would prefer to die in a foreign land.

"I want to be as free in my country," said Moonjee, "as an Englishman is in England, as a Canadian in Canada, as an Australian in Australia."

GOV.-ELECT CROSS SUFFERS A SLIGHT INDISPOSITION

PALM BEACH, Fla., Nov. 19—(AP)—Gov.-elect Wilbur L. Cross, of Connecticut spent the first day of his vacation at the Palm Beach home of Archibald McNeil, democratic national committeeman, today recovering from a slight indisposition believed to have been brought on by food which he ate on his trip to the south.

Tonight, Dr. Cross was reported as entirely recovered and tomorrow will sally forth in the Gulf stream to battle with the king fish. His party, besides McNeil, includes P. B. O'Sullivan, Connecticut democratic state chairman, and John A. Cornell, democratic town chairman of Bridgeport.

ADDRESS DELIVERED BY AMBASSADOR DAWES

LONDON, Nov. 19—(AP)—Ambassador Charles G. Dawes tonight delivered an address formally opening the dental clinic at the Royal Free hospital which was given by George Eastman, Philanthropist of Rochester, N. Y.

Lauding the institution as a means of cementing Anglo-American friendship, the ambassador traced the history of the Eastman clinics at Rochester and London and the projected clinics in Rome, Paris and Stockholm. His audience was a brilliant gathering of physicians and philanthropists.

HOOVER GIVES HIS VIEWS ON CHILD HEALTH AND WELFARE

At Opening Session of White House Conference on Child Health and Protection, the Chief Executive Impressed Upon His Audience the Grave Responsibility of Parentage—Dealt With Recreation, Temptation and the Development of Character of Children

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19—(AP)—President Hoover tonight laid a human engineering project of the utmost magnitude before 3,000 assembled experts in child welfare.

Opening his white house conference on child health and protection, the president called upon its members for a solution of the problem of giving children the mental and physical health needed to meet the demands of the magic age of machinery and concentrated endeavor into which they will grow.

The conference into whose hands the president gave the question comprised experts in every phase of child well being. Educators, welfare workers, scientists, physicians—men and women who have worked in schoolrooms, among the poor, in laboratories and sick rooms—took into their keeping the task of blazing a safe trail for humanity through the crowding complexities of modern life.

For their guidance, as a compass, they had information assembled from the far ends of the nation, the knowledge, observations and conclusions of little knots of men and women experts who have delved deep into the secrets of child training and welfare during the past year.

It was bound into volumes giving the reports of 1,200 child experts. These embodied special studies of the physically mentally and otherwise handicapped children. After three days of discussion, the delegates will take the information they have gained back to their homes to apply it in performing their daily work with children.

The president was introduced by Secretary Wilbur, the chairman of the conference. Around him on the platform were grouped men and women in the government service who specialize in child problems.

Mr. Hoover divided the task into three categories the protection and stimulation of the normal child, aid to the physically defective and handicapped, and the problems of the delinquent.

In concluding he told the delegates:

"From your explorations into the mental and moral endowment and opportunities of children will develop new methods to inspire their creative work and play, to substitute love and self discipline for the rigors to rule to guide their recreations into wholesome channels, to steer them past the reefs of temptation, to develop their characters and to bring them to adult age in tune with life, strong in moral fiber and prepared to play more happily their part in the productive tasks of society."

C. V. BOB PLEADED NOT GUILTY TO LARCENY OF $97,000

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Charles V. Bob, mining engineer, friend of aviation and stock promoter, emerged today from six weeks of hiding to plead not guilty to three indictments charging larceny of $97,000 in alleged fraudulent stock sales.

Allegations of irregularity in the affairs of several companies headed by Bob caused him no evident discomposure. He walked blithely into District Attorney Crain's office with his attorney this noon, nodded to acquaintances and laughed merrily over a joke somebody made.

Nor did he lose any of his aplomb later as he was taken to police headquarters, where the whorls on the fingers that signed a large check to aid the Byrd expedition to the south pole were added to the roster of fingerprints.

General Sessions Judge Allen released Bob in $35,000 bail and permitted his counsel three weeks to present motions.

EXPECT TO OBTAIN THE RELEASE OF C. A. LEVINE

VIENNA, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Attorneys for Charles A. Levine, American, who is under formal charges of having prepared to counterfeit a foreign coinage, said tonight they believed they would be able to obtain his release on bail tomorrow.

They added that a French commission, which was expected here to determine if Levine was endangering the French monetary system, was not coming and that the case would be tried on the evidence obtained so far and the correspondence seized from the American's trunk. They also said that Levine was quite confidence his innocence would be demonstrated.

On their side, the police asserted tonight that they have sufficient evidence for sending Levine before the superior court tomorrow, charging that he had attempted to buy from an engraver 90 separate dies at a cost of $13,000.

PROTEST BY FIVE MAJOR RAILWAY BROTHERHOODS

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Five major railway brotherhoods today voiced opposition to the government's program of inland waterway development and demanded extension of federal taxation and regulation to other carriers.

The resolution was adopted at a conference of the Brotherhoods of Locomotive Engineers, Railway Conductors, Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, Railway Trainmen and the Switchmen's Union of North America. The five bodies, according to their officers, represent more than 350,000 American and Canadian railway workers.

A method to relieve unemployment in the trainmen's ranks will be discussed again tomorrow, following failure of the 700 chairmen to vote today on a proposal submitted by a subcommittee of 25 delegates.

BELASCO'S CONDITION SLIGHTLY IMPROVED

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—(AP)—David Belasco, 76-year-old theatrical producer, continued today to hold his own against an attack of lobar pneumonia which caused him to be hurried home from Baltimore to a sickbed Monday night.

His physician called Mr. Belasco's condition slightly improved this evening and said the crisis might not come for several days. The patient's temperature late today was 102.1 and his pulse 90 and "of good quality."

His daughter, Mrs. Reina Gest, the only person besides his physicians allowed in the producer's sick room at his hotel, told her father the critics had taken kindly to "Tonight or Never," new Belasco play which opened last night, but the aged man was not permitted to read the reviews.

HAPPILY MARRIED AFTER ENGAGEMENT OF 42 YEARS

OROVILLE, Cal., Nov. 19.—(AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Joe Davis were happily married today after an engagement of 42 years. Joe popped the question in 1888 but Miss Virlinda Seaward's parents objected.

Neither Joe nor Virlinda wanted to antagonize the parents, so they waited. Recently the parents died, so last night Joe and Virlinda were married

WICKERSHAM'S REPLY TO MRS. IDA B. WISE SMITH

HOUSTON, Tex., Nov. 19.—(AP)—Mrs. Ida B. Wise Smith of Des Moines, Iowa, vice-president of the National Woman's Christian Temperance union, today read before the union's 56th annual convention here the following telegram from George W. Wickersham, chairman of the Hoover law enforcement commission:

"Referring to your telegram of the 16th, the press dispatches you mention built on surmise like many other statements regarding the work of this commission published from time to time. The commission has reached no permanent conclusions. Tentative conclusions all subject to revision at any time before final report is made and sent to the president. It is unfortunate newspapers insist on constantly publishing surmises of our conclusions."

Mr. Wickersham's wire was in answer to one sent by the convention, advising the chairman of its enthusiastic reception of advices saying the commission had discarded repeal and four per cent beer as solutions of the prohibition problem.

GOVERNMENT REVENUE CONTINUES TO DECREASE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Government revenue which declined more than $62,000,000 in the first three months of the present fiscal year continued its downward trend during October by decreasing $6,732,295 as compared with the same month a year ago.

Internal revenue figures announced today showed the decrease brought the total drop for the first four months of the fiscal year, as compared with the same period a year ago, to $69,203,779.

Income tax collections for October declined $969,000 with individual payments dropping $1,023,000 and corporation taxes showing a gain of $59,000 which brought the total tax collections from income for the month to $29,588,513. In the four months of the fiscal year which began July 1 income tax collections have declined $56,710,000 as compared with the same period of last year.

STATE OF CONNECTICUT MUST PRESENT ARGUMENTS

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 19—(AP)—The state of Connecticut must present its argument for the right to impose a death tax on a former resident without the assistance of four other states under a ruling of the court of appeals today.

The New York high court refused the request of the states of New York, Massachusetts, New Jersey and Maryland to be allowed to appear in court and assist Connecticut in its argument that the New York county surrogate should return the assets of the estate of Mrs. Alice C. Martin to Connecticut for purposes of death taxation by that state.

ONE-YEAR NAVAL BUILDING PROGRAM CALLS FOR $100,000,000

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—(AP)—A tentative one-year naval building program, which experts said would cost about $100,000,000, was outlined today by Chairman Britten of the house naval committee as having been drafted from recommendations made by the navy general board.

The recommendations soon will be presented to President Hoover for approval and preparation for congress.

Britten outlined the program after a conference with Secretary Adams. He said he expected the secretary to submit the program to President Hoover within the week. Specific figures and tonnages will not be announced until President Hoover has studied the program.

GRAF ZEPPELIN TO BE GIVEN OVERHAULING

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Ger., Nov. 19—(AP)—Dr. Hugo Eckener announced today that the Graf Zeppelin had finished its 1930 flying season. It will be deflated and given a thorough overhauling during the winter months.

The Graf has made 155 flights, covered 144,375 miles, has carried 6,27[illegible] passengers, 12,000 pounds of freight and 15,000 pounds of mail, and has earned enough to pay for fuel, wages of the crew, insurance and depreciation.

Dr. Eckener said it has demonstrated the practicability of Zeppelins for commercial air transportation

GOLD STAR MOTHERS GIVEN OBLIGATION OF MEMBERSHIP

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 19. — Gold Star mothers of the city were honored and given the obligation of membership at a meeting of the auxiliary to Gold Star post, No. 1724, Veterans of Foreign Wars, held in V. F. W. hall this evening. President Mrs. Marcelline English was in charge and the mothers were addressed by Department Junior Vice-Commander James J. Lee and Commander Florimond N. Normandin of the post. The mothers receiving the obligation were: Mrs Patrick J. Moriarty, Mrs. George Livesly, Mrs. Dina Dion, Mrs. Arthur Squires, Mrs. Agnes Bossey and Mrs. Eva Griggs. Later the obligation will be given to Mrs. Aubin, who is ill at her home. Each mother received a bouquet of poppies, the Gold Star badge and pin. Refreshments and a program of music concluded the evening.

OPPOSED TO PROPOSED INCREASED COST OF MAILS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 19.—By a vote of the directors of the chamber of commerce the town representatives in the legislature and the state senator of this district will be requested to support the following propositions to be introduced in the legislature at the coming session: Increased tuberculosis hospitalization facilities; construction of the so-called Merritt parallel highway from Westchester county, New York, to central Connecticut on the so-called post road in this city; and also to support the proposed Rocky Neck beach at East Lyme for a state park, providing recreational facilities for the people of eastern Connecticut similar to Hammonasset beach near New Haven.

The chamber directors are giving consideration to the part the Willimantic chamber will play in participating in the 50th anniversary of the Connecticut Agricultural college at Storrs. The college is considered a distinct asset to the community and local participation in the celebration is expected to be on a large scale. The chamber is also to give again full cooperation to the annual exhibit of the Willimantic Poultry association to be held in January. This is done in recognition of the friendly contact with members of the association and the fact that the poultry industry in this section is one of the largest in the state.

The chamber directors are preparing material for the establishment of a town and city finance board to be presented to the next session of legislature, as well as the proposed small claims court for this city. The board has gone on record as opposing the proposed increased cost of mails as advocated by Postmaster - General Brown.

In police court today, Louis N. Dondero, local automobile dealer, was acquitted of a charge of loaning demonstrator's markers to another party. He pleaded not guilty. Early this month Dondero gave the number plates XA-792 to Morris Johnson of this city and the latter placed them on a truck for the transportation of furniture to New York. In Berlin the truck was stopped by state police and the driver, Paul Johnson, was notified to appear in court there, the case against him being dismissed Tuesday. Dondero admitted loaning the markers to Morris Johnson but said that Johnson had at times acted as a salesman for him and he was under the impression that the markers were wanted for demonstration purposes in connection with the sale of a car. Johnson did not say for what purpose he wanted the markers.

A past post commander's gold badge was presented to Department Junior Vice-Commander James J. Lee at the meeting of Gold Star post, No. 1724, Veterans of Foreign Wars, held in V. F. W. hall Tuesday night. The presentation was made by Commander Florimond N. Normandin. A Christmas party for needy children of the city will be held in charge of a committee comprising Tom C. Overholt, chairman; William C. Maass, James J. Lee, Edmund J. Tremblay and Alfred Lagace, and a committee from the auxiliary. It was voted to send letters of thanks to Mayor Walter R. King and Superintendent of Streets Edwin O. Sumner for moving and storing the World war trophies recently received from the war department. The post also voted to take out an annual membership in the chamber of commerce. The post selected John C. Frazier to be initiated with United States Senator Frederick C. Walcott at New Haven on Nov. 21. Attorney Arthur T. Kelley will also be initiated on this occasion.

V. F. W. Committees

Commander Florimond N. Normandin has announced his appointment of the following annual committees: Encampment, James J. Lee, chairman; Charles Cyr, Stanley Johnson, Arthur J. Vegiard, Attorney Arthur T. Kelley, John C. Frazier, Eugene E. Curran, Charles J. Potter, Tom C. Overholt, Arthur Vertefeuille, Winslow McIntire, Elliott R. Moshier, William A. Wolfe, William C. Maass, Archie Hamel, Donald E. Crane, Edward Donovan, Edward Medbury and Samuel Guilford.

Relief: Charles A. Reynolds, chairman; Amos E. Barber, Charles Cyr. Entertainment: Tom C. Overholt, chairman; Alfred Lagace, John Costello, Edward J. Connaughton, Edmund J. Tremblay. Bugle and drum corps: Lewye N. Gerry, chairman; Victor Brunnell, William R. Clark. Membership: William Palmer, chairman; John F. Lynch, Henry Cote. Poppies: John L. Moriarty, chairman; Eseb Lapan, Timothy Casey. House: Henry F. Belair, chairman; Laverne C. Jacobs, Adolph DeMontigney. Christmas boxes: William C. Maass, chairman; Frank Vanasek, Thomas E. Shea. Athletics: Henry F. Belair, chairman; Pierre D. Gagnon, Harry Young, Fred R. Duprey, Arthur Langlois. Liaison officer, James J. Lee.

Attorney Sidney S. Von Loesecke head of the touring department for the Automobile Legal Association of America, with headquarters in New York, described a two months' European trip, during which he visited eight countries, with an illustrated talk at the regular meeting of the Woman's club held in the Windham Street school Tuesday afternoon.

President D. D. Cavanaugh of the Willimantic Poultry association has forwarded an invitation to Governor-elect Wilbur L. Cross to open the sixth annual Willimantic exposition at the state armory here next January. Should the new governor accept the invitation the opening exercises will be held on the evening of Wednesday, Jan. 7.

NOW, HE ENJOYS FOODS THAT USED TO DISAGREE

"For over five years it seemed like everything I enjoyed eating would disagree with me," says Charles L. Garman, 5438 Irving St., Philadelphia. I suffered from headaches; was nervous; couldn't sleep right.

"I tried a lot of things for indigestion, but nothing really helped until my doctor started me on Pape's Diapepsin. I have used five packages and have gained five pounds. I eat anything—fried things, hot cakes; foods that used to disagree. I seldom feel the least discomfort nowadays, but when I do I just take a tablet of Pape's Diapepsin and in a moment my stomach is all right."

When thousands like Mr. Garman are coming right out in public to praise Pape's Diapepsin, there seems no reason to doubt that it does what is claimed for it to help people who suffer from acid-dyspepsia, and the heartburn, gas, nausea, belching, headaches, dizziness, etc., caused by this common ailment. But those who wish further proof before buying may easily have it. The makers agree to send anyone a trial package absolutely FREE. Just write "Pape's Diapepsin," Wheeling, W. Va.

TWO MACHINES DAMAGED IN REAR-END COLLISION

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 19.—A rear-end collision on Main street, near Pine street tonight resulted in considerable damage to a sedan and a coupe, operated respectively by Gedeon Couture, of 148 Main street and Donald Coates, of Hebron. Couture slowed down to turn into a side street and Coates, who was trailing him, intended to pass but in doing so, the collision resulted and the Coates machine turned over twice, being badly wrecked. Coates was arrested by Officer William Hurley for failure to grant the right of way and notified to appear in police court Thursday morning.

While the investigation was being conducted at the scene of Coates-Couture accident, machines operated by Antonio Gozfowicz, of 81 Main street and Arthur Robitaille, Sr., of Natchaug street, figured in a collision at the scene. No arrest was made in this accident.

Stafford Springs

The work of changing over the high tension electric light and power line between Willimantic and Stafford Springs is rapidly nearing completion and it is now expected that the work will be finished by the first of the year. When the job is concluded the entire line, a distance of about 19 miles, will be replaced by new poles and new wires. A total of 588 cedar poles is being used and about 423 have already been erected.

It is anticipated that there will be a large turn-out at Warren Memorial hall this (Thursday) evening to hear State Commissioner Blodgett's talk on Taxation.

The Girls' club of Stafford high school held a dog roast at Diamond Ledge, West Stafford, Wednesday afternoon after the close of the session at 2:45. The party hiked from the school to West Stafford. Mrs. Edith Glazier, teacher of History in the high school, and dean of girls, was chaperone.

Mrs. Charles Dailey has returned home after several days' motor trip to Camden, N. J.

When the Ladies' Aid society of West Stafford Congregational church serves a supper at the church the hostesses will be Mrs. Eva Chaffee and Mrs. George Ellithorpe.

SURETY BONDS ALMOST ENOUGH TO COVER TOWN'S DEFICIT OF $87,000

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 19. — The bonds procured from the National Surety Co. of New York for the town treasurer will be sufficient to meet the amount of the alleged unexplained deficit as shown in the recent audit with the possible exception of two years prior to 1927, it was said tonight by Town Counsel John H. King. For the period of 11 years the bond amounted to $10,000 annually up to 1927 when it was increased to $36,800 annually. According to the auditors' report the deficit for two years when the $10,000 bond was in effect, exceeds that amount, the total deficit being given by the auditors as being over $87,000.

The matter of bond coverage was gone over tonight at a meeting of the board of selectmen with Town Counsel King, when it was virtually decided to issue a call for a special town meeting to be held Monday evening, Dec. 1[illegible] At this meeting, the selectmen will present a plan to establish a sinking fund which at the present time is intended to retire three special bond issues. These issues, totaling $250,000, are high school bond of 1909, for $100,000, due Jan 1, 1940; high school bond of 1914 for $75,000, due Jan. 1, 1944, and Natchaug school bond of 1914 for $75,000, due Jan. 1, 1944. A plan for refunding the current indebtedness of about $644,000 is also being considered.

PLAINFIELD

MISS BAXTER'S GIRL SCOUTS DOING PRACTICAL WORK

Under the direction of their captain, Doris Baxter, the Girl Scouts of Plainfield met Tuesday evening at the Community house where they spent the entire evening in mending library books—this in observance of Book week. Next Tuesday evening, half the troop will entertain the other half at a Thanksgiving party, to be held in the Scout rooms at the Community house. Captain Baxter has thirty girls registered who are doing wonderful Scout work. Miss Baxter deserves great credit, for these girls have been under her guidance for over eight years.

BROOKLYN

The Women's club met Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. S. Irving Frink. This was "Government afternoon." After a roll call of "Items of Interest Concerning Our Government," Mrs. Frink read a short paper on the "Postal Service." Through the kindness of Leslie W. Havens, Mrs. Frink was able to show many American stamps of an early date and nearly all the commemorative stamps which have been issued since 1893, when the World's Fair series marked what has almost become a fad in the United States. Light refreshments were served at the close of the meeting. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. William Walters, Dec. 1. Subject, "Famous Cartoonists and What Made Them Famous."

Mr. and Mrs. Christian Anderson are entertaining their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Champion, of Lyme, Conn.

Mrs. Laroy Wood, of West Hartford, is a guest of Mrs. Thomas S. Marlor.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Burke visited Massachusetts relatives Sunday.

OBITUARY

Joseph B. Stetson

Brooklyn lost one of its oldest and most respected citizens in the passing of Joseph B. Stetson. Mr. Stetson was a gentleman of the old school, closely associated with all public offices and interests in Brooklyn. He was a life-long Unitarian and at the time of his passing was chairman of the church committee. Hospitality was the keynote of his life and good cheer and fellowship were continuously dispensed by him. His passing closes the pages of the life of a most interesting family, so far as Brooklyn is concerned, although he leaves several nephews and nieces in Fall River, New Bedford and Sharon, Mass., who may be proud of their Stetson ancestry. Funeral services for Mr. Stetson were held Tuesday afternoon at his home, Rev. Charles Graves, of Hartford, officiating. Burial was in the Witter cemetery, near his home. F. D. Spaulding, F. E. Miller, M. J. Frink and S. L. Frink were the bearers.

LIBERTY HILL

Mr. and Mrs. J. George Clark passed their fifty-third wedding anniversary Friday, Nov. 14th, receiving congratulations and remembrances from relatives and friends. Mr. Clark, who has been confined to the house by illness the past two months, is improving in health.

Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Gurley attended the funeral of George Herbert Rich, held at Norwich, Sunday afternoon. Mr. Rich was a nephew of Mrs. Gurley.

Miss Dorothy Kinnaird of New York spent Sunday with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. John Kinnaird.

On account of illness, J. George Clark, who has been solicitor and collector for the Exeter Liberty Hill church since it was organized, 18 years ago, has resigned. O. W. Gurley has been appointed to succeed him.

Union Service

The churches of Lebanon will have a union Thanksgiving service at the Exeter Liberty Hill church, Sunday evening, Nov. 23d.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Spafford of Glastonbury and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Batty of New Britain were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Foote, Sunday, and attended church at the morning service.

Mr. and Mrs. Milo S. Davoll and Misses Mary E. and Nancy R. Fuller were birthday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Lyman, at Columbia, Friday. Mrs. Davoll and the Misses Fuller are sisters of Mrs. Lyman and Miss Harriet M. Fuller of Columbia; also a sister was present. The combined ages of the five sisters are 360. Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Davoll and daughter, Christine, were present; Mr. Davoll is a nephew of Mrs. Lyman.

Mr. and Mrs. John G. Lewis and daughter, Barbara Jane, of Hampton, called on their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. J. George Clark, Thursday.

Mrs. James Cochrane and daughter, Gladys Faith, of Webster, visited the former's sister, Mrs. W. D. Davoll a day last week.

There have been heavy rains coming in showers since Friday night. Early Tuesday morning there was a downpour, with thunder and lightning.

Two members of the Liberty club were at the club house a few days last week, coming from Boston.

HAMPTON

The School club met at the chapel Wednesday evening.

Complimentary Supper

An oyster supper and dance was given at grange hall Saturday by Representative-elect Wallace N. Jewett, in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin of Danielson. One hundred and seventy-five were served. Music was furnished by Mrs. Clarence Bowen's orchestra of Abington, four pieces, with Henry Humes prompting. Representatives were present from Killingly, Sterling, Brooklyn and guests from Danielson, Brooklyn, Willimantic, Manchester, Wethersfield, Mansfield and Scotland, also many of the townspeople.

The Book club met with Mrs. Alice Hammond Monday afternoon.

JEWETT CITY

COMMUNITY CLUB MAY ORGANIZE IN BOROUGH

Tuesday evening, in the town hall, an even dozen representative men of the town attended an informal meeting which had as its object the formation of a civic body which, while it considers local business and trade questions, will also present plans and suggestions with a view to community welfare. At a meeting to be held next week, organization will be completed.

The state cable fence gang is at work on the borough bridge approach and on the Quinebaug cut-off, which is but a few days' job. If more motor vehicle operators would look upon these fine new fences as "guide" rails instead of "guard" rails, there might be less attempts to batter them down by careless drivers. At the Tadpole S-curve bridge, soon to be discontinued, there have been, since its construction, a dozen fence knockers who have kept a length or two down the bank a good deal of the time.

Aldea Chretien	62	71	69—202
	355	349	351—1055

An enthusiastic gallery cheered when the single string 88, and top treble 247 were chalked up to Miss Estelle Ethier. An expert bowler present Monday evening declared that he has seldom seen ten young misses who exhibit the real class of these two teams. While scoring has been fairly even until this game, Miss LaChapelle has claimed the leading pinfall in previous matches.

A letter has been received by the secretary of the local board of advisory engineers which states that as the Quinebaug viaduct is receiving its final and finishing touches their services will be no longer required. It is not certain whether this notification came from the state or where it came from; anyhow, its pronouncement appears to be final. It seems strange to the members of this committee that the note should state that the work of the board had been much appreciated, while at the same time so little change has been made in the plans as the result of their suggestions which have been made during the past year of construction. The selectmen and Community Welfare club have their hands full right now, so that just what will be the fate of the deposed board is as yet uncertain. The board of advisory engineers was organized Oct. 12, 1929. At that time M. E. Shea deposited a Canadian nickel in the treasury. Said coin is in there yet, so that this august body dissolves solvent and thus prepared to take over any other project, great or small.

Secures Extradition Papers

Officer Henry Vegiard was in Hartford Wednesday and received the extradition papers from Governor Trumbull for the return of William Howeson, Jr., and Ernest Lamarine, who on Saturday morning stole a new Chevrolet coupe from the local salesroom. This (Thursday) morning at 1:29 the officer accompanied by Fred L'Homme will leave New London on the Quaker City express for Philadelphia where the men are being held after they were apprehended Saturday evening driving in Philadelphia. The officer expects to arrive back in Jewett City late Thursday evening, making the return trip in the machine which was stolen. It was learned here today that both the prisoners are minors.

GRAND OFFICERS GUESTS OF FAITH CHAPTER, O. E. S.

Faith chapter, No. 82, O. E. S., entertained the grand officers of the state at their annual inspection Wednesday evening. At 6 o'clock a banquet was served by the Ladies' society of the Congregational church in the church vestry. The menu: Fruit cup, chicken pie, cottage style; celery, cranberry sauce, mashed potato, peas and carrots, rolls, cake, ice cream, coffee. The tables were decorated with chrysanthemums donated by Mrs. F. C. Whiting, which were later sent to sick members of the order. The officers' table was attractively decorated with rose cup favors filled with salted nuts, the base being napkin holders made by Mrs. J. T. Stewart and Mrs. Carl Benjamin. At the grand matron's place was a corsage of Briarcliffe roses, the gift of the worthy matron, Mrs. Walter Benjamin. Adaline Glowacki and Olga Zegeer gave piano selections during the banquet. Inspection followed in Masonic hall, five candidates being initiated by the degree team of the chapter. During the ceremonies, Miss Doris Myott sang a Song of Welcome to the grand matron. This was followed by a special flower ceremonial at which time the grand matron was presented an exquisite lavalliere with engraved crystal. The grand officers present were: Worthy Grand Matron Mrs. Jennie E. Stevens, Worthy Grand Patron Fred A. Verplanck, Grand Conductress Mrs. Ida B. Nixon, Assistant Grand Conductress Mrs. Carolyn L. Kane, Grand Chaplain Mrs. Emma C. Young, Grand Marshal Mrs. Elizabeth C. Bent, Grand Ruth Mrs. Alma Osborn, Grand Martha Miss Fanny B. Perry, Grand Electa Mrs. May H. Davis, Grand Warden Mrs. Jessie T. Howe, Past Grand Matrons Mrs. J. C. Gallup, of Moosup, and Mrs. Frances E. Geer, of Norwich. The committee serving the banquet was Mrs. Abraham Zegeer, Mrs. H. A. Tomlinson, Mrs. E. A. Faust, Mrs. G. F. Goodenough, Mrs. L. G. Buckingham, Mrs. W. H. Payne, Mrs. W. A. Broadfoot and Mrs. Andrew McNicol. Mrs. Everett H. Hiscox was in charge of the waitresses, Miss M. A. Burdick, Mrs. George Palmer, Mrs. Walter Marshall, Mrs. F. D. Ballou, Mrs. C. D. Wolf, Mrs. Joseph Gill, Mrs. H. T. Jeffers, Misses Susan Terry and Christine Marshall, Mrs. C. L. Howe and Mrs. A. P. Anderson. The after-dinner committee was Mrs. F. E. Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Robinson and Miss M. A. Burdick.

CENTRAL VILLAGE

The Ladies' Aid society held the annual sale, supper and entertainment Wednesday afternoon and evening. Mrs. Stuart Ellsworth was chairman of the general committee. The supper committee was Mrs. Willis Rouse, assisted by Mrs. William Loring, Mrs. Mortimer Stetson and Mrs. L. Howard Cross; entertainment, Mrs. E. Russell Bragg; dining room, Mrs. Everett Ladd, with helpers, Mrs. Wilfred Lawson, Harriett White, Athalie Hill, Anna Suseck and Thomas McFarland; grabs, Mrs. Homer Dean; candy, Miss Ruth Potvin and Miss Lois Stetson; gifts, Mrs. George Loring, Mrs. Earl Bragg and Mrs. Stuart Ellsworth; aprons, Mrs. E. H. Kennedy and Miss Lucy Broadhead. The cashier was L. Howard Cross. The hall was decorated with hemlock boughs and trees and flowering plants and a Christmas tree held mystery packages which were sold by Santa Claus (Mrs. Homer Dean). The following program was given at 8 o'clock: Selections by the Kitchen orchestra, Miss Lois Stetson, Arlene Potvin, Athalie Hill, Mildred Gowan, Marjorie McDonald, Lois Hall, Anna Suseck, director Miss Harriett White, pianist Miss Ruth Potvin; violin solo, Bernard Millstein, accompanied by Miss Ruth Potvin pianist; vocal duet, Audrey Hill and Margaret McFarland; readings, Mrs. Frink, of Brooklyn; sketch, "Time Tables," William Hall and Mrs. Fred Lyons, of Plainfield. FINE RESPONSE IN RED CROSS ROLL CALL

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 19.—Indications were this afternoon on the last official tally of the annual roll call of Danielson chapter of the American Red Cross that the effort here has "gone over the top." Late this afternoon. Mrs. Marjorie Waller, director of the roll call, said that no final figures will be available until the end of the week. Complete reports from individual workers and for some districts of the town had not come in. Also, there are certain pledges that have been received to be collected.

The objective—the minimum—in the district of the Danielson chapter was 1,000 members. This appears to have been attained, and it seems likely may be considerably exceeded. Up to this afternoon receipts amounting to $822 had been turned in. The final figures will be considerably higher, it is indicated.

The success of the roll call, general economic conditions considered, is very gratifying. Certain areas of the town, as in Attawaugan, have made better records this year than in the roll call of 1929, and all sections of the town have contributed what the final checkup will show as a gratifying success.

Brooklyn, as well as the town of Killingly, is included in the territory of the Danielson division.

OVER 39,000 FINGERLING HORNED POUT DISTRIBUTED

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 19.—This day was spent by County Game Warden Thomas Daniels and his deputies in distributing 39,600 fingerling "bull heads," otherwise known as horned pout, in lakes and ponds of Windham county that are not restricted to fishermen. Stocking with pout is a comparatively new undertaking of the state fish and game commission, but it is being done this fall throughout the state. The pout released throughout Windham county today, the work finishing in Woodstock late this afternoon, were fingerlings, this year's hatch. In this vicinity releases were made in Old Killingly pond, Alexander's lake and Moosup pond.

RECEIVE WORD OF DEATH OF FORMER LOCAL PASTOR

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 19.—Belated news of the death of Rev. Frederick W. Armstrong, a former pastor of the Danielson Nazarene church, has been received here. Rev. Mr. Armstrong died suddenly, Nov. 3, while attending a convention of the National Holiness association, in session at the Warren Street Methodist Episcopal church in New York. He was stricken by heart disease and died within half an hour.

Rev. Mr. Armstrong was pastor of the Nazarene church here for three years, beginning his duties in 1908. At that time the congregation was without a church, a need which Rev. Mr. Armstrong saw, and he set forth to raise $1,000 as a nucleus of a fund that was destined to bring the church into being. With the money a site was purchased on Academy street from the late Charles Adams. Three years later, at which time Rev. Mr. Armstrong had gone to another pastorate, the church was built, during the pastorate of Rev. Mr. Raymond.

Handicapped by blindness for many years past, Rev. Mr. Armstrong never lost his enthusiasm for his work and carried on vigorously. He was making his home in Stratford, this state, at the time of his death. He is well remembered by many Danielson people. The late Major John Armstrong, for years engaged in business here as a tailor, was a brother.

VETERAN ODD FELLOWS GIVEN 40-YEAR JEWELS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 19.—Veterans' night, was observed by Quinebaug lodge, I. O. O. F., last evening at their quarters in the town hall building, with many old-time Odd Fellows in attendance and the grand lodge represented by Harold H. French, grand guardian of Stamford, and District Deputy Herbert Johnson of Putnam in attendance. Twelve other lodges of the order were represented by visitors. Elmer Bliven, as noble grand, presided.

Among those in attendance was Alfred Boswell of East River, a former resident of Danielson and the last surviving charter member of Quinebaug lodge. Five of the veterans in attendance—Alfred A. Ennis, Levi Clark, Deforest Wells, Henry H. Starkweather, Frank T. Preston—were presented with 40-year jewels. Two other members of the lodge, Charles Shepard of Providence and George Keach of Clayville, who were unable to be present, also will receive 40-year jewels, indicative of the number of years they have been Odd Fellows. In attendance at the meeting was Charles Hickey, who has been an Odd Fellow for 55 years. Mr. Hickey is a resident on North Main street. In addition to the circumstances mentioned there were various entertainment features, a number of speeches, and refreshments were served.

Watch out for the sale from now on of "seals," reminiscent of the Christmas season. Attention is called to this because of the fact that there has been much confusion in the past as to distinguishing between purely decorative seals, against which there is no prejudice, and the official Christmas seals sold throughout this state to raise money with which to wage war against tuberculosis. The official seals referred to will not go on sale here until Dec. 1, it was stated this afternoon. Purchase of these seals serves the double purpose of helping unfortunate humanity and adding a decorative touch to Christmas letters and packages.

Former Resident Recovering

Additional reports today establish that Miss Cora Chase, New York artist formerly resident here, is resting comfortably and with the indications pointing to her recovery from her injuries in due time. Miss Chase was run down by an automobile in New York last Friday night. A revised listing of her injuries shows that she has a broken right leg, a bruised hand and bruised head. The head and hand injuries are not at all of a serious nature.

The ashes of Alexander Simpson, whose body was cremated in Denver a few days ago, were received here by Undertaker A. F. Wood this morning for burial in Westfield cemetery. Mr. Simpson never was a resident here, but it was his custom to come here summers for lengthy visits up to three or four years ago. On one of the visits of the family in this territory, a child of Mr. and Mrs. Simpson's died and was buried here. By profession Mr. Simpson was a civil engineer and lived in New York before going to Denver.

In connection with the presentation of a United States flag to the Goodyear Congregational church, the Woman's Relief corps of Danielson is to attend the Goodyear church in a body next Sunday morning. The presentation ceremony will be in charge of Mrs. Cora Page, patriotic instructor of the corps. The church service begins at 10:45.

Elected Grange Master

Mrs. Charles E. Haynes heads Killingly grange as master for the ensuing year, and the other newly elected officers are: Overseer, Mrs. L. E. Bradford; lecturer, Mrs. Ella Lathrop; steward, William Williams; assistant steward, Francis Ingraham; chaplain Mrs. Charles A. Downs; treasurer Rev. Charles A. Downs; secretary, Mrs. Ralph Colvin; gatekeeper, Earl Dexter; Ceres, Mabel Gallup; Pomona Clara Hopkins; Flora, Helen Green; lady assistant steward, Estella Converse.

This was ladies' night on the card of the Danielson Lions club, and with that in mind the members entertained at The Maples, on the Brooklyn road. A nice dinner was served. The special guest of the evening was Lucius Whipple, principal of the senior high school at Pawtucket, and district governor of the Lions' organization. The committee of arrangements was made up of Roland Boulaine, Bernard Casey and Lyonell Gauthier.

Observe 10th Anniversary

Members of the Social club made a delightful occasion of their tenth anniversary observance tonight at their rooms on the second floor of the Gallup building. Each member was privileged to bring a guest and improved the opportunity to do so. A bountiful banquet was served. Later bridge was played. Throughout the ten years of its existence this club has been an ideal organization in affording pleasant social opportunities for its members.

PUTNAM

OVER 60 PERSONS OUT OF WORK IN PUTNAM

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 19—Steps of a civic committee to alleviate unemployment in this city through a survey of conditions this week, has brought to light the fact that at least 20 more people residing within the confines of the city are jobless. The total now reported as being out of work has surpassed the 60 mark with indications that complete figures will be exceedingly greater. For this reason that committee has issued another appeal to property owners having odd jobs, no matter how trivial, to report them to the registry bureaus as soon as possible.

The situation while not striking clearly to the mass is in the full sense of the word a serious one and even the smallest job with only a few cents recompense for the worker will perhaps mean a substantial meal for wanting children.

The appeal of the civic committee for the aid of unemployment is one of the most worthy causes yet directed to the public. The response of the people of Putnam to the drive for the nurses home of the Day Kimball hospital has been characterized as "splendid," and at the present time a Red Cross roll call is meeting with unusual success which brings to mind the question—can the populace of the community bear to let the appeal of the needy go unheeded?

The town school committee held its monthly meeting Tuesday evening in the law chamber of Torrey and Geissler on Main street. The only action of the board of interest was an affirmative vote passed on a bill restoring to the Putnam High School Athletic association the privilege of selling confectionery at school athletic contests. The profits derived from the sales will be devoted to support the association. The school organization by a vote of the board, will also receive a substantial fund created by profits of the sale of candy and other confections which had been accumulating over a period of years. The fund will be turned over to Principal E. L. Robinson and will be devoted to defraying of cost of establishing extra [illegible] activities at the school.

All schools of the public school system will be closed Friday when teachers' visiting day will be observed, Supt. L. M. Farrin announced this afternoon.

On Monday evening members of the Putnam Teachers' club will hold the annual autumn banquet at a tea house in Pomfret. School officials will be guests of the teachers at the dinner.

"Boomerang" is the title of a play that will be presented by the members of the senior class of Putnam high school in December.

A number of members of the Putnam lodge of Elks were in Webster Wednesday evening attending the annual charity ball of the Webster lodge which was held in the new municipal auditorium there.

More than [illegible] have been enrolled in the American Red Cross by drive teams of the Putnam chapter, in charge of the annual roll call now being made. Putnam's membership quota is 800. Arthur F. Hughes general chairman of the drive said this afternoon the committee is anxious for the enrollment of 1,000 members.

PUTMAN HAS MADE REMARKABLE PROGRESS IN PAST FIFTY YEARS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 19—The growth of Putnam over a period of 64 years was the subject of an interesting talk given today at the luncheon meeting of the Putnam Rotary club by Judge Lucius H. Fuller aged dean of Putnam business men and charter member of the club. Judge Fuller explained that in recent years he has been confronted with the query that Putnam has not grown or progressed a bit in 50 years. The statement, he charged, was erroneous and in most cases comes from those who know nothing of what they are saying.

Judge Fuller came to this community more than 60 years ago and has been continuously in business since. He has an intimate knowledge of the progress and reverses over the long span of time embracing more than a half century and does not hesitate to say that Putnam is in the front ranks of Connecticut's up and coming communities.

Reflecting for a few minutes upon the past the business man told of conditions which he found upon his arrival here 64 years ago. Grove street now one of the city's most imposing residential sections was nothing but an open lot and had but one house situated beyond the intersection of Wilkinson street. The north end of the city had a few houses, most of which were farms. Woodstock avenue and Church street, now the outstanding residential streets west of the Quinebaug river, were unheard of and the area the streets now embrace were them but the west banks of the river.

The business section was but a cluster of low wooden buildings facing on a dirt street which for the most part of the year was muddy from rains, and Elm street, now Main, had but one store located on it.

Returning to the present, Judge Fuller asserted that the city has progressed and developed remarkably since he "came to town." Its population has advanced from 2,714 to close to the 9,000 mark and is still increasing. Municipal and state highways brought the first of [illegible] improvements and inspired the erection of modern public and private buildings which has brought the community on a par with all of the other towns of its size in the state and in many instances with those larger.

Upon the conclusion of his talk Judge Fuller was given a rising vote of thanks by his fellow club members.

CHILD HEALTH CONFERENCE

A conference of far-reaching importance is that which has been opened by President Hoover in Washington on child health. This is the conference which was called by the president more than a year ago, at which the 4,000 delegates represent all the states of the country and from which important results are expected. It is a conference to study the present status of the health and well-being of the children of the United States, to report what is being done, to recommend what to do and how to do it.

There is unquestionably good reason for such a conference and the president in his address declared the problem to be the protection and stimulation of the normal child, aid to the physically defective and handicapped child and the problems of the delinquent child. Pointing out the changed conditions of today, the president insisted "our children must be prepared to meet entirely new contacts and new forces. They must be physically strong and mentally placed to stand up under the increasing pressure of life. Their problem is not alone one of physical health, but of mental, emotional, spiritual health."

The president directed special attention to the situation which has developed from the "highly congested areas with a thousand changes resulting in that swift transition from a rural and agrarian people to an urban, industrial nation. Perhaps the widest range of difficulties with which we are dealing in the betterment of children grows out of their crowding into cities." These crowded conditions in big cities have their detrimental effect, but it is not simply in the big cities that the problem with children exists. It is to be found generally, though there can be no question that conditions in the big centers are worse. This the president recognizes when he says, "we have grave responsibilities to the rural child."

While the president rightfully insists that industry must not rob our children of their rightful heritage, it cannot be believed that his idea is that they should be made mollycoddles, be taught to be above work, to be encouraged to be disrespectful or to be so surrounded with what are considered protective measures as to take away all regard for law or authorities.

REAPPORTIONMENT

Congress hasn't had the constitutionally required reapportionment for 20 years. By the census figures which have been made public it is possible to determine the number of representatives from the respective states under the reapportionment agreed upon in the last session of congress. By that action it was determined that there should be no increase in the membership in the house, the restriction being to prevent that body from becoming unwieldy. By that action it was also established that the 1930 census should be a basis for reapportionment and that if congress doesn't make the reapportionment in accord therewith the figures of the census bureau shall govern in the matter.

This provision was adopted in order that there might be overcome the situation that has existed for the past ten years in the refusal of congress to carry out the constitutional requirements for reapportionment. This refusal has been due to the fact that the two houses of congress could not agree upon what should be done. There was an unwillingness to vote a cut in the number of members from those states which would be obliged to experience a decreased representation, with the result that there were sufficient votes to prevent action. The time is coming for the new reapportionment and there should be no repetition of the past decade.

By the census and the prospective changes under it when reapportionment is put through, Connecticut stands to gain one member. This was as anticipated. Massachusetts, Maine, Vermont and Rhode Island will each lose one, so that it will mean a decrease of three for New England. Increased population and the failure to get what belonged to it in the past ten years will mean a gain of nine for California, three for Texas, two for New York, New Jersey and Ohio, while Michigan will gain four. Illinois will stand still and Pennsylvania will lose two, as will Kentucky, Iowa and Georgia, while Missouri will experience a loss of three.

It is, however, only that readjustment of representation under the changing population, with the exception that it is based upon keeping the house membership at 435 instead of having it grow to too large numbers.

SPAIN'S TROUBLES

Spain finds its troubles increased at this time in common with other countries. The reasons may be different, but the elements of unrest are evidently ready and willing to take advantage of all opportunities for trouble making. How thoroughly they are organized, or how prepared they are to go ahead with concerted action, seem rather uncertain, but they are not neglecting their opportunities to manifest their feelings and to create the impression that they are likely to control the situation.

Spain is a country where rumblings are periodically expected, where conditions resembling the present have occurred before, where opposition to the government and even opposition to the monarchy is given expression from time to time. Thus, trouble of such a character creates less surprise in that country than it might in some others. But, even though that seems to be a Spanish habit, it cannot be and it isn't being regarded lightly by the government. Efforts are being taken to suppress the trouble as there is belief that it will be successful.

How large possibilities develop from small incidents in Spain is indicated by the claim of the prime minister that the present trouble originated in the collapse of a building, following which the anarchistic element created a disturbance which required the efforts of the police to suppress. In that suppression the use of firearms was made necessary and two persons were killed and more than a score injured. That brought labor into the picture and a general strike for a period of 48 hours was declared. Such a situation opened up fertile ground for opponents of the government, the communists the anarchists and trouble-makers in general, and they displayed activity in many centers of population which might be taken to mean that the feeling they expressed was nation-wide.

That Spain appreciated the seriousness of the possibilities is apparent from the measures that have been taken. Confidence is maintained that they will succeed in suppressing the trouble, but there is reason to believe that the government is not basking in the shade of the belief that the situation is not serious, but is making sure of its control in all quarters. It is in keeping with the requirements ir the present wave of unrest.

NO CALL IGNORED

Out on the broad Atlantic, 500 miles from land, two boatloads of sailors were picked up from the sinking Swedish steamer Ovidia, which had been abandoned. It was a rescue made by the Mauretania under favorable conditions with the exception of freezing weather.

Due credit must be given to the captain of the rescuing ship and his crew, as well as to the other vessels which responded to the SOS call and were standing by to aid if necessary. But in the account of the rescue appears the statement that among the ships responding was the America captained by George Fried.

Fried is a name which has figured prominently in connection with important rescues at sea, and it must give oceanic travelers greater confidence when it is known that he and his ship are making the crossing. He has so completely demonstrated the fact that no call that comes to his ears from a reasonable distance will be ignored. In this latter instance he had been steaming for ten hours before reaching the Ovidia, only to find that he was not needed, but the vital thing is that he did not ignore the call just because some other ship might get there first. He was bent upon doing his best to relieve those in distress. It was a repetition of the evidence which he has furnished before that he can be expected to live up to the tradition of the sea that those in distress should be assisted. With him no call is ignored.

Captain Fried has gained an enviable reputation in this particular aside from his masterly handling of his ship under all conditions, and it stands out in marked contrast to those instances where it has been too often claimed that ships passed by without giving heed to distress signals or making an endeavor to render aid.

ALWAYS SOMETHING NEW

Inventors come and inventors go but the number of inventions pile up in ever increasing number.

It is nearly 100 years since the patent office was reorganized and in that time more than 1,780,000 patents have been granted and it has been necessary to build 25 miles of shelves in order to store the descriptions, drawings and blueprints connected therewith. The patent bureau has become one of the highly important branches of the government, but with the increasing age of the bureau there also come increasing demands upon it. It finds that its most valuable employes are sought by industry after being given the training that will make them much desired by industry and it experiences difficulty in keeping up with the demands that are made upon it by inventors of new things. Thus, though there has been a tremendous number of patents granted, there continue to be more new things invented, or on which a patent is sought, each year than the bureau can pass upon.

This presents a situation that has caused much annoyance to inventors. Delays in getting decisions on their inventions have been spread out over years. Improvement has followed needed changes but the fact that the bureau is confronted with more business than it can handle ought to be evidence enough for providing it with such help as is required in order to keep up with the work.

The patent office is one branch of the government which is self-supporting. In fact, it produces revenue for the government, which should be reason enough for alloting it sufficient funds in order to retain its employes and keep up with the demands of those who are seeking protection on their new devices. It is only what the inventors have a right to expect in their effort to beat out the other fellow.

A MATTER OF TASTE

Nancy rushed toward the elevator of the apartment hotel and pressed impatiently on the signal button. From far above a responsive clank and the whir of electric machinery indicated that the car had begun its descent. Nervously she tapped her foot and glanced at her wrist watch. Six o'clock! What exasperating slow things these automatic elevators were. Never on the right floor; somebody else always pressing on the button and interfering with you.

Why wait for the old thing? Why not give up the thought of cooking supper in her own flat and get a sandwich from the tearoom on the corner? With sudden decision she whirled on her heel and collided sharply with some one else.

"Ug-h—I say—my fault!" A tall, red-headed young man was making breathless apology.

"No, not at all," interrupted Nancy. "I'm to blame. I get so tired waiting for that elevator to make up its mind—"

Clang! With a jerk and a flash of light in its interior, the malignant elevator at last reached the first floor. Transferring his hat and a large overstuffed paper bag to one arm, the young man threw open the bronze door and bowed Nancy inside the car.

"Now that we're in," he grinned, pointing to the row of electric switch buttons, "where to?"

"I go to sixth," said Nancy.

"Good," chuckled the young man, "so do I," and he leaned forward and pushed the sixth button. As he did so the paper bag in the other arm tipped slightly and the topmost parcel tumbled to the floor. With a swift dive the owner stooped to retrieve it, but not before Nancy caught a glimpse of a gaudy red and yellow carton and the label: "Squiffs' Animal Crackers."

Animal crackers! Blue eyes met brown in humorous questioning. "For the children?" asked Nancy in her sweetest voice. For an instant the young man's throat and face were redder than his hair.

"No-o," he stammered, "for—for me. I guess you'll think I'm crazy, but I saw 'em in a store today and I couldn't resist. I was wild about 'em as a kid." Nancy's mouth quirked into a delightful grin.

"So was I," she confessed.

"You-u? Hurray?" With an enthusiastic gesture the other dived into his bag and produced the little box. "Have one," he urged.

Nancy selected a golden brown tiger and nibbled daintily; the young man chose a bear and a zebra. All at once the atmosphere in the little car became warmly congenial.

Clang. The little elevator halted determinedly at the sixth floor. Almost regretfully the young man pulled open the door, and almost regretfully, too, Nancy stepped out beside him.

"Larry! Take those groceries right into the nook. She's waiting. Oh, Nancy! What luck to see you, dear." From an adjacent doorway a plump, gray-haired woman hurried forward toward the girl.

"This is my nephew, Larry Hilburne," she explained. "Larry's here from the west for a little visit. You must come to dinner tonight and help me keep him entertained."

'Ple-ase, won't you?" Larry's eyes were pleading with Nancy. Something was singing joyously inside the girl's heart as she agreed and turned toward her own door.

"Oh, I say—just a minute." Larry was following after her.

"Well, Mr. Hilburne?"

'It's just that—that I wanted to tell you you're a great girl," chuckled Larry. "And, oh, yes—have another cracker!"—Exchange.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19—Senator-elect Bulkley of Ohio was in Washington sometime before election, he being then, of course, merely Candidate Bulkley, and he seemed to the Bystander the most confident man in the world. He had no doubts.

At that time the Washington political corps was inclined to grin down its sleeve a bit at Bulkley's notion that he was going to be elected. A prohibition repealist democrat from republican Ohio, birthplace of the 18th amendment drive, sounded like a joke to them. But Bulkley just grinned.

"Come out and see," he said.

And a good many Washington political reporters did go out and see. They were not slow to reveal their feelings. A week or two before election they all seemed just as sure as Bulkley of what was going to happen.

Luck Charm

The Bystander made no look-see tour of Ohio. He recalls vividly, however, that Bulkley told him the real issue of the 1930 campaign in Ohio or anywhere else was not prohibition, but Hoover.

And it was to support that assertion that he extracted from his pocket and displayed his own rabbit's foot charm against election day. It was a relic of the 1928 Hoover campaign, a copper pocket piece like a big penny bearing Hoover's name on one side and a "good for four years of prosperity" legend on the other.

"I've been trying to find some place to cash this in," Bulkley observed.

Well, Bulkley has cashed—and how. A six-year term as United States senator is no job to be sneezed at. It means political prosperity anyhow.

And when you add to that all the gossip that has run and will run about the availability for higher office of an Ohio democrat who can get elected to the senate with apparent ease while shouting loudly for repeal of prohibition against the desire of most of his party colleagues on the state ballots to go a little softly in hat quarter, the Bulkley pocket-piece penny seems to have more than made good its promise.

The Ohioan ought to treasure that bit of copper along with the family jewels.

By-Product

A by-product invariably of bye-elections is presidential booms. For all who harbor vice presidential dreams as a result of election, however, Vice President Charlie Curtis' dictum might be helpful. He knows.

And he says there is no such thing as a vice presidential boom. Presidential candidates are nominated, according to Curtis, while their ticket mates are just picked.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Changes Needed

Mr. Editor: A clipping from an editorial of the Hartford Courant which appeared in Edwin W. Higgins' letter to The Bulletin of Nov. 12, may well apply to the political situation in Norwich. At the last election hundreds of republicans of Norwich voted a straight democratic ticket. Nothing happens without a cause. There is a reason for all things. The unemployment situation was a small factor. The republican candidates were judicious men worthy of confidence. But we who listened to the murmur of the mass of republican voters before election knew what the result would be. They were dissatisfied. They believed there should be changes in the senatorial and town committees, that the republican party had grounded and was almost a wreck Amos and Andy would say "A mess." With the present republican regime no republican senator can be elected from the 19th district or republican representatives from the town of Norwich.

There should be a political housecleaning.

A REPUBLICAN.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Peter Rabbit Is Followed

If watching others you may try
You must admit that you're a spy.
—Peter Rabbit.

No one likes a spy. Still, people seem to forget this whenever their curiosity in regard to their neighbors is aroused. It is just the same way among the little people of the green forest and the green meadows. No one likes to be spied on, yet all of them do more or less spying on their neighbors.

Peter Rabbit knew that he was being watched and for once he was glad that it was so. He wanted to be watched. He wanted his neighbors to become so curious that they would watch him so as to try to find out the secret they were sure he had in the green forest. It was all a part of Peter's plan to get even with them for teasing him so when he had first told about the strange song in the green forest.

So it was that very early one morning, just after jolly, round, bright Mr. Sun had kicked off his rosy blankets for his daily climb up in the blue, blue sky, Peter left the dear old briar-patch and scampered lipperty-lipperty-lip across the green meadows. He was headed straight for the green forest. Sammy Jay, who was on his way to the old orchard, saw Peter coming. Sammy hid in the top of a pine tree to watch.

"Now what has got into Peter Rabbit to send him over here at this time of day," muttered Sammy. "This is the time when he should be getting home to the dear old briar-patch, not leaving it. I will just keep an eye on Peter and see what he is up to."

Almost the same thoughts were passing through the black head of Sammy's big cousin, Blacky the Crow, who had been flying over the dear old briar-patch just as Peter left it. Without a sound Blacky wheeled in the air and headed back for the green forest. He hoped Peter hadn't noticed this, but Peter had and had chuckled as he ran. He had caught a glimpse of Sammy Jay, too, and he guessed that Sammy was watching him. When Peter passed a tree on which Drummer the woodpecker was at work looking for borers and saw Drummer suddenly lean forward to watch him Peter chuckled more than ever.

Having reached the green forest there was less need to hurry, so Peter hopped along, lipperty-lipperty-lip, rather slowly. At length he reached the big, old stump where he was in the habit of meeting Whitefoot the wood mouse. Whitefoot was nowhere in sight so Peter hid under a little hemlock tree and sat down to wait. He didn't have to wait long. Blacky the crow flew to the top of a tall pine tree not far away an dbegan to caw in his usual morning manner. Not once did Blacky appear to look toward Peter's hiding-place, but Peter felt sure that Blacky knew just where he was.

A moment or so later Sammy Jay appeared quite as if he had nothing in particular on his mind and had merely wandered that way. Then Drummer the woodpecker landed on the old stump and began to industriously look for borers and grubs. He was followed by Yank Yank the nuthatch. Soon Tommy Tit the chickadee arrived. Each appeared to be intent wholly on his own business, but Peter knew that that business just then was to try to find out what had brought him, Peter, over there. Peter chuckled, but on one heard him chuckle.

Presently Whitefoot the wood mouse appeared on the top of the old stump. He passed the time of day with Drummer the woodpecker, Yank Yank and Tommy Tit, but he kept a watchful eye on Sammy Jay and Blacky the crow, especially on Blacky. He suspected that a breakfast of tender Wood Mouse would not come amiss to Blacky, and in this he was quite right.

"Now what has got into Peter Rabbit to send him over here at this time of day?"

Peter poked his head out from under the little hemlock tree and then hopped out in the most matter-of-fact manner. Whitefoot nodded and disappeared. Then from an old log half hidden in bushes there came a little warbling song. Every one stopped what he happened to be doing and sat perfectly still to listen.

YOUR HEALTH

Eyestrain

By Hamilton Stillson, M. D., Seattle.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

How often have we heard the term "eyestrain" used. Today this term is classified as unscientific. It is used carelessly to express the condition of strained feeling in the eyes when the eyes have become irritated or congested from various causes.

As a matter of fact, well eyes stand a great amount of use if we ourselves are well, and if the conditions are suitable for the sustained use of them.

Oculists have long since ceased to put their patients with "eyestrain" into darkened rooms. They have ceased asking these patients to coddle their eyes by binding or bandaging or poulticing with tea-leaves and the like.

That sort of thing is now considered all wrong. Why? First, because most cases of "eyestrain" are cases of nerves. One might as well call it a case of "ear trouble" when a person jumps at a sudden noise. No, it isn't the ears; it is the sensitiveness to noise. And when we say that eyestrain is probably merely an oversensitiveness in the nervous part of the eyes, we mean simply that nerves in general are too sensitive. That is why most cases of eyestrain have headache. Better call it brainstrain than eyestrain.

In the second place, we see "with the mind's eye, Horatio," rather than with the eyeballs. The eyeballs simply form the image that is seen with the brain. And the image in well eyes is formed almost automatically; the "seeing" is done "in the depths of the soul."

Furthermore, using the eyes should be good for the eyes, in the same way as using the ears is good for the ears. Everyone knows that "straining" to hear strengthens the hearing powers.

Of course, we are not now discussing diseased eyes, or eyes that need suitable glasses, or eyes that have met accident. We are simply trying to say that all the blame should not be put on the eyes when a person is suffering from eyestrain. We are saying that the condition of the general system should be considered—especially that of the nervous system. We are saying that instead of confining the patient in a dark room where he will probably become more and more apprehensive and feel as though his eyes were becoming more and more sensitive to the light, he should muster up his courage and let in the light and use his eyes; he should belittle as much as he can this bugbear "eyestrain."

About the general run-down condition of the system—if a person is not up to par, why not join the throng that now days is having its periodic

Stories That Recall Others

Hardly Expected.

A very capable and personable young woman, driving her car in downtown traffic, struck another automobile in which there were two men. Believing that the first to accuse has the weight of assurance, she hopped out and immediately spoke in impassioned accusation. Somewhat overcome the two men meekly wilted, and when the cars were untangled, went their way. The young woman, seeing some bystanders laughing, asked: "What's the matter? What was funny about that accident?"

"We just wondered what those cops said to you!" was the reply.

"Oh, my heavens! Were those police?" she gasped.

Which?

Two local working girls were discussing various acquaintances while on the street car.

"He makes me so mad," said one girl, "when he talks to me, that I see red!"

"Yeah?" asked the other, "Red Who?"

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

C. Cowles & Company, New Haven

C. Cowles & Co., of New Haven, was started in 1838 as a manufacturer and dealer in carriage material, cloth leather, lamps and mountings for buggies and coaches. They also made a complete and high grade assortment of baby carriage hardware.

During the prosperous period in the carriage trade, this company became the largest producer of carriage lamps in the United States. When the carriage business began to wane, it made automobile hardware, fasteners and fittings, and other quality accessories for the highest grade automobiles. It is now manufacturing parts and accessories for airplanes and plans to increase production in this line as soon as the industry becomes more stabilized.

While the Cowles company was located on Orange street, it furnished power for the first electric lights used in New Haven, and water for the public baths of the city. They also made part of the equipment for the Southern New England Telephone Co., which was the first exchange in the United States.

The management of the company has been for the most part in the hands of the Cowles family. Ruel P. Cowles, brother of the founder was president for many years. After his death this office was passed on to his eldest son, Frederick L. Cowles, and later to his other son, Louis C. Cowles, who entered as office boy. For more than 50 years, he held the various offices of secretary, treasurer, vice president, president and chairman of the board.

The late Governor S. E. Baldwin was a director of this company for 19 years, until the time of his death. The present officers are: C. M. Costello, president; L. C. Cowles, vice president and general manager; F. A. Ford, secretary; P. S. Gates, treasurer.

Old Sore Tortured For 30 Years
She Is Happy Now
For 30 long, pain-tortured years, Mrs. J. C. Henderson of North Carolina, had an ulcer on her ankle—no matter what treatment she tried or amount of money she spent—nothing helped her distressing condition.
Someone suggested Peterson's Ointment to her—she admits she was doubtful but she was so discouraged with this never-ceasing agony she was willing to try anything.
Before Mrs. Henderson had finished her second box of Peterson's, the ulcer had completely disappeared—she was overjoyed to think that at last she could enjoy living.
Peterson's ointment accomplishes these near miracles because it's so powerfully healing. Even one application instantly relieves the pain and soreness of bruises, piles, boils—a few days' treatment entirely banishes pimples, blackheads—even the long standing cases. A 35c box proves it—all drugstores.

Did Not Like to Go Out on Account of Pimples. Cuticura Healed.
"A few pimples broke out on my face and arms. They itched so badly that I scratched them. By scratching them I made them worse, and when I went to bed at night the rubbing of the clothes bothered them. I did not like to go out among other people on account of them.
"I had the trouble about two months before I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment. After using them four weeks there was a great improvement, and in about eight weeks I was completely healed." (Signed) Wallace La Vallee, 270 Parkway, Chelsea, Mass., Jan. 15, 1930.

Ease in 5 Minutes—Comfort in 5 Hours
Mothers... Watch Children's COLDS
COMMON head colds often "settle" in throat and chest where they may become dangerous. Don't take a chance—at the first sniffle rub on Children's Musterole once every hour for five hours.
Children's Musterole is just good old Musterole, you have known so long, in milder form.
This famous blend of oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other ingredients brings relief naturally. Musterole gets action because it is a scientific "counter-irritant"—not just a salve—it penetrates and stimulates blood circulation, helps to draw out infection and pain.
Keep full strength Musterole on hand, for adults and the milder—Children's Musterole for little tots. All druggists.

UNEMPLOYMENT FUND WILL SHARE BALL PROCEEDS

Battery B, 192nd Artillery, C. N. G., of this city, voted, at its weekly meeting, to hold a formal military ball next month. A committee of non-commissioned officers, Sergts. E. L. Bonin, George J. Malcolm, Harold A. Martin and H. B. Frink, with the officers of the battery, Captain Meredith Lee, Lieut. Harry W. House and Lieut. Andrew M. White, was named to arrange for the affair, which, it is anticipated, will eclipse any event of its nature, in the past half dozen years, in Norwich.

Col. M. J. Mogensen of New Haven, commanding officer of the 192nd Artillery, F. A., will be the guest of honor and a citizens' committee is being formed to welcome the distinguished military officer. Those who visited the 192nd pageant at the Niantic camp last summer, will remember Colonel Mogensen, who was, at that time, host to Governor John H. Trumbull, at the regimental review.

The battery will donate ten per cent of the proceeds of the military ball to unemployment relief and has arranged with the family welfare department of the United Workers to dispense the unemployment fund. The remainder of the proceeds will be applied to the battery fund.

An orchestra from Newport, R. I., has been engaged for the occasion and a concert of modern music will precede the ball and a splendid floor show is being arranged for by the committee to provide entertainment between the dance numbers.

SUIT ON NOTE AND FOR RENTS ACCOUNTING

On a suit on a note and for an accounting of rents alleged to have been collected, Peter Koshman is the plaintiff against Nicholas Tymcheck, both of this city, which has been filed in the common pleas court.

The note claimed is for $150, dated Oct. 5, 1928, and in the other count in the suit it is alleged that Koshman is the owner of a six-apartment house at 107 Washington street, for which Tymcheck was appointed agent and that he has collected $2,218 in rents but that there is $944.98 of this amount which is still unaccounted for. Damages of $2,000 are claimed in the suit and real estate at the corner of North Main and Sixth streets has been attached.

WEDDING

Riley-Fitzgerald

Miss Bridie Fitzgerald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Fitzgerald of Uncasville, and Dennis Riley, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Riley of No. 72 McKinley avenue, were married at 8 o'clock Tuesday morning at St. Patrick's church, the ceremony being performed by Rt. Rev. Msgr. Michael H. May, the rector. Mrs. John O'Neil, sister of the bridegroom, attended the bride as matron of honor and the bridegroom had his brother-in-law, John O'Neil, as best man.

The bride was attractive in brown crepe, wore a hat to match and carried a bouquet of yellow roses. The matron of honor was dressed in tan crepe with hat to match. She carried a bouquet of pink carnations. Breakfast was served at Norwich Inn, covers being laid for about 25 members of the two families and intimate friends. Later in the day Mr. and Mrs. Riley left on a wedding trip to New York and upon their return will reside in a newly furnished apartment on Cliff street. Many friends have tendered them best wishes for a prosperous and happy married life.

OBITUARY

William Stetson

After an illness of about a week, William Stetson, 78, long a resident of Norwich, and the last member of the widely known Stetson family, died Wednesday afternoon about 2 o'clock at The Sheltering Arms, where he and his wife had made their home for the past few weeks. Mr. Stetson, who formerly resided at No. 3 Peck street, died as the result of a recent shock. He suffered a previous shock about nine years ago and for some time had been afflicted with blindness.

Mr. Stetson was born in Norwich, February 27, 1852, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Rawson Stetson, and was with the exception of a short time, a life-long resident of this city. At one time he conducted the Boston Clothing store on Main street, and had been employed in various well known Norwich retail stores. He was twice married, his first wife being Belle Stewart of New London. After her death, he was united in marriage, in 1894, with Annie (Comstock) Maples.

He was a member of the Baptist church in New London and while health permitted attended the Central Baptist church, this city. Surviving are his wife, and one step-daughter, Mrs. William H. Rush of No. 252 West Main street. Mr. Stetson was well known among the older residents of the city who were deeply grieved to learn of his passing from earthly life.

Sister Mary Eugene

In the Norwich Catholic churches Sunday the congregations were asked to pray for the eternal repose of the soul of Sister Mary Eugene, who died at the convent of the Sisters of Charity in Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 12th. Sister Mary Eugene was born in Preston, Conn., the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Farley. In later years the family resided in Taftville. She celebrated fifty years in the Order of the Sisters of Charity Oct. 10th last.

The gifted nun had the distinction of having taught for over 30 years in the famous Seton Hall seminary, at Greensburg, Pa., suburban to Pittsburgh. Especially was she accomplished as an elocutionist. During her summer vacations she had occasionally visited relatives in Connecticut.

Burial was in the Sisters' plot at Pittsburg. Sister Mary Eugene is survived by two brothers, John Farley, for years chief of police in Denver, and Joseph, a member of the Chicago detective bureau, also by a sister, Miss Annie Farley, of Providence, R. I. The event of her golden jubilee in October was made much of by her former pupils and the people of Pittsburgh, and she received many felicitations and gifts.

Entertained Arhelmma Club

Miss Lillian Sandberg entertained the Arhelmma club at her home on Spring street Wednesday evening. Mrs. Helen Walker holding the highest score. The consolation prize went to Mrs. Amy Greiner. Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess.

NORWICH TEACHERS ENJOY SOCIAL EVENING AT LEAGUE'S BANQUET

With members of the town school board and Principal E. J. Graham as guests, the Norwich Teachers league held its annual banquet Wednesday evening at Norwich Inn, where covers were laid for 120 and the social and entertainment programme made the event one of unusual pleasure for all who attended.

The table decorations were in yellow chrysanthemums, by Ernst, and during the banquet hour there were musical selections by Guile's orchestra and the teachers joined in song numbers which were clever parodies upon popular airs. The menu consisted of grape fruit supreme, celery, olives, asparagus soup, roast turkey, cranberry sauce, squash, candied sweet potatoes, pineapple cream cheese salad, chocolate sundae, cake, crackers, cheese, demi-tasse.

Miss Mary E. Rogers, president of the league, was the toastmaster, speaking of the pleasure it was to have as the league's guest the woman member of the town school board, Mrs. A. H. Chase, to which Mrs. Chase made an appropriate but brief response.

Walter F. Lester, chairman of the town school board, was heard in interesting remarks as he spoke of some of the problems and needs which confront the teachers and expressed his hope that the school board in future might always contain a woman member, no matter what the political complexion of the party in ascendency might be.

Superintendent E. J. Graham was also a speaker, giving expression to his appreciation of the high standard maintained by the teaching force of the Norwich public schools.

The programme closed with an entertaining series of character impersonations by Nan Lagerstedt of Boston, which were enthusiastically applauded.

The committee of arrangements for the entertaining evening comprised Miss Genevieve M. McCormick, chairman; Miss Elizabeth G. Beckley, Miss Martha E. Reynolds, Miss Mary K Callahan and Miss Augusta Shereshevsky.

ADDRESS UPON FAITH BY REV. DR. JEFFERSON

Rev. Dr. Charles A. Jefferson of New York continued his series of addresses Wednesday evening at the United Congregational church under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian association, speaking upon "Faith as a World Force."

Rev. J. Eldred Brown, rector of Trinity Episcopal church, conducted the devotional exercises at the opening of the meeting and Dr. Jefferson gave it as his opinion that a definition of faith would describe it building on the invisible in order to accomplish the impossible. Such a definition would fit the accomplishments of Moses, of Columbus, of railroad builders, of merchant princes, of the builders of great fortunes, all of them men of faith. Men of science too are men of faith for they are willing to build upon the invisible. You can see what faith is by what it does.

Dr. Jefferson was also a speaker at the noon luncheon of the Rotary club at the Wauregan hotel where he was introduced by Rev. T. M. Shipherd and spoke upon "The Future Democracy," in which he declared that the thing needed to make democracy safe for the future was personal service and sacrifice.

PLANNING DINNER TO JUDGE CHRISTOPHER AVERY

Members of the New London County Bar association are making plans for a testimonial dinner to Judge C. L. Avery at Norwich Inn on Dec. 5 in recognition of his elevation to the supreme court bench. A suitable gift will be presented at the dinner.

Arrangements for the banquet are being made by a committee comprising George Curtis Morgan of New London; Phillip Z. Hankey of New London and State Attorney Arthur M. Brown and Edmund W. Perkins of this city. Only members of the bar are to attend.

Speakers are expected to include Judge Allyn L. Brown of this city, a member of the superior court bench, Judge Abel Tanner of New London, one of the oldest members of the county bar association, Judge Charles B. Waller of the court of common pleas and a former partner of Judge Avery, State Attorney Arthur M. Brown of this city and others.

DR. PITT SPEAKER AT BAPTIST STATE RALLY

HARTFORD, Nov. 19—(AP)—The present bad times as they presented an opportunity for sacrifice to charitable minded persons, was the subject of Dr. Albert W. Beaven, president of the Northern Baptist convention and of the Colgate Rochester Divinity school, speaking tonight at a rally for all Hartford Baptists at the Central Baptist church.

The night rally, which was arranged by the Hartford Baptist Union together with the Connecticut Baptist convention, was preceded by a meeting in the morning for Baptist ministers of all Connecticut, a noon lunch, with Rev. David A. Pitt, pastor of the Central Baptist church of Norwich as speaker.

CHARLOTTE PERKINS GILMAN SPEAKER AT BRIDGEPORT

BRIDGEPORT, Nov. 19—(AP)—Dr. Walton H. Hamilton, of Yale, addressing 200 members of the Connecticut League of Women Voters at their tenth annual convention banquet here tonight declared that "the social history of the United States could be written from supreme court records."

Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Gilman, of Norwich, urged the women to put into the world a superior race and to see to it that the world into which the race is placed is a better world.

As a method to bring about abolition of poverty, Mrs. Katherine H. Hepburn, Hartford, urged that birth control be practiced throughout the world. "Abolition of poverty must be accomplished before we can live like human beings," she said.

CATHOLIC WOMEN'S COUNCIL CONDUCTS BRIDGE PARTY

The Connecticut Council Catholic Women held the third of a series of bridge parties in their rooms on Broadway Wednesday evening. The winners were Thomas Fitzgerald, John H. Carney, Mrs. Henry B. Davenport and Mrs. M. Torrance. The ways and means committee of the council intends to have several of these parties in their rooms during the winter, giving these to help the diocesan bureau with its work in comforting the poor and needy.

State Garden Club Meeting

About 75 members of Garden clubs from all over the state assembled in New London Wednesday for the semi-annual meeting of the Federated Garden clubs of Connecticut which was being held at the Mohican hotel. Mrs. John Demarest of Norwich, federation president, conducting the meeting.

The morning business session was followed by a luncheon at which the tables were beautifully decorated with chrysanthemums from the Plant estate at Eastern Point, the gift of Mrs. Henry B. Plant, who is a member of the New London Garden club.

The speaker at the afternoon session was Mrs. W. L. Lawton, chairman of the National council, for the Protection of Roadside Beauty.

Given Bachelor Party

Friends of Benjamin Taber of 50 Lincoln avenue, manager of the Schulte store, attended an enjoyable dinner and bachelor party for him Wednesday evening at the Wauregan hotel in honor of his approaching marriage on Thanksgiving day.

PARK CHURCH WOMEN OPEN FEATURE FAIR

A burlesque style show, luncheon, afternoon tea and supper, featured the opening, Wednesday, of a two day fair, at the H. H. Osgood Memorial parish house, under the auspices of the Women's Federation of Park Congregational church. There was a very large patronage throughout the afternoon and evening. The parish house is beautifully decorated in fir, greens and varied colored crepe paper and the numerous booths are most attractive.

At luncheon the menu was: Cream of celery soup, consomme, baked ham, meat loaf, potato salad, cookies, tea or coffee, rolls and butter.

The afternoon tea menu comprised tea, toast and cake with ham or honey butter, toasted muffins, cheese biscuits, sandwiches. At supper the menu was: Chicken and mushroom patties, escalloped oysters, baked beans and brown bread, escalloped potatoes, Saratoga chips, rolls, potato salad, fruit salad, baked ham, meat loaf, vanilla ice cream with chocolate or pineapple sauce, apple or pumpkin pie a 'a mode, cake, tea or coffee.

About 8:30 o'clock following the supper, the men's club presented a burlesque style show with the following "models":

YOUNG PEOPLES' RALLY AT FRANKLIN CHURCH

Sunday evening next the rally of the young peoples' groups of eastern Connecticut, to meet Miss Betty Cushman, born in Pawtucket, R. I., five years in Foochow City, China, and just returned, will be somewhat unique.

Around football, 4-H clubs, Rudy Vallee, etc., etc., young people gather; but this is a rally around a young girl whose youth and charm are being used to lift girlhood in troubled China. That she has a magnetic message there is no doubt and from many churches the young people are coming. There will be singing, instrumental music and it is hoped brief addresses from those who accompany these groups. The service will be at 7:30 in the "Church on the Hill, Franklin.

MISS BETTY CUSHMAN

SPEAKS ON METHODS OF EDUCATION FOR BOYS

At the fourth session of the Scoutmaster's advanced training course, held Wednesday night in the Boy Scout training room, 215 Thayer building, Rev. A. H. Abbott gave a most interesting and helpful talk on boys. Mr. Abbott told of his experiences in climbing three different mountain peaks with two young men who had formerly been scouts. Drawing an anology from these experiences he brought home quite forcibly to the scout leaders that every boy must be treated as an individual boy and that it is his personal contact, heart-to-heart treatment, which builds satisfactions which guarantee character.

"Just as the three mountain peaks were unique so every boy when discovered is unique," declared Mr. Abbott. Developing his topic further, he described the four classes of boys and of individuals we have contact with. He told of the first type, the pioneer type of boy and of the encouragement which should be given him. He then described the boy who likes to verify things as he finds them to discover the why of things. His third type was the boy who accepts things as they are intelligently and strives to make the best of them. His fourth class was the dangerous boy who takes everything for granted, his clothing, his habits, his living, his future, etc. Mr. Abbott pointed out that the business of most teachers, preachers and leaders of youth was to discover the kind of individual a boy is and then to strive to raise him to a higher type of boy than he is, to stimulate him to realize in himself a greatness which every boy possesses in degree.

Following Rev. Mr. Abbott's talk, Dr. R. R. Agnew told the scout leaders wherein he had succeeded in getting materials for the building of the first winter cabin on the new camp site. Both Rev. Mr. Abbott and Dr. Agnew were warmly applauded by the men and a great deal of enthusiasm was manifested over the progress which has been made in the realization of a camp for Norwich boys.

Walter Weidman, vice chairman of the Scoutmaster round table, presided in the absence of Will Collins, and a committee composed of Lloyd Rathbun, Art Collins and Walter Weidman was appointed to see that the cabin gets underway immediately. An all-city hike is planned for Saturday and some of the men plan to get out to start clearing the land.

The round table was also in favor of having another joint court of honor with the Girl Scouts for the purpose of having Eable Scout Reginald Laubin and his wife, Gladys, appear before al lthe Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts of Norwich and their parents for a special ndian performance. The meeting adjourned at 10 o'clock. Among those present were Rev. A. H. Abbott, Dr. R. R. Agnew, Walter Weidman, William Wyman, A. L. Peale, Nick Tarrant, John Boldrighini, Lloyd Rathbun, Henry Sebastian, Woodrow Sebastian, Eli Cramer and John L. Sellman.

SUPPER AND FAIR BY POQUETANUCK CHURCH GUILD

A very successful chicken pie supper and fair were held at the parish house at Poquetanuck Tuesday evening under the auspices of the Woman's guild of St. James Episcopal church. The dining room and tables, where supper was served from 5:30 to 8 o'clock, were attractively decorated with red and green crepe paper, cedar and poinsetta. Mrs. Arthur Smith, president of the guild, was in general charge, assisted by the following committee: Supper, Mrs. Sadie McClure, chairman; Mrs. George Bogue, Mrs. Alanson Fuller and Mrs. Henry Hart; kitchen, Mrs. Alanson Fuller, Mrs. Jennie Williams, Mrs. Henry Hart, Mrs. George Bogue, Mrs. Augusta Betting, Mrs. Louis Lee, the Misses Fannie and Flora Peck. The waitresses were: Mrs. Miller, Miss Olive McKelvey, Miss Flora Peltier, Mrs. Harry Beckwith, Mrs. Dickson, Mrs. Nellie Sauer, Mrs. Parkinson, Mrs. Appleton Main, Mrs. Louis Church, the Misses Mabel and Edna Day, Mrs. Louise Lavalle and Mrs. Naomi Gallup. Tickets for the supper were sold by J. Guy Ayer and Fred D. Miller. In the hall upstairs, which was in charge of Mrs. Charles Harkness, were elaborately decorated booths, where various articles were offered with ready sale. Those in charge of the booths were: Fancy articles, Mrs. Fred Nicolai and Mrs. William B. Mitchell; cake, Mrs. Anna Smith and Mrs. Arthur Barrett; candy, the Misses Alice and May Ockford. William McKelvie had charge of the Hallville mill booth, where blankets and mackinaws were offered for sale.

Santa Claus, who entertained the children with mystery packages, was ably represented by Julian Marciniak.

FULTON'S STEAMBOAT
Robert Fulton, with the aid of Livingston, built the first practical steamboat in America. His enterprise was greeted by jeers when his first attempt to start the craft failed. He proved his theory in steam, however, by making a trip from New York to Albany and back in 72 hours. From that time on, steam navigation forged ahead and the U. S. soon became a power in merchant marine.

ALL CITY HIKE IS SET FOR BOY SCOUTS

Leaving the local scout headquarters at 9 o'clock Saturday morning, an all city hike will be held for scouts to the new camp site. No scout will be allowed to come on the hike who does not bring an axe, hoe, scythe, cycle, or rake. Scouts have been asked to bring a dinner for cooking. No sandwich lunches will be acceptable. Marshmallows, hot dogs, chestnuts, and the like can be used in the late afternoon. Scouts are urged to bring cameras to take snap-shots to enter in the photograph contest.

Part of the day will be spent in putting the road through to the river. Lots of fun will be had in playing games. Scouts owning footballs may bring them. The hikers will return to the city by 6 in the evening. The hike will be in charge of Mr. Sellman assisted by some of the scout leaders.

Picking November Violets

Miss Lucy H. Tucker of the town of Scotland has sent The Bulletin a violet and leaf picked this week from an open lot there and she reports that the plant has more buds on it. The plant was growing out in the open in ploughed ground and producing blossoms under the stimulus of the mild season, although it has weathered beating rains and cold down to 12 above zero.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

William C. Ruggles and his sister, Miss Annie L. Ruggles, who have been at their summer home at Hardwick, Mass., for three months, have returned and have opened their house on Broad street. Miss Ruggles spent several days in New York the past week.

With table decorations of beautiful yellow chrysanthemums, Mrs. Albert S. Comstock entertained the Tuesday Contract club at a luncheon for eight at Norwich Inn. Later the club returned to Mrs. Comstock's home on Lincoln avenue for cards. The prizes were won by Mrs. Albert M. VanWagenen and Mrs. Edgar H. Allen.

When Mr. and Mrs. George W. Morrow entertained at bridge at the week end in compliment to their guests, Miss Louise Austin and her brother, George Austin, of Hartford, the prizes went to George Austin, Mrs. Albert J. Sinay and Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. Lyon.

The Tuesday Contract club met with Miss Shannon and Miss Ella C. Shannon, Mrs. J. Edward Driscoll and Mrs. Henry H. Vignot being the prize-winners.

Mrs. Squire Gregson, from Winchester, Mass., is making a visit to Mr. and Mrs. Weston C. Pullen.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Irving Royce have announced the engagement of their daughter, Marion, to Lloyd Emerson Neil, of New Britain, Conn.

The first meeting for the season of the Thursday Needlework club was with Mrs. Chauncey B. Sherman, who entertained the members at a luncheon for twelve at Norwich Inn.

Mr. and Mrs. Lucius Briggs were hosts to a dinner party of eight Wednesday evening, their guests including friends from the Navy.

John D. McWilliams, of East Great Plain is spending a few days in western Pennsylvania.

BEAUREGARD LOSES TO NADEAU; DARR AND KOZIOL WIN BY KAYOES

Buster Nadeau came out of Holyoke last night and handed Al Beauregard of Taftville a pasting in eight rounds of torrid fighting in the main bout of the Shyma card show at Parish hall. Game, but an easy mark for Nadeau's left hand, Beauregard put up a good fight, being on the aggressive for the entire eight rounds, only to have Nadeau outpoint him. This bout by far topped the card, the other bouts terminating before the final rounds and not being so very interesting at that.

Vic Darr and Al Koziol won their bouts in short order, Darr kayoing Barney Sweeney of Providence in one minute and one second and Koziol winning by a technical knockout in the second round of a hectic bout with Al Porter of Fall River. In the first preliminary, Bill Taylor awarded a decision to Young Comfort of Westerly over Snooks Lacey of Norwich, which was far from popular with the fans. In the six-round preliminary, Julio Rossi of Westerly pounded Mickey Blaine of Plainfield into submission in the fifth round, winning by a technical knockout when Blaine's seconds tossed into the towel.

Beauregard Clearly Outpointed

The redeeming feature of the card was the main bout, which was a slam bang affair with plenty of milling from the start to the finish. Although doing all the leading, Beauregard was outpointed by the sharpshooting left hand of Buster Nadeau of Holyoke, who jabbed and jabbed and jabbed his way to a decision. This left hand of Nadeau's was not his only weapon for he had a powerful right hook and a neat left uppercut that landed frequently. However, the points did not all go to Nadeau, for Beauregard scored frequently with his sweeping rights and lefts but they lacked the power to drop the Holyoke boy, who took a severe lacing about the body. At no time was either boy severely hurt or in any danger of going down. There were no knock downs. Beauregard weighed 120 1-4 and Nadeau 121.

Darr Drops Sweeney Early

Barney Sweeney of Providence, a boy who belied the fighting name of Sweeney, lasted just one minute and one second against Vic Darr, local knockout king, in the eight-round semi-final. Sweeney came into the ring looking like the last rose of summer and he went out the same way. Barney met Darr in the center of the ring at the bell, put up his hands, had them knocked down, put them up again and once again they were knocked down. Darr kept shooting that deadly left for Barney's jaw and for a minute Barney had pretty good luck in keeping the jaw away from trouble. But his luck didn't hold for Darr backed him against the ropes, measured him and then shot the left to the jaw. This time it landed and Barney pitched on his face in the center of the ring. Darr nonchalantly letting him rest there while Referee Billy Taylor counted Barney out.

Cut Prevents Porter from Continuing

A cut received when Al Porter, dusky Fall River battler, pitched out of the ring in the second round stopped what would have been a hectic battle between he and Al Koziol, the Laurel Hill killer. After a fast first round in which Porter and Koziol swapped haymakers with abandon and honors even the second round crowded all the weird happenings of many fights into a scant three minutes. This round contained plenty of action to satisfy the most bloodthirsty of fans. Early in the round Koziol scored a nine-count knockdown. With both boys battling at top speed Porter let loose an uppercut aimed at Koziol's short ribs. The blow was badly timed and landed foul by several inches, Koziol rolling to the mat writhing in pain. Referee Taylor stopped the bout and helped drag Koziol to his corner. Barney Keenan and Koziol's other second worked over him and he was given a three-minute rest. The bout then continued with Koziol apparently unhurt from the foul. After a minute of milling Porter and Koziol came together in the center of the ring and both rolled to the floor. Both came up and started fighting again, in a mix-up in the center of the ring, Porter missed a wild swing and pitched headlong through the ropes his left eye crashing against the edge of the ring, opening a deep gash in the eyebrow. Referee Taylor examined the cut and refused to allow Porter to continue, awarding the bout to Koziol on a technical knockout. Koziol weighed 144 and Porter was three pounds heavier.

Rossi Wins Over Mickey Blaine

Julio Rossi of Westerly was the winner over Mickey Blaine of Plainfield, veteran boxer, when Blaine's second tossed in the towel in the fifth round of the six-round preliminary. This bout was not so interesting as Blaine, somewhat out of condition, showed only flashes of form, fighting mostly a defensive fight and allowing Rossi to wear himself out pounding Blaine's arms and skull. Blaine, who has fought many battles, showed that he was no novice in the ring but was not equal to six rounds of torrid battling. The Plainfield boy did little other than cover up and only once, that in the second round, did he open up. In this stanza he shook Rossi with fast lefts to the head and body but could not keep up the pace and retired into his shell. Blaine weighed 148 and Rossi 150.

Lacey Loses

After making Young Comfort look awfully foolish for four rounds, Snooks Lacey of Norwich stood by and watched Billy Taylor raise Comfort's hand for no good reason. Lacey, elusive and clever, made Comfort look decidedly like a novice all through the fight and at the same time scored plenty with a fast left hand and a right cross. Comfort hit with much more power than Lacey but not as often. The decision was decidedly unpopular and the consensus of opinion was that Lacey had won. Lacey weighed 119 pounds and Comfort 122, or at least that is what they did at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, but at fight time Comfort had at least six pounds on the local boy.

JACK KELLY TO FIGHT IN NEW HAVEN, DECEMBER 4

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 19—(AP)—Victor Dambroski, co-manager of Jack Kelly, today announced that his fighter had been signed to fight in the New Haven arena on the night of December 4.

His statement followed an announcement that Kelly was signed for a return match against Al Gainer in Waterbury that same night. Arrangements for the Waterbury match were made by Kelly's other co-manager, Ben Embinder, after a meeting with George Mulligan, Waterbury promoter, and Dick Gray, Gainer's manager.

Kelly's opponent in the New Haven fight has not been decided, although Dambroski said it might be Gainer or some other suitable fighter. New Haven will be the scene of Kelly's battle that night, Dambroski declared, inasmuch as his contract was signed prior to that in Waterbury.

CLAIMS KELLY AND GAINER WILL BATTLE IN WATERBURY

WATERBURY, Nov. 19.—(AP)—"Jack Kelly and Al Gainer will fight at the Waterbury armory, December 4," declared George F. Mulligan, matchmaker of the Waterbury A. C., when notified that Victor Dambrowski, co-manager of Kelly had announced that Kelly was previously signed to fight at the New Haven Arena, December 4.

"Ben Embinder is the only manager recognized in this state as the pilot of Kelly. He signed Kelly's contract and I have it with Gainer's for their bout here."

DEVENS WILL NOT PLAY IN GAME WITH YALE

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 19.—(AP)—Charlie Devens, injured Harvard halfback, was definitely declared out of Saturday's objective game with Yale today by Dr. Tommy Richards, the Crimson team physician. This ball carrier, one of the best on Arnold Horween's squad, broke a bone in his leg in the Dartmouth game and early this week appeared in shape to play against the Elis. Dr. Richards, however, discovered him limping this afternoon and advised Horween that the youth would be in danger of serious injury if allowed to play again this season.

Horween put his varsity eleven through a 60-minute dummy scrimmage with the freshman team, which put on Yale plays under the direction of Jimmy Knox, chief of the Harvard scouts, and Art French, the yearling coach. Carl Peschoholida, the freshman's outstanding back, played Albie Booth's part in the Yale formation.

Charlie Cunningham, who played tackle, guard and center until he suffered a fractured leg in an early game, returned to the squad and may see some service when the Crimson ends its season in the bowl this week-end.

RETIRING COACH ROPER WARMLY PRAISES FOOTBALL

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Citing the dramatic last minute drive of the Princeton football team against Yale last Saturday, William W. Roper, who retires this season as the Tiger coach, today warmly praised football as a game worthy of all the effort and enthusiasm put into it.

Roper spoke at the weekly luncheon of the Rotarians.

"We are living in an age in which it is quite possible to create situations where young men may be brought up in an atmosphere of ease and luxury," said Roper, "without having to suffer many of the bumps and hard knocks we of an older generation encountered. But there is an opportunity for preparing young men to withstand jolts. The outlet is football. It is possibly over-emphasized in some ways, but the Yale-Princeton game Saturday typifies the fact that football brings out the best in young men."

HAVE DECIDED TO STAGE CARNERA-UZCUDUN BOUT

BARCELONA, Spain, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Primo Carnera, the overstuffed prize fighter, turned in tonight expecting the first night's sleep he has had since he came back to Spain. Strike-breaking carpenters had built him a bed big enough for him to stretch out in.

The promoters of a bout next Sunday between Carnera and Paulino Uzcudun decided today they would not call it off because of the continuing strike disorders. Ticket sales are to be resumed tomorrow with a $1.50 top.

BASEBALL FOOTBALL BASKETBALL BOXING

Well, we picked three out of four again last night and it really should have been four out of five, for we sincerely think that Billy Taylor erred when he gave Comfort the verdict over Snooks Lacey. We never saw anyone look quite so like a novice as did this same Comfort. The Westerly lad swung plenty of blows but how they whistled over Lacey's head. The elusive ebony speck just wouldn't stay still and be hit. On the other hand, Friend Lacey did a little hitting himself, enough to gain the verdict in our opinion, if that means anything.

We missed out on the Beauregard-Nadeau bout. But we have no alibi here; Nadeau won, but not by such a great margin at that. In fact, Billy Taylor's card gave the count as 38 to 37, while our own card gave it 37 to 35 for Nadeau. They say that Taylor, when he added up the count at the end of the bout, found his figures totaled 38 for each but as he could not give a draw verdict he took one point away from Beauregard because of Nadeau's cleaner punching. When bouts are as close as that it is good fighting. Beauregard fought his usual slugging, mauling battle and only once did he shoot them straight from the shoulder, and when he did, he scored. The Taftville lad is tough, game, and a dangerous boy at all times.

There is some argument as to whether Porter was cut when he pitched through the ropes or was cut by a blow from Koziol's glove. To us it looked as though his head hit the edge of the ring and we had seen no cut previous to his pitching through the ropes. Another thing that would make us believe it was the boards that cut Porter is that his eye swelled very rapidly after the bout was stopped and to such proportions that it would seem impossible for a glove to have inflicted the injury.

Darr looks better and better each bout. Of course last night he showed only for 61 seconds but that was enough to convince fans that when he hits they stay hit. And the glad announcement was made that Darr and Koziol would renew their feud at the Shyma show on Dec. 5. This bout alone, regardless of the under card, should pack Parish hall to the rafters. Koziol is confident that he can take Darr and, in fact, his trainers claim that he will kayo Darr in 40 seconds. Darr when he heard that simply laughed, for he almost had Koziol knocked out in three minutes in the last bout, only the bell saving Koziol. But it must be remembered that Koziol had not fought for several months and his trainers claim his timing was bad. But there should be no alibi the next time.

COCHRAN BEATS HOPPE IN SIXTH BLOCK, 300 TO 75

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Continuing his great play to win the sixth block in succession, 300 to 75, tonight Welker Cochran of Hollywood, Cal., took a lead of 1,800 to 884 over Willie Hoppe at the halfway mark in their 12 block match for the world's 18.1 balkline billiards championship.

Cochran won the afternoon block today 300 to 239, ending it with an unfinished run of 33. Tonight, he carried the cluster to 84 before he missed. The block went only eight innings as Cochran made a high run of 100 and wound up with an unfinished run of 75. Hoppe never could get started and had a high run of 19.

The Hollywood star had an average of 37 4-8 for the block to Hoppe's 9 3-8. The grand averages now are: Cochran, 34 32-52; Hoppe 16 48-52.

Inning scores for tonight's block.

Cochran 84-0-2-28-26-100-8-10-75—300—1,800.

Hoppe 2-9-17-19-5-3-17-3—75—884.

TAFTVILLE LOSES SPECIAL MATCH TO SAYBROOK

In a special match at Saybrook alleys the Taftville team was defeated by Saybrook by a total pinfall of 1755 to 1733. The local team lost three straight strings, the second by a margin of two pins. Saybrook will meet Taftville in a return match Thursday evening. The results:

ATHLETIC BODIES NAME BRUNDAGE TO HEAD AMERICAN OLYMPIC ASSO.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—(AP)—On the scene of the "Battle of Washington" of four years ago between the Amateur Athletic union and the National Collegiate Athletic association, the two organizations buried their differences today and unanimously elected Avery Brundage, head of the A. A. U., to the presidency of the American Olympic association.

A new constitution framed with the cooperation of the presidents of the A. A. U. and the N. C. A. A., was adopted without a dissenting voice.

Unanimity was the keynote of the occasion in striking contrast to the last meeting of the association here in 1926 when the leaders of the N. C. A. A. resigned and walked out of the meeting after a losing battle with the A. A. U. There apparently will be complete harmony in preparation for America's participation at Los Angeles and Lake Placid in 1932.

The A. A. U. got most of the important offices today, but nobody seemed to care. Dr. Charles W. Kennedy of Princeton university, president of the N. C. A. A., was made vice-president; Frederick W. Rubien of New York, member of the A. A. U., was re-elected secretary; and George W. Graves of Detroit, another A. A. U. man was chosen treasurer, all without opposition. The title of president-emeritus was bestowed upon Dr. Graeme M. Hammond, the retiring president.

The new constitution indicating in detail how much voice the various sport-governing bodies in the country will have in conducting American Olympic affairs, was hailed as a distinct advance.

Not even the two-thirds rule, providing for two-thirds instead of a majority on all questions before the association, including the election of officers, produced opposition from the A. A. U., which defeated a similar proposal four years ago in the course of its successful effort to dominate the meeting.

Among the developments of the one-day session were: The rejection of an application for membership from the Rocky Mountain conference on the ground that its colleges permit their athletes to play semi-professional baseball; the admission of the Missouri Valley Intercollegiate Athletic association, called the "Big Six"; and the rejection of an application from the Ohio High School Athletic association because it was felt there is no place in the A. A. U. for a scholastic organization.

The name of Brundage was the only one proposed and leaders of the National Collegiate Athletic association, which in the past has been a bitter rival of the A. A. U., were among those who cast their votes for him.

Brundage, a former all around track and field champion of the United States and an Olympic team member in 1912, was re-elected to a third term as head of the A. A. U. yesterday. He succeeds Dr. Graeme M. Hammond as president of the Olympic association.

JIMMY McLARNIN IN GARDEN CARD FRIDAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Business is due to boom again Friday night in Madison Square Garden, where the trade has been none too brisk lately, for Jimmy McLarnin, favorite fighting son of the metropolis, comes back to work again.

McLarnin, socking Celt from Vancouver, who has plastered New York rings with some of the best of the lightweights, usually packs the Garden. The ticket sale already is booming for Jimmy's ten round go with Billy Petrolle, the Fargo express, in the main go of the Garden's weekly show. The customers who saw Petrolle all but whip Jackie Kid Berg a short time after McLarnin belted Al Singer, former lightweight champion, loose from his ruggedness, seem to be more eager than usual for the coming clash.

Jimmy will be without the weight advantage that has been his in most of his recent fights here. Petrolle, a hard hitting veteran, plans to weigh about 140 pounds, Jimmy's favorite weight. McLarnin is a 2 to 1 favorite.

Y TEAM OPENS SEASON AGAINST THREAD CITY Y

The Y basketball team will start its 1930-31 season tonight when they invade Willimantic and play the Thread City Y team. When Coach Demarest called the roll call for practice a month ago but three veterans were on hand from last year's squad, Lynch, Leffingwell and Ludlow. Nevertheless, a number of promising recruits appeared and tonight when the local team lines up, one of the fastest teams to represent the Y will tackle their first opponents of the season.

Coach Demarest has announced the starting line-up as follows: Lynch and Leffingwell, forwards; Henschel, a former Academy player, will jump at center, with Capt. Ludlow and Red Armstrong, another Academy luminary, in the guard positions. Included in the reserves are Nadelson and Tubbs, two former Church league players of much ability.

The players are requested to be at the Y at 6:45 p. m.

TO BROADCAST ARMY-NAVY BENEFIT CONTEST

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—(AP)—The Army-Navy benefit football game here Dec. 13 is to be broadcast over a national network of the National Broadcasting Co., it was announced today.

The company offered to donate to the citizens' committee of the Salvation Army, which is handling arrangements for the game, the use of its entire coast-to-coast facilities for broadcasting the game and the offer was promptly accepted.

FIRST ALL STAR AMATEUR CARD TO BE STAGED AT PUTNAM TONIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 19.—Ambitious heroes of the amateur squared ring Thursday evening are to espouse the cause of the Day Kimball hospital nurses' home fund in the curtain falling act of the drive for the $25,000 building purse. St. John's hall on Providence street, where the young blood entertain with all the fervor and enthusiasm of the luminaries of the professional boxing circle, will be the scene of tomorrow night's leather pushing fest. Scene 1, of the first act, will go on at 8:30 p. m.

Topping the card is the encounter of Gentleman Gene Billings, Goodyear K. O. artist, real ambitious to step along fistiana's highway, who will swap wallops with Joe Arnolds, Waterbury smasher in the 152 pound class. Billings has won in 10 appearances and eight of his scraps were taken by the K. O. route.

The first bout of the evening will be between Young Brission, the hard hitting local boy and Joe Maczuga, a polished Providence guest artist, in a 126 pound go.

In the second frame, 106 pound class, Kid Brouillard, Danielson's mighty atom and Young Chattle, Rhode Island flyweight champ, will hook up in their first engagement of the season.

The third act on the evening's bill will bring together Ray Landry, 126 pound Danielson performer, and Ace Hudkins, one of Connecticut's better known amateurs. Landry is made of the fight timber that meets the approval of the fans.

Bill Leo, whose unusual style of punch swapping has won for him the sobriquet of Nick Altrock, comes to Putnam Thursday night to meet Eddie Dolan, experienced Waterbury boxer. This affair is to be a tussle to the finish, for Leo is protecting a record of 18 wins in as many starts.

Returning again to the 126 pound group, the management will present Anslem Bernier, another Danielson gift to the prize ring, and Joe Bourasso, the fast stepping Waterbury marvel, who is anxious to score an early kayo over his eastern state opponent.

Charley Goulet, the suave Putnam fighter whose work in finishing battlers in early stages of his contests takes to the ring in the semi-final bout of the evening, when he hooks up with Whirlwind Otto Shadurck, the standard bearer of the 126 pounders of the Waterbury stable. Goulet has scored two local wins this season, both by knockouts and hopes to repeat for the nurses' home rooters tomorrow night. The Putnam performer is one of the best turned out since Jim McKenna, the Mechanicsville cyclone blossomed forth.

The incandescent lamps will be turned off when the outcome of the 160 pound go between Al Menard of Providence and Phil Bourasso, the state amateur middleweight champ of Waterbury, is known. Menard possesses an enviable record, having won 21 of 23 starts, 14 along the knockout path. Bourasso, on the other hand, is a classical artist of the game and while Menard is favored to win, the Waterbury general has no intention of lowering his colors until his "dynamite" smash has been unleashed.

38 DARTMOUTH MEN TO PLAY AGAINST STANFORD

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 19—(AP)—Head Coach Jackson Cannell today picked 38 Dartmouth football players to make the trip to the Pacific coast to play Stanford on November 29.

Most of the players on the squad were expected to be chosen. Ed O'Connor, was selected, despite the fact that this husky tackle has had a poor season, but Cannell has high hopes that he will hit his usual stride against the Cardinals.

Cannell put his squad through another long workout this afternoon and the Green's overhead attack was stressed. The power of the Dartmouth aerials was evinced during the final moments of the Cornell game and this attack, from present indications will surely be repeated at Palo Alto.

The Green coaches have time for only one more workout at Hanover, for Friday noon following a light morning drill, the Green squad will start its long trip to the other coast.

Cannell distributed new lightweight silk pants to his first and second elevens and it is likely that these flimsy garments will be used in the Stanford game, if the weather is hot or rainy.

It appears certain to close observers that Cannell's starting backfield that will go against the Cardinals will include Bill Morton at quarterback, Bill McCall and Shep Wolff, halfbacks, and Bob Wilkin in the line busting position.

PART OF FOOTBALL GATE RECEIPTS FOR UNEMPLOYED

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 19—(AP)—President Ernest Martin Hopkins, of Dartmouth, today announced that a part of the gate receipts of the Dartmouth-Stanford football game which will be played at Palo Alto on November 29, will be turned over to relieve unemployment distress.

Dartmouth, it was stated, would turn into such a fund one half of its share of all tickets sold in excess of $25,000 and all of its share of the receipts from tickets sold in excess of $50,000.

The complete details of this relief fund, the idea of the Stanford and Dartmouth athletic associations, President Hopkins said, have not been perfected.

WILLIAMS 1931 FOTBALL SCHEDULE ANNOUNCED

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Nov. 19.—(AP)—Two new football teams, Boston university and Rensselaer Poly institute, were on the Williams 1931 varsity football list announced here today. The Purple, which won its third consecutive "little three" championship last Saturday when it defeated Amherst, will play its annual game with Columbia in New York next season. The schedule follows:

September 27, Boston university; October 3, Rensselaer; 10, Bowdoin; 17, Rochester, Rochester, N. Y.; 24, Columbia, New York; 30, Union; November 7, Wesleyan, at Middletown, Conn.; 14, Amherst.

FEW CHOICE SCHOOL GAMES REMAIN ON GRIDIRON SLATES

The fast-waning football season still finds a few choice games among Eastern Connecticut schools, which will be fought out between now and Thanksgiving.

The last big splurge of Mr. Pigskin will begin tomorrow with two choice games, Westerly against Chapman Tech at Mercer field, New London and Fitch against Stonington, while on Saturday, the king of all games, Academy against Bulkeley, is on tap at the campus, followed on Thanksgiving day by Westerly-Stonington at Westerly and Putnam-Killingly, and maybe Bulkeley-Chapman Tech.

Two of these games are conference affairs, that of Chapman and Westerly and Bulkeley-N. F. A. There is still the possibility of an upheaval in the standing, especially in the case of Bulkeley, which, by winning its two remaining games, can finish in second place, with seven points, one behind the new champs, Westerly. The Academy has a chance to finish in a tie for second with Windham by winning Saturday, provided Bulkeley loses in the two games it has remaining. A unique feature of the race is is the four ties that Stonington has played.

The standing follows:

	W	L	T	Pts
Westerly	4	0	0	8
Windham	2	2	1	5
Stonington	0	1	4	4
N. F. A.	1	2	1	3
Bulkeley	1	1	1	3
Chapman Tech	0	2	1	1

An extra game has been added to the Eastern Conn. list for Plainfield and Robert Fitch high will meet at Mercer field next Tuesday to settle their tie for the championship of the Eastern Conn. Western Rhode Island "B" title. Fitch went into a tie by defeating Putnam Monday.

REC JRS. DEFEAT LUCKY STRIKES BY 65 BALLS

In a closely fought match at Jewett City, the Rec Jrs. defeated the Lucky Strikes in the second match of the series.

Vulgaries, anchor man for the Recs, kept the spectators on their feet by his remarkable shots, while Maus, his opponent, played a strong game, losing by seven balls.

Erie deserves a lot of credit in winning his match by overcoming a lead of 40 balls and then beating Czahowski by five balls.

Anton and Swatzburg of the Recs piled up a lead of 67 balls, Anton winning by 29 and Swatzburg by 42 balls.

Kos of the Luckies had an unfinished run of 13 to beat Buchka by 14 balls.

The scores:

Recs:
Swatzburg	100
Buchka	86
Erie	100
Anton	100
Vulgaries	100
Total	486
Luckies:
Avery	62
Kos	100
Czahowski	95
Buchka	71
Maus	93
Total	421

Tonight the Recreation Five goes to Jewett City to play the Jolly Five in the third game of their series. So far each team has taken a game.

It will be the last appearance of Baker, as he is leaving Jewett City Friday.

Eastern Football Briefs

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 19.—(AP)—Attempting to re-organize his backfield after the loss of Cy Letzelter, Major Ralph Sasse, Army coach, tried several combinations today. Sebastian appears to be the most promising candidate. Hillsinger, injured right guard, was declared definitely out for the season. A full speed scrimmage closed today's session.

ANNAPOLIS, Md.— Another hard scrimmage session occupied the Navy team today as it prepared for the Maryland game. Three players, Antrim, Castree and Williams were tried in place of Hagberg, injured fullback.

NEW YORK—Chick Meehan, New York university coach, broke up his all sophomore backfield today as the Violets prepared for the Rutgers game. Sanford Roland, a senior, replaced Bob McNamara at halfback while Bill McNamara went in at fullback. Fundamentals and signal drill took up most of today's practice time.

PITTSBURGH — Carnegie Tech's grid squad had its last hard workout today before leaving for Philadelphia to meet Temple. Forward passing again came in for much attention.

BANTAMS BEAT WESTERLY IN SEASON'S OPENER

The Baltic Bantams opened the basketball season Wednesday evening at Baltic with a victory over a team from Westerly by a 32 to 23 score. The locals had little trouble in trimming the visitors and at the halfway mark were leading 20 to 8. Westerly found themselves in the final frames to almost overcome the winners' big lead. Charron, for Baltic, was the star performer, scoring 10 points on four field goals and two fouls. The summary:

Westerly.	G	F	Pts.
Weik, lf	1	0	2
Austin, lg	1	0	2

Elected Yale Captain

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 19—(AP)—Norman B. Greist, of New Haven, was elected captain today of the Yale varsity cross country team for next year. He is a junior at the Sheffield Scientific school, and has been a varsity cross country man for two years.

Ice House Accepts Challenge

The Ice House accepts the challenge of the Black Hawks for a game Sunday at the Mohegan park. They would also like to play any team in the city on Thanksgiving day.

Ice House Wins

The Ice House defeated the Hardigs by a score of 60 to 6. Anso Tombari the flying end, received many 60 yard passes. Six men were put out of the game, three of them by Joe Mazerall.

Stribling Kayoes Gorsline

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Nov. 19.—(AP)—W. L. (Young) Stribling of Macon, Ga., heavyweight, knocked out Whitey Gorsline of Brown City, Mich., in the third round of a ten-round bout here tonight.

INTERSCHOLASTIC CROSS-COUNTRY RUN TO HAVE FORTY TWO ENTRANTS

Forty-two runners from six schools will face the starter's gun this afternoon at the Academy campus in the annual Eastern Connecticut-Western Rhode Island cross country run starting at 3 o'clock. The schools entered are Westerly, titleholders for the past two years, Bulkeley, Chapman Tech, Stonington, Windham and N. F. A.

Several star harriers will bid for the individual title, including Johnny Wood and Johnny Lyons of the Academy. Alm and Gagnon of Bulkeley, Miner of Chapman Tech, Magni and Turcolo of Westerly and Griffin of Stonington. Each school will enter seven men but only the first five finishers of each squad will count in the scoring.

From the work of the schools so far this season, it appears that five of the six schools are very likely winners, only Windham, at which this sport is comparatively new, being considered out of the running.

The Academy's hopes lies in the return to early-season form of Johnny Lyons who, with Johnny Wood, and Hank Mahoney, make a formidable trio. Wood has finished first in four of the six dual meets the Academy ran this season.

The following are those entered with their numbers:

Bulkeley—Alm, 20; Brennan, 21; Davidson, 22; Gagnon, 23; Olafson, 24; Tubbs, 25; Kurpiewski, 26.

Chapman Tech—Caron, 30; Fitzgerald, 31; Hayes 32; Johansen, 33; Crocker, 34; McCarthy, 35; Miner, 36.

N. F. A.—Wood, 40; H. Mahoney, 41; Lyons, 42; Baranowski, 43; Wlodarczek, 44; Richardson, 45; N. Mahoney, 46.

Stonington—Numbers 50 to 56, names not entered.

Westerly—Magni, 60; Turcolo, 61; Soloveitzik, 62; Peckham, 63; Celestino, 64; DeBartelo, 65; Giorna, 66.

Windham—Ballon, 70; Chartier, 71; Chase, 72; Clough, 73; Monroe, 74; Schmidt, 75; Warner, 76.

Officials—Carl Blanchard, starter; Howard Demarest, chief scorer; Albert Leffingwell and Howard Ludlow, scorers; Leroy Walker, timer.

TO ATTEND COMMANDERY INSPECTION AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Nov. 19.— Narragansett commandery, No. 27, Knights Templars, of Westerly, Em. Sir George E. Leonard, commander, held its special conclave Wednesday evening in its asylum, Masonic hall. The Red Cross and Malta work was exemplified by the commandery officers with Generalissimo Fred W. Harvey, acting as sovereign master, and Em. Sir John Albert Pawson, past commander, prelate.

Invitation has been received and accepted by Narragansett commandery officers to visit New London Thursday evening to be present at the commandery inspection of Palestine commandery, No. 6, Knights Templar, Em. Sir Henry E. Hudson, commander, on the Red Cross work by Rt. Em. Sir F. Ward DeKlyn, grand inspector of the grand commandery, Knights Templar, of Connecticut. A dinner will be served in Brainerd temple, the asylum of Palestine commandery, at 6 o'clock.

The early Tuesday morning downpour of rain, accompanied by thunder and lightning, filled the swamps and brooks about Westerly to overflowing and raised the lower waters of the Pawcatuck river. Trees, signs and poles were blown down by the high wind. At the Westerly waiting station of the New Haven railroad a large bill-board sign located east of the waiting platform had a half section downed. At the time a dog was attempting to rest in its shelter. The falling sign struck the dog which emitted such yelps that neighbors on nearby streets not already roused from their slumbers by the thunder were awakened by the dog's howls. A number of electric light poles on the Westerly-Watch Hill road were blown over and a blast of the Westerly fire whistle resulted. Trees off the Westerly-Stonington highway were up-rooted and blown down.

FUNERAL

Mrs. Charles Kroener

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock for Mrs. Lena Hudson Kroener, wife of the late Charles Kroener, whose death occurred at the Westerly hospital, November 16, following a short illness. Out of respect for Mrs. Kroener the Brown Petty tea room where she was formerly employed as a waitress, was closed. The funeral was held at 46 Granite street, the service being conducted by Rev. G. Edgar Tobin, rector of Christ Episcopal church. Burial was in Oak Dell cemetery, Peace Dale, R. I., where a prayer was given by Rev. Tobin.

Deborah chapter, No. 9, Order of the Eastern Star, Mrs. Jennie W. Mitchell, worthy matron, and Gustav Brucker, worthy patron, held its regular meeting Tuesday evening in Masonic hall. A business session was held followed by a musical program in charge of Al aBiley, leader, and Mrs. George O. Murphy, pianist. In the more than 100 members present were a number of visitors from Stonington. The entertainment program was in charge of Mrs. Myrtle P. Campbell, past worthy matron. A donation of $25 was voted to the Westerly Red Cross chapter drive for membership. A plum pudding, specially made, was auctioned off and the $13 realized will be given to the People's mission for their Thanksgiving work. Refreshments which included chicken patties were served in the armory banquet hall of Narragansett commandery, No. 27, K. T., adjoining the lodge rooms. Plans were also perfected for the Deborah chapter Charity bridge whist which will be held next week in the Masonic rooms with over 60 tables to be in play.

FUNERAL

Mrs. Amelia Morse Holt

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon for Mrs. Amelia Morse Holt, whose death occurred Sunday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Amelia Morse, 9 Prospect street, Pawcatuck. A prayer was given at the Pawcatuck home at 1:30 p. m. by Rev. G. Edgar Tobin, rector of Christ Episcopal church. The funeral was conducted at 2 o'clock from Christ Episcopal church by Rev. Mr. Tobin, the services being attended by relatives and friends. Burial was in River Bend cemetery. The bearers were Noia Morse, Pawcatuck; Arthur Fitch, Noank; Fred White, Pawtucket, R. I., sons-in-law of Mrs. Holt, and grandsons, Benjamin Kenyon, John G. Kenyon, Jr., and Clarence Kenyon.

Westerly Players' club held its regular meeting Wednesday night at the Memorial and Public Library building, on Broad street. Following the business session "The Carolina Play Makers" was the subject of a program arranged by Mrs. Harvey C. Perry. The methods of the Playmakers was explained by William C. Clarke, it being an organization of amateur actors and playwrights. "Off Nag's Head," a playwright production, was read by Miss Winifred Bogle, an instructress in the Westerly high school.

The one-time speedy rum-running motor boat Helen of Newport, R. I., driven ashore on the early morning of Oct. 24 last by coast guard gunfire, is now a complete wreck and much of its timber has been carried or washed away from the Napatree Point location where it first struck. The doom of the craft was sealed when the boat was split in two under direction of Capt. George W. Streeter of the Watch Hill coast guard station to obtain the two large copper gas tanks which were located in the hull of the craft just back of the engine room and towards the stern of the boat.

CRIMINAL APPEAL CASES CONTINUED TO FEB. SESSION

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Nov. 19.— On Wednesday, the third day of the November term of superior court for Washington county with Judge Jeremiah O'Connell on the bench and the attorney general's department represented by Attorney J. Clifton O'Reilly, representation was made that the Rhode Island attorney general's department, owing to the number of important cases being handled in other counties at this time would find it impossible to try any of the criminal appeal cases at this session of the court. As the several cases on the calendar were called each was continued to the February session of the court.

The first case called was that of State vs. James Gencarelli, charged with possession of liquor. He pleaded not guilty to the complaint, an appeal from the third district court, and it was the first case passed to the February session at the request of the assistant attorney general and by agreement with Attorney Clarence E. Roche, counsel for the respondent.

The case of state vs. Lewis Abramson, charged with speeding, was also passed to the February term of the court, Attorney O'Reilly stated that Abramson is ill. Announcement was made in the case of state vs. Eleanor Townsend, charged with speeding, that it would be disposed of before the assignment day.

In the case of state vs. James Reid, charged with conducting a meeting in the open without a permit, a continuance was granted to the February session.

Other cases from previous session of the court to the November session which were again passed to the February term of court were: State vs. Bolick Bianchi, and State vs. Stanley Bozack. The case of State vs. Clifford E. Potter, charging assault, was continued nisi.

The following divorce cases have been disposed of at this session of the court:

Gladys S. Allen vs. Louis B. Allen of South Kingstown. Granted on grounds of extreme cruelty.

Joseph L. Gordon vs. Fannie Gordon of Westerly. Granted on grounds of misbehavior. Petitioner granted custody of minor child.

Elizabeth S. McCall vs. Alexander McCall of Westerly. Granted on grounds of neglect to provide. Petitioner granted custody of four children.

Grace Vevre Stanton Smith vs. Herbert Anderson Smith, of Narragansett. Granted on the grounds of extreme cruelty. Petitioner granted custody of three minor children.

Elizabeth Mimande vs. Emory E. Mimande. Granted on grounds of neglect to provide. Petitioner granted custody of two minor children.

Thirty-four petit jurors were accepted for service at this term of the court as follows:

South Kingstown—Henry L. Streeter, weaver; Warren R. Northup, fisherman; George S. Phillips, tax collector; Lynwood L. Cooke, loomfixer; Elmer B. Gardiner, overseer; William H. Kennedy, storekeeper; Joseph P. Mellor, decorator; George Stedman, contractor; Charles H. Tucker, farmer; Marcus A. Webster, gardener.

North Kingstown— Irving Arnold, spinner; Howard F. Briggs, grocer; George H. Brow, retired; Benonie LaPerche, carpenter; Percy H. Wilcox, mill employe; Samuel C. M. Wilson, laborer; Ziba O. Young, carpenter.

Westerly—Edwin Barber, Jr. manufacturer; Fred R. Chappell, truck driver; James Cross, engraver; Lewis R. Greene, printer; Fred C. Lanphear, manager; Walter S. Price, insurance agent; Benjamin G. Richmond, Jr., core maker; William J. Smith, engineer; Edgar R. Sweet, machinist.

Hopkinton—Fred P. Boss, moulder; George Fontanella, second hand; Charles H. Morris, spinner; George H. Thurston, superintendent.

Richmond—John F. Beers, weaver; Oscar D. Fecto, mill employe.

Exeter—James B. Brown, farmer.

Charlestown—Clarence W. Church, watchman; Nathaniel G. Whitford, farmer.

Narragansett — James A. Mackie, gardener; Joseph H. Marshall, laborer.

Large quantities of rock are daily being carted to Watch Hill in motor trucks to be used in the improvement of Bay street, Watch Hill, along the water front of Little Narragansett bay. From the northern boundary of the fire district property adjoining land of W. H. Peck, a new sea wall with a promenade walk will be constructed, extending south to a point opposite the Narragansett inn. The are in back of the sea wall will be graded and landscaped.

The old Maxson dock, located at the northern end of the property, will be completely rebuilt, a plan providing for a 90-foot dock of similar construction to the present Plimpton and Watch Hill docks. The water beside the Maxson dock will be dredged to a depth of six feet at low tide by means of a sandsucker and the material taken from this area will be deposited on the low land back of the dock.

H. William Loomis, former proprietor of the Rhode Island hotel, was a Westerly visitor Wednesday to attend the funeral of Mrs. Lena Hudson Kroener.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas P. Nichols were among the Westerly attendants at the funeral of Arthur Perry, Boston banker and capitalist, which was held Wednesday morning from his Marlborough street home, Boston.

Mrs. William Marfsky, formerly Miss Alice Burdick, of Westerly and husband, after visiting Mrs. Marfsky's sister, Mrs. Manuel Clay, in Stonington, left Westerly on Wednesday, returning to their home in Carlstadt, N. J.

Jack E. Bowler and Frank W. Smith, of South Kingstown, R. I., were Westerly visitors on Wednesday evening.

James E. Burleigh returned on Wednesday to his Pawcatuck home from a Westerly business visit.

Frank Richardson, of Newport, R. I., was a Westerly business caller Wednesday.

Walter Thompson returned on Wednesday to Providence from a business visit in Westerly.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Champlin, having closed their summer home, 4 Elm street, left Westerly Wednesday morning on the Colonial express for Washington, D. C., where they passed Wednesday night before proceeding to their winter home, Daytona Beach, Fla. They were accompanied by Mrs. John H. Tanner of Pawcatuck, who will pass the winter at Daytona Beach, Fla.

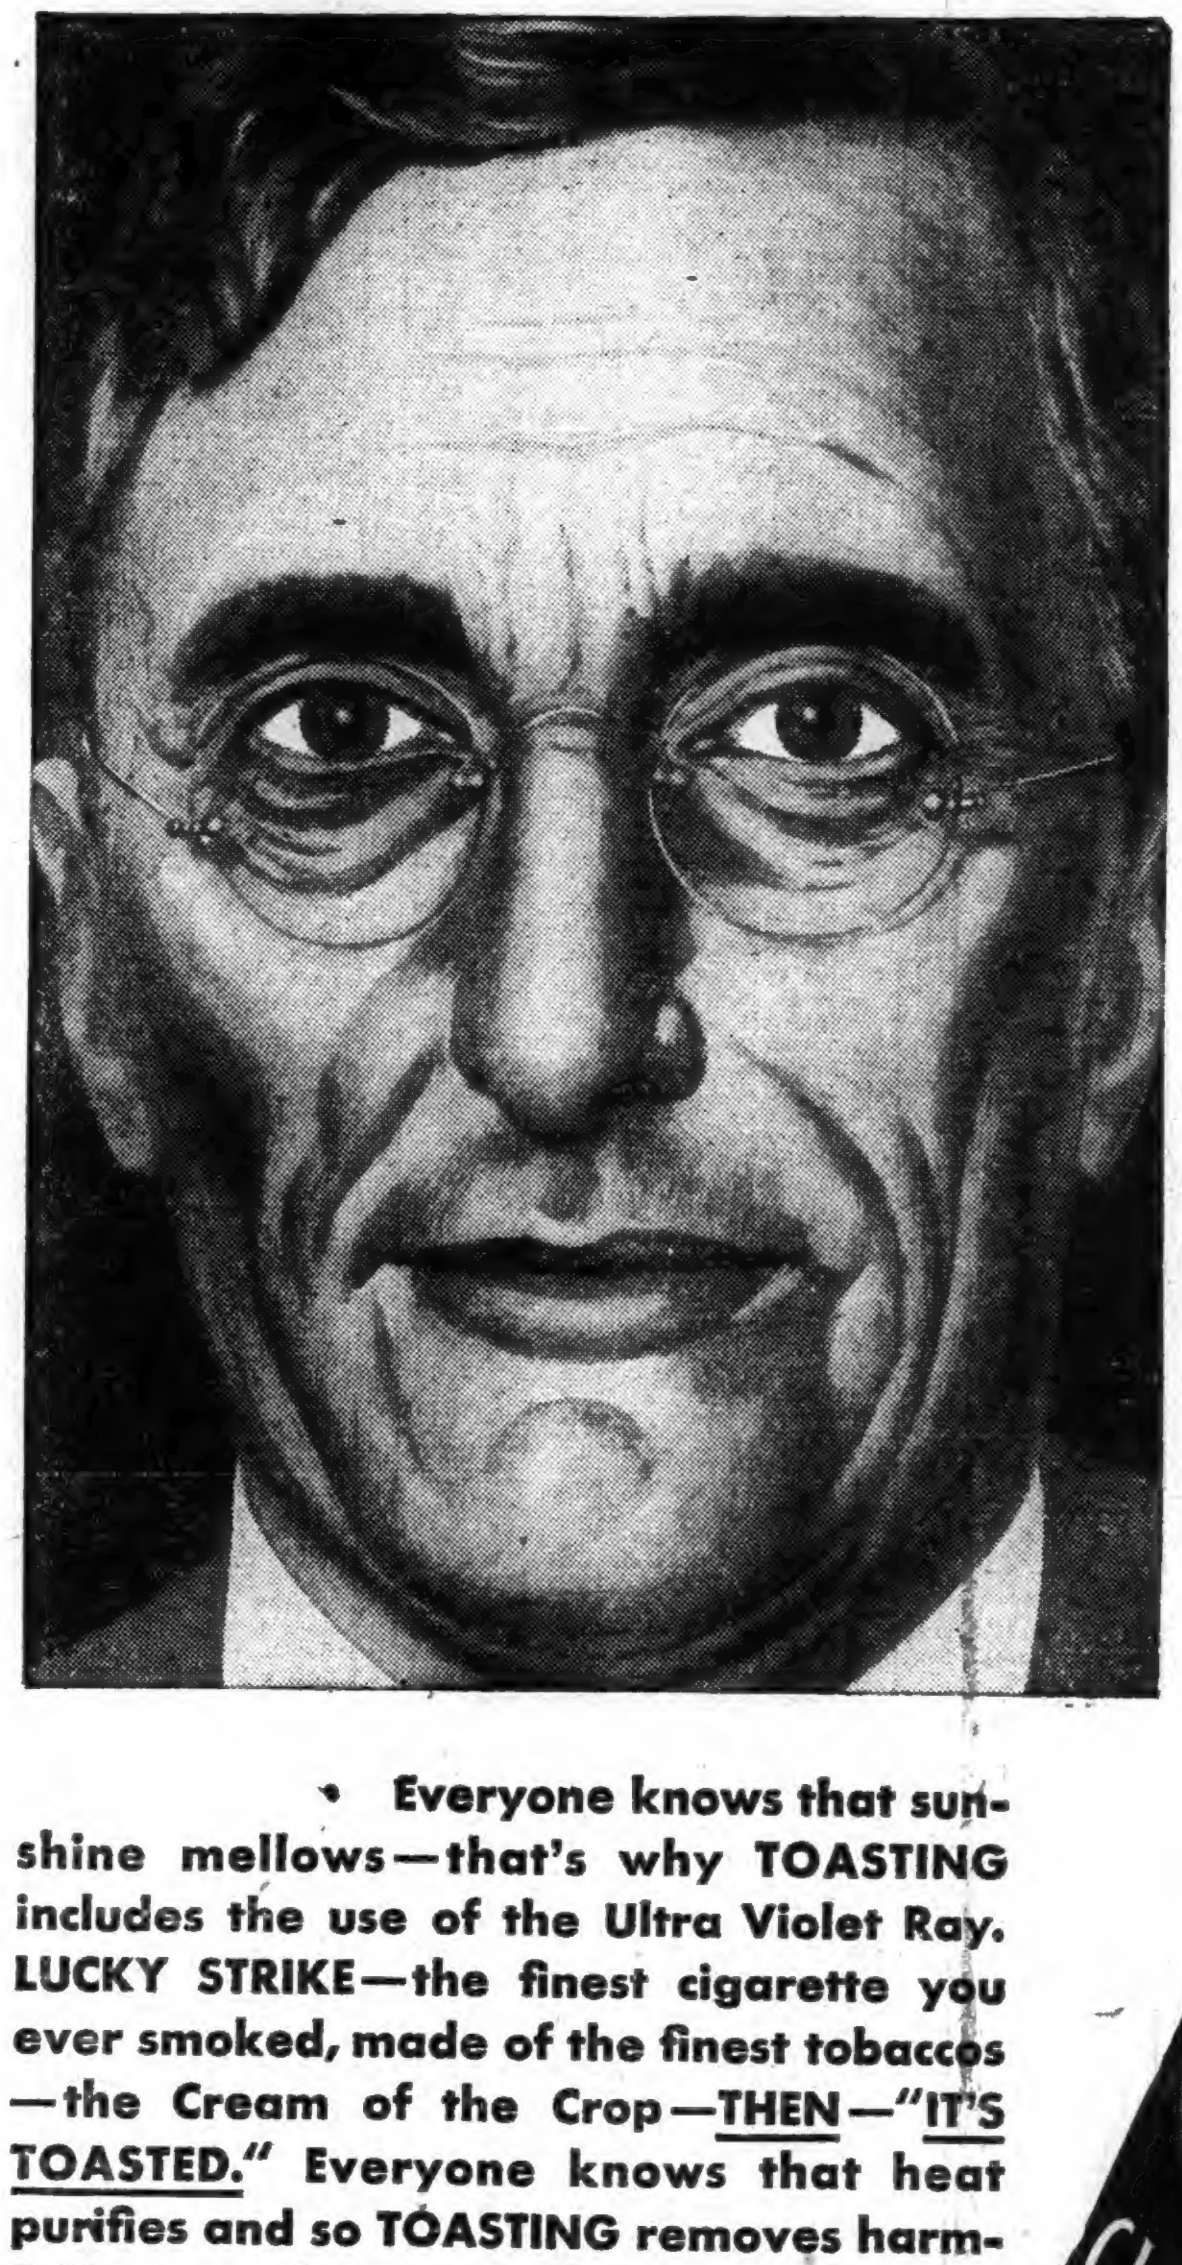
An automobile didn't run into seven-year-old Crawford Anderson, of Upland, Cal., but the boy ran into an automobile, and thereby received painful but not serious injuries. The boy was about to cross the street with his mother. The parent started to cross, but the boy held back for an instant, then darted forward. Carl Gleason driving along the street saw the child spring forward, and stopped his car to avoid running over the lad. The youngster bumped into the side of the machine and was thrown heavily to the street by the severe impact.

"ENTERPRISING MANAGEMENT"



Says

THOMAS J. SPELLACY

Formerly Assistant Attorney General of United States

Democratic nominee for Governor of Connecticut (1918)

Member Connecticut Senate (1907-11)

"Public servants, interested in the general prosperity, are bound to hail with satisfaction such outstanding successes as that of your company in the recent months of business depression. The use of the Ultra Violet Ray in the 'Toasting' of your tobaccos is surely an evidence of the extent to which your enterprising management has gone to establish and maintain the quality of your product. It is obvious that the reason for your success lies in this spirit of enterprise."

Thomas J. Spellacy

• Everyone knows that sunshine mellows—that's why TOASTING includes the use of the Ultra Violet Ray. LUCKY STRIKE—the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobaccos —the Cream of the Crop—THEN—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so TOASTING removes harmful irritants that cause throat irritation and coughing. No wonder 20,679 physicians have stated LUCKIES to be less irritating!

STOCK MARKET WAS STRONG; A FEW SPECIALTIES MOVING UP BRISKLY

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Speculative sentiment took a cheerful turn again today and the stock market completed its recovery from Monday's reaction. Grains, too, were stronger in sympathy with better prices at Winnipeg, but in the bond market only the best grade issues made headway.

In its present frame of mind, Wall street is willing to regard no news as good news. Certainly there was little in today's grist of business items that could have an immediately constructive effect, unless it was the report of prospective support for the steel industry from large railroad orders which, however, are not expected before the next quarter. Nevertheless, the market's net gains of 1 to 4 points on a turnover of 2,481,410 shares indicated that the day-to-day traders foresaw profits on the long side. Motor, motor accessory, railroad and utility shares were favored, although representative industrials did well. A few specialties moved up briskly.

Another stock exchange failure caused only a momentary flurry. The insolvent firm was rather small, but brokerage circles were pleased by the market's disregard of what would doubtless have been the signal for lively selling a few weeks ago. The few stocks identified with the embarrassed firm reacted, notably Bulova Watch for which the suspended house had done some financing more than a year ago. A statement by the Bulova management said the company was unaffected by the affairs of the brokerage house, having received full payment for the offering of stock.

Estimates that railroad orders for 50,000 freight cars would mean contracts totalling 700,000 tons for the steel industry, and a prediction belief that producers would soon announce a price stand on sheets and strips featured the mid-week steel reviews. These favorable prospects offset the "Iron Age" report that operations had been shaded one per cent in the past week. The recent announcement of a minimum quotation for bars, shapes and plates by a large U. S. Steel subsidiary was generally considered a forerunner of other important developments along the same line.

It is admitted that prospects for improvement in the next month and a half are exceedingly remote, but business circles were reassured by "Iron Age's" assertion that "the gain in prospective demand is interpreted as a promise of improvement in January rather than in the immediate future."

Strength of the automotive and allied groups seemed predicated on recent signs of expanded activity among the motorcar producers. Rubber shares failed to extend yesterday's upturn, but there were gains of 1 to 2 points in Chrysler, Hudson, Eaton Axle, Electric Auto Lite, General Motors, Briggs, Studebaker and Nash. The reduction in General Motors deliveries to dealers last month was attributed by the company to the advancement of dates for model changes.

The advance in stocks was preceded by a soft opening and some selling in the early trading, but the support accorded the leaders was sufficiently impressive to turn professional sellers into buyers. Activity was well distributed throughout the session. Prominent industrials like U. S. Steel, Bethlehem Steel, General Electric, Westinghouse, DuPont, American Can, and Johns Manville, closed 1 to 2 higher, while in the rails there were net advances of 1 to nearly 4 in New York Central, Baltimore and Ohio, Pennsylvania, Southern Railway, Southern Pacific, Northern Pacific, New Haven and Atchison. American Telephone, American and Foreign Power, Consolidated Gas, North American, American Power and Light, and other utilities rose 2 to 3. Ingersoll Rand soared 10 points and Allied Chemical, 4. R. H. Macy, whose directors declared the customary annual stock dividend in addition to the cash payment, was up 5 3-4. United Aircraft was also strong.

Wheat's improvement was fractional. The December future held around the 73 cent level on reported farm board buying. Export sales were larger. Corn closed 1 1-4 to 1 3-4 cents higher, reflecting the bullish weekly weather report and firm southwest markets. Cotton recovered small early losses and finished unchanged to 7 points higher.

The Canadian dollar again approached the gold point in the foreign exchange market. Spanish pesetas improved in response to support from the Bank of Spain. Sterling, the French franc, and the German mark were firm.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—(AP)— The New York stock exchange has admitted to trading on notice of issuance, 310,000 shares of $5 dividend convertible preference stock without par value in connection with the acquisition of all the properties of Autostrop Safety Razor Co., and 522,500 additional shares of no-par common stock. Of the additional common stock, not to exceed 310,000 shares are to be issued from time to time upon conversion of the preference stock, not to exceed 210,000 shares are to be used for conversion of the company's ten-year 5 per cent convertible gold debentures, and 12,500 shares are to go to brokers as compensation for their services in connection with the acquisition of Autostrop.

Hardy & Co., members of the New York stock exchange, announced that Nov. 24 they will transfer all their marginal commission business to Ungerleider & Co. The Hardy firm will retain membership in the stock exchange and will continue its investment security business, which has constituted the major part of its operations.

G. R. Loyall, president of the Norfolk & Southern railroad, said that the road will show net income of about $70,000 for October, the best showing made in recent months. He said business in the road's territory was holding up fairly well.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—(AP)— Curb market shares made further headway in quiet trading today. The day's advances, together with the moderate upturns of the previous session, about cancelled Monday's losses. Transactions totaled 575,700 shares, or 63,300 more than yesterday.

Electric Bond and Share was traded in large volume, gaining more than 2 points. After the close of the market, its earnings statement and balance sheet for the period ending October 31 appeared, showing earnings of $2.44 a share, against $2.46 a share on a slightly smaller number of shares for the 12 months ended June 30. The corporation had continued to increase its investments in client companies.

American Gas and Electric sold up 3 points and gains of a point or so were recorded by American Super Power, Middle West Utilities, United Light A, and Utilities Power and Light. Natural gas stocks also improved, United Gas moving up fractionally, and Duquesne and Lone Star gained about a point. Oils were largely steady firm, although the weekly statistics showed another substantial increase in gasoline stocks on hand. Gulf and Vacuum gained about 2, and Cities Service rose 1-2. Standard of Kentucky, however, slipped off 1 1-2.

The industrials generally gave the best account of themselves in several days, although trading in this group remained light. Bulova Watch preferred moved contrary to the trend, selling down to 20, and closing at 25, off 4 3-4. This reflected announcement of insolvency of Bauer, Pogue, Pond and Vivian, an investment house which headed the syndicate offering the issue nearly two years ago, although the company announced that it was in no way affected, and that its earnings compare favorably with those of last year. Helena Rubinstein, Inc., with which the house had also been identified, sold at 1 1-4, compared to its previous close of 2 1-2.

Aluminum company, Charis Corporation, Glen Alden Coal and National Screen Service were among industrial issues gaining about 3 to 5 points. Ainsworth Manufacturing, Novadel Agene, and Trauslux rose 1 to 2. Ford, Ltd., and General Aviation gained fractionally. Sidney Blumenthal dropped 4 to a new low at 15, however.

Investment trust shares were quiet. Continental Shares convertible preferred gained 3 points. Shenandoah common, and Sun Investing, 1 point.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.— (AP)—Foreign obligations in the listed bond market softened today, while domestics improved a shade under the influence of a rally in the share market. The strong demand for high grade investment bonds maintained the buoyant tone of U. S. governments.

Gains and losses among rails were about evenly divided and changes were wider than they have been in recent sessions. Convertibles and industrials were considerably improved and more interest was displayed by buyers in utilities which registered small gains.

The tone of foreign loans was distinctly heavy with active issues in both the aLtin American and European groups reacting sharply. Argentine 6s of 1959, Brazil 6 1-2s, Chile Mortgage Bank 6s, Chilean 6s of 1962, Colombian 6s, Peru 7s and 2nd 6s, Rio De Janeiro 8s, Sao Paulo 8s and 7s, and Uruguay 6s were about a point lower. Bolivian 7s were off more sharply, the 7s of 1958 reacting 3 3-4 and the 7s of 1969 dipping 2 5-8. Among Europeans German International 5 1-2s dipped into new low ground for the year, then closed steady. German municipal and industrials eased fractionally.

The gradual improvement of sentiment toward high grade industrials was reflected in advances registered by Armour and company 5 1-2s, Bethlehem Steel 5s, and several others. Colorado Industrial 5s broke 7 points to the new low of 84 5-8 and General Baking 5 1-2s yielded a point.

The divergent trend of rail issues was reflected in both leggls and second grade issues. Chesapeake and Ohio 4 1-2s, Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh 4 1-2s, Denver Rio Grande and Western 5s, Missouri Pacific 5s of 1977, St. Louis, San Francisco 5s B, Wabash 5s B, and Seaboard 4s were under pressure. Baltimore and Ohio issues were slightly lower with the 5s at a new year's low on a 1 1-4 point decline. Highest price issues generally showed small changes. Among the firmest were Central Pacific Shore Line 4s, St. Paul 5s of 2000, Chicago Union Station 5s B, Great Nothern 4 1-2s, and New York Central 3 1-2s.

Laclede Gas Light 5 1-2s, International Telephone 5s, Pacific Telephone 5s, New York Telephone General 4 1-2s, Public Service Electric and Gas 4 1-2s were among the public utility issues in demand. Postal Telegraph 5s were weak, sagging 2 points to a new year's minimum.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.— (AP)— Grain values tilted moderately upward today helped by well timed purchasing for U. S. farm board allies and also by concerted action of Canadian banks. It was announced that wheat price stabilizing operations of U. S. government-sponsored agencies were not confined to Chicago, but extended to all domestic markets. Meanwhile reports were current that Canada's banks would protect margins on wheat holdings of the Canadian growers' pool.

Chicago closing quotations on wheat were firm at nearly the day's top level, 1-8a1 1-8 a bushel higher than yesterday's finish. Corn closed 1a1 3-8 advanced, oats 3-8a3-4 up and provisions unchanged to 10c lower.

SCIENCE TRACES GANG BULLETS IN ITS CRIME DETECTION LABORATORY

By WALTER T. BROWN

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Dead men do tell tales!

Chicago gangland learned that after the Northwestern university crime detection laboratory read the story of the St. Valentine's day massacre in a double handful of empty machine gun shells, two shotgun shells and leaden pellets fired from them.

Execution of seven members of the "Bugs" Moran north side "mob" inspired the establishment of the scientific detection bureau, and the investigation of the septuple homicide was the first that faced the crime laboratory.

A brief sketch of the murder scene: Seven men sat in the rear of a garage in North Clark street—a busy section of Chicago. All but one, a mechanic, were expensively dressed. Their pockets bulged with several thousands of dollars.

The men waited for Moran to divide a truck load of liquor. A traffic delay saved Moran from extermination that day.

The day was February 14, 1929 — St. Valentine's day.

Through the door came two men in policemen's attire. The Moranites, thinking it a perfunctory police raid, submitted to disarmament. Two machine gunners and a rifleman appeared.

The Moranites had been "put on the spot." The guns swept the men lined up, arms upraised, faces to the wall. All were killed.

Fateful Accident

The gunners and make-believe policemen marched out. A machine identical with a police squad car carried them away. A few minutes later the bodies, the shells, the bullets, and a frenzied police dog, tied to a truck, were found.

Dead men tell no tales!

But as the killers rolled away there occurred an incident which, with the ballistic report of Calvin Goddard, head of the crime laboratory, may send a man whom John Stege, then detective chief, called "the most dangerous gunman at large" to prison or the electric chair.

Their machine slid into a motor parked at a curb, from which was alighting an important Chicago citizen. From the police files he picked occupants of the car as Fred Burke and one of the lesser known gangsters, with a reputation as a trigger man.

Goddard came into the case at the invitation of Bert Massee, wealthy manufacturer, whom Herman N. Bundesen, coroner, had chosen to head his jury.

Bullet Marks Give Clue

He traced the bullets in the Clark street garage to Burke guns found in a cottage on the outskirts of St. Joseph, Mich. And he did it this way:

On every bullet sent through a gun there remain rifling marks. These are different in every gun. Automatic weapons also leave ejector and extractor marks.

"So characteristic are these markings that in the examination of thousands of arms I have never found two that left identical indentions," said Goddard. "The double lens microscope has enabled us to look at two shells, or two bullets, at the same time, and to readily catch the differences."

Goddard concluded that the 70 cartridges had been fired from two submachine guns and that two shells had been fired from an automatic shotgun. Mark well the importance of a grooved marking that Goddard found on the bullets taken from the victims and scattered on the floor.

He couldn't find among his records data on bullets of that type. Each bore a small "s" on the jacket, a common factory mark of a particular manufacturer. The company advised him that the grooved mark was used only between July, 1927, and June, 1928.

Between February and December Goddard tested several score machine guns and shotguns. None made marks like those left by the assassins.

But in December coincidence entered to work with science. A motorist shot a policeman in St. Joseph, Mich., when he sought to take him to the station after an argument with another car driver. Of course he didn't want to face an inspection of police records.

Arsenal In Home

Police followed a trail to a comfortable home on the outskirts of the city where the slayer lived as a respectable and respected citizen.

In the house they found two machine guns, pistols, rifles, shotguns, bullet-proof vests, a quantity of ammunition—and dime novels in abundance.

Fred Burke whom Stege called "the most dangerous gunman," was the novel reader, the friendly suburbanite, the policeman's killer. The Burke machine guns marked shell and bullet as those in the Clark street garage were marked.

Cartridges in the drums, Michigan police fund, bore the "s" and the peculiar grooved markings.

Thus the dead men told their tales to the coroner's jury, which ordered Burke arrested for the St. Valentine's day massacre.

Next story tells how the crime laboratory identified the owner of the gun used in the Lingle slaying.

NEW LONDON LOSES IN PEQUOT BEACH DISPUTE

The Pequot Point Beach company and Lucius E. Whiton of New London retain a clear title to disputed property along the east side of Pequot avenue and the city of New London's claim to the property in question is banished, as a result of an opinion written by Chief Justice George W. Wheeler of the supreme court.

The land in question consists of a strip about 18 feet wide and 500 feet long, extending from the old lighthouse in Pequot avenue to a point 500 feet south.

The city brought suit to obtain title to the land, claiming that it had been taken by the present owners without right. The owners contended that they had been in possession of the land for a great many years, and if the city had any claim it should have proved it long ago.

Judge John Rufus Booth gave judgment in favor of the Pequot Point Beach company and others in the superior court when the city attempted to evict the defendants from the property. The city then filed an appeal to the supreme court which was argued before that tribunal recently, with the subsequent finding of no error.

The season on lamp post hunting in Wilmette, a suburb of Chicago, has been officially and permanently closed. Hereafter any motorist who hits one of the village street light standards will be subject to a fine of $200. Said Village President Earl Omer in making the announcement: "In the last year one dozen of our lamp posts have been smashed. Our posts are ornamental and cost $100 each. It costs another $50 to have each one installed. That's why we had to raise the ante on the fine for knocking them down." The fine for smashing lamp posts, previous to this announcement, was $25.

FALL AND WINTER DIETS SHOULD INCLUDE SWEETS

Desserts, Jellies, Canned Fruits, Candies and Cranberry Sauce Are Appropriate

Winter diets demand fuel food. To disregard this rule leads to lowered vitality, the result of which is sickness.

Food that contains, or is served with refined sugar is good fuel food. Cereal, fresh or stewed fruit, jellies, jams, preserves, sweetened beverages and desserts belong to this class and every meal affords an opportunity to serve them.

At this time of the year, cranberries in some form are appropriate at any meal. Serve them as a jelly for breakfast; as a sauce with meats; in puddings and pies for desserts.

Business people can avoid and overcome fatigue by eating or drinking something sweet in mid-afternoon. There is a wide variety of such snacks available everywhere—candy, cakes, beverages and ice cream. A glass of water sweetened with sugar—the "athlete's cocktail"—will always prove invigorating. In eating and drinking these foods and beverages, the sugar is quickly digested and its energy is immediately available. Most foods are more delicious and nourishing with refined sugar. ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre.

Those two gorgeously crazy clowns, Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey, who have established themselves within the past year as the greatest screen comedy team, deliver their funniest performance to date in "Half Shot at Sunrise," which opened yesterday at the Warner Bros. Broadway theatre for a three day run. Furnished with an unusually amusing story in the form of a wartime comedy, the team cuts loose and runs wild.

Wheeler and Woolsey, funnier even than in "The Cuckoos," are seen as American doughboys A. W. O. L. in Paris. They raise everything but the dead, stealing the colonel's daughter and also his sweetheart, but wind up as heroes in the uproarious final scenes.

The comedy team receives excellent support from a talented cast. Dorothy Lee, diminutive comedienne, scores brilliantly once more. Hugh Trevor and Roberta Robinson make a clever romantic team. Edna May Oliver and Leni Stengel also contribute a number of comedy high spots.

"Half Shot at Sunrise" introduces some lilting tunes in clever and logical fashion, with music by Harry Tierney, composer of "Rio Rita" and "Dixiana" melodies and lyrics by Anne Caldwell. The Tiller Sunshine girls are featured in two sparkling and unique precision dance numbers.

Palace Theatre.

Now playing at the Palace theatre, one of the strongest of double feature bills yet offered to the patrons of this theatre. To possess is a primitive desire and to gratify it beyond ability is extravagance, and the sins of extravagance, particularly as practiced by the female of the species, is dealt with in the gripping story "Extravagance." June Collyer and Dorothy Christy portray the two wives who have different ways of indulging their craving for luxuries and Lloyd Hughes and Owen Moore are their respective husbands. Alice is married to Fred Garland in the opening scene and her mother heaves a sigh of relief, for it has required her last jewels to pay for the trousseau.

Co-featured on this great bill is one of the strangest of all South Sea dramas. "Hot Baby" and "General Grant," two-mast pearling schooners, have broken into motion pictures. The two vessels appear in Paramount's mystery-romance, "The Sea God." Richard Arlen, who heads the featured cast of the picture with Fay Wray, is the skipper of "Hot Baby," while Robert Gleckler, late of the Broadway stage, is the commander of "General Grant." Action of "The Sea God" was filmed on the ocean from these vessels, under water in a region noted for submarine gardens, and on the island where the picture unit made its location headquarters.

Starting Saturday for four days, the masterpiece of all time "The Big Trail," a story of the west that was, is and will be in the hearts of those who paid the price to make this country a land of opportunity.

POETRY

Trouble

We often pile our troubles up,
Make sure a swift disaster,
By never minging in the throng,
By never joining in a song,
By thinking everything is wrong,
And mighty near to ruin.

A man there was who sat and groaned
From early dawn 'til night,
He cursed the day that he was born,
Reviled the bright September morn,
Said every red rose had a thorn,
And nothing could be right.

His poor wife never made complaint,
A paragon of virtue,
She worked from early dawn 'til night,
She kept her windows shining bright,
Her many children all in sight,
And never seemed to weary.

Why is it in this world of our
That some see only sorrow,
While others laugh, and shout, and sing
And find delight in everything,
To every woe sweet perfume bring,
Demolish grief and trouble?

—Charles Maxwell, in Cincinnati Inquirer.

The Voiceless

We count the broken lyres that rest
Where the sweet wailing singers slumber,
But o'er their silent sister's breast
The wild flowers who will stoop to number?
A few can touch the magic string,
A noisy Fame is proud to win them:—
Alas for those that never sing,
But die with all their music in them

Nay, grieve not for the dead alone
Whose song has told their hearts' sad story,—
Weep for the voiceless, who have known
The cross without the crown of glory.
Not where Leucadian breezes sweep
O'er Sappho's memory-haunted billow
But where the glistening night-dews weep
On nameless sorrow's churchyard pillow.

O hearts that break and give no sign
Save whitening lip and fading tresses
Till Death pours out his longed-for wine
Slow-dropped from Misery's crushing presses,—
If singing breath or echoing chord
To every hidden pang were given,
What endless melodies were poured,
As sad as earth, as sweet as heaven!

—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Clerk—"Bathing suits, madam. They are quite abbreviated this season."—Reading Railroad Magazine.

She—"She gave us something on our wedding anniversary—that plush tea-cosy—and we ought to reciprocate."

He—"Reciprocate? You mean retaliate."—Sidmouth Observer.

"You have such a smart overcoat that I cannot understand why you have such wornout trousers."

"Now how can a man get new trousers in a restaurant?"—Ulk, Berlin.

Old Lady—"Where did those large rocks come from?"

Tired Guide—"The glaciers brought them down."

"But where are the glaciers?"

"They've gone back after more rocks."—Stray Stories.

Customer—I want a nice present for my husband. What do you advise?

Shopkeeper—May I ask how long you have been married, madam?

Customer—Oh, about fifteen years.

Shopkeeper—Bargain counter in the basement, madam.—Leeds Mercury.

Mrs. Spenders—"I wonder what will be the most popular styles in hats this autumn."

Mr. Spenders—"My dear, women's hats will be divided into two styles this autumn, as usual; the style you don't like and the style I can't afford."—Scarborough Post.

Candid Hostess (on seeing her nephew's financee for the first time)—"I should never have known you from your photograph. Reggie told me you were so pretty."

Reggie's Fiancee — "No, I'm not pretty, so I have to try to be nice, and it's such a bore. Have you ever tried?"—Tit-Bits.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Tubridy's 20 Per Cent Sale.

Crowds of wise buyers are again flocking to the Tubridy-Weldon company at Willimantic. The occasion is the great 28th semi-annual 20 per cent sale that is now going on and will continue to comprise the Thanksgiving season. This semi-yearly sales event was inaugurated by Tubridy's 14 years ago. It is a real sale in which the entire stock of new merchandise remains on display with the original price tags attached. The customer merely deducts 20 per cent when making a purchase. It is an event that has grown tremendously in popularity but is of special interest this season as strict adherence has been made to the new low prices now prevailing in addition to the discount. A more detailed announcement of the sale may be found in an advertisement appearing on another page of this paper.

NEW LONDON REALTOR'S ARREST ON A CHARGE OF NON-SPPORT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 19—Francis H. Redden, 361 Bank street, real estate and insurance agent, was arrested this evening by Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith on a warrant charging him with non-support of his wife, Marguerite and their daughter, Joan Louise Redden, aged nine months. Redden furnished a surety on his bond of $500 in Albert M. Bonitz and will be given a hearing in the police court tomorrow.

LEAVING TROLLEY CAR STRUCK BY MACHINE

Edward Voelker, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. August J. Voelker, 83 Phillips street, was hit by an automobile driven by Curtis A. Baisller, 21 North Main street, Hartford and Niantic, this afternoon. The young man has a fractured leg and is suffering greatly from shock. He is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, where it was said the seriousness of the youth's condition would not be determined for a day or two. Voelker was hit when he alighted from a trolley car on Broad street, near Jefferson avenue.

MAGNITUDE OF PLANS FOR COAST GUARD ACADEMY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 19—Plans and specifications for the several buildings to be erected on the new U. S. coast guard academy site, Mohegan avenue, have been received by four New London contractors, H. R. Douglas & Son, H. Wales Lines Co., N. Benvenuti & Son and Arthur Jackson Co. The plans disclose that it is intended to construct cadet barracks, administration, academic, enlisted men's barracks, engineering, boiler house, general stores, fire house, gate house and superintendent's quarters. A pier and bandstand will also be erected and an athletic field and tennis court will be laid out. The buildings will be of colonial style, of brick, stone-trimmed.

Petrel Filling With Water

It has not been determined whether the trawler Petrel, owned by the Portland Trawling company, which is ashore on Block Island, will be saved. Because of the rough sea it has been impossible to board the boat, which is partially filled with water. The Petrel went ashore last Monday morning during a dense fog and high wind. She had a cargo of 60,000 pounds of fish which was to have been brought to the plant of the Atlantic Coast Fisheries, Groton.

COHEN SEEKS SURETY ON HIS BOND OF $10,000

Benjamin Cohen, alias Joseph Gold, of Springfield, Mass., arrested here several days ago charged with violation of the Mann act, and who is being held a prisoner at the county jail in default of bail of $10,000 for his appearance at the next term of the superior court, is seeking a surety on his bond, it has become known. Cohen was arrested following his bringing Irene M. Costello, 19, also of Springfield, to this city for the purposes of acts of immorality.

After Cigarette Thieves

The New Haven railroad police are seeking clues that might lead to the arrest of thieves who stole a large quantity of cigarettes from a freight car at Plainville yesterday. The car door was forced and nine cartons of Lucky Strike cigarettes, and seven cartons of Camel cigarettes were taken. Altogether 20,000 cigarettes valued at $950 were stolen. It is believed that an attempt will be made to dispose of the cigarettes in cities about the state.

The New London police this evening were requested to be on the lookout for John Vassalo, who disappeared from his home, 52 Clairmont street, Waterbury, today. He went away on a Dodge panel truck, Connecticut registration, C-26247. Vassalo is suffering from a mental disorder and he may be found roaming the streets.

Alexander Gianarcopolas, 107 Broad street, Groton, was arrested by Patrolman Louis Tooker this afternoon charged with violation of the city's traffic ordinance in parking his automobile overtime on Bank street.

An automobile owned by Catherine McQuillan, 228 Connecticut avenue, was stolen last night while parked on Green street and has not been recovered. The auto, a Peerless, carries Connecticut registration N—5295.

Herman Braverman, 33 Prest street, reported to the police today that during last night a clothesline in the yard of his home was stripped of a large number of articles of apparel.

Max Litvin, proprietor of a tailor shop, 113 Golden street, reported to the police today that a piece of trousers suiting, which was being made to order, had been stolen from the store. Litvin said that he left the door unlocked and while he was absent about five minutes a thief entered the building and stole the cloth.

Fire in College Building

New London house, one of the group of buildings at Connecticut College for Women, was threatened with serious damage by fire last night when a quantity of inflammable material, mostly paper and cartons, was discovered ablaze in the cellar. The fire was burning briskly when discovered and a still alarm was sent to fire headquarters, being responded to by Deputy Chief Calvin Edmunds and Thomas Hose company and the Konomoc aerial truck. The fire was subdued with chemicals before damage of consequence had resulted.

Boys Need Discipline

I. Itzkowitz, 308 Main street, today made complaint to the police because of the nightly practice of youths of annoying him. Richard Pugh, proprietor of a miniature golf course, Montauk avenue, also made complaint to the police, claiming that last night boys damaged 30 electric lights and forced open a box where golf balls are stored.

SEXTON IS RELEASED BECAUSE OF WIFE AND CHILD

Louis Sexton was convicted in the police court Nov. 4 on the charge of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor and was fined $100 and costs; of this amount $50 was remitted. He was sent to the county jail because he could not pay the penalty imposed by the court, but he was released today on order of Judge Daniel M. Cronin. The release of Sexton was due to the fact that his wife and child are bordering on distress, brought about by their being deprived of the earnings of the husband and father. Sexton was brought into the police court and was placed on probation for one year, being given into the custody of Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield. Sexton, when arrested, had taken an automobile owned by A. W. Thompson, of Willetts avenue; with him were Peter Dufile, 330 Central avenue, Norwich, and R. C. Snyder and Lenox Latham, of the U. S. coast guard.

FINED ON TWO CHARGES, AUCTIONEER APPEALS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 19.—John Goldsmith, 40, of 26 Astral avenue, Providence, an auctioneer, who, with Joseph Gordon, another Providence auctioneer, is engaged in selling off the jewelry stock of Sol Ockooneff, 135 State street, who is retiring from business, was in the police court today charged with violation of the city's vendor law, violation of the statute providing that an auctioneer shall procure a license, and fraud. On the first count, Goldsmith was found not guilty, but on the other charges Goldsmith was adjudged guilty, being fined the maximum penalty on the second count, $200 and costs, and a like penalty was imposed on the third charge. He gave notice of an appeal, through counsel, and furnished a surety on his bond of $700.

Gordon possessed a license, but Goldsmith did not, the latter, however, alternating with Gordon in offering the stock of the store for sale to individual customers. Goldsmith was arrested Monday when it became known that the auctioneer did not have a license. He was released upon Ockooneff becoming surety on his bond of $500; but Goldsmith did not show up in court yesterday, with the result that he was rearrested during the day by Detective Sergeant John Cavanaugh. He was held in bail of $1,500, furnished by Attorney Samuel Gruskin. The allegation of fraud was that Goldsmith misrepresented articles which he offered for sale.

In court this morning Ockooneff testified that he had not sold the business to either Gordon or Goldsmith, but that he hired the men to give their services in selling the stock at auction.

Max Abrams testified to having purchased jewelry at the store which was not as represented. Goldsmith would remove a tag from the articles he sold before handing the purchase to the customer.

State Police Officer Clarence Hoxie testified to going to the Ockooneff store, accompanied by a fellow-officer, and to bidding for the purchase of a string of crystals. Hoxie said that when the crystals were put up for bid that Goldsmith said that they were "genuine diamond-cut crystals," and he produced a copy of his report to verify his statement.

Cornelius C. Costello and Morris Mallove, local jewelers, gave testimony that the crystals were not worth more than $1.50 and that the using of the word "genuine" was done for the purpose of confusing the prospective purchaser; for while the so-called crystals might be diamond cut, they were not genuine trinkets. The witnesses said that the better class of jewelers had discarded the using the word "genuine" simply because of the reason that it was considered confusing to customers, inasmuch as the use of the word could be wrongly construed. Miss Elizabeth T. Roath, assistant city clerk, testified that Goldsmith had not been granted a license. In imposing penalty, Judge Daniel M. Cronin stated that he was dissatisfied with the nature of the testimony introduced by the defense, particularly the statements of Goldsmith, which Judge Cronin said were not given with frankness, nor with positive truthfulness.

Charles Parmalee, of Groton, a public service operator, charged with breach of the peace, was given suspension of judgment. Parmalee went to the home of Thomas Dougherty, on Golden street, yesterday afternoon, and there created a disturbance. Dougherty made complaint to the police and Parmalee was arrested by Patrolman Cornelius Moriarty.

THINK BRUNO OF GANG THAT ROBBED RIBALDI

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 19.— Frank Bruno was arrested at Lawrence, Mass., yesterday with two companions, suspected of being a gang that has been going about New England victimizing unsuspecting foreigners out of their money. Bruno was held for investigation, but his companions were released. It is believed that Bruno and his companions are the gang that robbed Vincenzo Ribaldi, a farmer residing on the North Franklin road, Lebanon, of $75 when in this city last summer. Bruno has been positively identified by a Bridgeport police officer as one of a gang that robbed a man in Bridgeport the day before Ribaldi was robbed in this city. The prisoner was taken to Bridgeport this afternoon for trial. An officer from New London will go to Bridgeport with Ribaldi for the purpose of attempting to establish an identification and if Bruno is the man who robbed Ribaldi in this city he will be brought back here for trial. Bruno and his gang are also wanted in New Haven. The gang came to New London last July and when Ribaldi was on Bank street he became acquainted with the gang. Later, when he entrusted his money to one of the gang while he made a purchase of supposed headache medicine at a store for one of the trio, the gang vanished and so did the money, as Ribaldi realized upon his return.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Patrolman Cornelius Moriarty, son of Mrs. Bridget Moriarty, of Vauxhall street, to Miss Ella Dorothy Bliven, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Bliven, 16 Lincoln avenue, employed at the New London City National bank.

WEDDING

Pyle—Melanson

William Pyle, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William Pyle, Fishers Island, and Miss Yvonne Melanson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Camille Melanson, also of Fishers Island, were married at 9 o'clock this morning at the Church of Our Lady of Grace, Fishers Island. The nuptial mass was celebrated by Rev. Daniel Riley, of New York, cousin of the groom. He was assisted by Rev. Terrence Sharkey, Fishers Island; Rev. J. J. Babst, Fishers Island, and Rev. Edwin A. Flynn, of Niantic. John Pyle, brother of the groom, was best man and Miss Margaret Melanson, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. Miss Florence Donovan, of this city, played the organ selections, and Miss Helen Dorkowski, of this city, sang "Ave, Maria." Mr. and Mrs. Pyle will continue to make their home on Fishers Island.

At the annual meeting of Winthrop chapter, No. 250, Order of Ahepa, held last night in Odd Fellows' hall, the following officers were elected: President, Theodore Constantine; vice president, Charles Chryssos; secretary, Theodore Trakas; treasurer, James Louziotis; chaplain, Peter Mitchell; warden, Charles Zamzis; sentinel, Thomas Donoukos; board of governors, Costas Remitis, Costas Govas, Nicholas Trakas, Cosmos Michael and Costas Entas. The meeting was addressed by Elias Janetis, of Springfield, Mass., a former supreme governor of the district.

John Hart, nine, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Hart, 99 Howard street, has typhoid fever, and is a patient at Lawrence Memorial hospital. The case is the first of its kind to be reported at the office of the health department in several weeks.

John J. O'Connor, merchant, of 19 Wall street, and Elizabeth C. Vodick, stenographer, of Broad street extension, Waterford, have applied for a marriage license at the office of the city clerk.

Mrs. Louis Rounds, Jr., of 425 Montauk avenue, Mrs. Donald Brown and infant baby, 205 Crystal avenue, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

Mrs. Lawrence L. Evans

The funeral of Mrs. Theresa Evans, wife of Lawrence L. Evans, of 92 Terrace boulevard, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church and was attended by a large gathering of mourners. The solemn mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. James W. Roche, with Rev. Dr. Timothy M. Crowley deacon and Rev. George Clark sub-deacon. The bearers were Patrick Ryan, Leo Hawley, Frank Quinn, Jr., Leo Kozalok Patrick Ryan and William Ryan. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

John La Rocca

The funeral of John La Rocca, of 79 Woodbridge street, was held this morning at 10 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, the high mass of requem being sung by Rev. George Clark. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

NAPOLEON AUBIN DIES FROM AN UNUSUAL MALADY

Napoleon Aubin, 48, a barber by occupation, died last night at his residence, 845 Bank street, death ending an illness of a comparatively short time and from a malady new to the medical profession, known as Hopkins' disease and which affects the glands. He is survived by his wife, a son, Raymond Aubin, seven brothers, John, Joseph, George, Thomas and Louis Aubin, of Sable Falls, N. Y.; Alex Aubin, Plattsburgh, N. Y., and Edward Aubin, of Springfield, Mass., and by a sister, Mrs. Julia Cassovy, of Plattsburgh.

ROBINSON IN LOCAL JAIL IN DEFAULT OF $5,000 BAIL

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 19—Walter Robinson, who was arrested several days ago at Paterson, N. J., at the request of the state police, of Groton barracks, on a charge of negotiating fraudulent checks, and who was brought to New London by Officer William E. MacKenzie last night and locked up, was given a hearing in Stonington town court today. Probable cause was found and Robinson was held for trial at the next term of the superior court. In default of bail of $5,000, Robinson was committed to jail. Robinson negotiated the worthless checks on merchants in Norwich, Preston, Stonington and East Hartford, realizing about $500 by his fraudulent acts.

Edna B. Chester has sold the real estate No. 492 Jefferson avenue to Charles A. Whipple.

Ambrose Cassar has brought suit for $500 damages against Ralph and Joan Romeo. Property owned by the defendants on Montauk avenue has been attached. The case is returnable before the next term of the court of common pleas.

PRESIDENT HOOVER'S ADDRESS ON CHILD WELFARE AND PROTECTION

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—(AP)— At the opening session of the white house conference on child health protection here tonight President Hoover delivered the following address:

Something more than a year ago I called together a small group of representative men and women to take the initial steps in organization of this conference on Child Health and Protection. Under the able chairmanship of Secretary Wilbur, and the executive direction of Doctor Barnard, organization was perfected and enlarged until by the fall of last year something over 1,200 of our fellow citizens were enlisted from every field of those who have given a lifetime of devotion to public measures for care of children. These skillful and devoted friends of children have given unsparingly and unselfishly of their time and thought in research and collection of the knowledge and experience in the problems involved. Their task has been magnificently performed, and today they will place before you such a wealth of material as was never before brought together.

I am satisfied that the three days of your conference here will result in producing to our country from this material a series of conclusions and judgments of unprecedented service in behalf of childhood, the benefits of which will be felt for a full generation.

I wish to express my profound appreciation to all those who have so generously contributed the time and thought and labor to this preparation, and to you for giving your time to its consideration. The reward that accrues to you is the consciousness of something done unselfishly to lighten the burdens of children, to set their feet upon surer paths to health and well-being and happiness. For many years I have hoped for such a national consideration as this. You comprise the delegates appointed by our federal departments and by the governors of our states, the mayors of our cities, and the representatives of our great national associations, our medical and public health professions. In your hands rest the knowledge and authority outside of the home itself.

In addressing you whom I see before me here in this auditorium, I am mindful also of the unseen millions listening in their homes, who likewise are truly members of this conference, for these problems are theirs—it is their children whose welfare is involved, its helpful services are for them, and their cooperation is essential in carrying out a united and nation-wide effort in behalf of the children.

We approach all problems of childhood with affection. Theirs is the province of joy and good humor. They are the most wholesome part of the race, the sweetest, for they are fresher from the hands of God. Whimsical, ingenious, mischievous, we live a life of apprehension as to what their opinion may be of us; a life of defense against their terrifying energy; we put them to bed with a sense of relief and a lingering of devotion. We envy them the freshness of adventure and discovery of life; we mourn over the disappointments they will meet.

Safeguards Of Childhood

The fundamental purpose of this conference is to set forth an understanding of those safeguards which will assure to them health in mind and body. There are safeguards and services to childhood which can be provided by the community, the state, or the nation—all of which are beyond the reach of the individual parent. We approach these problems in no spirit of diminishing the responsibilities and values or invading the sanctities of those primary safeguards to child life—their homes and their mothers. After we have determined every scientific fact, after we have erected every public safeguard, after we have constructed every edifice for education or training or hospitalization or play, yet all these things are but a tithe of the physical, moral, and spiritual gifts which motherhood gives and home confers. None of these things carry that affection, that devotion of soul, which is the great endowment from mothers. Our purpose here today is to consider and give our mite of help to strengthen her hand that her boy and girl may have a fair chance.

Our country has a vast majority of competent mothers. I am not so sure of the majority of competent fathers. But what we are concerned with here are things beyond her power. That is what Susie and John take on when out from under her watchful eye. She can not count the bacteria in the milk; she can not detect the typhoid which comes through the faucet, or the mumps that pass round the playground. She can not individually control the instruction of our schools or the setting up of community-wide remedy for the deficient and handicapped child. But she can insist upon officials who hold up standards of protection and service to her children—and one of your jobs is to define these standards and tell her what they are. She can be trusted to put public officials to the acid test of the infant mortality and service to the children in the town—when you set some standard for her to go by.

Child Health And Protection

These questions of child health and protection are a complicated problem requiring much learning and much action. And we need have great concern over this matter. Let no one believe that there are questions which should not stir a nation; that they are below the dignity of statesmen or governments. If we could have one generation of properly born, trained, educated, and healthy children, a thousand other problems of government would vanish. We would assure ourselves of healthier minds in more vigorous bodies, to direct the energies of our nation to yet greater heights of achievement. Moreover, one good community nurse will save a dozen future policemen.

Our problem falls into three groups: First, the protection and stimulation of the normal child; second, aid to the physically defective and handicapped child; third, the problems of the delinquent child.

Statistics can well be used to give emphasis to our problem. One of your committees reports that out of 45,000,000 children—

35,000,000 are reasonably normal.
6,000,000 are improperly nourished.
1,000,000 have defective speech.
1,000,000 have weak or damaged hearts.
675,000 present behavior problems.
450,000 are mentally retarded.
382,000 are tubercular.
342,000 have impaired hearing.
18,000 are totally deaf.
300,000 are crippled.
50,000 are partially blind.
14,000 are wholly blind.
200,000 are delinquent.
500,000 are dependent.

10,000,000 Deficient.

And so on, to a total of at least 10 millions of deficients, more than 80 per cent of whom are not receiving the necessary attention, though our knowledge and experience show that these deficiencies can be prevented and remedied to a high degree. The reports you have before you are not only replete with information upon each of these groups, they are also vivid with recommendation for remedy. And if we do not perform our duty to these children, we leave them dependent, or we provide from them the major recruiting ground for the army of ne'er-do-wells and criminals.

But that we be not discouraged let us bear in mind that there are 35,000,000 reasonably normal, cheerful human electrons radiating joy and mischief and hope and faith. Their faces are turned toward the light—theirs is the life of great adventure. These are the vivid, romping, every-day children, our own and our neighbors' with all their strongly marked differences—and the more differences the better. The more they charge us with their separate problems the more we know they are vitally and humanly alive.

From what we know of foreign countries, I am convinced that we have a right to assume that we have a larger proportion of happy, normal children than any other country in the world. And also, on the bright side, your reports show that we have 1,500,000 specially gifted children. There lies the future leadership of the nation if we devote ourselves to their guidance.

In the field of deficient and handicapped children, advancing knowledge and care can transfer them more and more to the happy lot of normal children. And these children less fortunate as they are, have a passion for their full rights which appeals to the heart of every man and woman. We must get to the cause of their handicaps from the beginnings of their lives. We must extend the functions of our schools and institutions to help them as they grow. We must enlarge the services of medical inspection and clinics, expand the ministrations of the family doctor in their behalf, and very greatly increase the hospital facilities for them. We must not leave one of them uncared for.

There are also the complex problems of the delinquent child. We need to turn the methods of inquiry from the punishment of delinquency to the causes of delinquency. It is not the delinquent child that is at the bar of judgment, but society itself.

Again, there are the problems of the orphaned children. Fortunately we are making progress in this field in some of the states through the preservation for them of the home by support of their mothers or by placing them in homes and thus reducing the institutional services.

Physical And Mental Health

There are vast problems of education in relation to physical and mental health. With so many of the early responsibilities of the home drained away by the rapid changes in our modern life, perhaps one of the most important problems we shall need to meet in the next few years is how to return to our children, through our schools and extra scholastic channels, that training for parenthood which once was the natural teaching of the home. With the advance of science and advancement of knowledge we have learned a thousand things that the individual, both parent and child, must know in his own self-protection. And at once the relation of our educational system to the problem envisages itself, and it goes further. The ill-nourished child is in our country not the product of poverty; it is largely the product of ill-instructed children and ignorant parents. Our children all differ in character, in capacity, in inclination. If we would give them their full chance they must have that service in education which develops their special qualities. They must have vocational guidance.

Problems Of Child Labor

Again, there are the problems of child labor. Industry must not rob our children of their rightful heritage. Any labor which stunts growth, either physical or mental, that limits education, that deprives children of the right of comradeship, of joy and play, is sapping the next generation.

In the last half a century we have herded 50,000,000 more human beings into towns and cities where the whole setting is new to the race. We have created highly congested areas with a swift transition from a rural and agrarian people to an urban, industrial nation. Perhaps the widest range of difficulties with which we are dealing in the betterment of children grows out of this crowding into cities. Problems of sanitation and public health loom in every direction. Delinquency increases with congestion. Overcrowding produces disease and contagion. The child's natural play place is taken from him. His mind is stunted by the lack of imaginative surroundings and lack of contact with the fields, streams, trees, and birds. Home life becomes more difficult. Cheerless homes produce morbid minds. Our growth of town life unendingly imposes such problems as milk and food supplies, for we have shifted these children from a diet of ten thousand years' standing.

Nor is our problem one solely of the city child. We have grave responsibilities to the rural child. Adequate expert service should be as available to him from maternity to maturity. Since science discovered the cause of communicable disease, protection from these diseases for the child of the farm is as much an obligation to them as to the child of the city. The child of the country is handicapped by lack of some cultural influences extended by the city. We must find ways and means of extending these influences to the children of rural districts. On the other hand, some of the natural advantages of the country child must somehow be given back to the city child—more space in which to play, contact with nature and natural processes. Of these the thoughtless city cheats its children. Architectural wizardry and artistic skill are transforming our cities into wonderlands of beauty, but we must also preserve in them for our children the yet more beautiful art of living.

Changes In Modern Home

Even aside from congestion, the drastic changes in the modern home greatly affect the child. Contacts of parents and children are much reduced. Once the sole training school of the child, the home now shares with the public school, the great children's clubs and organizations, and a hundred other agencies the responsibility for him, both in health and discipline, from birth to maturity. Upon these outside influences does his development now very largely depend.

The problems of the child are not always the problems of the child alone. In the vision of the whole of our social fabric, we have loosened new ambitions, new energies; we have produced a complexity of life for which there is no precedent. With machines ever enlarging man's power and capacity, with electricity extending over the world its magic, with the air giving us a wholly new realm, our children must be prepared to meet entirely new contacts and new forces. They must be physically strong and mentally placed to stand up under the increasing pressure of life. Their problem is not alone one of physical health, but of mental, emotional, spiritual health.

These are a part of the problems that I charge you to answer. This task that you have come here to perform has never been done before. These problems are not easily answered, they reach the very root of our national life. We need to meet them squarely and to accuse ourselves as frankly as possible, to see all the implications that trail in our wake, and to place the blame where it lies and set resolutely to attack it. From your explorations into the mental and moral endowment and opportunities of children will develop new methods to inspire their creative work and play, to substitute love and self-discipline for the rigors of rule, to guide their recreations into wholesome channels, to steer them past the reefs of temptation, to develop their characters, and to bring them to adult age in tune with life, strong in moral fiber, and prepared to play more happily their part in the productive tasks of human society.

There has not been before the summation of knowledge and experience such as lies before this conference. There has been no period when it could be undertaken with so much experience and background. The nation looks to you to derive from it positive, definite, guiding judgments. But greater than the facts and the judgments, more fundamental than all, we need the vision and inspired understanding to interpret these facts and put them into practice. I know that this group has the vision and the understanding, and you are the picked representatives of the people who are thus endowed. It will rest with you to light the fires of that inspiration in the general public conscience, and from conscience lead it into action.

The many activities which you are assembled here to represent touch a thousand points in the lives of children. The interest which they obtain in the minds and hearts of our country is a turning to the original impulse which inspired the foundation of our nation, the impulse to secure freedom and betterment of each coming generation. The passion of the American fathers and mothers is to lift children to higher opportunities than they have themselves enjoyed. It burns like a flame in us as a people. Kindled in our country by its first pioneers, who came here to better the opportunities for their children rather than themselves, passed on from one generation to the next, it has never dimmed nor died. Indeed human progress marches only when children excel their parents. In democracy our progress is the sum of progress of the individuals—that they each individually achieve to the full capacity of their abilities and character. Their varied personalities and abilities must be brought fully to bloom; they must not be mentally regimented to a single mold or the qualities of many will be stifled; the door of opportunity must be opened to each of them.

May you who are meeting here find in your deliberations new fuel with which to light this flame of progress so that this occasion may be marked with a fresh luster that will set us anew on the road through the crowding complexities of modern life.

EXCERPTS FROM PRESIDENT HOOVER'S SPEECH AT CHILD WELFARE CONFERENCE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19—(AP)—Following are some pithy sentences from President Hoover's speech to the white house conference on child health and protection:

"Let no one believe that these are not questions which should not stir a nation; that they are below the dignity of statesmen or governments."

"One good community nurse will save a dozen future policemen."

"If we do not perform our duty to these children, we leave them dependent, or we provide for them the major recruiting ground for the army of ne'er-do-wells and criminals."

"It is not the delinquent child that is at the bar of judgment, but society itself."

"Industry must not rob our children of their rightful heritage."

"Any labor which stunts growth, either physical or mental, that limits education, that deprives children of the right of comradeship, of joy and play, is sapping the next generation."

"Our growth of town life unendingly imposes such problems as milk and food life, for we have shifted these children from a diet of ten thousand years' stand."

"Architectural wizardry and artistic skill are transforming our cities into wonderlands of beauty, but we must also preserve in them for our children the yet more beautiful art of living."

"The passion of American fathers and mothers is to lift children to higher opportunities than they have themselves enjoyed."

"Their varied personal ties and abilities must be brought fully to bloom; they must not be mentally regimented to a single mold or the qualities of many will be stifled; the door of opportunity must be opened to each of them."

MONTVILLE

Montville Aces basketball team held its first practice of the season Tuesday evening in the Montville Community house at Uncasville. Captain Noroskey had twelve players out for the first practice session. The evening was devoted to a light workout and was followed by a talk by Manager Arm and Plouffe on the fundamentals of the game. Among those reporting for the first tryouts were Robert Welchell, Phillip McDermott, Walter Nortosky, J. Lal, Peter Morosky, Roland Fitch, Ernest Moss, Rueber Akant, Julius Kobos and Lewis Gero.

Red Cross Canvass

The annual American Red Cross drive has been in progress for the past week and only a few days are left for persons who wish to subscribe for this most worthy cause. The local committee, headed by Mrs. Grace P. Melcer, is making every effort to enroll every available person in the town. A house-to-house canvass is being made by the canvassers, who are in charge of Mrs. Charles E. Ramage and if anyone is not called upon, the annual fee may be mailed either to Mrs. Grace P. Melcer or to Mrs. Charles E. Ramage.

The state and local police are investigating the break Tuesday evening in the gasoline station-store of Michael Lewis of Oakdale, resulting in the store being completely wiped out. A few suspicious characters have been questioned.

William Wylie Jr., of Pequot, has left for Pennsylvania where he has obtained employment.

William Brooks, is employed in the Pappas Bros' store in Uncasville.

Police Officer Howard Lamphere was a business caller in New London Wednesday morning.

A large delegation of local boxing fans motored to Taftville Wednesday and witnessed the bouts under the auspices of the Shyma club held in Parish hall.

The schools in the town were closed Wednesday for teachers' visiting day.

ROAD SOCIETY

Mr. and Mrs. Grover Coffin and three children of Taunton, Mass., spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Sinclair.

Rev. Josiah Dickerman of Foxboro, Mass., will preach in the Road church Sunday morning next.

Billings Wheeler with his family spent Thursday with his daughter Mrs. Elsie Clark in Westerly.

Miss Elizabeth Laewphere, Miss Abbie Hakes, Miss Eleanor Chapman, Mr. and Mrs. William Higgins, of Westerly, and Miss Marian Mackle, of Mystic, were recent callers at Edmund Burdick's.

Osmore Buddington of New Haven and his mother from West Mystic were dinner guests Sunday of Mrs. A. G. Wheeler.

The service announced for Sunday last was indefinitely postponed, as Rev. Mr. Bunker did not come on account of bad weather at his home in Wilton.

Mrs. Eugene Palmer left Saturday for her home in Providence, after spending the summer at her sons, with Mr. and Mrs. Harry R. Palmer, and family.

Charles Wheeler has returned from a long trip in Canada, in the interest of the Atwood Machine Co.

Last Thursday the Women's society lately formed at the Road church, met in the church parlors. Various committees were appointed for social and other activities and Christmas festivities were planned.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert S. Hewitt and Mrs. George Miner of Groton; also Miss Lucy Randall of Waban, Mass., were recent callers at Maple Lawn. Miss Randall remained for a visit.

The turkey supper by the grange, held in the church parlors Monday, was well attended and the supper was enjoyed by all.

At Peekskill, N. Y., Tom Gilbert started out to call on his relatives. The steering gear of his car went wrong and by itself the family car did the following, as the Boston Globe summarizes: Plunged into the porch of Cousin Robert Gilbert, rolled on and crashed against the front steps of Uncle Caleb Gilbert, and still rolling, knocked over a mail box from which Brother Louis Gilbert postman, was collecting letters. Aunt Mary Gilbert, who witnessed it all, frantically called the police department and Nephew Chester Gilbert, a policeman, responded. A survey showed brother Tom and the rest of the family excited, but unhurt.

GREENEVILLE

The beautiful bouquet of flowers that adorned the table at the Greeneville Congregational church Sunday was donated by Mr. and Mrs. George Scott, florist, of Lafayette street. The bouquet was taken to a member of the Greeneville church who is a patient at the W. W. Backus hospital.

OBITUARY

John P. Driscoll

After an illness of several weeks the life of John P. Driscoll came to a close at his home, 56 Central avenue, Tuesday evening. Mr. Driscoll underwent an operation recently and up to the time of this operation had never been sick in his life. He was born in County Cork, Ireland, on November 6, 1862, the son of Daniel and Bridget Sullivan Driscoll. Mr. Driscoll came to this country on May 9, 1880 and since then has made his home in the Greeneville section. He was united in marriage at St. Patrick's church of this city on April 30, 1895, by Rev. Peter Kennedy to Mary E. Hayes. Besides his wife the deceased is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Edward J. Markham and Miss Alice E. Driscoll of this city; a son, Daniel Edmund Driscoll, also of this city; two brothers, Daniel and Peter Driscoll of this city, and four sisters, Mary, Ellen and Ann Driscoll and Mrs. John Hartie, all of this city. Mr. Driscoll was a devoted member of St. Mary's Memorial church and for the past 29 years he was employed at the United States Finishing company. Mr. Driscoll was a loving and kind husband, a loyal father with his main thought being of his family. He was very favorably known throughout this vicinity where he has a large circle of friends and acquaintances who, upon learning of his death, were grieved and in return will express their heartfelt sympathy to the members of his immediate family.

Xmas sale-supper, St. Andrew's ch. hall, tonight 5:30. Tick. 50c.—adv.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward V. Gleason of Boswell avenue were the wedding attendants at the marriage of Miss Agnes Julia Murphy and Donald C. Kelly in Buffalo, N. Y. The wedding took place Tuesday morning.

Miss Jane Sullivan and Miss Polly Jones have returned to their homes after spending a few days with relatives in New York. They made the trip by automobile.

The president of St. Andrew's guild, Mrs. Charles Erwin, has announced the annual Christmas sale with which a supper will be combined.

Mrs. David Goldblatt and Miss Esther Goldblatt and Jacob Goldblatt of Central avenue are spending a few days at Worcester with Mrs. Goldblatt's sister.

Many of the local fight fans journeyed to Taftville last evening to watch their idol, Vic Darr, a boy from the third ward, who was on the card.

TAFTVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. Pamphile Ancill have moved to the house owned by Mrs. William Thiel on Merchants avenue

Miss Hortense Phillips, Miss Augusta Thoma and Miss Lena Kaempff of Blissville and Mrs. M. Anthony and Harold Mell of Jewett City have returned from Rochester, N. Y., where the seventh degree was conferred upon them at the 64th annual session of the National grange. The party, which traveled by motor went to Niagara Falls and into Canada, returning by way of Watkins Glen, the Catskills and Poughkeepsie.

Among the members of Peter Gallan post, No. 104, American Legion and its legion auxiliary who attended the installation of officers of the Oxford post in Oxford, Mass., Tuesday evening, were Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Frohmader and Miss Agnes Dougherty of South Second avenue; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kelly of upper Merchants avenue; Mrs. Clara T. Caron of Blissville; Mrs. Mary Rich of Providence street and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Perkins Sears of North Fifth avenue.

TRIAL BEFORE JURY IN SUIT FOR $10,000 DAMAGES

In the superior court at New London on Wednesday before Judge C. L. Avery and a jury trial was proceeding in the $10,000 damage suit brought against Louis Sherry, Inc., of New York for the death of John W. Lewis, late of Stonington. The suit is brought by Frederick D. Lewis, administrator of the estate of John W. Lewis. Direct testmony for the plaintiff was concluded during the day and several witnesses for the defendant were heard before court adjourned in the afternoon till the next day.

The suit arose from an accident Aug. 17, 1929 on the Stonington to New London highway, about 200 feet west of the Buddington road in Groton. At that time a heavy truck owned by the defendant and operated by John Carasi and an automobile operated by the late John W. Lewis collided and Lewis received injuries which resulted in his death the next day.

The jury hearing the case is as follows:

New London—Samuel B. Darrow, Clarence Jeffery, William M. Lewis and C. Oscar Tracy.

Groton—Charles W. Gildersleeve, Carroll W. Bliven.

Stonington—James Cooper, George D. Johnson.

Montville—John J. Doyle.

Waterford—John Gallaher.

East Lyme—Henry B. Morton and Fred H. Smith.

NORMAL SCHOOL TEACHERS VISIT THREE SCHOOLS

Among the recent visitors at the Lisbon, Canterbury and Sterling schools were Dr. D. Welte, principal of the New Britain Normal school, Dr. William P. Dyer, superintendent and Miss May H. Noyes, supervisor of the practice school at New Britain Normal school. These educators are particularly interested in the pe of "child centered" school work that is being carried on in these towns.

Pass Pharmacist Examinations.

Robert J. Campbell and William H. Douglass of this city Howard Fisk and Rudolph D. Methe of Danielson, were among the 37 who have successfully passed state examinations for registered pharmacist. There were 75 who took the examinations.

NORWICH TOWN

At a recent meeting of the C. E. society of the M. E. church, the following were appointed a nominating committee to bring in a report at the December meeting: LeRoy Miner, Edward Howe and Arthur Fulton.

FUNERAL

Percy Brailey

Monday afternoon Rev. George Warren Potter, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church officiated at the funeral of Percy Brailey at Niantic. During the fourteen months Mr. Brailey was a patient at Uncas-on-Thames Rev. Mr. Potter spent many hours visiting the young man, as he was a member of Mr. Potter's class of young people during his three years' pastorate at Niantic. Recently Rev. Mr. Potter baptized the young man and received him into the church. The funeral was held in the Methodist church at Niantic and four ministers and the Order of Odd Fellows had a part in the service. Rev. Joseph Pennepacker of the Niantic Methodist church opened the service, the psalm was read by the pastor of the Road church, Stonington, Rev. Charles Eldredge, prayer was oeffred by the pastor of Niantic Baptist church, Rev. Arthur E. Darby and Rev. Mr. Potter gave the eulogy. Chaplain Frederick Beckwith of the Odd Fellows took charge of the service of that order. There was a very large gathering of friends in the church showing the place the young man held in the love and respect of the townspeople.

Drum Presented Scouts

Recently the John Mason troop 2 of Boy Scouts connected with the M. E. church received a much appreciated gift. A street drum in good condition was presented the troop by Albert W. Lillibridge. Both the Boy Scouts and the Wolf Cubs have found that the playing of the drum has been a great help in their marching periods.

"Japan Faces Eastward"

Sunday night in the M. E. church the pastor, Rev. George Warren Potter will give the second lecture in the series of world service program. The stereopticon lecture will be on the subject, "Japan Faces Eastward." The lecture depicts the economic, social and religious situation in Japan. A rapid survey of the mission stations of the Methodist Episcopal church reveals the contribution made toward the Christianizing of Japan. The lecture will be public and the service begins at 7:30. During the course of the lecture about 60 hand-colored slides will be shown by Ralph Smith, who will operate the stereopticon.
operate the stereopticon machine.

Because of the lectures this week by Rev. Dr. Charles A. Jefferson, of New York, held each evening at the United Congregational church, Norwich, the mid-week service at the First church is to be omitted this (Thursday) evening.

The meeting this (Thursday) afternoon in the vestry of the M. E. church, by Dorcas Home Missionary society is to be a thank offering meeting in observance of Thanksgiving, not a mite box meeting. The mite box meeting always is held during May.

Popular Boy Remembered

A large company of relatives, neighbors and family friends assembled at the Sacred Heart church Tuesday morning at 7:30, when the pastor, Rev Edward J. Quinn celebrated a month's mind requiem high mass for the repose of the soul of Richard Elmer Cormier. Mrs. William A. Murphy directed the music. At the offertory Miss Mary Buckley sang DeProfundis, and at the conclusion of the mass she sang Abide With Me.

Teachers and schoolmates were pleased to greet Johnny Hann Monday morning, when he returned to Samuel Huntington school, following an absence of ten weeks, as the result of breaking his leg while playing football. He is now getting around with the aid of a cane.

DANIELSON MAN MADE PRESIDENT OF EASTERN CONN. MILLS ASSOCIATION

Samuel Boyd of the Quinebaug company, Danielson, was elected president of the Eastern Connecticut Mills association at the annual meeting held Wednesday evening at Ponemah hall, Taftville, with an attendance of over 125 members representing a score of mills in the eastern part of the state. Mr. Boyd succeeds Alfred Linderson, who presided at the business session. Fred T. Taylor, of the Powdrell & Alexander Co., of Danielson; Edward Smith of the Wauregan Co., of Wauregan; James Brady of the Hygienic Fibre Co., of Versailles; Louis M. Gingrass of the Ashland Co., of Jewett City, and Clarence Taylor of Aldrich Bros., Moosup, were named vice presidents; and Prentice W. Chase of the Ashland Co., Jewett City, was elected secretary-treasurer.

Entertainment was furnished by Edward T. Connelly, Nicholas J. Spellman and Michael J. Farrell, who performed in unsurpassed fashion, their musical numbers calling for liberal applause, and Mr. Connelly's jokes kept the gathering in roars of laughter. Preceding the meeting a delicious supper of oyster stew, apple pie a la mode, coffee and cigars was served under the direction of Clarence J. Nagle.

Among those present was Frederick Babcock, editor of Fibre & Fabric, of Boston, Mass., affectionately known as the "father of the Eastern Connecticut Mills association." Mr. Babcock addressed the gathering advising them that it was just such groups as this that could kill the lack of confidence now prevailing. He asked the members to live as though business was good and stated that if every person would spend an extra dollar a week for textiles, there would not be an idle spindle or roll in all New England.

R. C Young gave a highly instructive talk on "Oil Spraying of Cotton," describing how cotton is now being successfully treated with oil, and that the results are outstanding all the way through the mill. These results include better spinning of yarn, less ends down, less thick and thin places in roving and less variations. The percentage of oil spray used is four ounces to 100 pounds of cotton.

The main speaker of the evening was Professor R. E. Schwarz of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, who illustrated his talk with stereopticon views. Nobody knows when cotton spinning and weaving originated, Professor Schwarz said, but possibly spinning first was used when primitive man found that two sinews twisted together would make a stronger cord to bind his stone axe. Later it became a bowstring and put him on a par with the sabre-toothed tiger of his time. Progress from that time was extremely rapid. Textile research may be divided into pure science and whole industry, the first class being subdivided into educational bureaus such as government bureaus and the United States Institute for Textile research; and the second group being advanced by universities and government bureaus. Applied science is divided into control by individual mills and development by individual mills. A mill's program should look not only to what it is doing, but to new things, said the speaker.

He outlined the early development of spinning in India and Peru and showed pictures of the crude types of looms used in these countries. Printing, using rollers or dyes in designs taken from pottery was in use in Peru 2,500 years before Christ. Professor Schwarz also described the weaving of the Navajo blanket, first used as a symbol of the tribe's progress and prosperity. Much rainfall meant good crops, and its advent was marked by a colored thread woven into the fabric. After this custom ceased, the blankets were used for wall decorations and then for coverings. Designs for printing were taken from the painted designs on pottery and designs woven into blankets. Pictures were shown of early Greek and Roman looms.

An interesting talk was given on the fibres of flax, Manila hemp, jute, ramie, shoddy, and wool, and pictures of these fibres under the microscope were shown. Asbestos fibres were shown this being the finest fibre known to man, being the thickness of one-quarter of one-tenth of the thickness of the finger nail of a human being.

Various pictures were shown of microscopes, yarn testers and yarn evenness controllers used in textile mills. The speaker also gave an outline of analyzing yarns with X-ray, and showed color combinations in cotton, wool, flax, silk, rayon and ramie.

The pretty waitresses who served the supper, attired in smart frocks of Ponemah Mills Mandalay cloth were Mrs. Richard Ont, Miss Lena Martin, Miss Mary Curran, Miss Diana Gouin, Miss Erna Seifert, Miss Alice Deauchemin, Miss Dorothy Hunt and Miss Simone Phaneuf.

UNVEILED BRONZE STATUE TO LIEUT. LION GARDINER

A bronze statue of heroic size of Lieut. Lion Gardiner, builder and commander of the first fort at Saybrook Point erected in 1635, was unveiled Wednesday afternoon at Saybrook Point after dedicatory exercises had been held at the Old Saybrook town hall. In the assemblage of over 500 were about 25 descendants of Lieut. Gardiner, who occupied seats on the platform.

The historic address was given at the town hall by Hon. Arthur L. Shipman of Hartford and John Gardiner of New York represented the Gardiner descendants who erected the statue. Hon. Samuel R. Spencer, state treasurer and governor-elect, responded for the state and First Selectman Frederick S. Chapman for the town.

The assemblage then adjourned to go in procession to Saybrook Point, the location of the statue within the site of the old fort.

At the fort the coverings of the statue was removed by Jonathan Thompson Gardiner, Miss Sarah B. Gardiner and Winthrop Gardiner, descendants of Lion Gardiner. A closing prayer was made by Rev. J. V. Hussion, pastor of St. John's Roman Catholic church of Old Saybrook.

The statue unveiled stands eight feet four inches in height and is posed upon a base of Millstone granite ten feet in height.

The memorial is placed on the old fort site in a 17 acre tract deeded in perpetuity by the directors of the New Haven railway to a group of 18 trustees. The statue faces Long Island sound and Gardiner's Island, which became Lion Gardiner's home after he was superseded in command of Saybrook Point.

FARMERS MUST CO-OPERATE IN DRIVE AGAINST RATS

Next Tuesday the New London County Farm bureau is conducting a community campaign against the destructive rat all over New London county. Since rats are highly migratory everyone must work together, said County Agent Walter T. Clark, Wednesday. Rats move from farm to farm, from house to house, from community to community, and even from country to country. No real progress in rat control is possible when the destruction is left to the individual, for reinfestation from surrounding infested premises is continuous. It is necessary to treat large areas at the same time.

A county-wide rat campaign is being organized by the farm bureau in co-operation with the U. S. biological survey to make the destruction of rats easy for all citizens. Three kinds of bait that only kill rats and mice will be prepared and distributed from a convenient point in every town. These baits when properly exposed have given most successful results. It is hoped by the farm bureau officials that everyone will take an active part in the campaign. Tell your neighbor, since his rats may be your rats if he does not destroy them and make the campaign a 100 per cent. clean-up.

So that everyone may be prepared to make the move together the county agent advises that it is necessary to order in advance and this should be done through the farm bureau office. So far orders for over 300 dishes of bait have been received.

SUIT AGAINST PARENTS OVER PROPERTY TRANSFER

On the claim that her father and mother, Howard and Mary J. Bishop of Norwich have in their possession property which belongs to her Mrs. Olive B. Bennett of Preston, their daughter, has brought suit in the superior court against her parents.

According to the complaint, Mrs. Bennett alleges that about Oct. 18, 1930, she was the owner of livestock and a farm in Lebanon which she traded for a farm and stock in Preston. When the necessary papers for the trade were to be made, she claims that her parents represented to her that it would be for her best interests to have the title to the farm and livestock taken in the name of her mother, who would hold it for her daughter and allow the daughter full use and possession of the farm and livestock in Preston, as if they were the property of the daughter.

Mrs. Bennett claims that there were 11 head of livestock on the Preston farm which were reasonably worth $1,000, which the defendants have sold and converted to their own use.

Hearing On Zoning Appeal.

WOMEN VOTERS PRESIDENT SAYS PROGRAMME IMPORTANT

In her final address as president of the Connecticut League of Women Voters, Miss Mary Bulkley of Hartford spoke to the delegates to the state league convention in Bridgeport Wednesday on 'The Programme's the Thing." Describing the careful procedure through which every league member has a voice in the making of the programme of work Miss Bulkley said:

"The programme thus adopted becomes the most important matter for the entire league all over the country. It is expected to be in the hands of every individual member, to be the subject for round tables, discussion groups, forums, congressional action, state legislative action, municipal action, town action.

"What is the general character of this programme? It cannot be expected to be very radical, with so large and diversified a group passing upon it, but it is liberal. To quote Miss Sherwin again: 'If you will check through each section you will see that its items for support are consistently conceived in the desire to promote the public interest, recognized often as a neglected interest.'"

Christmas Seal Agents

In a statement from Hartford of the agreement made between the American Red Cross and the National Tuberculosis association as to the distinction between the roll call and the Christmas seal sale, the announcement is made that the Christmas seal agents in this locality are Norwich tuberculosis seal committee, Mrs. Richard B. Snow, chairman: anti tuberculosis committee of Bozrah, Mrs. W. J. McManus, chairman; Sprague Public Health Nurse association, Baltic, Miss Blanche Case, secretary.

There is no official connection between the roll call and the Christmas seal sale. The roll call is held from Armistice day up to and including Thanksgiving day. The seal sale begins the day after Thanksgiving. The agreement permits the National Tuberculosis association and its affiliated associations to deliver seals in advance to large corporations who use them on their bills, which are mailed out a few days before the end of the month.

HINT AT MORATORIUM BY THE GERMAN FINANCE MINISTER

Julius Curtius Announces that Germany May be Compelled to Invoke the Safeguard Measures of the Young Plan—Has No Intention of Resorting to Such Action Until Burdens Become Dangerously Oppressive—Assertion Made After the Reichsrat Had Passed Virtually All Legislation Connected With the Government's Financial Program—Declared That Germany Will Early Demand a Disarmament Conference

BERLIN, Nov. 20—(AP)—Foreign Minister Julius Curtius chose an opportune moment tonight, after the reichsrat had passed virtually all legislation connected with the government's financial program, to announce that Germany may be compelled to invoke the safeguard measures of the Young plan now that she has proven she has done all that is possible to fulfill her international obligations.

These safeguard measures refer to a moratorium and the convocation of a special advisory committee to bring about alleviations permissible under the plan, and the foreign minister's speech constituted Germany's first official intimation that she is likely to invoke her right under the plan to declare a moratorium.

He sharply criticised Europe's sluggish attitude toward disarmament and, in connection with a recent speech on that issue by Premier Tardieu of France, he declared that Germany will demand an early disarmament conference, "where each nation must show its colors and its real intentions."

There were only a few spectators in the reichstag council room where he read his speech.

He assured the world that Germany has no intention of scrapping the Young plan, that the government realizes how far-reaching invocation of the Young plan alleviatory measures would be, and that therefore Germany would not resort to them until its burdens became dangerously oppressive to its people.

"We must face the fact," said he, "that nobody can know today whether the measures by which we are to put our financial affairs in order will suffice, and when we must take the international steps provided for in the treaties for the protection of our economy and exchange.

"We have given no guarantee for the feasibility of the Young plan. Dr. Stresemann (late German foreign minister) said a year ago that nobody could guarantee that the plan could be fulfilled and that nobody expected a guarantee from us.

"Even our critics must realize that since the 1929 conference of experts the world's entire economic condition has shifted and there has been a veritable landslide in Germany. It must be observed also that there has been but little of that co-operation which was to be an essential aid to solving Germany's problem."

Germany's policy, he declared, is not dictated by consideration for any single power, and efforts to achieve some understanding with France and other signatories to the treaty of Versailles does not mean neglect of relations with other countries.

"If today, twelve years after the peace," he said, "it should be demanded that Germany's one-sided disarmament remain permanent, such demands would have consequences which cannot be foreseen. They would endanger the existence of the league of nations and all other guarantees of peace, since such guarantees rest upon the equality of peoples and the contracting parties."

If France claims the right to fortify her frontiers against attack, he asserted, then "certainly Germany, disarmed and surrounded by peoples teeming with arms, has the right to security."

For the past eleven years, he said, Germany's statesmen have pronounced the treaty of Versailles impossible, but he denied that a campaign for revision of that treaty was now being launched in response to internal pressure.

"We do not allow ourselves to be affected by romantic dreams," he declared, "and we are not chasing after imperialistic plans. Any other way but that of peaceful understanding does not enter the question for us. We of all peoples need peace."

There were a few mild bravos and the reichsrat adourned until next Thursday

Before he spoke the body had unanimously approved the budget and a bill reducing the salaries of cabinet members.

Chancellor Bruening declared the present a time for quick action to consolidate Germany's financial position, and in reply to desperate pleas for revision of appropriations which have been ruthlessly slashed, he asserted, "It's no use, we haven't got the money."

COMMISSION COMPLETES ITS NAVAL LIMITATION DRAFT

GENEVA, Nov. 20—(AP)—The preparatory disarmament commission, in a surprising burst of speed, today completed its naval limitation draft incorporating the principle of budgetary control.

The proposal, submitted by Lord Cecil of Great Britain, was adopted over the objection of the United States, which favors direct limitation, and over that of Japan and France, who are opposed to superimposing budgetary control upon direct limitation already endorsed by the great naval powers.

Lord Cecil in recalling his earlier declaration that his country could not agree to naval budgetary limitation unless it also was accepted by other great sea powers, expressed hope that some compromise formula might be found before convening of the general conference which would enable the United States and Japan to enter this scheme.

The proposal was adopted by the votes of Great Britain, Canada, Russia, Ireland, Norway, Persia, Finland, Italy, Roumania and Holland. Opposing were the United States, France and Japan.

In concluding its naval draft today, the commission took over in the main the details of the Washington and London pacts as well as the fundamental provision of the Washington agreement for limiting aircraft carriers.

ROW OVER THE SALE OF HOME-MADE RADIO SET

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Static crackled all over the place at the McInerney home on Long Island today, and John McInerney, 18, was it.

He went home late today to find that his sister had traded his home-made radio set which he had worked weeks and weeks to perfect, for a commercial machine, and he went on a rampage.

He had gone a long way toward wrecking the interior of the house before police arrived. He tore down the panels of the stairway, he smashed tables, chairs, windows, crockery—nearly everything breakable.

His sister finally found Patrolman Charles Hurlbian. When the officer cornered young McInerney in the attic, the youth struck him over the head with a timber. The officer succeeded in subduing him just as an emergency squad arrived with tear bombs.

McInerney was taken to a hospital for observation.

SEES CONN. EMPLOYMENT CONDTIONS PROMISING

BOSTON, Nov. 20.—(AP)—A general though not spectacular improvement in employment conditions in Connecticut, was predicted for early in 1931 by Wilson H. Lee, chairman of the Connecticut division of the New England council, who tonight addressed the Connecticut state dinner held here in connection with the sixth New England conference.

While Connecticut is suffering from the business depression, Lee said, the state is better off than other industrial sections.

"I believe," he said, "that I voice the sentiment of Connecticut when I say we have scraped the bottom of depression and I look forward to a general though not spectacular improvement in employment conditions immediately following the early part of the new year."

NEW ENGLAND CONFERENCE IN SESSION IN BOSTON

BOSTON, Nov. 20.—(AP)—The eight hundred businessmen attending the sixth New England conference were warned today by Roy H. Young, governor of the Federal Reserve bank of Boston, that business was not yet on the upgrade.

There were a few signs earlier in the year to indicate an increase in business but this momentum was not maintained, and instead there has been recession, he said. Among industries which he said were now at a low level he included the iron, steel, textile, automobile and boot and shoe business.

Moreover, he said, American investments abroad declined in 1928 and 1929 due to economic troubles in foreign nations.

Discussing the problems of New England, he expressed the belief that there was too great a tendency to over-emphasize the textile and boot and shoe industries.

MINERS RETURN TO WORK ON DIVIDED TIME BASIS

HERRIN, Ill., Nov. 20.—(AP)—Almost 1,000 miners of the Peabody local union of number 18 mine at West Frankfort, Ill., today agreed to return to work on a divided time basis, it was announced by Jilliam J. Sneed of Herrin, international board member of the United Mine Workers of America. The mine, where 932 men are employed and which has an annual payroll of a million dollars, has been idle since April because of a dispute over mechanical loaders.

SEIZURE OF "SCARFACE" AL CAPONE IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—(AP)—The Chicago Daily News says that "Scarface" Al Capone, gang chieftain, was seized by authorities on the West Side today. Capone heads the list of "public enemies" and has been wanted on a vagrancy warrant. Police refused to verify the report, as did the state's attorney's department.

Thomas D. Nash, Capone's chief counsel, said unconfirmed reports of Capone's seizure had reached him, and that he was seeking definite information.

BOB RESTRAINED FROM DISPOSING OF SECURITIES

NEW YORK, Nov. 20—(AP)—Charles V. Bob, inidcte dpromoter and financier who surrendered yesterday after being mising for six weeks, was restrained today from disposing of any securities in a temporary injunction granted by Supreme Court Justice Reigelman in Brooklyn.

The court announced the injunction would remain in force until Bob makes satisfactory explanation of his financial affairs, which have been under investigation since his disappearance.

SETTING HEN CONCEALED SPEAKEASY WHISKEY

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 20—(AP)—A setting hen concealed six pints of liquot in the rear yard of a speakeasy here, federal prohibition agents found today.

Last week agents purchased drinks in the place, but today when they arrived for the raid the whiskey could not be located until a prying agent discovered the bootleg product in the nest of the clucking chicken.

STEENOCKERZEEL, Belgium, Nov. 20.—(AP)—In a feudal castle here where and his mother, the former Empress Zita, are spending their exile from their native land, Archduke Otto today celebrated his eighteenth birthday, and, according to report, was hailed by a group of Hungarian legitimists as their rightful king.

CLASH OF FACTIONS AT CHILD HEALTH CONFERENCE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.— (AP) — President Hoover's child conference rode its first tempest today and was steered, by proclamation, into peaceful waters.

Declaring its child health and protection objective important enough "to justify any amount of time and effort to harmonize varying points of view," the procedure committee tonight issued a statement "that "points on which agreement cannot be reached will be taken up by the president's continuation committee."

The statement was precipitated by a clash between the public health service and the children's bureau, over an old dispute first broached in the conference proceedings by Secretary Davis in his morning address, when he championed the children's bureau in his department.

His speech emphatically declared against subtracting any functions from the children's bureau or limiting its scope. It gained significance by developments in a tempestuous session of a public health sub-committee.

A recommendation that the maternity, infancy, and child health activities of the children's bureau be transferred to the public health service was read by Dr. Haaven Emerson, of Columbia university, presiding, and was protested by Miss Grace Abbott, children's bureau chief, backed by representatives of women's organizations.

The women demanded a reconsideration of the committee's findings, and the inclusion of Miss Abbott's minority report against such a transfer.

MRS. ELBERS FORMALLY CHARGED WITH MURDER

HACKENSACK, N. J., Nov. 20—(AP)—Harry Elbers, confessed killer of Richard Graham, was indicted today for the slaying which, the state charges, followed several months after Graham had admitted carrying on an affair with Elbers' wife.

Mrs. Elbers was formally charged with murder today after she told detectives she had summoned Graham by telephone early Tuesday morning to the Elbers' Teaneck cottage, where he was found fatally shot a few hours later.

The Bergen county grand jury which indicted Elbers for the murder adjourned for the day without taking any action concerning his wife. Elbers' arraignment was tentatively set for December 9.

Elbers has steadfastly refused to tell authorities his motive for the killing. Repeated questioning has elicited nothing further than the statement, "I shot him."

SPRAGUE PRESIDENT OF SECRETARIES OF STATE

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 20—(AP)—Ernest L. Sprague, Rhode Island, was elected president of the Association of Secretaries of State in Memphis, Tenn., at the close of its annual convention. The executive committee will consider invitations from Hot Springs, Ark., Salt Lake City, Utah, Washington, D. C., Salem, Ore., and Providence, R. I., for next year's convention.

BELASCO'S CONDITION REPORTED STILL SERIOUS

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(AP)—David Belasco's condition tonight was described as "weakened" and "still serious" after reports during the day had indicated the aged theatrical producer, stricken with pneumonia, had passed the crisis of his illness. His temperature was 101.

OBITUARY

Earle Perry Charlton

WESTPORT HARBOR, Mass., Nov. 20—(AP)—Earle Perry Charlton, vice president of the F. W. Woolworth company, and a member of the board of directors of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, died here tonight. He was operated on at Palm Beach, Fla., last February.

He was born on June 19, 1863 of old New England stock. His father, James D. Charlton was a direct descendent of the Charltons who emigrated from England in 1636, settling in Windsor, Conn. His mother was Mrs. Lydia Ladd Charlton.

He was educated in the public schools of Hartford, Conn., and went to Boston in 1880 to work for Newell.

In 1889 Mr. Charlton married Miss Ida Stein, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stein of Buffalo, N. Y. They had three children.

William B. Hanna

NEW YORK, Nov. 20—(AP)—William B. Hanna, veteran New York sports writer, died today at the Idylease sanitarium, at Newfoundland, N. J., after a long illness.

Although more than 70 years old, Mr. Hanna had been actively engaged in covering sports for the Herald-Tribune until last May, when he suffered a stroke while reporting an Army-Dartmouth baseball game at West Point.

Storm Sweeping East From The Rocky Mts.

Snow, Sleet and Rain is Hampering Traffic in the Middle West

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 20.—(AP)—A winter storm riding east from the Rocky mountains tied knots in wire communication and hampered rail and highway traffic through the west today in the wake of tornadoes that took 21 lives and injured about 100 persons in Oklahoma, Kansas and Arkansas yesterday.

Snow, sleet, rain and sharp drops in temperature were the accompaniments of the storm's sally into the mid-west.

Wire service to the Pacific coast was badly hit as lines snapped through the prairie country from, accumulations of ice, sudden temperature changes and high winds.

Passenger trains from the west were running several hours behind schedule and highways were blocked in many sections.

Another fatality was added to the list of several lives claimed since the blizzard broke over the Rocky mountain section. Guy D. Miner, 47, druggist of Des Moines, N. M., was found frozen to death near Mount Dora, N. M. He succumbed to exposure while going for aid after his automobile became stuck in snowdrifts. An aged man named Whitehead from Amarillo, Tex., who was left in Miner's car, was found unconscious and may die.

Hundreds of motorists were marooned in towns and farm houses along snow-blocked highways.

Twenty school children were forced to spend last night in a country school near Pueblo, Colo., when huge drifts isolated the building.

Snow ranging from two inches to drifts 20 feet deep were left through the mountain states as the weather cleared.

A blizzard in northeast Colorado, near Hugo, buried the Union Pacific railroad tracks under 20 feet of snow. Probably 1,000 head of cattle were reported frozen to death in this area.

Through northwestern Kansas and the central and western portions of Nebraska and the Dakotas sleet and snow tore down wires and disrupted travel.

BLIZZARD SWEEPS PLAINS OF WESTERN NEBRASKA

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 20.—(AP)—A blizzard swept the plains of western Nebraska today while rain soaked the dry fields of the eastern part of the state.

Sleet froze on telegraph wires in central and northern portions of the state and broke down miles of line.

A. E. Anderson, federal crop statistician, hailed the rain and snow as a boon to agriculture. A long dry spell this fall had done some damage to winter wheat.

Snowdrifts piled by a gale to the eaves of houses brought business to a standstill in some western localities. Near Sidney a dozen automobiles were stalled on the Lincoln highway. Drivers sought refuge in nearby farm houses.

PLANNED TO SELL NAPOLEON NECKLACE TO "AMERICAN BOOB"

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Letters purporting to show that a plan to sell a Napoleon necklace for half a million dollars to one of several "rich American boobs" was halted by the Wall street crash were introduced today at the trial of Archduke Leopold of Hapsburg.

Archduke Leopold was indicted with Col. Charles L. Townsend and Townsend's wife, the Baroness Baronti, on charges of grand larceny in the alleged unauthorized sale of the necklace for only $60,000. The heirloom was owned by Leopold's aunt, Archduchess Marie Therese.

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED BY NATIONAL GRANGE

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 20—(AP)—Economic equality for the American farmer and independence for the Philippine Islands were the aims of resolutions adopted by the National Grange in its meeting here.

Among other things they recommended extension of the benefits of co-operative marketing, protection for the American farmer from competition by the products of cheap foreign labor and a halt in the development of additional agricultural land.

A "Reign Of Terror" In Valencia, Spain

Created by [illegible]ng Labor Unions—[illegible]rnment Protection [illegible]t

MADR[illegible] Nov. 20— (AP) —Eight thousa[illegible]yers in Valencia today sent a [illegible]ion here to ask government pro[illegible]tion against a "reign of terror" established in their city by warring labor unions, but from other points to which the general strike of the past week has extended came reports that the tension had eased appreciably.

The Valencia delegation blamed the Syndicato Unico, a labor organization held responsible for much of the recent disorder, for "intolerable conditions" under which Valencia workmen have been driven from their jobs under threat of violence against which the local authorities had no effective weapons.

Minor disorders continued today at Barcelona, where left wing irreconcilables refused to obey union orders to go back to work. There were clashes in the outlying industrial sections but the city itself remained peaceful.

In one street fight a mounted policeman was hauled from his horse and set upon by strikers before the mob was dispersed.

New student disorders developed at Albacete, Huelva and Cuenca, and most of the important universities throughout the kingdom have been closed. Seville, Alicante and other strike centers, however, reported no disturbances.

At Madrid the newspaper Heraldo de Madrid was suspended for five days because it published an article defending the general strike, and its author was arrested.

ENVISIONS WAR FOUGHT WITH ECONOMIC WEAPONS

CHICAGO, Nov. 20— (AP) —Sir Charles Addis, British financier, today visioned the world gripped in a disastrous business war unless nations reach an adequate trade understanding.

Such a war, Sir Charles said, would be fought with tariffs, credits and trade orders.

In analyzing the international unemployment situation and trade depression, the British banker said there are 10,000,000 unemployed in Great Britain, Germany and the United States, while at the same time, enormous stores of foodstuffs and textiles have piled up unpurchased.

A market can not be found for this surplus, he said, because of international trade misunderstandings.

"When nations compete in the same markets with the same goods," Sir Charles said, "the situation is fraught with friction and discord."

Sir Charles is a director of the Bank of England and of the international bank of reparation settlements. He is also a member of the Young plan commission.

A WEALTHY N. Y. REALTOR FALLS 24 STORIES TO DEATH

NEW YORK, Nov. 20—(AP)—Reginald W. Murray, wealthy real estate operator, fell to his death today from the 24th floor of the nearly completed 58-story skyscraper at 500 Fifth avenue, at the corner of Forty-second street.

There was no indication of suicide, police said. Mr. Murray had left his associates of two real estate companies which he headed a few moments earlier and was showing a client office space in the building. His brother, Guy, a business associate, believed he lost his balance while leaning over a window ledge only two and a half feet high. The body landed on the three-story roof of a neighboring building.

Mr. Murray, who was reputed to be a millionaire, was interested in numerous important building projects in New York and had extensive holdings in Scarsdale, a suburb in Westchester county. He was formerly a vice president of the Fred F. French company, large New York real estate firm. He lived at Rye, N. Y., and is survived by a widow and two sons.

LONG TERM SENTENCES FOR THREE KIDNAPERS

NORRISTOWN, Pa., Nov. 20.—(AP)—Three men who pleaded guilty to kidnaping 5-year-old Ignatius Arena, in an effort to collect $10,000 ransom from his father, Samuel Arena, a macaroni manufacturer, were given prison terms ranging from 10 to 50 years today.

Frank Fillipone, 24, whom Ignatius identified as the man who "gave me candy and took me away in an automobile," was sentenced to 25 to 50 years by County Judge J. Ambler Williams. Tony Graparota, 27, who Ignatius said drove the car, received a 20 to 50 year term, and Charles Terment, 35, received 10 to 25 years for lending his automobile in the abduction for a share in the expected ransom.

TO ACT FOR THE JEWISH AGENCY FOR PALESTINE

NEW YORK, Nov. 20—(AP)—Appointment of a provisional committee of four to act on behalf of the American members of the Jewish agency for Palestine was announced today by Dr. Cyrus Adler, joint chairman of the council of the Jewish agency.

The provisional committee has been created as a result of Felix M. Warburg's resignation as chairman of the administrative committee of the Jewish agency, in protest against the white paper issued by the British government last October 21 restricting Jewish immigration and land purchase in Palestine.

Dr. Adler is to be chairman of the provisional committee. The other members named are Bernard Flexner, Morris Rothenberg and Robert Szold

TWO BATTALIONS OF RED ARMY MUTINIED

LONDON, Nov. 21—(AP)—Berlin dispatches to the Daily Express carry reports that two battalions of the red army mutinied while engaged in winter maneuvers at Ismaiowo, a village 10 miles from Moscow.

The reports add that the men killed some of their officers but ultimately were subjected by the Ogpu (secret police) after a fierce battle in which many soldiers were killed or wounded.

It was added that 700 arrests had since been made in the red capital.

TOUGH TIME IS COMING FOR THE CHICAGO GANGSTERS

Federal Government Enters Drive to Break Up Activities of Criminals—Will Apply Federal Laws to the Underworld Characters—Law Enforcement Agents of a Dozen Counties in Illinois Have Joined Hands to Close in on the Criminal Forces in Chicago

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20. —(AP)—A concerted drive by the federal government to break up the activities of Chicago gangsters was made known today by Attorney General Mitchell.

Federal agents, dispatched from Washington, have been active in Chicago since early summer, the attorney said, and recently there has been a "fortifying" of these forces in an effort to apply federal laws against the underworld characters there.

"We intend to keep going indefinitely or at least until our aid is no longer needed," Mitchell said.

Exactly how large a concentration of government agents is intended in that area Mitchell would not say, but he made clear that one high agent of the department of justice has been dispatched to act as an assistant to the United States attorney in Chicago, coordinating various federal activities.

In addition, he said, the narcotics bureau and the bureau of internal revenue of the treasury department, together with the immigration authorities of the labor department, were joining in the drive. He added that Assistant Attorney General Youngquist, in charge of prohibition, had "more than one" agent now operating in the Chicago district.

Officials of these departments, however, were reluctant to discuss how many men they had sent to fight the gangsters with federal laws.

Speaking for the department of justice, Mitchell said the activity in Chicago was "only one of our numerous efforts," but added that "the gradual strengthening of forces there" already had brought some fruit.

He mentioned one case of a gangster convicted recently of violating the federal revenue act after evidence had been uncovered by the joint efforts of the justice department and the bureau of internal revenue.

The attorney general reiterated today that he personally knew of no complaint from California grape growers and shippers against the activities of gangsters in levying tribute on their product. He said he did recall the case of a Chicago dealer who had complained about racketeers interfering with his shipments but added that this was dropped after an inquiry had been started by the justice department.

PLAN TO CLOSE IN ON GANGSTERS IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Law enforcement agents of a dozen counties joined hands today to draw a ring around the Chicago metropolitan area and close in on the criminal forces.

The proposal to organize a permanent cooperative criminal apprehension bureau for the sector within 50 miles of the Chicago loop drew police chiefs, prosecutors and private detectives from nearby communities into a determined conference at the University of Chicago.

More than 100 attended, and there was an apparently unanimous opinion that modern, organized methods must be used to combat the modern organized criminals. The problem was how to organize quickly and effectively. Among the means proposed were the extension of the present Chicago police radio system to the entire metropolitan area; inter-city and inter-county automatic telegraph systems; combined use of the scientific crime detection laboratory at Northwestern university and a school for police officers.

Acting Police Commissioner John Alcock spoke of the obstacles which face police departments, referring particularly to the rapid displacement of executives and to the grand jury system which he said had outworn its usefulness. He also urged tightening of parole laws and the incarceration of persons convicted of crime pending appeal.

United States District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson said Chicago and the surrounding territory could best be served "by a well trained, well disciplined state police force connected with modern means of communication, and intelligently directed, with jurisdiction to go anywhere within the respective states."

MAY BUY WHEAT PRODUCTS WITH REASONABLE SAFETY

CHICAGO, Nov. 20—(AP)—The Grain Stabilization corporation served notice today that consumers of wheat products may now make purchases with reasonable safety for their seasonable requirements and protect themselves against advances that may come through "many underlying constructive factors."

The assurance was given by George S. Milnor, president of the stabilization agency, after a market session in which government support in and out of the pit had lent stability to prices. Corn surpassed wheat in the upswing, gaining 2 1-2 to 3 1-8 cents a bushel while wheat advanced 1-8 to 3 1-8 cents.

December wheat closed on the Chicago board of trade at 73 1-2 to 5-8 cents a bushel and May contracts at 77 to 77 1-8, the word having gone around the trading floor that bids from houses handling government orders for May wheat were raised 1-2 cent to 76 1-2 today against 76 yesterday.

The farm board's advocacy of a 12 1-2 cent boost in import duty on corn was another factor adding buoyancy.

BETHANY, OKLA., RECOVERING FROM TORNADO EFFECTS

BETHANY, Okla., Nov. 20.— (AP) —Helped generously by a sympathetic public, this little Nazarene church colony was recovering rapidly tonight from the effects of yesterday's tornado.

The death list continued to mount through the day, however. The deaths of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Hiet, an aged couple, brought the total of fatalities to 20.

Two brothers, named Griffin, were reported to Red Cross headquarters as missing. Several injured victims still were in a critical condition.

A call by the American Red Cross and Gov. W. J. Holloway for $30,000, broadcast by newspapers and radio, had met with pledges and cash totaling more than $25,000 early tonight.

Contractors, insurance companies and building and loan organizations volunteered their assistance in rebuilding the wind torn area, a section occupied chiefly by the homes of working men.

SAYS BUSINESS SITUATION IS A "PANIC OF PLENTY"

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(AP)—The present business situation is a "panic of plenty," Martin W. Littleton, prominent New York attorney, said tonight at the annual dinner of the chamber of commerce of the state of New York.

Caution, courage and common sense must be the foundation for economic revival, he said.

John E. Edgerton, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, said the composite opinion of the heads of state manufacturing associations of 18 states is that the business depression and unemployment have struck bottom and are on the upward trend.

GAINS RECORDED IN WINNIPEG WHEAT PIT

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 20.—(AP) — While a farmers' convention at Portage La Prairie, Man., viewed gloomily the economic plight of wheat growers, the Winnipeg wheat pit recorded gains today of 1 3-4 to 2 1-4 cents a bushel above yesterday's prices.

At Ottawa official denials were made that Prime Minister Bennett planned to cancel his engagements abroad and hurry back to consider means of alleviating depression in the wheat market

RAILWAY EXECUTIVES TO PROMOTE EMPLOYMENT

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(AP)— Railway executives representing 90 per cent of the mileage of the United States today reported expenditures on construction and equipment, for the first nine months of 1930, to $125,000,000 more than in 1929 and pledged themselves to continue that program as an aid to employment.

R. H. Aishton, chairman of the executive committee, reported that capital expenditures of class 1 roads from Jan. 1 to Sept. 30 totaled $698,821,000.

The association then voted unanimously to carry on "as far as practicable" work which may provide employment to the greatest possible number of men during the winter.

Despite the general business recession and decrease in their own revenues the railroads have carried out and will continue to carry out, a resolution said, the program of construction and equipment building undertaken at the request of President Hoover a year ago.

PROBABLE CAUSE FOUND AGAINST GEORGE MITCHELL

EAST HAMPTON, Nov. 20—Justice of the Peace George H. Hart today found probable cause against George Mitchell as being an accessory to arson in connection with a fire in the North Store block here October 29.

Mitchell was part owner of the building. Fire started in the early morning in the unusued quarters of a lunchroom, and destroyed the restaurant furnishings. Discovery after the fire of the burned remains of candles newspapers and inflammable materials in a rear room led to the belief the fire was of incendiary origin.

Mitchell's bond, placed at $10,000 after a fire marshal's hearing, was continued at that figure pending hearing of the case in superior court. He waived examination.

BANK ACCOUNTS EVIDENCE IN THE TAMMANY TRIAL

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Bank accounts of Mrs. Martin J. Healy, wife of the Tammany district leader who is on trial, along with Thomas T. Tommaney, charged with barter of a judicial appointment, today were introduced in evidence.

The accounts, showing deposits of several thousand dollars during the spring of 1927, were introduced, the state said, to show that when Healy borrowed $10,000 from Mrs. George F. Ewald he and his wife had ample funds of their own.

MISSING CANADIAN AIRMEN HAVE LANDED AT JACKMAN, ME

MONTREAL, Nov. 20.—(AP)—A special dispatch to La Patrie tonight said three Canadian airmen, missing several days while hunting for Mitchel D. Kaufman, lost New England rubber millionaire, have landed at Jackman, Me.

The men, Joe Redman B. Roy and Adolphe Pouli, who spent many days vainly seeking the missing manufacturer, were in fairly good physical condition but placed themselves under a doctor's care as a precaution because of their hardships.

DECREASE IN LOANS TO BROKERS AND DEALERS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20. — (AP) — Loans to brokers and dealers held by New York federal reserve member banks for the week ending November 19 were announced by the federal reserve board today as $2,185,000,000 representing a decrease of $50,000,000 as compared to the preceding week and establishing a new low record since records of the loans were kept by the federal reserve board around the Indianapolis track at 55 miles an hour —like racing full-throttle up hill for a whole week.

7290 MILES

A whole year's driving in less than a week!

FOR five and a half days and nights, through rain, through blistering heat, three cars—standard 1931 model sedans—racked around and around the torturing Indianapolis Speedway, testing the new Socony Motor Oil.

In less than a week, at close to a mile-a-minute pace, they each covered 7290 miles—a whole year's mileage (AAA averages) . . . the equivalent of driving up hill, throttle wide open, all the way!

The test was made under the strict supervision of the American Automobile Association. The result was even beyond the expectations of the Socony engineers after two and a half years' work!

They already knew it was a great COLD WEATHER OIL. Tested at 5 below zero, in an airplane flying over four and three-quarters miles high, this 100% Paraffine Base dewaxed oil flowed freely.

But the Indianapolis Test proved something more.

It proved that this new oil does not decompose or break up, no matter how savage the HEAT of an automobile engine.

It proved that this new oil consistently maintains the proper "body" at abnormally high engine temperatures, giving perfect piston seal, maximum power, and minimum fuel and oil consumption; and that the new refining process used in its manufacture reduced to a minimum all harmful elements which cause carbon, gum and sludge.

You, too, will find that the new Socony Motor Oil is noticeably "oilier"—better—in fact, the ideal lubricant for eliminating wear in your motor.

We urge you to try it today. In any season it is even better for your car than Socony "Aircraft."

* * *

Socony Winter Gear Oil, the superior lubricant for cold weather, insures proper lubrication and easy gear shifting. Switch to it today. And for a quick starting gasoline try Socony Special plus Ethyl. Remember, too, the importance of lubrication during the winter months. Take no chances. Ask for a Socony Certified Lubrication job—lubrication as it should be done.

Miss Irene Belcher, who is employed in Hartford is having a week's vacation at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Willis E. Belcher.

Walter Grieka is a patient at Springfield hospital, where he recently underwent an operation for appendicitis.

At the session of police court this morning a fine of $10 and costs for failure to grant the right of way was imposed on Donald Coates, 20, of Hebron, whose coupe figured in a crash with a sedan driven by Gedeon Couture of this city on Main street Wednesday evening. Coates entered a plea of guilty through Probation Officer William V. Palmer, Sr. One transient was sentenced to 30 days in the county jail and a local man was given a five-day suspended jail sentence, placed on probation for three months and ordered to pay the costs of the case, when both were arraigned on charges of intoxication.

Team 10, William B. Sweeney, captain, George W. Hickey, G. Donald Bartlett, Albert J. Fournier, J. [illegible]mond Hurley, Michael Klosowski, John Laboy, Maurice S. Leonard, Aime J. Martineau, Paul Moran, Thomas Murray, Nathan Spector, M. D., John H. Wilcox.

COLCHESTER

MISS CUSHMAN SPEAKS AT A UNION MEETING

Miss Betty Cushman, a girl missionary and teacher in Wenshan Girls' school, Foochow City, China, addressed a largely-attended union meeting of the young people of the Congregational churches in this vicinity in the Colchester Congregational church, Tuesday evening. Mrs. George B. Boson and Miss Doris Riley had charge of arrangements for the rally. Refreshments were served at the close of the program. Miss Cushman gave an interesting outline of her work and stressed the need for still greater activities during the coming year. A native of Pawtucket, R. I., Miss Cushman teaches in Foochow under the American board of commissioners for foreign missions and is known as the girls' missionary of the Congregational churches east of Ohio. In 1922 she was graduated from Oberlin college after a freshman year at Brown university. In 1925 she sailed for Foochow where she shortly entered into the chaotic days of revolution. For a time, American newspapers reported thrilling stories of the dangers which confronted Wenshan from excited mobs but through it all Miss Cushman and her associates carried on. She speaks Chinese fluently. Music, calisthenics and history are her special subjects for teaching but above all is her personal contact as a Christian leader of Chinese girlhood. "It takes time to effect the drastic changes which are taking place in China," Miss Cushman points out.

"The Christian church is being refined like gold in a furnace. The revolution has cut away some of the things which were choking the very life of the church. Almost overnight through the violence, suffering and bloodshed of the Chinese revolution the Chinese church has become really indigenous. It is the thing that missionaries have been praying for for the last 50 years. There is a glorious day ahead and our job as foreigners is not finished. The shoulder-to-shoulder cooperation being demanded of us now is going to call for everything we have to give. It is not going to be a 'bed of roses' but who wants a bed of roses anyway? I can sleep like a log on a Chinese 'ding chong'" says Miss Cushman.

Colchester League of Women Voters held a well-attended meeting in Day hall, Tuesday evening, the chairman, Mrs. Joseph Agranovitch presiding. Miss Teresa Vincent, the school nurse gave an interesting outline of her school health work and offered many helpful suggestions for increased cooperation between the parents and the school authorities in carrying on this work. Miss Rae Slopak spoke briefly regarding her recent sight-seeing tour to Washington, D. C., as a member of the state teachers' excursion. Piano solos were pleasingly rendered by Miss Beatrice F. Gitlin.

Mr. and Mrs. Hyman London and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph London and children have moved from 64 South Main street to the former Brody house on lower South Main street which Mr. London recently purchased from Harry Rudne. Extensive painting and alterations have recently been completed on the interior of the house.

Miss Rose F. Smith has been substituting in grade five, Dublin school, during the illness of the regular teacher Miss Helena Shea.

Several cases of chicken pox are reported about the town.

Miss Willard in Hospital

Her many friends regret to learn that Miss Abby G. Willard who has been ill and under the care of a nurse at her home on North Main street, was taken Wednesday evening to Hartford hospital for treatment.

Colchester grange No. 78, P. of H., held a largely attended meeting in grange hall, Wednesday evening, Worthy Master Elmer H. Foote presiding. A degree team from Norwich grange conferred the first and second degrees on six candidates. Among those who addressed the meeting were State Deputy Frank Mell of Lisbon grange, Arthur W. Avery of New London County Pomona grange, Sister Church and Brothers Marsh and Strombley of Norwich grange. A fine lunch of sandwiches, cake and coffee, were served. Visitors were present from Norwich, Preston, Pachaug, Lisbon and Lebanon granges.

Evening of Cards

Mrs. I. Cohen entertained at bridge Wednesday evening, at her home on South Main street. Four tables were in play, prizes being won by Miss Rae Slopak and Mrs. Leon Broder. Refreshments were served following the game. Music was provided, a feature of the evening being a vocal solo by Miss Sarah Berman accompanied by Miss Nettie Cohen. Those present included, Mrs. Morris Kamins, Miss Sarah Berman, Mrs. Eva Friedman, Mrs. Leon Broder, Mrs. Joseph Dember, Mrs. Jack Rosen, Misses Rae Slopak and Dora Levine, Mrs. B. A. Mintz, Mrs. Jack Lazinsk, Mrs. Harris Minsk, Mrs. Joseph Agranovitch, Mrs. Louis Neleber, Mrs. B. Rabinowitz, Misses Sarah Rabinowitz, Sarah Kazdan, Nettie Cohen, Martha Lazinsk and Mrs. Herman L. Kaufman.

Henry J. Bailey, rural mail carrier to the Westchester section, returned to duty Tuesday after his fifteen days' vacation. Substitute Carrier George B. Miller covered the route.

Mr. and Mrs. George Fairchild of Hartford have moved into the Cora E. Carrier house on South Main street.

Manager Samuel Slavkin of the Colchester Shamrocks' basketball team had his men out for practice in the Horwitz hall Wednesday evening, in preparation for an unusually active season. Negotiations are under way for games with several of the leading teams in this vicinity. A game in Colchester with the "New London Bankers" has been arranged for Saturday, December 6.

DANIELSON

ENDORSES COM. SHIPPEE FOR REAPPOINTMENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 20.—State Bank Commissioner Lester E. Shippee, a Killingly man, has just received the endorsement of the Connecticut Bank and Trust association for reappointment.

Assembled at their annual meeting in New Haven, and at one of the largest meetings the association has held, with many of the banks of the state represented, the members passed a resolution endorsing the efficient administration of the state banking department and put the association's stamp of approval on the proposal that Commissioner Shippee be reappointed. Mr. Shippee is a republican.

Likewise, the press of the state, in a number of instances, has advocated the reappointment of Mr. Shippee whose present term of office will expire July 1 of next year. It so happens that Connecticut will have a democratic governor early in January, though the republicans will control both branches of the legislature. The procedure for the appointment of a state bank commissioner in Connecticut is on nomination by the governor with the consent of the senate.

There is reason to believe that a great amount of pressure will be brought to bear on Governor-elect Cross to induce him to nominate Commissioner Shippee. If he should decline to do so, and sends in the name of a democratic candidate for the republican-controlled senate to approve an interesting situation will have arisen. If the senate elected not to consent, what then?

There is good reason to believe that things will not develop to that stage, however. Naturally, the people of Killingly and other nearby towns where Commissioner Shippee is well known are especially interested in this matter and will watch for its disposition with interest.

Commissioner Shippee began his banking career here in the Windham County National bank, where he was a teller for several years. The entry of the United States into the World war found him in uniform and eventually in France.

Upon his return he became a member of the staff of state bank examiners and eventually succeeded to the commissionership. He has made a splendid record.

Celebrates Fourth Birthday

A dozen of his little friends were guests when Franklin Tast Greene, son of Capt. and Mrs. Harold E. Greene, observed his birthday—his fourth—with a party at the home on Maple street yesterday afternoon. The pretty decorations were of yellow and white. Games were played and cake and ice cream served. Those present were Robert Greene, Elizabeth and Ruth Marland, Marjorie Urquhart, Louise and Nelson Spalding, George Lester Gardner, Jr., Virginia Greene Stewart and Frank Purvis, Gerald Page and Westley Marland.

Joseph B. Stetson, who died at his ancestral home in Brooklyn last Sunday, was among the comparatively few in nearby territory who successfully demonstrated that it is still possible to grow turkeys in eastern Windham county, though many who have tried it never were blessed with much luck. At the time of his death, Mr. Stetson had a flock of 85 fine turkeys. For years and years he grew turkeys on his farm and always found a ready market for them.

Friday afternoon those who have placed orders for rat bait will call for it at Meech's store. The bait is being supplied through the Windham County Farmers' association. Throughout the county and in accordance with the directions that are supplied the bait will be put out Friday night. The forecast is for the greatest rat killing this county ever has known—all in the interest of economy, for rats are great destroyers and contaminators of foodstuffs.

To Present Pageant

A cast of 16 local characters and a junior cast and choir is included in the pageant, In the Light of Truth, to be presented here Sunday evening under the auspices of the Danielson Federation of Churches. The theme of the pageant is the history and present status of temperance sentiment in the United States. Rev. Harry E. Olcott, author of the pageant and field secretary for the Connecticut Temperance society and Anti-Saloon league, will personally direct the presentation here.

New Truck For State Police

The state police here received something new in the way of equipment today—a Ford truck, from department headquarters at Hartford. State Officer John Murphy of the Danielson barracks drove it in. The local station never has had a truck, though there is frequent need of one up there. Numbers of occasions have arisen in the past when it has been necessary to hire trucks to bring large seizures of liquors. There are many other uses for the truck at the barracks, however.

Poultrymen here, in co-operation with others in the same field of endeavor throughout the country, have started an "Eat More Eggs" campaign. The nutritious value of eggs is established beyond question. It so happens that eggs are comparatively cheap just now; considerably cheaper than they were at this time a year ago. The tremendous quantities of eggs in storage and the much lower prices on grain are important factors in creating the present price levels. The poultry business in this area has come to be an important one. It was stated recently that eastern Connecticut poultrymen in the section within a few miles from Danielson are doing a business amounting to $200,000 annually.

Seventeen of his little friends were guests yesterday afternoon at the fifth anniversary birthday party of Robert Tillinghast, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Tillinghast, at the home of First Selectman and Mrs. Charles A. Tillinghast on North Main street. Games were played and refreshments were served.

Members of staffs of banks in Putnam and in Moosup are included in the class that is taking a course in advanced banking with members of the staffs of Danielson's banks, the class meeting Monday evenings at Killingly High school.

If you ask any farm owner about the water supply on his place, after all the recent rain, the answer many times in this territory is apt to be "Not half enough as yet."

A favorable "break" for Danielson is the scheduled arrival here, Dec. 15, of 25 Western Electric employes who will be engaged in making installation of equipment at the new A. T. & T. repeater station on the West Side. They are to remain in Danielson for approximately seven months.

There were upwards of 350 Masons at the new Masonic temple on Broad street last evening to witness the conferring of a degree on a group of candidates, many of those in attendance being visitors from other lodges of the order. A collation was served.

The majority of telephone employes in this division who were off duty this evening, and also other of the company employes in the Moosup division, were in Putnam this evening to join fellow workers in that city at a turkey dinner given by the Telephone Employes' association in Odd Fellows' hall.

It's a job that Chief McFarland has at the noon hour nowadays, as he sees to it that children trooping down to their homes for lunch from the School Street school get across Main street safely at a time when traffic is particularly heavy. Some of the youngsters are so lively that it is a difficult job for the chief to restrain them until it is safe to cross, and it is just about three times as difficult to watch all of them at one and the same time.

Many are the nice things being said about the brilliant manner in which the Connecticut Light and Power Co. building and the Brooklyn Savings bank building are now flood-lighted at night. Standing on opposite corners of Main and Academy streets these buildings are white with light. The flood-lights are set upon the ground at the inner edge of the sidewalks about the buildings.

In various churches hereabouts next Sunday will be observed as Thanksgiving Sunday, and services will be in keeping with the occasion.

There were further receipts today from the Red Cross roll call as additional workers reported. Still other receipts are expected to come in daily until the end of the week.

The Meanest Man in Town is the title of the play to be presented this year at the annual dramatic offering of the senior class of Killingly High school. As for a number of years past, the players will be coached by J. P. Heald of Webster.

William E. Bailey, Yale graduate, author and lecturer, gave a highly entertaining description at the Methodist Episcopal church last night of the American Hobo, much of what he had to say being based on his experiences while spending several summers in the company of hoboes, that he might study them and their ways. Mr. Bailey came here under the auspices of the Killingly Women's club.

Mrs. Mary B. Bishop of Putnam addressed the members of Sarah Williams Danielson chapter, D. A. R., at their regular meeting in the vestry of the Westfield Congregational church this afternoon. Her subject was Tombstones and Their Value. The hostesses were Mrs. J. Arthur Atwood, Mrs. N. D. Prince, Mrs. Mary P. Clewley, Mrs. Arthur A. Dean, Mrs. Albert S. Field, Mrs. W. I. Bullard and Mrs. Theodore Redlack.

The present week has been the quietest in a long time, insofar as the activities of the town court are concerned. Business before the tribunal has been down to a minimum.

Friday evening members of Brooklyn grange will be with the members of Lisbon grange for a Neighbors' Night meeting and will supply some of the features of the program.

William A. Nevers of Springfield was a visitor today with friends in Danielson.

E. P. Bernardin, nurseryman, has been growing figs successfully at Parsons, Kas., for five years.

PUTNAM

FORMER NORWICH MAN RETIRES FROM BUSINESS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 20.—Chauncey C. "Chan" Talbot, well known Putnam business man and for many years proprietor of the Putnam News Co., has retired from active business. His interests in the news company have been taken over by his son, Leon A. Talbot, who has been an associate with his father for a number of years. The elder Mr. Talbot came to Putnam from Norwich in 1888 and has resided here since.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Ludger Plantier

Mrs. Marie Plantier, wife of Ludger Plantier, died late last night at her home on Ballou street, after a prolonged illness. She was 73 years of age. Mrs. Plantier was a native of Canada, having been born in Magog province of Quebec, Nov. 23, 1856. She came to this country when a young woman and has lived here since.

Contractors in charge of the reconstruction work of the city water system, which has been underway for several months, began work on the last section of pipe laying plans today, when the pipe line along Pomfret street on the west side of the Memorial bridge was opened. The line will extend to the little river on Sabin street where it will be tied up with another feed line running across Sabin street from the pumping station in Harrisville.

Mrs. F. T. Griffiths and Miss Agnes Jampaigne of Providence were visitors in this city today.

Although considerable adverse comment on the action of the school board in lifting the ban on Sunday sports on the high school athletic field was voiced after the board authorized playing on this field at its meeting in October, there were no protests in any form made at the November meeting, which was held Tuesday evening.

This afternoon, state police at Danielson barracks were advised that a large sedan bearing four men was seen speeding across the country road on Putnam heights yesterday afternoon. The report also said that the car bore District of Columbia markers, incentive for the witness to believe that the occupants of the vehicle might possibly have been connected with the daring holdup of a Providence dairy Tuesday, in which a robbery of $8,000 was effected. No trace of the gunmen has been found since they escaped in the lanes of Providence auto traffic shortly after the daring escapade had been completed. Lieut. Ross V. Urquhart, commandant at the barracks, said this afternoon that the report would be investigated, although little was expected to be obtained from it, since the incident was not directed to the attention of his department until today.

In police court this morning, Judge M. H. Geissler sentenced two transients to serve terms in the Norwich State hospital at Preston, and at the county jail at Brooklyn. One rounder seeking sentence to the county jail, became intoxicated and wandered into the paths of the police. He was presented in court and warned by the judge that he would be dealt with severely if arrested a second time. Yesterday the man was re-arrested and was jubilant at the thought of going to Brooklyn for a winter stay. His joys quickly changed when a six months sentence at the Norwich institution was meted out. A second rounder, affiliated with the "Bay Rum" order of jail crashers, when found guilty of a charge of drunkenness, drew a ten-day jail sentence which caused him to exclaim, "Well, a half loaf is better than none at all."

The annual Thanksgiving appeal of the woman's board of the Day Kimball hospital is to be omitted this year.

Announcement of the marriage of Miss Helen Smith, daughter of Charles Smith of South Main street and Carl Hopkins, son of Mrs. H. F. Hopkins of South Main street, which took place in Lafayette, R. I., Oct. 8 has been made.

With only six days remaining before the annual roll call of the local chapter, American Red Cross, will have come to an end, the fund, according to Arthur F. Hughes, general chairman of the drive, is not progressing as well as was anticipated during the earlier stages of the maintenance appeal. The membership enrollment has not reached 400, the half-way mark, and chapter officials feel that unless the response of the public reaches a greater tempo, the quota will not be reached this year.

The drive will come to a close on Thanksgiving day, Nov. 27. With figures still sagging, the drive workers will continue their efforts during the next six days in hopes of exceeding last year's enrollment, which was 595 members.

ARRON W. BOWEN NOTED NEWSPAPER CORRESPONDENT, DIED AT EASTFORD

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 20.—A streamer headline across the top of a four-page extra edition issued at noon today by the Observer company, publishers of the Windham County Observer, informed the people of Putnam and vicinity that death had come to Arron Mason Bowen, author of the paper's weekly column "Eastford," at 12:55 o'clock Thursday morning. Mr. Bowen's death followed an illness of two weeks. He was in his 80th year.

Mr. Bowen began contributing to the Observer more than 35 years ago and, true to the traditions of the profession, whether news was "breaking" or not, his copy came in regularly and the boxed "Eastford" column was always contained somewhere in the paper. His quaint style of writing soon earned fame for him, first in a state-wide sense, and later his unique methods of commenting on current affairs of his native town attracted the attention of the editors of the great metropolitan dailies, who devoted considerable space to his work. A. M. Bowen was not only "copy" for the New York papers but from time to time articles concerning the Eastford writer were gleaned by local writers from the columns of the the larger papers from as far west as Chicago.

Aside from his work as a correspondent Mr. Bowen was the general store keeper in the little village located 18 miles west of here. His store for many years was "everybody's equippery" and brought the villagers and those residing in the rural sections to town, where topics of all sorts were brought up and discussed. At the end of the week, the storeman found himself provided with sufficient material to write his column for Wednesday's paper. It not only contained an account of the village doings, but his opinions on world topics which were presented fearlessly in quaint, caustic and emphatic style, with the result that editorial writers on the large dailies commented upon the writings.

Not only were his writings unique but entertaining. From the start and up to the last Mr. Bowen played the role of an optimist. In his last column printed in Wednesday's edition of the Observer, his first paragraph told of his expectancy to be back at his store soon. Following is the manner in which he expressed himself: "Mr. Editor: Your correspondent, with the aid of Dr. Karl Phillips, expects to be restored to health and be back at his usual place in the store soon."

Arron Mason Bowen was born in Eastford, Feb. 4, 1851, the son of Oliver and Betsy (Horton) Bowen. His education was received in the rural schools of the town and when a young man he entered the grocery business, purchasing the establishment conducted by his brother. This business he conducted for more than 25 years. He later acquired the store of Jackson & Sumner and removed his interests to that location. Fraternally Mr. Bowen was affiliated with the Order of Odd Fellows. He was married to Miss Emma Bradway, who survives him. He also leaves two daughters, Mrs. Edward Keith of Grove street and Mrs. Vera Spooner of Westminster, Vt., and four sons, Fred, Vernon and Grover Bowen of Eastford and Clifford Bowen of Abington. Three grandchildren also survive.

SHOW YOUR LIGHT

In directing attention to the fact that, though the law requires the placing of a light on horse-drawn vehicles that they may warn other highway users of their location, there are many instances where no attention is paid to it. Commissioner Stoeckel of the motor vehicle department rightly emphasizes the need of such warning lights. In the late afternoon and early evening such vehicles are more numerous on the highway than later at night and they constitute a menace when they are not designated in some manner. Going at a slow pace, the drivers of horses may depend upon the horses to avoid obstructions in the highway if they do not happen to see them, but with the motor vehicle driver, going at a much greater speed, the situation is much different. Coming upon the unlighted vehicle suddenly, there may be no time for avoiding a collision which would be avoided if a light indicated the presence of something ahead.

But it is by no means the horse-drawn vehicles alone which need warning lights at night. That they do is certain, but the same is true of those individuals who walk the roads at night. Even though they keep on the edge of the traveled highway and have a right to be there, quite as much as the motor vehicle, they are in quite the same position as the unlighted vehicle. Being approached quickly, with their clothing blending in with the highway and roadside there is nothing to indicate their presence and many a motorist has had some narrow escapes from striking persons, to say nothing of the good fortune of the walkers who have escaped injury.

The need of having all highway users give warning of their presence to all others, whether vehicles or pedestrians are involved, cannot be too greatly emphasized. Commercial vehicles are required to carry reflectors in addition to lights. There is no reason why horse-drawn vehicles should not have lights which can be seen front and back or why individuals should not at least provide themselves with reflectors which will pick up the lights of the motor vehicles and indicate something ahead. Such an easy method of avoiding personal injuries and collisions should be so apparent as to get general support.

THE LAWYER'S OPINION

The desire to find out how the people feel in regard to the matter of prohibition and whether there should be a repeal of the 18th amendment has been manifested in several ways. Intense interest was manifested in the poll conducted by the Literary Digest. The sentiment disclosed there has been shown in other ways since then.

Recently three states submitted prohibition to the voters for an expression of opinion and in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Illinois it was against prohibition. It was fair to assume that in two of those states which had ratified the amendment that experience with prohibition had produced unsatisfactory results. Rhode Island had never ratified the amendment and it showed by the vote of the people of that state that such was in keeping with their sentiments. Previously four other states had expressed themselves as being against prohibition.

That organizations should consider the advisability of getting the attitude of their members upon this important question is not surprising. Though the Literary Digest polled lawyers and doctors, the question of having the American Bar association members vote upon repeal was advanced. Though it was first necessary to get the consent of the membership to such a referendum, that vote and the referendum itself were taken together, showing that with three-quarters of the members voting, and more voting in favor of the referendum than actually supported repeal, there was a two to one vote for repealing the amendment.

These referendums are straws which indicate public sentiment. Since it is a law that is under discussion it is quite pertinent that the opinion of the lawyers should be learned. They might be expected to have real opinions on the dry law and the effects of the test which has been made. They may well be regarded as experts concerning the enforcability of the law. They know the difficulties that have been encountered, the conditions that have developed and the trouble faced in enforcing such a law. They know what has been built up along with prohibition and the difficulties of overcoming it. Quite the same as the referendums in the several states, that among the bar association's members carries its own significance.

BUS TERMINALS

With the development of bus transportation and the steady addition to the number in operation, there is a congestion problem involved, especially in regard to the terminals of the lines, which is giving much serious concern to the larger cities.

When the busses were first put in operation they were small and the number was not large. They have grown both in size and number. They are operated under certain restrictions as to routes and in some instances they have taken the place of trolleys, in which case their routes are established.

As this development has taken place there has been improvement made in the terminals. They have gone from small waiting rooms to what can easily be designated as stations in some cities, but with this change there continues to be in many of the cities the loading and unloading of passengers in the street at such stations. This means that the public highway, which is required to handle a big volume of traffic, is a waiting room for the busses, if not for their patrons. They occupy much of the street and that amount grows if they happen to park on an angle. When they stop to take on patrons they create a traffic problem, especially in narrow streets, since the big busses take up far more space than the largest of automobiles.

The result of such conditions is that there is a demand for better terminal conditions, terminals which will be on private property and take the busses off the streets, terminals which may accommodate, not only one line of busses but all of them, as at a union station, much the same as the railroads did or do in some instances now.

The public highways are being used these days for the transportation of the large volume of traffic that used to be moved either by trains on private rights of way or by the trolleys on public and private thoroughfares. That crowding of the highways can be expected to increase rather than decrease, but the need for ending congestion caused by the maintenance of terminals in the streets instead of under their own roofs is being recognized by the larger cities and the solution will doubtless be to the advantage of all concerned, including bus lines and their patrons, when it is reached.

THE IMPORTANT WIRELESS

While due consideration is being given to the code of the sea, whereby the masters of ships respond to calls of distress and often risk life in their efforts to save those in peril, it is impossible to overlook the very important part which radio plays in connection therewith.

It would be impossible to say that the crew of the Swedish ship would not have been saved had there been no SOS call. Certainly there would have been no race to save the vessel the crew of which was forced to take to small boats. It was the call of distress, the knowledge that the crew was in grave danger, the information that the freighter was about to founder, that sent ships scurrying to render assistance.

That is the situation in all similar instances. It is because of the ability to communicate with those at a distance by means of wireless that such information can be given and help summoned, and no better evidence could be desired for having all vessels equipped with wireless than just those instances which display the rescue of crews from sinking ships and those other instances of ships which disappear without any knowledge of what happened to them or where they went down.

Happily the number of ships which have disappeared mysteriously is small. The Cyclops shows that even with wireless it may happen. Others which had wireless but delayed using it have gone down with loss of many lives, but with the timely and proper use of wireless equipment in summoning aid there has been a wonderful record made of rescues at sea which stands out to the credit of those who responded to the calls for help and also to the wonderful invention which makes it possible to send those calls out into space with the assurance that they will be heard and heeded. Life saving is what it is because of courageous seamen and modern facilities.

GROWING TREES

Reports from Vermont to the effect that farmers are growing crops of trees indicates that they are making the most of their opportunity. Why shouldn't there be crops of trees as well as crops of other things? The fact is that trees have been growing from time immemorial. Some are allowed to come along with little or no encouragement and others are given careful attention.

With the Vermont farmers, and they are by no means alone in such an enterprise, it is a case of developing a crop that will meet public requirements. Just now they are interested in cutting and shipping their Christmas tree crop. Trees will go out of that and other northern New England states by the trainload, probably millions of them. They represent growth that has been encouraged and planned for just such a market. They are trees which would not figure much in the timber resources of the state if permitted to grow. They are planted, cultivated, watched and cut when ready for holiday use and they net the tree growers a tidy sum each year without entailing much production cost.

Tree growing for Christmas is to many farmers much the same as turkey raising or the sheep industry is to others. It is one of the side lines which bring in welcome dollars at those times of the year when other activities are rather quiet.

But, while there is an opportunity for such quick tree growing and a quick turnover in comparison with the production of other tree crops, there is, nevertheless, plenty of opportunities for the growing of trees which will mean an increase of the timber crops. It may not mean a quick a crop, since maturity covers a longer term of years, but it is a crop which involves little work and which pays handsome returns in the long run. It means a utilization of land which otherwise would be little better than waste.

CLEWS AND QUESTIONS

"Quick, mumsy, the false whiskers!" exclaimed Helen Brown as she ruffled into the little apartment like a baby squall.

"Helen!"

"Your angel child's a detekatif."

"A what?" asked the bewildered Mrs. Brown.

"A detekatif, mumsy. 'Elementary, my dear Watson? Take 'em off, we know you.' 'Ah, feetprints!' "

"What are you talking about?"

"Keep cool, whispered the lady detekatif, and I'll tell you while I'm making the tea," said Helen, filling the kettle.

"Imagine," she continued, "that I've placed my trusty shooting iron on the table, and made sure there's no spy lurking in my golf cup. Have you imagined all that?"

Mrs. Brown made a chucking sound indicative of astonishment and despair.

"Then, she muttered," continued Helen, "We may proceed. You know that around our shop I'm the unofficial heart soother and woe remover. Little Lady Fixit. So when I saw Babe Smith—she's the office infant—running a temperature and looking generally gaga, I edged over. 'Lo, kid,' say I—"

"Such an expression," sighed Mrs. Brown.

"Babe thinks it cute," said Helen. " 'Spill the bad news'——"

"Chk," went Mrs. Brown.

" 'Tell little Helen the balm of aching hearts,' says I. 'Did he make you ride in the rumble seat?' Then she says no, it's something worse, though what could be? 'It's the cash' says Babe. She has charge of some office change and a dollar bill was absent without leave. 'Why,' cheered yours clevely, 'that's nothing. You've simply slipped some one a two-spot for a one. Mistakes will happen.' But no. 'It's happened before,' says Babe. 'And what did Mr. Jones say?' I asked.

"Mr. Jones?"

"The office manager, mums. 'He didn't know,' said Babe; 'we always found the money.' 'We?' 'Willie Sharp,' explains Babe, 'he helped me.' 'And where did you find it?' I asked. 'Oh, hidden by the criminal in all sorts of places.' 'Pretty lucky,' suggests your little pet. 'It was Willie,' says Babe. 'He's awful smart. He noticed clews lying around, cigarette stubs, ink stains and things. Only for him—' "

"He must be a clever boy," commented Mrs. Brown.

"And what about your own angel child?" responded Helen. "So Willie found the swag every time? says I. 'And he'll help you with this, I suppose?' 'I'll tell him about the missing dollar as soon as he gets back from lunch,' says Babe. So then, mumsy, little Helen Brown lights her pipe——"

"Helen! What?"

"All the best deteckatifs do mumsy. I was thinking, I mean, And when Willie entered the door, 'Willie,' I says, 'Mr. Jones may be coming shortly to go over the office cash.' 'Gosh,' gulped Willie, rushing to the stationery shelves, where, as you have doubtless guessed, Helen Hawkshaw Holmes Brown copped him retrieving the dollar bill he had cached."

"He was playing a trick?"

"Of course, mumsy. Willie's a nice boy, if you don't mind freckles. He wanted to put himself over with Babe Smith."

"And did he?" asked Mrs. Brown.

" 'You've a wonder boy,' Babe told him when he returned the missing smacker."

"Then Willie won," smiled Mrs. Brown.

" 'But how did you know,' suddenly asked Babe, 'that I was a dollar shy? No one told me I'd lost anything.' "

"Ah," said Mrs. Brown. "And what did Willie say?"

"He hadn't said anything," answered Helen, "when I left, but," she added hopefully, 'he was thinking hard."—Chicago News

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20—When Patrick Hurley went a-stumping in the late, and in his eyes, lamented, election, he garnered no votes perhaps, but his travels were not a net loss by any means. He saw things.

And since he got back to Washington he has been unfolding the tale of his seeings to his intimates in a sort of "Patrick in Wonderland" account.

As the Bystander hears the tale, it begins with Secretary Hurley pausing in a club in Providence or elsewhere in Rhode Island as he flitted about speechmaking here and there for his republican colleagues.

It was a comfortable club. Pat was quite satisfied to stay there for the night, but a very quiet mannered, unobtrusive person made known to him as Mr. Peck, republican national committeeman for the state, had other ideas.

He desired to entertain the war secretary at his home, and Hurley could not well decline the hospitable offer.

Huge Gallery

So they piled into a machine and drove away. Presently they came to very impressive gates and passed through.

"Then we drove and drove and drove," is the Hurley continuation.

Finally he was moved to ask if they were not getting close to the house.

"Well, it sets back a piece from the road," said his host.

When they reached it, Hurley found an establishment so big that "you could play baseball between the wings without breaking a window."

He also found an art gallery filled with treasures. Their value in millions fairly staggered even a chap like Hurley, who has a few of those useful units himself and recently sold Uncle Sam a Washington office building for a million cold.

"Suppose I came down here tonight and knifed myself out a couple of millions' worth of paintings," said Hurley. "What's to stop me?"

"Go ahead right now," smiled his host. "Cut that one out (pointing). It is valuable."

Automatic

Hurley laid a careful hand on the picture frame. Bells clanged, steel doors moved, a trio of guards appeared as by magic.

"I wouldn't want you to touch some of the frames," said Peck. "The closing of steel shutters might hurt you."

So Hurley gave up ideas of going into the art hi-jacking business and will stick to politics.

But this chap from Oklahoma, where million dollar oil gushers are no novelty and everything grows big—except republican votes in off years—will not soon forget what he learned about millions from Mr. Peck of Rhode Island.

Lawyers

Mr. Editor: I notice that on the northeast corner of the first page of our inspired Morning Bulletin of Wednesday in large capitals "Lawyers 2 to 1 for Repeal of the 18th Amendment." Will you please take your Bible and turn to Luke 11:46 and read what the greatest authority in all Christendom has to say about lawyers? Also see Matthew 23:1-7, the Pharisees who sat in Moses' seat must have been also lawyers. Now tell me candidly, if the lawyers of the present day haven't the same disposition and characteristics of the lawyers of Jesus' day.

The Reason For The Depression

Mr. Editor: Under date of the 15th inst. "Whitie" asks the reason for the present depression, and having failed to note a reply thereto I offer the following, as the question is in the minds of many.

Now that the political horizon is clear, one can state that it is out of the realm of national politics. To face the facts we state it is a vast world problem as will be found by noting the following. A common expression used in explanation is overproduction, but overproduction is the child or cause from overexpansion, and as applied to conditions, overexpansion was caused by the demands of war. Hence war is the deep seated cause.

There are several major factors which stand out above others. It is significant to note that the overexpansion is found very largely in raw materials and those produced outside the United States and Great Britain. It is interesting to note the part played by Australia, an increase in wheat from 91,000,000 bushels to 160,000,000 and wool from 710,000,000 pounds to 883,000,000. Argentine doubled its wheat and sugar crop. Chile increased its production of copper from 93,000,000 pounds to 528,0000,000 and its nitrates some 50 per cent, even in the face of Germany, England and the United States making rapid strides in the production of synthetic nitrates. Canada has more than doubled its wheat acreage. Brazil and Columbia doubled their coffee acreage, even facing the fact that a year's supply was on hand when the season's crop was ready to harvest. The world's production of tea rose from 856,000,000 pounds to 945,000,000. Rubber from 51,000 long tons to 68,000. Sugar from 19,000,000 short tons to 30,000,000. Many other items could also interesting, wheat decreased 40 per cent, corn 20 per cent, textiles 32 per cent, wool 31 per cent, silk 38 per cent, etc., due to a glutted world market, which is inevitable. The economic law of supply and demand must prevail.

So much for some of the high spots without. We are familiar with facts within, such as an increased wheat acreage from 47,000,000 to 61,000,000 and the increased acreage of beet sugar. No perceptible decrease of cotton crop, yet the consumption of cotton fabrics has noticeably decreased.

The gold and silver factors are food for thought. Chile, Peru, Mexico, Australia, India and China have aggravated conditions due to the fall of silver from 53c to 33 1-4c per ounce, and which will exchange in the world market for bullion value only. The United States and France have gold reserves of about $760,000,000, the largest ever recorded. Some European financiers state this as one of the causes for their distress, but it is generally agreed that there is sufficient gold for all the legitimate needs of the entire world, but not gold enough to continue the hysteria which has afflicted the world the past few years. Not gold enough for unstable bank credit expansion, excess building and mortgages, a one sided flow of export goods or speculation which placed overvaluation on most of the issues beyond their earning ability. Inflated values must give way to the earning power values, whether the issue is capital investment, labor or merchandise.

The issue of turning the raw materials into finished product is striking home to industrial New England. We are acquainted with two facts, the war overexpanded most of our industries and stimulated our productive capacities by both new inventions of more rapid process machinery and more efficient methods. Many of our industries were given over wholly or partially to war products and a natural return to normalcy with its accompaniment distress, we have all been partakers of. Now it is the survival of the fittest in industry. Many of our overexpanded industries have been or are being forced to absorb competitors and industries whose product is entirely foreign to their regular lines. Many of these consolidations are working severe hardships, as they cause the removal from the established home town, with the attendant distress to those deprived of a livelihood. Yet these consolidations have been the means of conserving many of our large concerns but not all, as it is a pronounced vital question of efficient management.

Again, a much debated issue, but one bound of necessity to be reconsidered and revised, is the war debts. In the writer's mind, there is no one contributive issue to world stabilization equal in importance. We might in time collect the principal of these debts, but never the mounting interest, especially in view of the new generations of the debtor nations, feeling the injustice of the burden. Inasmuch as it is generally conceded that all countries that participated in the war were in a measure responsible, and believing that the new Germany has had sufficient lesson and punishment for the so called errors of the past generation, and as I view it, for our industrial concern, complete cancellation is in order. As I view it, a man earning $20 per week and taxed 30 per cent, cannot spend for luxuries, let alone the bare necessities, hence we suffer in our industrial production and raw and finished exportations. We cannot overlook the fact that the debt payments require Europe to pay us an increasing amount each year in both gold and goods, and yet we inhibit, if not prohibit, payment in goods. It must be acknowledged, a debt-burdened nation is much like an individual, and unless relieved will become rebellious, a foe rather than a friend. Our oft proclaimed Christian leadership is challenged severely, and we should work to retain friendship above the cold calculating Yankeeism, as it is expressed very generally.

Finally, a common fault with us all, is the comparison of war prosperity with the present, rather than the normal period of living. Readjusting conditions have played havoc with many, if not all in a measure. Until the overproduction era is recognized and definite steps taken to replace the standard — the law of supply and demand—chaos will continue. To try to force buying, in the face of a declining market, is illogical and will not succeed. In my experiences and observations, from the credit angle, good business generally follows building activity, there are so many contributing lines. Building will not, cannot, revive, on the present building trades labor standards. Industrial labor has materially declined and of necessity rents must decline to meet the individual labor living standard, but present high cost of building is prohibitive, hence another contributing factor to national distress. What is true of the building trades is equally true of municipal labor, to reduce taxation.

The prosperity of our local plants, as well as all New England, is a subject near to our hearts and our welfare. A common expression applied to the majority of our industries is New England traditionalism. From contact with men of the industrial engineering group we learn that 80 per cent of their business comes from the new giant—the midwest. We learn these new midwest industries are alive to the new order of things and apply modern profitable methods, whereas our industries, steeped in traditionalism, sit complacently by, satisfied with "what was good enough for father, must be good enough for us," and so the unprogressiveness and traditionalism is a recognized chronic disease. One must have contact with business outside the immediate market to appreciate the enormous possibilities for any product and this applies to the foreign fields as well as the domestic. Opportunities exist for every product manufactured here, but the difficulty lies in the fact that potential customers do not know of us or our product. Again, it is recognized that midwest industry has made rapid strides at our eastern expense, with the aid of improved merchandise, which our attitude will not allow us to change. More efficient management has been the order for come years and the need is greater in the present emergency than ever before.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Peter Has His Turn

Even he whom you may spurn
In course of time may have his turn.
—Peter Rabbit.

Peter had been laughed at and made fun of and teased until it was a wonder his disposition was not wholly spoiled. It was all because he had insisted that one night over in the green forest he had heard a new song. Anyway, it was new to him, for he had never heard it before. He hadn't seen the singer and when he had told his friends about that song and asked them if they had seen a feathered stranger in the green forest they had made fun of him and insisted that he had been dreaming. Peter had had to stand a great deal, but now it was his turn.

The very ones who had done most of the teasing were now over in the green forest near the big old stump where Peter had first heard that song. Their curiosity had been aroused and they had followed Peter over there early this morning pretending that they had just happened around that way. And just when they had about made up their minds that they had just wasted their time and followed Peter for nothing, there came a pretty little warbling song from among some bushes growing around and nearly hiding an old stump.

Every one stopped what he happened to be doing that he might listen. Blacky the crow sat like a black image in the top of a tall pine tree. Sammy Jay didn't move a feather. Drummer the woodpecker clung to the side of the old stump as if he were a part of it. Yank Yank the nuthatch, who had been coming head first down the trunk of a tree, stopped right where he was, head down. Tommy Tit the chickadee, who is a little feathered acrobat, clung motionless upside down to the tip of a hemlock branch.

For two or three minutes no one moved. Then Peter Rabbit grinned. "Well," said he, "did you all hear it or did you all dream that you heard it?"

Before any one could find his tongue to reply the song was heard again. This time it seemed to come from back of a little hemlock tree. Sammy Jay came to life abruptly. Hardly had that song ended when Sammy darted down to that little hemlock tree to find that singer. There are no sharper, quicker eyes in all the green forest than those of Sammy Jay. He hadn't a doubt that he would find that singer. You can guess his surprise and chagrin when he failed to find any one but Whitefoot the wood mouse, and Whitefoot was running along one of his private little paths and whisked out of sight in a hole in the ground.

"There is no one here," declared Sammy.

At once the others flew over to aid in the search. They looked high and low and for a considerable distance around, but they found no one. In the midst of their searching that same little song was heard once more. It seemed to come from the big, old stump. There was a rush to get there first, but when they did get there only Whitefoot was to be seen and he was carefully making his toilet.

"Who was that singing over here?" demanded Sammy Jay.

There was a look of surprise on Whitefoot's face as he asked innocently. "Was some one singing?"

"You must have been dreaming, Sammy Jay. You must have dreamed that you heard some one singing," spoke up Peter Rabbit, and turned his head to hide a grin.

"He didn't, for I heard it," cried Tommy Tit the chickadee.

"And I," declared Drummer the Woodpecker.

"And I," added Yank Yank the nuthatch.

"Dear me, could it be that you all were asleep and had the same dream?" asked Peter. Peter was having his turn at teasing now and he was making the most of it. Yes, indeed, Peter was having his turn.

Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

For Coughs

From Colds Where One is Willing To Pay

To Be Sure

Creomulsion is made to do the utmost for a cough from colds. It combines seven major helps in one—the best helps known to science. It is for quick relief, for safety, when the cough seems deep.

Mild coughs may yield to a lesser help—to some single factor, maybe. But no one can tell which factor will do most for any certain cough. And all coughs should be stopped at once. So careful people, more and more, give Creomulsion for any cough that starts.

The cost is $1.25—a little more than some helps. But it means a seven-way help—the best men know. And it costs you nothing if it fails to bring the quick relief you seek. Your druggist guarantees it.

CREOMULSION
for Difficult Coughs from Colds

No Shock to the System

New laxative safe and dependable for people of all ages . . .

If in your fight against constipation you have been continually increasing your doses—changing from pills to salts and back to pills for relief—you will welcome this interesting discovery of modern science.

Uniform "internal distribution" is now known to be essential to the successful operation of any laxative. It is internal distribution which is the secret of the success of the remarkable laxative known as Feen-a-mint—the modern chewing gum laxative.

Because you chew Feen-a-Mint it is effective in milder doses than ordinary laxatives. For the effectiveness of a laxative is not so much dependent upon the QUANTITY swallowed as upon the thoroughness of ITS DISTRIBUTION THROUGHOUT THE AILMENTARY TRACT.

While you chew this delicious bit of gum, the tasteless laxative it contains is gradually released and mixed with the saliva. Thus it is carried to the intestinal tract smoothly, evenly, without shock to the system or the distressing after-effects so common with old-fashioned laxatives. Each particle of the laxative in Feen-a-mint works with utmost efficiency, gently encouraging the intestinal muscles to resume the activity so necessary for healthful elimination.

The action of Feen-a-mint is thorough, gentle, dependable. With the proper dosage. It is not necessary to increase the amount of Feen-a-mint you take nor to switch to another laxative for a change. Feen-a-mint is harmless and contains no habit-forming drugs. Truly the HEALTH LAXATIVE. Ask for a package at any drug store.—Adv.

YOUR HEALTH

Your Friend—The Hospital

By S. Wachsmann, M. D., New York City.

(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

It is not so very long ago that the people would gather around an ambulance which was to take a patient to the hospital, and express their opinion, pitying the poor victim and thinking that the hospital was probably the end of all, and that patients rarely came back once they were sent to the hospital. These ideas have changed, and, fortunately the public has commenced to consider the hospital as a friend, particularly a friend in need, and that, as everybody knows, is a real friend indeed. Still it has happened and will happen that misunderstandings will sometimes exist between the best of friends, so I want to introduce more thoroughly friend public and friend hospital to each other and to clear up some of the misunderstandings, if I can.

Many hospitals are in the habit of sending out letters to the patients who have left the hospital, after a short or longer stay, with a request to give their impressions, their complaints or approval, and if possible, suggestions for improvement of the service. An analysis of the numerous replies shows that former patients are generally appreciative and complimentary, but in some instances one cannot help noticing that the public in certain respects has erroneous ideas regarding the functions and mission of the hospital.

To begin with, everyone—physicians and patients alike—should consider that the hospital is not to be looked upon as the last resort in a case of illness. They should abandon the idea that only so-called emergencies belong to a hospital and instead they should feel that the hospital is the place for all patients who can be better observed and treated there than in homes or offices or clinics. It is not unusual for the patients who come to the physician's office, or receive a visit in the house, to express genuine surprise or indignation, when a doctor suggests admission to a hospital, while the patients do not seem to feel sick enough or weak enough in their own opinion. Although the modern equipment of a doctor's office or a clinic is quite complete, and in the majority of cases enables the physician to diagnose the disease with sufficient accuracy, there are still many cases left that have to be put under what is called hospital regime in order to gain a complete picture of the patient's condition. The following may sound somewhat undignified, but it will bring out a point which will describe the situation.

Department stores have certain undeniable advantages, and most likely gratify certain needs, or they would not have gained such popularity as they now enjoy. The hospital also holds within its wall a number of departments all necessary for diagnosis and treatment of patients. It is easy to understand that the coordination of all these different departments within one organization will be productive of much better results than could be obtained by consulting numerous different independent sources. The course of incipient diseases can be observed much more satisfactorily in a hospital where the entire staff cooperates. Take for example the dietary department. The best equipped kitchens in millionaires' homes can never be expected to carry out the directions of a physician, who wants the food in-take measured exactly, determing the calories, so that the nurse can measure and weigh the out-put and turn it over to the laboratory, all with the smallest loss of time and least number of errors. When all observations and examinations have been finished, the physician is in a much better position to make an exact diagnosis. Then comes the plan of treatment—which is always more effective when everyone is cooperating. Converting the residence into a hospital-like arrangement, even though done with the best of intentions, can never be a substitute for a smooth running place which in every detail was built and organized for the care of sick people.

For Normal Girlhood

"My daughter Magdalen did not seem to develop as she should. At times she had no pep at all and couldn't get her school work very easily. For four years we doctored her off and on. Then a friend told us how much Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had helped her years ago, so I got a bottle for Magdalen. Her nerves are quieting, her general health is better and she is now as normal as other girls."—Mrs. I. Bertholdi, Thompson's Addition, The Dalles, Oregon.

Quick Relief From Constipation

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years, and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative safe and pleasant.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They help cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth" —bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you should find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets.

Thousands take them every night to keep right. Try them. 15c, 30c, 60c.

DIVORCE SUIT DISMISSED FOR JURISDICTION LACK

The divorce action brought in the probate court at Worcester by Irene E. Vannie of Worcester against Joseph F. Vannie of Hartford, who at one time lived in New London, was dismissed for lack of jurisdiction at a hearing at Worcester.

In dismissing the case, Judge Harry H. Atwood allowed a motion of the husband, who claimed that the couple never lived together in Massachusetts and that the wife had not lived in Worcester for the past five years as required by statute.

The marriage of the couple was at Hartford, July 20, 1909, and they lived together there and in New London and Black Hall. The wife charges desertion, June 9, 1923, and claimed that her husband had failed to support her and their five children.

The testimony showed that they again lived together for about three weeks in Hartford in 1927.

MAYOR NAMES DR. HARRISON GRAY FOR HEALTH OFFICER OF THE CITY

Dr. Harrison Gray, town health officer, was appointed city health officer, as successor to Dr. Edward J. Brophy, resigned, by Mayor Lee Roy Robbins, at an adjourned meeting of the court of common council Thursday evening. The appointment was unanimously approved by the council. Dr. Gray has been named to serve the uncompleted term of the office, which expires October 1, 1931. The council also adopted an ordinance establishing a building line on North Thames street, and set the evening of December 1st as the date for a hearing on assessments for the new Avery street sewer.

Mayor Robbins called the meeting to order at 8 o'clock and after City Clerk Weston C. Pullen had read his certificate of publication of the building line ordinance for North Thames street and had read the ordinance itself, the mayor declared a public hearing on the ordinance.

The only objection to the ordinance was raised by Mrs. Ida Telzonsky, through her attorney, Thomas M. Shields. Attorney Shields stated that his client would prefer to see no building line established on the westerly side of the street, where she owns property. Mayor Robbins then declared a recess and the council reconvened about 8 o'clock.

Ordinance Adopted.

The ordinance was unanimously adopted. It provides that:

No building or structure shall hereafter be extended or reconstructed on the westerly side of North Thames street between Main street and Cove street east of a straight line extending between Main street and Cove street which line intersects the point made by the northeast corner of the building now standing at No. 6 North Thames street and a point 2.07 feet west of the northwest corner of the present building at No. 28 North Thames street, measured along a line at a right angle to the easterly face of said building.

No building or structure shall hereafter be extended or reconstructed on the easterly side of North Thames street between Main street and Cove street west of a straight line extending between Main street and the southerly line of Cove street produced to the east line of North Thames street, which first line intersects the point made by the southeast corner of the building now standing at the northwest corner of Main street and North Thames street and the point made by the southwest corner of the building now standing at No. 17 North Thames street."

Avery Street Sewer Assessments.

The public works committee, through its chairman, Alderman Maurice Looby, reported that the Avery street sewer has been completed at a cost of $1,990, and that the following are liable to assessments for the new sewer.

Westerly side of Avery street—Anna Plytnik, Constantine Plytnik, Battista Piccini, Ginevia Piccini, Viola Martinelli, Victor Martinelli, Teresa Martinelli, Raymond W. Martinelli, Alfred D. Martinelli and John Zoladz.

At end of Avery street—Boleslaw Zawadzki.

Easterly side of Avery street—Thomas P. Murphy, Julia Ulicickas, Antonio Ulicickas, John Podurigiel, Alexsandra Podurigiel, Vincent Grzymkowski, Josephine Grzymkowski, Lorenzo Antolnotti and Angiolina Antoinotti.

By a motion adopted by the council, Mayor Robbins and the public works committee will hold a hearing at 7 o'clock, Monday evening, December 1st, for the benefit of those persons interested in the assessments.

City Health Officer Appointed.

Mayor Robbins then announced his appointment of Dr. Harrison Gray as city health officer, to succeed Dr. Edward J. Brophy, resigned. In announcing the appointment, Mayor Robbins said:

"Careful and deliberate consideration has been given to the appointment of a fitting successor to Dr. Brophy. Every one of the seven candidates are well qualified to fill this position but an overwhelming public demand, both local and state wide, exists in favor of Dr. Gray.

"Our dual form of government is responsible for the fact that our children while in school are under the care of the town health officer but when at home are subject to the orders of the city health officer. Even when no differences of opinion or clashing of authority exists concerning the protection of children, there is in regular routine matters much lost motion because of this circumstance. Other examples where duplication of action becomes necessary when these offices are held by different individuals may be cited. The delay caused in such instances might become vital in an emergency.

"Without elaborating upon this condition or upon its importance as affecting the functioning of our health officers, I am convinced that the best service to the public necessitates the co-operation of the town and city health officers. Uniting these offices in one man effectively insures this result and also eliminates duplication, delay and accompanying evils.

"Dr. Gray has already proven himself capable as town health officer and enjoys the confidence of our citizens. He is conscientious and is unusually well trained, qualified and experienced for this post. I therefore appoint Dr. Harrison Gray health officer for this city to complete the unexpired term of Dr. Brophy.

After the council had unanimously approved the appointment, adjournment was taken.

TOWN COMMITTEES REPORT THEIR ELECTION EXPENSES

According to a report of election expenses filed at the office of Town Clerk Harold S. Burt by the town treasurers of the republican and democratic committees, the former spent $1,387.77 and had a balance left of $27.23 in the recent election and the democrats spent all their available funds, which amounted to $1,040.

The two successful democratic candidates for representatives, Irving Eisenstein and Raymond Girard, spent respectively $45.16 and $25, while their unsuccessful republican opponents, Josiah Greenstein and Fred Knowles, spent $25 and nothing, respectively.

Judge Nelson J. Ayling, re-elected as judge of probate without opposition, reported expenses of $100, and Albert W. Lillibridge, democrat, defeated for the office of county sheriff, reported expenses of $200.

LACERATIONS OF SCALP SUFFERED BY SMALL BOY

Lacerations of the scalp were suffered Thursday afternoon by Donald Vergason, 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Vergason of 11 Edwards avenue, when he was struck by an automobile on West Thames street, near the city line. According to the report made at police headquarters, the little boy ran across the street and into the automobile which was driven by its owner, John Coffey of Uncasville, who was accompanied by his wife and daughter.

The child was taken to the office of Dr. Harrison Gray and then to the Backus hospital, but after treatment at the hospital was taken home during the evening.

SUES FOR INJURIES WHEN STRUCK BY AUTOMOBILE

In a suit brought in the superior court for $5,00 damages Mary Martin of New London is the plaintiff against Harold L. Washington of Roxbury, Mass., and Charles H. GIVES RADIO TALK UPON MAKING MILK SAFE

In a radio talk Thursday afternoon from station WTIC upon the subject of Diseases Spread by Milk, Dr. Millard Knowlton of the state department of health, described pasteurization as the best means for the prevention of milk-borne diseases, among which are septic sore throat, scarlet fever, diphtheria, dysentery, tuberculosis, undulant fever, food poisoning and infantile paralysis and others. Pasteurization simply means that milk has been heated to 145 degrees Fahrenheit and held within 3 degrees of that temperature for 30 minutes. This is sufficient to kill germs ordinarily found in milk. That pasteurization is effective in destroying disease germs has been proven by both laboratory tests and experience.

Continuing Dr. Knowlton said:

Disease germs reach milk either from the cow or from an infected handler. Tuberculosis, garget, and contagious abortion are three diseases of the cow, the germs of which may be carried in milk and cause disease in humans. For these reasons it is important that cows be healthy so that their molk may not carry germs of disease to those who drink it.

It is also necessary that milk handlers be healthy and be not carriers of disease germs. All persons with sore throat or with any other symptoms of illness should keep away from milk. The milk handler may be a disease germ "carrier" and not know it. A carrier is a person who harbors disease germs in his body but is not ill. Such a person may carry germs to milk upon his hands. It is therefore important that all milk handlers wash their hands thoroughly with soap and water before handling milk. Frequent examination of handlers by physicians and of cows by veterinarians may be expected to greatly lessen the danger of milk-borne disease. But the one good trick by which you can protect yourself and your family is to use pasteurized milk, or boil the milk before it is served. Pasteurized or boiled milk is not only safe, but it is also more easily digested.

SCATTERED AHEARN'S ASHES OVER THREE CITIES

The ashes of Roy Ahearn, who carried many Norwich persons on airplane flights from the Gallows hill road field this summer and who was killed in New Jersey July 16, while doing an outside loop for the benefit of the Elks' crippled children's fund, were on Wednesday scattered over the cities of Hartford, Southbridge and Ware in accordance with a wish expressed by the stunt flier before he met his death. They were dropped from a height of 8,000 feet over the three communities by James F. Nields, Jr., a friend, from a plane piloted by Capt. Harry J. Hermann of Springfield.

Hermann, who was also a friend of Ahearn, was asked to take part in the unique ceremony, the ashes having been sent to Springfield from New Jersey. Nields was associated with Ahearn in the Red Wing Flying service of Ware before the latter became an exhibition stunt flier. They took off from Bowles airport, going first to Hartford, and then to Southbridge and Ware. According to Hermann, Ahearn stipulated before his death that the ashes were to be dropped from the exact altitude of 8,000 feet and this was strictly adhered to.

At the time of his death, Ahearn, who was only 26, had had more than 4,000 hours in the air. The plane in which he usually flew, but which was not the one in which he crashed, bore the inscription, "Carried more passengers with a single-motored plane in 1929 than any other pilot in the world." Death came to Ahearn as he tried to loop a tiny 40-horse-power monoplane of experimental design. At one time Ahearn held the world's record for parachute jumping.

FOURTH IN SERIES OF DR. JEFFERSON'S ADDRESSES

Rev. Dr. Charles E. Jefferson of New York held the close attention of a good sized congregation Thursday evening at the United Congregational church as he spoke upon "Love" at the fourth in the series of meetings under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian association with the co-operation of the churches.

Rev. A. N. Foster, pastor of the Church of the Good Shepherd, conducted the opening devotional services.

Rev. Dr. Jefferson spoke from the 13th chapter of First Corinthians, a chapter of 13 verses, ten sentences and 270 words, which he said was a hymn of love such as we might have expected to come from the mouth of Jesus, the world's greatest teacher of love, but the surprise is that it is written by Paul, the tentmaker of Tarsus, the philosopher, the theologian, the logician, the thinker with the piercing and vigorous intellect. This man, the speaker said, found out what love is because he saw it incarnate in Jesus, so that this chapter is really a portrait of Jesus. Love is the foundation of things because love is the heart of God.

The final one in the series of addresses by Rev. Dr. Jefferson will be given this (Friday) evening.

CASSIDY DRISCOLL'S PART IN VERGILIAN ACTUS

In the world-wide observance of the bi-millenial anniversary of the birth of Vergil, greatest of Latin poets, Georgetown university has taken a foremost part. In a series of exercises beginning on October 15 they have unveiled a bust of Vergil made for the university from the most authentic portraits obtainable and dedicated a Vergilian Library, the gift of admirers of Vergil and friends of Georgetown all over the world, all with most impressive ceremonies, attended by a distinguished gathering of scholars and educators.

The culminating and most auspicious observance will mark the inauguration of the Georgetown Vergilian academy whose initial exhibition will be a Vergilian Actus. This will be presented by the charter members of the Academy, ten in number and chosen representatives of the highest Latin achievement among the students. The Actus will be conducted as a public examination of the major divisions of Vergil's poetry and will be attended by professors and authors, guests from many American colleges and universities, whose names are linked with classical scholarship.

Ten special medals have been struck in commemoration of the anniversary and the beginning of the activities of the academy. The university will present one of these medals to each of the participants in the Vergilian Actus which will be presented at Georgetown, Washington, D. C., on the afternoon of Sunday next.

The first member of the Academy and Expositor of the Vergilian Actus is Cassidy Driscoll of Washington street, Norwich, son of Mr. and Mrs J. Edward Driscoll.

DISTRIBUTION OF ESTATE OF REV. WM. A. KEEFE

Distribution of the estate of the late Rev. William A. Keefe, pastor of St. Mary's Memorial church at the time of his death, has been shown according to the filing of the final account with the Norwich probate court by the executor, Rev. J. J. McCabe of Jewett City.

The estate amounted to $15,592.97, on which there is a succession tax of $135.47 paid to the state. The executor receives $7[illegible] for his services as well as a bequest of $500 under the will. From the residue of $11,585.30, one half, or $5,792.65 goes to Father Keefe's mother, Mrs. Catherine A. Keefe of Waterbury, and the other half is split into two shares, amounting to $2,[illegible]32, one part going to the Roman Catholic church of this city and the other part to Rt. Rev. John J. Nilan.

The bequest made to Bishop Nilan is made to him as bishop of the diocese of Hartford, to be used for diocesan charities. The bequest to the Roman Catholic parish, St. Mary's Norwich, is to be used for charitable and parochial purposes at the direction of the pastor of the parish with the condition that a requiem high mass be sung annually for ten years immediately following Father Keefe's decease, for the repose of his soul and the souls of the deceased members of his family.

PUBLIC HEALTH NURSING ACTIVITIES IN OCTOBER

The public health nursing department of the United Workers had under its care 1,541 patients on the first of October and had 169 new patients in that month. There were 1,983 visits made in October.

At the October meeting of the Benevolent society of the Taftville Congregational church, Christmas seals were folded.

Euphemian circle of King's Daughters worked on Christmas seals at the November meeting.

Mrs. C. C. Gildersleeve, chairman of the public health nursing department and Mrs. Richard R. Snow, chairman of the Christmas seals committee have returned from New York where they attended the institute for board members, under the auspices of the Henry Street Visiting Nurse association. As elsewhere, unemployment was one of the chief topics under consideration, in this case because of its effect on public health. Smaller or lack of income means more malnutrition with its consequent disastrous result to children and adults.

The tuberculosis seal sale committee held a meeting on Friday at the United Workers house. Ways and means of meeting the deficit [illegible] 1930 were discussed; as otherwise a curtailment in the assistance now given would be necessary.

DANGEROUS FOR WAGONS NOT CARRYING LIGHTS

Records of the Connecticut department of motor vehicles show that late afternoon and early evening hours at this time of the year are particularly dangerous for horse drawn vehicles. At this period, it becomes dark, as it is sometimes expressed, "before sundown," and motorists frequently encounter farmers and others with teams going home from the day's work. Many of these teams or vehicles do not carry lights.

"The fact that horses and wagons without lights are more or less inconspicuous at dusk apparently has not occurred to many drivers," was pointed out by Commissioner Robbins B. Stoeckel in a bulletin [illegible] WTIC, the Travelers station, [illegible] Thursday afternoon. "[illegible] requiring such teams to be [illegible] by a lantern or light of some kind during the hours when automobiles are required to [illegible]," his bulletin continued, "[illegible] is more honored in the [illegible] in its observance. [illegible] law is thoroughly enforced [illegible] been on former occasions, [illegible] that the drivers do not [illegible] how to place the light so it will convey a warning.

"There was one classic instance of a man who carried his warning lantern wrapped in a horse blanket at his feet. Perhaps it kept his feet warm, but it did not prevent the accident in which he found himself involved. The light should never be obscured, but should be visible from all directions.

"An appliance has appeared recently which might be of some aid. Many contractors are using little button reflectors on their horse drawn trucks. These are real safeguards. They show the automobile operator that there is something in the road ahead. This sort of reflector does not take the place of a light, under the law, but is an aid to safety, and might well be used on horse drawn vehicles which are on the highway at night. One of these reflectors might be put on the headstall of each horse and one on the rear of the wagon.

"Regardless of any special aid which may appear, it must be remembered that lights are necessary for the safety of everybody. It will also be well for every motor vehicle operator to remember that horse drawn vehicles may suddenly confront him during the early evening hours and that he must watch more carefully now than ordinarily for this hazard."

Elected by Insurance Agents

In the election of officers of the Connecticut Insurance Agents association at New Haven Thursday, at which Walter C. North of Bridgeport was chosen president, Louis H. Arnold of Willimantic was elected an honorary vice president and the regional vice presidents include H. L. Bailey, Groton, Enos E. Penney, Stafford Springs, and Stanley J. Sumner, Windham.

Concluded Successful Sale

The Women's Federation of Park Congregational church successfully concluded its two-day Christmas sale Thursday in the Osgood Memorial having large patronage for the luncheon, tea and dinner hours. In the evening the Men's club repeated its burlesque style show which made such a hit the first night.

MINER OF CHAP. TECH SETS NEW RECORD, BULKELEY HARRIERS WIN

A well-trained Bulkeley team, placing its five scoring men within the first 18 places for a total of 44 points, won the annual cross-country run of the Eastern Connecticut - Western Rhode Island conference Thursday afternoon on the Academy's course and thereby dethroned Westerly, which had held the title for the past two years. The Rhode Islanders, however, made a great bid and finished second with 52 points. Chapman was third with 66. N. F. A. fourth with 67. Stonington had 97 and Windham 139.

Miner Breaks Course Record.

Miner of Chapman Tech was the individual winner, stepping off the 2½ mile course of hills and whatnot up through Mohegan park woods, in 12 minutes, 23 2-5 seconds, a new record for the course by 19 2-5 seconds. Along with Miner, Johnny Wood, Academy star, also smashed the record for he finished second in 12-32 2-5, and, although the next two men, Caron of Tech and Hank Mahoney were not timed, it is possible that they also surpassed the old mark.

Mahoney Makes Great Run.

Miner ran a beautiful race and came down into the home stretch with a 80 yard lead, which he had no trouble in holding, although Wood ran his heart out to beat him. Caron was about 50 yards behind Wood and only a few yards ahead of Hank Mahoney, bespectacled Wildcat star, who turned in his best performance of the year, in finishing fourth. Mahoney almost caught Caron in the last 100 yard spurt down the gridiron, but didn't have the final spark left. Nevertheless, there was nothing but praise for him and his surprisingly good work.

Alm Finishes Fifth.

Right after Mahoney came the first of the Bulkeley men, Alm, the star of their team and a recent luminary with Mineola high in New York. Gagnon, who has been running right along with Alm all year in the Bulkeley triumphs, was sixth. The remaining ten runners finished as follows: Magni, Westerly, Giorna, Westerly, Tubbs, Bulkeley, Turcolo, Westerly.

The Academy finished Wood in second, Mahoney, in fourth, Lyons in 17th, Wlodarczek 18th, and Baranowski 26th.

The race was run off without a hitch and the finish was witnessed by a crowd of probably 250.

The summaries:

POOL MATCH ENDS IN VICTORY FOR LOCAL RECS

At Jewett City last night the spectators were treated to some fast pocket billiards when the Recs defeated the Jolly Five by 45 balls.

Snyder, of the Recs, staged a comeback that dazzled all present. Trailing his opponent by 40 balls going to the last 25 balls he came through with two brilliant runs and finally won by 10 balls

Smiling Jimmy proved that he was too fast for Arremony and toyed with him, finally winning by 20 balls.

Al Benson took the pride of Jewett City over handily. Baker was in good form but Benson was in the proverbial pink. Benson had runs of 20 and 22 and as the game progressed he proved why he is good.

Norton struck a snag and could not get going. He was defeated by 5 balls.

Harris, although playing good pool, met his Waterloo in Liberty. Scratches and the Jewett City boys long shots proved his undoing.

The score:

Norwich	Jewett City
Snyder, 100	Juber, 90
Harris, 73	Liberty, 100
Norton, 95	Jarvis, 100
Jimmy, 100	Arremony 80
Benson, 100	Baker, 53

Norwich—468; Jewett City—423.

FORMER HARVARD FOOTBALL CAPTAIN TO BE MARRIED

NEW YORK, Nov. 20—(AP)—Harvard football captains are becoming the favorite sons-in-laws of Joseph P. Day, wealthy New York real estate dealer.

Last year Pauline Day married Arthur French, captain of the 1928 Harvard team. Today the family confirmed reports that Pauline's younger sister, Laura Pope Day, will marry James "Red" Barrett last year's captain.

The engagement is to be announced formally at the Harvard dinner after the Yale game Saturday night.

Miss Day is 20 and has attended Spence school. Barrett is connected with the New York banking firm of Otis and company. Their romance began on a trans-Atlantic liner a year ago last summer.

Y. LOSES PRACTICE GAME TO WILLIMANTIC, 29 TO 24

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 20—The Willimantic Y. five defeated the Norwich Y. team in a game that was closely contested only in the last half, played at the Y. M. C. A. here tonight, 29 to 24. It was a practice game. The score was 18 to 9 in the local team's favor at the half. With the opening of the second half, however, Coach Demarest entered the game and his services were material in checking a Thread City runaway. The final score:

HOPPE DEFEATS COCHRAN; STILL BEHIND 950 POINTS

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Willie Hoppe, defending his world's 18.1 balkline billiards title, won the eighth block of his match with Welker Cochran tonight, 330 to 300, but still trailed the Hollywood star by more than 950 points. It was the first block Hoppe has won. Cochran leads, 2400 to 1439.

Hoppe played his best billiards of the match but still was interrupting long runs by missing the easy shots. He ran 103 in the fifth inning tonight and had the balls in perfect position for his 104th carom when he miscued.

Cochran, who had run out the afternoon block with an unfinished cluster of 51, came back to the table and ran 76 before he missed, giving him a high run of 127 for the inning. After the first four innings, however, Cochran was the victim of a series of bad leaves and never could get the balls under control until his last two innings.

Tonight's inning scores:

Hoppe 5-16-34-9-103-0-72-28-49-21-13—330—1439.

Cochran 76-15-25-76-0-0-21-7-0-3-49-28—300—2400.

Grand averages: Hoppe 19 71-72; Cochran, 33 24-72.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20—(AP)—Winning his seventh consecutive block Welker Cochran of Hollywood, Cal., took a lead of 2,100 to 1,039 over Willie Hoppe today in their 12 block match for the world's 18.1 balkline billiards championship. Cochran won the seventh block 300 to 205.

For the fourth time in the match Cochran broke the world's high run record of 140 made by Frank Ives in 1901, when he clicked off 170 billiards in the seventh inning. The match went nine innings, Cochran closing with an unfinished run of 51.

Hoppe's best run was 81 for an average of 22 7-9 as compared to Cochran's average of 33 3-9 for the day. Cochran's brilliant shooting today left him with a grand average of 34 26-61 for the seven blocks while Hoppe has averaged only 17 38-61.

Inning scores for the seventh block:

Cochran 4-12-21-2-1-21-170-2-13-51—300.

Hoppe 1-3-3-16-81-0-0-52-49—205.

LARGE CROWD WITNESSES PUTNAM AMATEUR BOUTS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 20.—The benefit boxing card staged at St. John's arena tonight was one of the most torrid fight bills witnessed here in several years. The arena was filled to seating capacity and all profits derived from the programme will be contributed to the building fund of the Day Kimball hospital nurses' home fund.

In the feature bout of the evening Charley Goulet, promising Putnam boy, added another knockout victory to his growing list when he floored Waterbury Joe Bourasso in the second frame of a three-round bout. Goulet's brilliant finish came after a round in which he swapped punches with his opponent on even terms.

The other bouts resulted as follows:

Otto Wadich, Waterbury, decision over Kid Drisson, Putnam; Kid Brouillard, Danielson, decision, Young Chettle, Providence; Anslem Fernier, Danielson, technical knockout over Frank McKenna, Providence; Joe Arnolds, Waterbury, decision over Gene Billings, Goodyear; Phil Bourasso, Waterbury, decision over Al Maynard, Providence; Ray Landry, Danielson, knockout in second round over Ace Hudkins, Waterbury.

JUNIOR FIVE VICTORS IN POOL MATCH, 497 TO 395

O'BRIEN KNOCKS OUT SMITH IN 4TH ROUND

HARTFORD, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Frankie O'Brien, Hartford middleweight, tonight knocked out Joe Smith, his fellow townsman, in the fourth round of a scheduled ten rounder. Carmen Knapp, New Haven, lightweight, dropped an unpopular decision to Sal Carta, Middletown, in six rounds. Nick Petit, Bridgeport, won on a technical knockout, four rounds, over Rocky Rayo, Hartford. Nick Christy, Bristol featherweight, outpointed Billy Avera, Hartford, in six rounds, and Kayo Burns, Hartford middleweight, won a six-round decision from Joe Howard, also of Hartford.

DARTMOUTH LEAVES FOR STANFORD THIS MORNING

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 20. —(AP)—Dartmouth concluded its home preparations for the intersectional game with Stanford at Palo Alto, Cal., on November 29, today, with a colorless practice on Memorial field.

The most exciting event of the session was the banishment of Hank Barber, husky tackler, to the college infirmary to be treated for a severe cold. It is expected, however, he will be in shape to leave with the team tomorrow on the trip to the Pacific coast.

Coach Cannell sent his squad through a long workout on defense against Stanford plays as put on by the scrub eleven and the Indians had much trouble stopping the Cardinal attack. Much time was also spent on signal drills and dummy scrimmage to smooth out the Green's assignment work.

Following the practice, the squad gathered for the traditional burning of the tackling dummy, a ceremony that has marked the end of Dartmouth home football practice for many years. Captain Andres applied the match for the funeral pyre and the squad cheered President Ernest Martin Hopkins who watched the practice with Cannell.

Coach Cannell and his squad of 38 players, after a short workout tomorrow morning, will board their transcontinental train. Just before the practice was halted Cannell announced to the squad that the Dartmouth athletic council had decided to declare the intersectional contest with Stanford a letter game.

N. F. A. LEADS BULKELEY IN NUMBER OF VICTORIES SINCE 1904 SEASON

The Academy has an edge of five victories over Bulkeley in their gridiron rivalry of modern times. The schools have been walloping each other for a half century or more for tomorrow's battle at the campus will be their 66th meeting, but records of early games are quite incomplete.

Since 1904, however, the Red and White and Orange and Black have tangled just 40 times and in that space the Academy has 18 wins against 13 defeats and nine have ended in ties. The Academy has outscored Bulkeley 394 to 340 during this span.

Each school has had its ups and downs during that time. It started off with the Academy walking all over the Whalers until 1910, with only two ties, the best Bulkeley could do in that time. Bulkeley won once in '10 and was able to tie twice the following year, followed by Bulkeley getting everything, with the exception of one tie, until 1915. The Academy rode high again for a few years until 1920 and 1921 when each won a game.

Then came a succession of bad defeats for the Academy, which lasted from a 44 to 6 lacing in 1922 until Coach Earle Brigham's team upsetting the Orange and Black, 6 to 0, at the campus in 1926. Since then, Bulkeley hasn't won a game, getting an unexpected tie in 1927 but that's all. Last year's score was 7 to 0, played at New London, with Les Crowell, Frank Barber and Golembeskie sharing the hero roles. Crowell blocked a kick that gave the Academy the ball deep in Bulkeley territory, Barber crashed over for the touchdown and Golembeskie went over for the extra point on a line play. Results of games since 1904:

JONES STILL A MEMBER OF EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

NEW YORK, Nov. 20—(AP)—Although he was not in attendance, the status of Robert T. Jones, Jr., as a member of the executive committee of the United States Golf association remained unchanged today at a meeting of this governing group.

The brief statement issued on the committee's behalf by Prescott S. Bush, secretary, contained no reference to Jones nor would any of the committeemen answer a question as to whether the world's champion, having renounced his amateur standing for the talking pictures, would serve as a member in 1931.

The indications were that Jones would fill out his term of office, with the likelihood he would not serve with the new executive committee, functioning after the annual meeting, January 9-10, in New York city.

The committee today fixed the dates for the following national tournaments:

Women's championship at The Country club, Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 21 to 26.

Men's amateur championship at the Beverly Country club, Chicago, August 31 to September 5.

No action was taken on the "sand wedge," the new concave-faced instrument developed for the special purpose of getting the ball out of sand traps. Its use has been the subject of some controversy, both here and abroad.

Kocsis Wins Decision

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(AP)— Antal Kocsis, of Hungary, outpointed Black Bill, Cuban Negro flyweight, in a ten round bout at the Olympia A. C. tonight. Bill weighed 113; Kocsis 116. Miki Gelb, Hungarian featherweight, defeated Maxie Leiner of New York, in another ten rounder. Gelb weighed 129 3-4; Leiner 131.

SIGNAL DRILL TOPS OFF LONG WORKOUT FOR YALE

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 20—(AP)—Yale's varsity football team expects Harvard to throw plenty of lateral and forward passes Saturday and apparently is planning to counter with a few of its own.

It was just one pass after another for the Elis in their final heavy workout today for their objective game. Benny Friedman, former Michigan star, came here to polish up Yale's forward passing attack and then the squad was given a long drill against Harvard forward and lateral passes. A signal drill topped off a long workout.

Johnny Madden, substitute left end, aggravated an old injury in the workout and was declared unfit for this Saturday's game. There was some doubt also as to whether Muhlfeld, second string fullback, would be able to play against the Crimson.

Officials today explained that the substitution of Stewart for Hare at guard in Saturday's starting lineup did not constitute a demotion for the latter. Both men, coaches said, were considered on a par.

The Harvard squad will arrive here tomorrow and will hold a light signal drill at the bowl at 2:30 p. m. Yale will then take possession of the bowl for a light workout. After the practice the visitors will leave for Wallingford, where they will establish their headquarters at the Choate school.

THREE SOCCER GAMES ON LEAGUE SLATE SUNDAY

Following is the schedule of games to be played Sunday in the Eastern Connecticut Soccer league as given by the league secretary, Joseph Rose, Jr., of New London. The first team is the home team: New London Rangers vs. Putnam; J. B. Martins vs. Baltic; Jewett City vs. Plainfield; Wauregan bye.

The game played Nov. 9 at New London between the New London Rangers and Plainfield has been ordered replayed by the league and will take place Nov. 27th, Thanksgiving day. The Rangers entered a protest that Plainfield substituted a player in the closing minutes of the game, which is a violation of the league rules. The contest will be played at the J. B. Martin grounds at Taftville, with out of town officials in charge. One of the largest crowds of the season is expected to witness this tussle, the result of which will have a bearing on the league honors.

One of the biggest surprises and upsets of the season occurred Sunday when the Putnam team led by Tommy Fenton, former Plainfield star and now captain of the Putnam eleven, defeated the New London Rangers by a clean cut 2 to 1 victory.

HARVARD TAKES PART IN LONG DUMMY SCRIMMAGE

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 20.—(AP)—The Harvard football team had its last practice session of the season on home territory here today, when Head Coach Arnold Horween announced the starting line-up for Saturday's objective game with Yale at New Haven.

The line-up which included but three of those who started against the Elis last year follows:

Harding, le; Richards, lt; Myerson, lg; Captain Ticknor, c; Trainer, rg; Trafford, rt; Ogden, re; Wood, qb; Crickard, lh; Huguley, rh; White, fb.

Captain Ticknor, Johnny Trainer and Barry Wood will be the only Crimson players facing Yale for the second time at the opening kickoff.

Horween put his varsity elevens through a long dummy scrimmage with the freshmen who used Yale formations and ended the workout with a long signal drill.

The Harvard squad of 34 players will leave tomorrow for New Haven, to work out in the bowl late in the afternoon and then depart for Wallingford, Conn., where they will remain at the Choate school until almost game time Saturday afternoon.

WITHDRAWS OBJECTIONS TO ERECTION OF BOB SLED RUN

NEW YORK, Nov. 20—(AP)—Objections to the erection of a bob sled run on the property of the Lake Placid club for the 1932 Olympic winter games with money furnished by the state were erased today with the announcement that the club would relinquish all claims to the property.

The announcement was made by Dr. Godfrey Dewey, chairman of the winter games' committee and vice-president of the Lake Placid club. In event the state fails to maintain the run after the completion of the International games, the property will be turned over to the Lake Placid community, Dr. Dewey said.

Preparations for the winter games are already practically completed, according to Dr. Dewey. Provisions have been made for 600 contestants from 25 nations, 150 officials and a daily attendance of 8,000. At least a half million dollars will have been spent in advance preparations, when the games open in February. The amount includes a $100,000 stadium and the mile and a half bob sled run.

HOWARD LYMAN RUNNER, BREAKS TRACK RECORD

With its second win Thursday over the Freshman Aggies by a score of 23 to 32, Lyman Memorial high's cross country team closed its first season in this line of sports, winning four and losing three. With Howard setting a new record of 14.40 for the course of 2.9 miles at Lebanon, the team won its fourth meet in succession.

Howard finished first, Greenberg second, Spellacy fifth, Bertizek sixth and N. Manning ninth for Lebanon. Towman came in third, Gilberman fourth, Bailey and Williams tied for seventh place and Collins finished tenth for the Freshman Aggies.

The season's record follows:

Bacon 27, Lyman 28.
Bacon 26, Lyman 29.
Bulkeley 19, Lyman 36.
Lyman 19, Windham 36.
Lyman 25, Freshman Aggies 30.
Lyman 27, Stonington 28.
Lyman 23, Freshman Aggies 32.

HOCKEY TEAMS PLAY SECOND SCORELESS TIE

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.— (AP)— The New York Americans and Toronto Maple Leafs played their second scoreless tie of the new National Hockey league season tonight, skating through 70 minutes of dull hockey without a goal or anything close to it.

The deadlock was just enough to enable the Leafs to hold their place at the top of the league standing as the one point gave them a total of six. Both were guilty of frequent offsides at the blue line and of inaccurate shooting when they did get a chance at the goal.

MCLARNIN 3 TO 1 FAVORITE TO TRIM PETROLLE AT GARDEN TONIGHT

(By Edward J. Neil)

NEW YORK, Nov. 20—(AP)—The Indian sign of the underdog, a powerful influence in recent matches in Madison Square Garden, will hang over Jimmy McLarnin tomorrow night in the belting Irishman's ten round battle with Billy Petrolle, "Fargo Express," now fighting out of Duluth.

Kid Chocolate, the battling bon bon, went to the post a four to one favorite over Fidel Labarba, dogged young Pacific coast featherweight, and wound up running second, to the great disgust of the ringworms. A few days later Al Singer, the lightweight champion, carried his crown and a 3 to 1 advantage into the same ring with Tony Canzoneri and lost both in a single round. Now McLarnin is a hot 3 to 1 favorite to whip Petrolle, and the superstitious ones are shaking their heads.

McLarnin, one of the greatest fighters at any weight campaigning today, has marched steadily through all the opposition he has been called upon to face here since he lost a decision to Sammy Mandell in a lightweight title go two years ago. He bounced over Singer in three rounds and that beating is believed to have softened the champion and left him a mark for Canzoneri's sweeping left hooks. He has knocked out a half dozen other highly touted lightweights while New York fans roared their appreciation of his punching powers and boxing skill.

Petrolle, a rugged veteran back to the wars after a lengthy rest, put up two great fights to win the McLarnin shot. Billy whipped Canzoneri in Chicago before the Italian won the lightweight crown and lost a hair-line decision to Jackie Kid Berg, British windmill who is considered the outstanding contender for 135 pounds. Petrolle is a hefty hitter in his own right, with a sweeping left hook that booms into the body and a nice right to the head. He is chock full of confidence in his ability to belt on even terms with McLarnin.

As the two junior welterweights wound up training today it appeared that McLarnin would have a slight advantage in the weights. Jimmy is due to weigh between 140 and 142 pounds tomorrow. Petrolle probably will scale at 138

Two attractive ten round appetizers are on the card. Taitt Littman, middleweight newcomer from Milwaukee, will meet Harry Smith, heavy hitting Harlem Negro, in the semi-final, and Eddie Ran, Polish welterweight, will swap clouts with Pee Wee Jarrell, of Grand Rapids, Mich. in the first ten.

College Football

NEW YORK, Nov. 20—(AP)—A light but fast workout kept Columbia's football squad on its toes today as the Lions buckled down to work for the Thanksgiving day game with Syracuse. Signal drills for both the first and second teams featured the session. Ralph Hewitt took no part in the workout but is certain to be in shape to play against the Orange.

PITTSBURGH—Carnegie Tech today wound up preparations for the Temple game with a light workout. The Tartans will enter Saturday's game in good condition and have more than a faint hope of stopping the Owls, who have been beaten only once this year.

NEW YORK—The Fordham Maroons went through one of the longest practice sessions of the year. Coach Frank Cavanaugh drilled his charges in every department of the game, from fundamentals to scrimmage. The regulars beat the freshmen by three touchdowns in the 15-minute scrimmage session. Cavanaugh said he thought the Maroons could beat Bucknell by a couple of touchdowns.

ANNAPOLIS—Bill Ingram, Navy coach, devoted his time to the development of a smoother aerial attack and the locating of a substitute for Joe Tschirgi and Oscar Hagberg, injured backs. Their loss leaves the Midshipmen badly crippled for the Maryland game.

WEST POINT—With only three more full practice sessions in sight for the Army team before the Notre Dame game, Major Sasse shifted his backfield again. The smoothest combination seemed to consist of Bowman, Glattly, Sebastian and Stecker. Kilday, Herb, Fields, Frentzel and Carver all were used with the first team at times but no definite backfield will be decided upon until after the Ursinus game.

NEW YORK—Head Coach Chick Meehan sprang a surprise by sending Mike Firstenberg, a lineman, into the New York university backfield. A dummy scrimmage, first of the week, was the feature of the session. The Violets play Rutgers Saturday and meet Colgate in a charity game Dec. 6.

GENARO GETS TECHNICAL KNOCKOUT OVER MCGRATH

WATERBURY Nov. 20—(AP)—Mickey Genaro, Waterbury lightweight, for the second successive time won over Pat McGrath, rival city boxer in the feature Waterbury A. C. bout, at Buckingham hall here tonight. Genaro opening a gash over the left eye of the Irishman, was awarded a technical knockout in the eighth round after McGrath had led for seven sessions. McGrath weighed 135 1-2; Genaro 133 1-2.

Others:

Leo Larrivee, Waterbury, 163, ten round decision over Roy Powers, Holyoke, 163.

Whitey Scott Bridgeport, 135, knocked out Connie Mello, Waterbury, 133, second round of a scheduled six rounder.

Young Genado Waterbury, 123, six round decision over Ernie Palmer, Bridgeport, 125.

Joe Vignali, Waterbury, 130 1-2, four round decision over Joe Mossouri, Holyoke, 130.

BLACKHAWKS OUTSKATE BOSTON BRUINS TO WIN

CHICAGO, Nov. 20—(AP)—The Chicago Blackhawks outroughed and outskated the Boston Bruins to gain a 1 to 0 victory in a National Hockey league match tonight in the stadium.

The Blackhawks were a little the better almost all the way, but only in the second period, while Lionel Hitchman was serving out a penalty, could they smash through for a score. March, Somers and Arbour contrived to break through the Bruin defense and Somers passed to March for the score.

Cooney Weiland Dit Clapper and Dutch Gainor, the big three of the Bruins, banged away at Chuck Gardiner in the final period, but failed to beat the Hawk goalie, who played one of his sensational games. Seventeen penalties were called. Hitchman led with three, all in the second period.

MAROONS GIVEN TROUNCING AT HANDS OF CANADIENS

MONTREAL, Nov. 20—(AP)—The Montreal Canadiens, world's hockey champions, trounced their intra-city rivals, the Maroons, 7 to 1 tonight in their first clash of the National Hockey league season.

The game was one sided as the score shows, although the Maroons did succeed in getting their first tally in four games. Howie Morenz and Pete Lepine each scored two goals for the Canadiens and Gagnon, Mondou and Larochelle each tallied once. The lone Maroon goal was made by McVicar, recruit defense man from Providence assisted by another rookie, Johnny Gallagher

Flat Walsh guarded the Maroons' goal for two periods then was removed for Dave Kerr, goaler of last year's amateur champions, the Montreal A. A. A.

LAMB SCORES ONLY GOAL IN THE SENSATIONAL VICTORY

OTTAWA, Nov. 20—(AP)—A goal in the second minute of play by Joe Lamb, Ottawa center, enabled the Senators to gain a 1 to 0 victory over the Detroit Falcons tonight. It was Detroit's first defeat of the National Hockey league season.

The game was ruggedly played with both sides using plenty of hard body checks and often concentrating more on the opposing players than on the puck. Combination play on both sides was weak and both defenses were strong.

Dolly Dolson, Detroit goalie, had no chance to save on Lamb's goal. The lanky center got through the Falcon defense for a high shot which Dolson stopped, but the goalie fell and Lamb scooped up the rebound for an easy counter.

PHILLY ARROWS WIN FAST GAME FROM BOSTON TIGERS

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 20.—(AP)—The Philadelphia Arrows won their first victory of the season tonight in the Canadian-American hockey league campaign by defeating the Boston Tigers 2 to 1.

The contest was fast and rough, with a fist fight between Lyons and Buckles in the final period, which brought each of them a major penalty.

Boyd saved the Tigers from a shutout by taking a rebound from the net in the second period and sliding it past Roberts.

RACE HORSE EARNS $151,925 FOR GEORGE D. WIDENER

NEW YORK, Nov. 20—(AP)—Jamestown, George D. Widener's two-year old turf champion, earned $17,873 a minute in his successful campaign for juvenile honors during the past season. His total racing time was 8 1-2 minutes for a grand total of $151,925. The majority of his victories were at six furlongs and on each occasion he shaded 1:12.

Juniors Accept Challenge

The Recreation Juniors accept the challenge of the Jewett City All Stars for a pool game Monday night at the Rec parlors. The Juniors have already defeated the Lucky Strike Five and are always open for engagements.

The Recreation Five would like to play the Bohemian club of Danielson in the near future.

Will Play Danielson

Owing to a misunderstanding in their schedule, the West Ends of South Manchester, formerly the Cheney brothers, were obliged to cancel their game on Thanksgiving afternoon with the Soyma basketball team, but the management of the local team has secured the Radio five of Danielson to substitute.

N. T. Wildcats Notice

The Ice House team challenges the Norwich Town Wildcats to a game Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at Mohegan park. They also want games with any other team averaging 140 lbs especially the Black Hawks and the Taftville Beer Sluggers. Answer through the paper.

MYSTIC

There were eight tables in play at the whist at St. Mark's Episcopal church parish house Wednesday evening. High scores in bridge were made by Mrs. Carroll Bliven and Moses Wilcox. Low scores were made by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Allyn. Prizes in straight whist went to Miss Annie Packer and John Goodman, Mrs. Sophie Tyler and George Wilcox. Refreshments were served by the committee, Miss Letitia McGaughey, Mrs. Latham Johnson, Miss Emma Albright and Mrs. Treffly A. Morin.

Miss Mae Scholfield spent Wednesday with her brother, Everett A. Scholfield and family of Deep River.

Mrs. Alice Conant has returned from a visit with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Conant of Northampton, Mass.

Miss Dorothy Nelson of Boston is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. E. William Holmes of Old Mystic.

The weekly broadcast given by the state D. A. R. from station WTIC at 2:45 each Thursday concerned the Noah Webster house in West Hartford. The paper was read by Mrs. Frederick T. Latimer.

Mrs. Thomas W. Farnsworth and Mrs. William W. Pinkerton attended the state meeting of the League of Voters held in Bridgeport Wednesday and Thursday of this week.

Mrs. Inez Stedman has returned to her home after a lengthy visit with relatives in Haddonfield, N. J.

Calvin Hoxie, of New York, has been visiting his sister, Mrs. Harry Cady of Old Mystic.

The Monday club will meet Nov. 24th with Mrs. Henry B. Noyes. The paper, which was to have been given by Miss L. P. Allyn at the last meeting, will be given at this meeting.

Among those made citizens of the United States this week were three local people, Julius Happel, Gertrude Hermaine Happel and Guiseppina Ci-roni.

Special Thanksgiving Service

There is to be a special Thanksgiving service at the Old Mystic M. E. church Sunday evening at 7 o'clock Following is the program announced: Prelude, doxology, invocation, hymn, Come Ye Thankful People, Come, congregation; prayer, hymn, We Plough the Fields and Scatter, congregation; reading of the governor's proclamation, song, Now the Corn is Ripe for Reaping, quartet; Scripture reading, first Chronicles, 29 10-20; hymn, O King of Kings, congregation; offertory, hymn, Thou Art My Shepherd, congregation; address, Why Our Nation Has Reason to Thank God from the Viewpoint of the Doctor, Educator, Farmer, Business Man and Minister, represented respectively by Dr. Thurman P. Maine, Mrs. Hazel C. Bucklyn, Edward A. Smith, Charles Haddon and Rev. Homer E. Moore; solo, Mrs. H. D. Gay; song, Carry Your Cross with a Smile, quartet; hymn, Swell the Anthem, congregation; benediction.

Taking Providence Course

Miss Catherine Latham, who was graduated recently from Lawrence training school for nurses in New London is in Providence where she is taking a special course.

PUBLIC-SPIRITED MERCHANTS UNITE TO HELP NEEDY

It was decided at a recent meeting of the Mystic merchants to promote a plan which would bring a little joy to some of the needy families in the village by giving baskets of food in proportion to the number in the family to each one deserving of such. A committee of nine was appointed to visit every merchant in Mystic and solicit contributions. The money thus secured will be used to buy groceries for families who, in the opinion of the selectmen of the towns of Groton and Stonington and the visiting nurse, are really in need of assistance. A committee will be appointed to distribute these supplies later. The present committee is composed of Max Bendett, Peter Hammacher, L. E. Kinney, Simon Curlenjik, Louis Sklarew, J. Alpheus Schoonover, Louis Bendett, Benjamin Bendett and L. E. Vatet. Max Bendett, chairman, states that there has been a very good response so far and that if any outsiders wish to give toward the fund the donations will be greatly appreciated.

STONINGTON

The two weekly whist and pinochle tournaments in the borough drew large crowds this weekly. At the Stonington Fire district prizes were awarded Mrs. R. Donath of Mystic and Arthur L. Lenagh of Stonington, Mrs. William Edgar and Thomas Farrell. Refreshments were served after play. At the Stonington council, Junior Order of American Mechanics and Barbara Frietchie council, Daughters of America, prizes were awarded in whist to Sherman Swallow and Mrs. Catherine Sprague, Joseph Nunes and Miss Rae Wood. In pinochle the prizes went to William Clark and Mrs. Tullie Burdick, Edward Staplin and Mrs. Rose Cornall. Mrs. Ruth Conrad and William Robinson Jr., were the committee in charge.

J. B. Parker of Boston was a business caller here on Thursday.

Lions Plan Charity Work

The members of the Lions' clubs are securing funds to be used for the needy at Christmas. Donations are received by the secretary, Fred Zeller, or the chairman of the committee Paul Schepis.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold K. Thorpe and son Peter of Glen Ridge, N. J., are guests of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Robinson.

Major J. Drake of New York is at Wamphassuc Point for a visit.

Bayside camp, Royal Neighbors, held a meeting in the Holy Ghost society rooms Thursday evening.

Marksmen For Practice

Stonington Rifle club members are holding nightly practice at the range in the Pendleton block. The 50-foot range has been completely equipped. The locals will hold their first match with the Pioneer Hook and Ladder Co. team of Groton, Nov. 25. This meet will be one of the matches of the Mohegan Rifle league of which the team is a member.

Miss Eileen Lewis of New London, county organizer of the W. C. T. U. who spoke here at the Protestant churches Sunday last is planning to organize a junior branch of the W. C. T. U. in the borough and already has secured a number of names for membership.

Charles A. Wimpfeimer of New York has been a business caller at the American Velvet Co. plant.

Ruth chapter, No. 44, O. E. S., held its meeting in Masonic hall Thursday evening.

Several members of the Congregational church have been attending the religious training school in New London each Tuesday evening and an effort will be made to form a teachers' training class here for the instruction of religious workers.

Surveys for a Canada-Alaska highway have been begun.

SOUTH GRISWOLD

A. Ray Button and J. Magrey attended the auction of John Ackley at Poquonoc, Thursday.

Mrs. Palmer, Mrs. Culver and children of Potter Hill were recent callers in town.

Slater's sawmill from Willimantic is on the Foote lot.

Ransom H. Young, his son and grandson, attended the union service at the Congregational church in Jewett City, Sunday.

In Austria the number of registered radio receiving set owners has passed the 400,000-mark. The owner of the 400,000th set, a merchant, Emil Volkmen, will receive from the National Broadcasting Company of Austria (the Ravag) a gold watch and chain as a souvenir.

MONTVILLE

A chapter of the American Air Cadets has been organized in the town by L. G. Cul n, of New London and Paris with a membership of 230. The sponsors for the local chapter are Rev. Otis Lee Monson, Rev. Raymond J Bates, Howard E. Rogers, Leroy C. Lester, Herman H. Ungerer and Donald Chapel. Howard E. Rogers will serve as district commander and sign all membership cards, supervise contests and award pilot licenses and ace badges to those who qualify. Headquarters for the boys will be at Sam Floroman's store, Palmertown, where registration cards, application blanks and equipment will be obtainable. As soon as the member has constructed a plane that will stay in the air for 10 seconds, he will be awarded a pilot's license badge and if he constructs one that will stay in the air for one minute and a half he will be promoted to an ace, the highest rank in the organization. All boys and girls in the community between 9 and 20 are eligible to join. They can also compete in state, local and national contests. Upon registration the applicant is provided at a nominal cost a grease monkey (mechanic's) pin and membership kit to build the first flying model.

The Air Cadets' organization has already a million and a quarter members and is the fastest growing boys' society in the country. Other chapters are located throughout the state.

Sewing Club Meets

The Girls' Sewing club of Montville held a meeting Wednesday evening with Miss Rose Bonville, at Uncasville. The early part of the evening was devoted to sewing. Later refreshments were served by the hostess and this was followed by entertaining piano numbers by Mrs. Ernest Bonville, of New London. Present were Misses Mary Szczygiel, Caroline Ywarski, Blanche and Dilma Couture, Jennie Soja, Bertha Luty, Frances Zaramba and Leona Gero. The next meeting of the club will be held Dec. 3rd, with Miss Mary Szczygiel.

Three residents of Montville took the oath of allegiance to the United States and were made citizens, at a session held Tuesday in the superior court at New London. Those from Montville are Michael Burlake, Wladyslaw Mazwikiewitz, Felix Gutkowsky.

Oxoboxo lodge A. F. & A. M., will meet this (Friday) evening.

John J. Doyle of Pequot was in New London Thursday doing jury duty in the New London county superior court.

Mrs. George Beckwith was a recent visitor at the home of Mrs. Medos Bonville at Uncasville.

The Montville Aces will hold basketball practice this (Friday) evening in the Community house, Uncasville.

Norwich Produce Market

Furnished by Bureau of Markets
Conn. Dept. of Agriculture

Trading on the farmers' market was principally in apples and potatoes with both continuing to move slow. Apples are very liberal with good quality generally prevailing. A few well graded offerings are selling at the high quotations but the bulk is sold at lower prices. Potatoes remain weak in both native and Maine stock. Western iceberg lettuce was firmer with slight advances, while cauliflower was easier and lower.

Live poultry was liberal and slow but dressed stock was showing more activity due to the coming holiday. Native turkey will be liberal for the holiday and generally of exceptionally good quality and prices will doubtless be considerably lower than those of last year.

THE FARMER'S TALK TO FARMERS

THE FARMER'S TALK TO FARMERS

WHERE PUBLIC SENTIMENT FALLS DOWN

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

Every week-day morning a 15-passenger school 'bus, driven by a 100-a-month chauffeur, passes my house on its way to pick up a pupil for the "rural high school" which a visionary school superintendent and a job-desiring architect recently bamboozled this already over-taxed and decadent rural town into bonding itself to erect.

Every week-day afternoon it tootles back to deliver said pupil to the parental front door. The distance between the two terminals is about two miles. Of course the 'bus picks up other youngsters in the course of its devious wanderings around the by-roads and lanes. It is usually packed unwholesomely and unsafely full when it arrives at the school mornings, and when it starts away afternoons.

The point is that every pupil attending that school is understood to be entitled to free carriage to and from whether the distance is two miles or two furlongs.

I can remember a time when the old-fashioned district schools functioned when my own daily trudge to the "little red school-house" amounted to more than two miles and when some of my eight and ten year old mates came from even farther away. One pair, brother and sister, lived more than three miles from the school-house on a side road which was little travelled and never "broken out" after winter snow-storms, yet won teacher's ornate "Reward of Merit" for the most nearly perfect record of attendance.

I do not think any of the parents regarded this sort of thing as a hardship. I know with absolute certainty that none of us youngsters considered it such. In fact, the deeper the snow and the bigger the drifts the more fun there was in "daring" each other into and under and through them.

Oh, of course our ears tingled and our mittens got soaking wet, and our boots leaked and occasionally a finger-tip got frozen. And we had to have a complete change into dry clothes when we got home and take big doses of hot herb tea and go to bed early.

Whereupon some one asks: "Aren't you glad that these 1930 children don't have to undergo the experiences you recall?"

Emphatically and vehemently, No! So far from being glad I am profoundly sorry that a sentimental society and a sap-headed parenthood are denying them the opportunity to develop their physical and mental powers in the only way such powers can be effectively developed.

viz: by the meeting and overcoming obstacles.

When an athlete is training for a race, he practices running, up-hill and down-hill, along the roads and across the fields, till he has developed his legs and his lungs so they will carry him to the winning tape.

When the boxer is training for a prize-fight he "punches the bag" for hours on hours and pits himself against the hardest-hitting "partners" he can secure for weeks of practice till his eyes and his muscles have become inured to the fury of actual combat.

But, when we have youngsters to train for the race of life—which is much more strenuous than any track course—or for the battle of life—which is vastly harsher than any prize-fight—we feed them on pap and "predigested" cereals, and coddle them in every way we can invent, and shield them from every bruise we can ward off, and, in short, carry them on our backs till the time comes to pitch them, head-first into a struggle they are too flabby-muscled to enter and too fine-stomached to enjoy and too emasculate to endure.

Life is neither a nursery nor a kindergarten. It is a battle in which only the fit can hope to hold their own, and in which the unfit are nothing better than "cannon-fodder." It calls for hardihood such as can only be attained through hardship.

Mollycoddling and pap-dispensing are the very poorest preparations that sentimental imbecility could devise for it.

The whole civilized world—so-called—seems to have gone woozy over the idea of "mass-production." Banks merge and factories combine and railroads consolidate and groceries make themselves into chains and Campbell of Montana sweeps a thousand farms into one 100,000 acre ranch and does his "farming" with gasoline and electricity.

The same general idea is operative in our educational methods. The tendency is to throw overboard, in the rural portions anyway, the old district schools and the teaching of "the three R's" in order to mass the children into regiments instead of squads and give them a more army like discipline, while at the same time opening the doors to more fads and frills.

The slogan is "bigger schools and better ones." That they are becoming bigger admits of no denial. Whether they are growing better is not so certain. While there are many who will vigorously defend the modern trends, there are some who regret the change from the almost individualized development which was possible in the little district schools to the regimented mass drill of the bigger ones.

Very few children are born with the same mental capacities. Each one is apt to have even from childhood, a more or less marked individuality. The ideal education would be that which recognized these innate trends and sought to give them the special training which would produce the most effective results. It would first find out the quality of the material before it and then endeavor to mold that material into shapes its own qualities indicated. It wouldn't try to make a cold chisel out of a lump of putty nor a poor lawyer out of what was meant to be a good carpenter.

The modern plan is to take 100 children with pretty nearly 100 different kinds of brains, form 'em into line and march 'em through certain pre-arranged drill movements which are assumed to be the most feasible for the average, though admittedly not the best adapted to any single one.

One lad with a genius for mathematics must be held back and checked in his natural development in order that another, to whom all figures are Chinese puzzles, may be given time to learn the difference between a decimal and a common divisor.

One girl with a natural aptitude for the all-important chemistry of the kitchen must take her turn at free-hand drawing, at which she will never become even a dabster, because that is prescribed for the class. And so on and so on.

Morever, they must not only be herded in school, they must be herded to and from it. They mustn't be required to find their own way, to hunt up short cuts and fascinating detours, to learn how to dodge traffic, to "shin" up tempting trees, to discover which "dear little doggies" they can pat on the head and which they had better leave severely alone.

The inevitable result is to discourage initiative, to discredit individuality, to magnify mediocrity, and to handicap the poor innocents by a sentimental anxiety to protect them from all the hardships which are the only roads to hardihood.

The teachers aren't to blame for it; no particular parents are to blame for it. But society, as a whole, is blameworthy. Our schools are what they are because public sentiment makes them such. If the prevailing public sentiment is based on a mushy sentimentality rather than a clear-eyed and cold-blooded reason, what can be expected?

I began by telling of one single 'bus which happens to pass my house. The other day, in the course of a 40-mile ride through wholly rural territory, I met or passed seven similar buses loaded with children returning from other schools. They are about the commonest sight on the country roads in my neighborhood.

In my particular country town where there were once 16 or 17 separate school-districts, each with its small schoolhouse, its ten or a dozen youngsters and its more or less motherly "school-ma'am," there are now, I am informed but four, and one of them a "union" district into which 13 or 14 have been merged. This latter has two separate costly modern buildings, one for the primary and one for the high school department, with a "professor" principal, a "faculty" of eight or ten teachers, and, as I may not, thus far, have made clear, two special buses for the behoof of pupils coming from the southwest and northeast, respectively.

It may be that all this mollycoddling will develop a superior race. But they say that the cat which is fed three times a day on salmon and cream, and has a fleece-lined bed behind the kitchen stove, is not usually as good a mouser as the one which has to catch its dinner before eating it.

And I have heard a story,—probably one made to order,—of the indignant father who was chiding his lazy son for flagrant indolence.

"When I was a boy," he declared, "my father made me do my chores, whether I wanted to or not."

"Huh," said young lazybones, "you must have had a heck of a dad!"

"He was a good deal better one than you've got," impulsively retorted the sire.

Which wasn't quite what he meant to say.

But it may have been pretty near the truth, for all that.

THE FARMER.

PRESTON

At the next grange meeting Nov. 25th there will be the election of officers. The Courtship of Miles Standish by Longfellow will be presented illustrated by tableaux.

The C. G. class of the Congregational Sunday school met at the church Saturday afternoon. Christmas stockings and scrapbook were made.

The Ladies' Bible class of the Baptist Sunday school was most enjoyably entertained at the home of Mrs. John Richardson, Tuesday afternoon. There was an attendance of nearly 40 including a number of visitors. The devotional service was in charge of the president, Mrs. Appleton Main. A patriotic program given consisted of readings, songs and a pageant directed by Rev. J. A. Smith. Pie, doughnuts, cheese and coffee were served by the hostess.

The Baptist Ladies' Aid society met at the church Thursday.

Russell Benjamin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Benjamin, is a patient at the Hartford hospital.

First Wild Geese

A number of flocks of wild geese were reported as being seen flying over this place Wednesday.

The C. E. society social is to be held Saturday evening next.

Mrs. Charles Whitney of Framingham, Mass., has been the guest of Rev. and Mrs. G. W. Clark at the Congregational parsonage. Mr. and Mrs. Clark motored to Framingham Thursday and had as their automobile guests Mrs. T. J. Lewis and Mrs. Charles Whitney.

GURLEYVILLE

Mrs. Dwight Hanks, Mrs. Dodge and Miss Finucane were Hartford visitors Saturday.

Mr. Von Deck, son of Rev. J. M. Von Deck, of South Coventry, was in this place Tuesday.

New shingles have arrived for shingling the roof on the south side of the church.

Someone with an automobile knocked the fence down on the curve just south of Mr. Walker's.

SOME OBSCURE CLUES THAT TELL TALES TO THE CRIME LABORATORY

By WALTER T. BROWN

CHICAGO, Nov. 20—(AP)—Dr. Ferdinand Watsek would never be confused with Philo Vance.

He looks not at all like Sherlock Holmes or other fictional detectives of scientific, logical and observatory expertness.

But, the painstaking, middle-aged Viennese in the studio smock is a top-notch detective.

Through him, Calvin Goddard, director of Chicago's scientific crime detection laboratory at Northwestern university was able to demonstrate his contention that European police investigators were trained and competent in all phases of the work.

William Vernon Harrison, rich Columbus, Ohio, man fell from the top floor of an exclusive Chicago club and was crushed to death on the pavement below.

To silence rumors and clear up the death, the family retained a law firm. It called upon the crime detection laboratory and Watsek was assigned to the case.

Watsek traveled over the room with a microscope. And here is what he found:

Finger prints on outside of horizontal window sill, traces of four fingers of the right hand and four of the left; palm prints of both hands on highly polished window frame work inside, vertical with floors; traces of a brownish sputum on wall below window sill outside; traces of leather on outside wall below window and the rug pushed back away from the window.

The scientist concluded that Harrison, becoming ill, had gone to the window for air. He had leaned out against the window sill, placing his hands against the vertical frames. Becoming dizzy, Harrison had slipped to the floor, pushing the rug back as he fell.

From a prone position he had reached to the outer side of the window sill and pulled himself up and out over the edge of the sill. Still somewhat dazed, Harrison had slid on out and subconsciously realized that unless he stopped the slide he would drop to the pavement.

Then he clutched the inside of the sill, making reverse finger prints from those outside he had made in pulling himself up from the floor.

But he slid too far. The leather traces on the outside wall told Watsek that he died accidentally, and the sputum analysis showed him to be ill. A suicide, or the victim of a shove would have left no leather traces on the wall.

The murder of Al Lingle, Chicago reporter, gave the assistant director of the crime laboratory, Dr. C. W. Muehlberger, toxicologist and chemist, his day as a scientific detective.

A pistol was found near the busy Michigan avenue corner where Lingle was killed. Beside it a silk glove.

Gangland left no tell-tale finger prints. Nor, reasoned the killer, could the gun be traced through the number on the barrel. It had been filed off.

However, a few hours after Lingle's death Muehlberger traced the gun to Frankie Foster, a dapper little gangster, known as a gunman.

The chemist reclaimed the number —364633. It had been sold to Foster, who was arrested in Los Angeles and charged with the crime.

"Steel has a crystalline structure very plain to read under the microscope. These crystals determine the strength of steel," Dr. Muehlberger said.

"Whenever a number is stamped upon steel, as in the case of a pistol barrel, the crystals beneath are disturbed and arranged into a pattern that resembles the number on the surface.

Filing away the surface does not disarrange the crystals below. By treating the metal with acid the softer surface around the stamped area was eaten away and the number appeared."

Muehlberger has two laboratories in the bureau. He alone enters one. There is no key but his.

After an experiment in it he can testify, without fear of contradiction, that no hands but his, no eye but his, no mind but his played on the subject of the experiment.

BLACK HILL

Poultry men of this vicinity enjoyed an informal gathering at Birchwood, the home of Thomas Moore, Friday evening. Dr. Lee of the Beacon Feed Co., Prof. Warner of Storrs college and County Agent Wing were present. The talks and discussion brought out many interesting facts valuable to poultry raisers.

Miss Ruth Moore of Boston was a week end visitor recently with her parents at Birchwood.

Elbridge Kinne was a guest Monday and Tuesday of his brother, John Kinne, of Rehoboth, Mass.

Visitors at the Kinne homestead Sunday were Mrs. May Alhouse and daughter, of Hartford, relatives of Mr. Kinne's deceased wife.

Mrs. H. B. Brown and daughter Helen and Miss Fanny Brown, motored to Worcester and Southboro, Mass., for a week end visit with relatives.

George Tules returned home last week from a trip to Maine where he went with a friend by automobile. Mr. Tules had lately finished a season's work in Pomfret.

Evening Of Cards

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Exley there was a lively gathering of friends and members of Plainfield grange last Tuesday evening. Thirteen tables of whist were played. Cake and coffee were served during a social hour that was much enjoyed.

Visitors at H. B. Brown's, Sunday, were Stanley Downs and Mr. Riley, of Bethany, Conn. Mrs. Clark Gallup and granddaughter, Myrtle, and Miss Flora Gallup of Moosup and Mr. Herbert Van Cleaf, of Sterling.

Shaeffer-Tules

News has been received here of the marriage in New York of Helen Tules, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tules and Fred Shaeffer. They are now making their home in Brooklyn, N. Y.

One walnut tree imported from Chile nearly sixty years ago started an industry that now spreads over 5,000 acres in Santa Barbara county, California.

Mr. Pincus was a boy of nineteen when he found himself in an engagement which developed into the battle of Fredericksburg. He was carried off the field, wounded, but not very much. Just a scratch, said the army doctors. They bound up his leg and young Pincus returned, after a brief interval, to duty. It was not until last summer that his leg bothered him. A doctor said that it was neuritis until an X-ray picture was taken.

UNION

The local schools were closed Tuesday, also Miss Helen J. Hutchins and Miss Mary A. Daley joined the group of teachers in the other towns under the supervision of Calvin Stanley, Pomfret, Woodstock and Eastford. In the morning, accompanied by Supervisor Stanley, the group motored to the towns under the supervision of Agent Floyd, and visited schools at Sterling, Oneco, Canterbury and Lisbon, during the day; studying the units of work in different schools. In the evening the teachers, under the supervision of both Agent Floyd and Agent Stanley, attended a meeting in Plainfield high school building at Central Village. Principal Welte and Prof. George Howe, of New Britain normal school, N. S. Light, state director of rural education, Russell F. Land, supervisor of nature study, and Agents Floyd and Stanley were present to discuss with the teachers, the various problems and observations centered around the visits made during the day.

The L. B. A. social, held at the town hall recently, was very enjoyable. There were seventy or more present, guests coming from Stafford, Enfield, and from the Massachusetts towns of Sturbridge, Southbridge and Longmeadow. After a bountiful supper, served by the hostesses, Miss Delia Heck, Mrs. Howard G. Barber and Mrs. H. R. Howard, community singing, led by Mrs. H. J. Tyler and Miss Mary Daley, with piano and violin, was much enjoyed. The children present, as well as adults, joined heartily in the merry songs. After the singing, a period full of interest was the trying out of games and stunts, many of these were used at the recreational meetings, held earlier in the fall at Andover and neighboring towns. These games are much enjoyed.

MARKET WAS STRONG TILL LAST HOUR WHEN SELLING CUT INTO THE GAINS

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Stocks were strong today until the last hour when selling became steady enough to pull the market down from its early highs. Net changes were largely negligible, small fractions in most of the active issues. Sales totaled 2,626,740 shares.

The late decline, largely accredited to profit-taking, marred a day of comfortable improvement in the financial markets. Wheat, again meeting farm board support, rose about a cent and corn was much improved. Bonds, although spotty, held reasonably firm. German 5 1-2s very active, showed a net advance.

Although the recurrence of bank closings in the south caused considerable informal comment, it had no effect marketwise.

Trading on the stock exchange, however, seemed to be largely a matter of professional buying and selling. The motor and accessory shares, for the third successive day, were taken in hand for an upward move, joined by the chemicals, utility, merchandising and the chain store issues. The demonstration in U. S. Steel, American Can, American Telephone, General Motors, and General Electric carried these and other leaders through their Saturday highs before the reaction set in. Rails were higher but quiet. Maximum gains ran as high as 5 points.

Extra dividends by two railroads and an announcement by International Harvester's management that that company would maintain its present rate on the common throughout 1931, were conspicuous among the day's scant list of news items. One of the extras was by Alabama Great Southern, which is a beneficiary of the Queen & Crescent's $50 excess payment.

The $50,000,000 drop in federal reserve brokers' loans in a week that had seen only one decline in the stock market, was quite in line with the recent trend of speculative credit. These loans have now declined for eight successive weeks, and their total deflation in that time has been $1,037,000,000. The outstanding volume of $2,185,000,000 at the close of the week ended Nov. 19 is, of course, another new low for the present series of figures which goes back to 1926.

The market's most active period was the first hour, from which point the advance progressed slowly but steadily until the appearance of selling in the utilities checked the rise. U. S. Steel pushed to 149, closing at 147 5-8, up 1-4. American Can and Westinghouse held the same amount of their moderate gains, while Radio and General Electric sagged by a similar fraction. American Telephone, after reaching 192 3-8, finished unchanged at 190 7-8. Consolidated Gas, Electric Power & Light, Allied Chemical and Sears Roebuck lost a point. National Biscuit, Chrysler and International Harvester were up 1. Bulova, a weak spot yesterday, rallied about 3, but yielded its gain.

The Bank of England's reserve position, despite withdrawals for France, was slightly stronger and sterling improved in sympathy. The Spanish peseta also firmed.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(AP)—While still harboring many soft spots, the tone of the bond market was considerably improved today. The continued rise of United States governments which are considered an accurate barometer of money rates, and improvement in the share market contributed to the firmer appearance.

Second and third grade issues lagged but were steadier as liquidation continued to wane. Foreign government loans were irregularly higher. The greatest portion of the activity in foreign loans centered in French 7s and German International 5 1-2s, which were strong.

The French 7s which have been very stable throughout all the unsettlement that disturbed the bond market in recent months, advanced 7-8 to 121, a new 1930 high, on a large turnover. The German loan rose 1-2 to close at 70 3-4, an advance of 1 1-4 from its low reached this week. Heavy buying orders were from investors attracted by the high yield. The market price is now nearly 20 points under the figure at which it was marketed here and abroad last June. Irish Free State 5s reached a new high for the year in a thin market but was 5-8 net lower at the close.

High grade investment issues—carrier obligations legal for savings banks whose standing has not been jeopardized by decreased earnings and some of the strongest utility bonds—were well bought.

American Telephone 5s of 1960, American Water Works & Electric 6s, were about 1-2 point higher. International Hydro Electric 6s scored 1 1-2. Ohio Public Service 7s "B" advanced 2 1-8. Postal Telegraph 5s dipped 2 points to a new low.

Pressure against railroad bonds which recently depressed many issues was diminished, to be supplanted by cautious buying. Baltimore & Ohio 7s gained 1 1-4 from its year's minimum. Chicago & Alton refunding 3s rallied 3 1-4 points. St. Paul bonds improved. Louisville & Nashville 4s, up more than a point, sold only a fraction under the best price of the year. Spokane International 5s broke nearly 8 points to 50 1-8.

High grade industrials presented a firm appearance but low grade issues continued downward. Stock privilege issues held within a narrow range despite the upward trend of stocks.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Sudden brisk purchasing, together with sharply higher prices, gave the corn trade a star role today. Quick broadening which was witnessed in the volume of corn market transactions, went hand in hand with news that Chairman Legge of the federal farm board advocated 12 1-2c a bushel increase of the U. S. import duty on corn. Besides, rough weather now overspreading the corn belt was unfavorable for completion of husking as well as for the movement of the new corn crop into distributing centers.

Closing quotations on corn were buoyant at virtually the day's topmost level, 2 1-2a3 1-8c a bushel higher than yesterday's finish. Wheat closed unsettled at 1-8a1 3-8c net advance, oats 3-8a1 1-4c up, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 7c.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(AP)—The Erie railroad has ordered 41,478 tons of rails for its 1931 requirements. The order was allocated 21,698 tons to the Carnegie Steel Co., 9,650 tons to the Illinois Steel Co., 3,200 tons to the Inland Steel Co., and 7,200 tons to the Bethlehem Steel Co.

Stockholders of the American Public Utilities Co. have approved the agreement to merge the company with the Midland United Co.

The weekly gold statement of the Federal Reserve bank of New York for the week ended Nov. 19 showed imports of $4,854,000 from Argentina, and $119,000 chiefly from other Latin-American countries. There were no exports and there was no net change in gold earmarked for foreign account.

Treasury Balance

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20—(AP)—Treasury receipts for Nov. 18 were $134,440,548.35; expenditures $124,553,787.21; balances $104,156,793.12.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(AP)—The curb market ran into fresh selling today, as leading shares rose to new high levels for the recovery which began ten days ago, and closing quotations showed a mixture of narrow gains and losses. Transactions totaled 575,300 shares, or only 400 less than yesterday's.

Electric Bond & Share shot up 2 points to 51, in response to its earnings statement, only to fall back to 48 5-8, where it was off 3-8. Niagara Hudson also lost a small fraction, and American Gas & Electric. Associated Gas "A" and Consolidated Gas of Baltimore, lost about a point. American Super Power, nevertheless, closed 3-4 higher.

A firm feature of the oils was Standard of Kentucky, which advanced more than 2 points on announcement of an extra dividend of 20 cents. Gulf closed up a fraction, but Cities Service eased slightly, and Humble and Vacuum lost about a point. Coppers eased further, as custom smelters offered the red metal as low as 10 1-2 cents a pound, or 1 1-2 cents under the larger producers' prices. Newmont and Noranda each lost nearly a point.

Bulova Watch preferred, which lost 4 3-4 points yesterday on failure of an investment house, rallied 5 today. Several of the industrials made fair headway in light trading. Mead Johnson gained 4 points, and Lehigh Coal & Navigation, Niles Bement Pond and U. S. Gypsum, gained a point or two. Aluminum Co. gained 2 1-2, then fell back 2. American Cyanamid "B," Diamond Match new and Ford, Ltd., closed slightly higher.

Investment trust and holding company issues in the main were steady. Selected Industries preferred sold off 2 to a new low.

Is there any happiness more thrilling than that of going through the Christmas period with a light heart and a heavy pocket book?

To have the ready cash to purchase worthwhile gifts for others—and to indulge in "extravagance" for ourselves, just for once,—isn't that a glorious feeling?

The secret is found in our Christmas Club

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

"Africa Speaks," the Columbia jungle romance which comes to the Warner Bros., Broadway theatre, double feature program starting Saturday for an engagement of 4 days, reveals these little people in their most wierdly intimate moments and indicates how they have solved the age-old ever-burning problem of how to differ between true love and passion.

According to Paul Hoefler who directed the filming of the picture in the heart of the black Congo, when a young man and a girl love each other they ask her father for permission to marry. If he consents, they seek consent of the chief. The chief gives them a long talk on the duties of a married couple—and unites them.

But not for good! The young people live together for a year. If at the end of that time, they decide that they have made a mistake they simply separate. If they are satisfied with each other and certain their affection will endure, they go back to the chief. He performs a mystic rite with them, says the director of "Africa Speaks," seals the bond—and they must live together for life.

The age when love and its disappointments are taken hard is the college age. It is around this theme that "College Lovers," the delightful First National comedy, which will be the associate feature attraction is constructed.

The story concerns a "dumb" but powerful football hero, played by Guinn (Big Boy) Williams, who takes the elopement of his girl with another fellow so hard that he is going to quit school—thus eliminating the dear old alma mater's football prospects.

Another Good-Will Store

The Good-Will Associated Stores, Inc., wish to advise the public of the fact that they are very thankful for their support and patronage and feel that it is entirely due to their support that they are in a position to expand as per their original program.

Their fifth branch is being opened at 2 East Main St., Rockville, Conn., on the 21st of November.

All their stores in Connecticut are going to celebrate this grand opening of another Good-Will store by giving the public unheard of values for a period of two weeks.

They feel it is their duty to do their bit to help bring prosperity to the country.

Their prices will be so low and their turnover so tremendous that they will be forced to buy and in that way the factory wheels will start rolling and unemployment will disappear.

Palace Theatre

The "Big Trail," which opens at the Palace Saturday for four days shows an accurate, truthful and authentic portrayal of a mighty surging wave of humanity that came from the east into the west a century ago. Obviously and quite expectedly there will be among the thousands who will see and hear this mighty Fox Movietone many who will question little incidents in it, so let it be said here and now that every occurrence in "The Big Trail," the most important picture ever produced, is based on authentic fact.

For example, "Breck Coleman," the leading male character, enacted by John Wayne, is a boy born on the trail who has lost his parents and who spends much of his time with the Indian tribes, by whom he is greatly respected. From the age of five he has been a wanderer, a fur trapper, scout and hunter.

His main reason for joining the wagon train as a scout is his admiration of "Ruth Cameron," a member of the pioneer band, played by Marguerite Churchill, and also because he feels that the murderers of his benefactor and friend are either with the wagon train or will catch up with it.

In addition to John Wayne and Marguerite Churchill, the cast which is made up of 93 actual speaking roles, features El Brendel, Tully Marshall, Tyrone Power and David Rollins. Over 20,000 extra players in addition to 725 Indians were employed in making this epochal Fox Movietone.

Today for the last times you will have a chance to see one of the strongest double feature bills, The Sea God, with Richard Arlen, and Extravagance with June Collyer, truly a bill you should see.

Friendly Five Shoes

The above photograph shows the new "Friendly Flier" which arrived in Norwich yesterday. This is one of the most unusual cars ever seen in this city, inasmuch as it is of special construction throughout. This car was built for the makers of "Friendly Five" shoes, the Jarman Shoe Co. of Nashville, Tennessee, by Glenn Curtiss, the well known designer and builder of aeroplanes. It is made of aeroplane construction and is exceedingly light. This car is making a coast to coast trip in the interest of "Friendly Five" shoes. The host of the "Friendly Flier" while in Norwich was Tongren's Shoe store, where "Friendly Five" shoes are now being sold.

One of the unusual features of this car is the broadcasting of a 30-minute program by electrical transcription. Francis Craig and his "Friendly Five" orchestra were heard throughout the streets of the city yesterday, as some of the newest music was put on the air. Not the least among the number of musical selections played was the new "Friendly Five" song, and before the program had been on very long, nearly everyone was whistling this catchy air.

Both the makers of "Friendly Five" shoes and their local dealer, Victor A. Tongren, are to be complimented on this splendid piece of equipment, and we hope that the "Friendly Flier" will entertain us again at an early date.

PLANS FOR NEW AERIAL ROUTE NORTH AND SOUTH AMERICA

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 20—(AP)—Plans to link North and South America by a new aerial route, including the longest regularly scheduled water flight in the world, were tentatively announced today by Pan-American Airways, Inc.

The new route would be from Miami and Havana to Cristobal, C. Z., by way of Kingston, Jamaica. The flight from Kingston to Cristobal, 630 miles, would be entirely over water.

The line is expected to open December 2 with a schedule of two flights a week. The flight is now made by way of Porto Cabezes, Nicaragua, over a route opened last spring by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

LIQUOR PLAN SUGGESTED BY PIERRE S. DUPONT

BRIDGEPORT, Nov. 20—(AP)—Corporation plan of liquor distribution, in which a state liquor commission appointed by the governor, shall control, and regulate the manufacture, sale, transportation and importation of intoxicating liquors within the state, was suggested as a method in the event that the 18th amendment is repealed, by Pierre S. DuPont, chairman of the executive committee of the National Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, during the closing luncheon of the tenth annual convention of Connecticut League of Women Voters this afternoon, at the Stratfield hotel here. The meeting was attended by 450 persons.

Scout Rovers Receive Message

In the Boy Scout bulletin which goes to every Boy Scout in Norwich each week, the Rovers receive a strange message in a strange language. It goes riptaba owndaba iverraba histaba eeawala, indfaba utoaba taaba coutsaba endquartershaba. Which means, according to Scout Chief Sellman, that the Rover Scouts will have another adventure in the near future.

Caddy's Reward

Until he left for South Bend, Ind., to see Notre Dame play Drake university, John Schneider, 19, above, of Cleveland, never had ridden on a train, or been more than 60 miles from his home, in Cleveland, although he is a railroad clerk. Schneider became acquainted with J. J. Bernet, president of the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad through caddying for him. Bernet gave him a job and a pass.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The Monumental Bronze Company, Bridgeport, Conn.

The Monumental Bronze company was organized in 1879, to manufacture white bronze monuments and statuary, specializing on large public monuments for war memorials. There is not a state in the Union without this type of memorial, from small pieces a few feet high to monuments 50 feet high.

During the last 20 years, a general brass bronze and aluminum foundry has been added for production work. During the World war this department was entirely taken over by the government to produce high class castings for the army and navy departments.

The latest of modern molding machines and labor saving devices have been added for high production work, which now include castings for the electrical trade, automobile, bolt hardware, typewriter parts, automatic machinery, paper machinery, rayon machinery, sanitation equipment screens, etc.

One of the latest developments has been the production of a special non-corrosive nickel bronze which is used almost exclusively by the kitchen equipment and cafeteria trade.

The company now occupies a large plant on Howard Ave., Bridgeport, and has general sales offices at 39 Cortland St., New York city.

The present officers are: E. N. Sperry, president; Ralph M. Sperry, vice president, treasurer and general manager; Richard F. Clancy, general superintendent; C. A. Baldwin, secretary.

JEWETT CITY

PATRICK WALLACE DIES SUDDENLY ON HIGHWAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Nov. 20.—Patrick Wallace, of Sylvandale, Lisbon, while taking a walk down the Preston road late Thursday afternoon, in company with Daniel Shea and John Carroll with whom he was talking, suddenly without warning, fell dead on the shoulder of the state road near Brewster's four corners.

Mr. Wallace, who had not been very strong of late, was in his usual health at noontime. The son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Martin Wallace, he was born in England a little less than 70 years ago. For about 50 years, the family has lived in Jewett City and Lisbon. He was a steady, likeable man, with a naturally genial and kindly disposition. He had many friends, with whom he delighted to talk over the old times when the Slater mill was a flourishing plant. Mr. Wallace for a long term of years was second hand in the spinning department of the Slater mill, where he was known as a master of his trade. Latterly, before retiring, he was employed for several years at the Aspinook plant.

He is survived by his wife, who was Miss Mary Fitzgerald, of Jewett City; also he has three sisters living, Mrs. Mary Alsop, of Lawrence, Mass.; Mrs. Joseph Noonan, of Chicopee Falls Mass.; Miss Margaret Wallace, of Lisbon, and three brothers, John, of Versailles, Henry and William, of Lisbon. His wife's aunt, Miss Katie Carroll, who is aged and infirm, is a member of his household, where she has always received the kindest care and attention.

Mr. Wallace was a member of Court Griswold Foresters of America, also of the Holy Name society of St. Mary's church.

Medical Examiner Dr. George H. Jennings was called and gave heart trouble as the cause of death.

Hourigan Brothers were given permission to remove the body to their rooms in the Finn block.

May Stock Tadpole Pond

Good old Tadpole pond may be listed as one of the local bodies of water which is to be stocked with fingerling bull-heads. The horned pout which already make this famous pond their home are not only a select but a time-honored species, with some doubt existing as to how the old-timers will receive the invasion of a strange breed. When the Norwich & Worcester railroad was built through the middle of this sizable lake, close to 100 years ago, the workmen caught mud pout by the bushel. Fifty years ago the village lads used to catch them in great quantities, but never over a half pound in weight. Of late, although less in numbers, they have increased in size, even to the extent that a Polish boy one evening last summer hooked an old whacker that weighed 2 pounds flat, the next day on Finn Bros.' scales. One could have inserted his gloved fist in that veteran's mouth. Low water and cold winters seem to make no inroads on these fish, which are surely tenacious of life. Men widening the culvert at Tadpole upper pond early one spring cut out more than a dozen great bull-heads that were frozen solid in cakes of mud and ice. Some who declared them to be still alive proved their claim when the ice was thawed in pails of cold water. That horned pout do not all go into the muddy bottom in winter is proven in the fact that ice fishermen have caught them in Tadpole while trying for pickerel with live shiners for bait. There is surely satisfaction in landing a handsome trout, or bringing a nice black bass to the gaff, but when it comes to a sensation that permits of no duplication, it is when one pulls on his black alder pole with all his might and hears the dull thud of a 2-pound Tadpole bull-head somewhere back in the grass. If one should be of the opinion that a fish makes no sound, just let him pass an angler's boat some night when there are a couple of dozen scooting around on the bottom; he will hear horned pout talk in plenty. And more, whoever has opportunity to eat a fine spring bull-head, fried in meal, at apple blossom time, will be convinced that it is a proper move by the fish and game commission to stock the ponds of the state with bull-heads. As a food fish they are unexcelled.

Coal is being offered by some local stores in 20-pound paper bags, which is believed to be the first time such small purchases were ever made available in Jewett City.

Those who believe that the only good rat is a dead one, are being asked to make provision for a Thanksgiving dinner for such loose rodents as may be around the place by calling at the Big Y grain store for a portion of free bait.

Day of Freak Weather

A peculiar as well as very unusual weather condition was recorded all through this section beginning at 10:30 Wednesday evening with a "pea soup" fog, which slowed traffic down to a walk and shut out visibility as concerning all objects more than 50 feet distant. All night this blanket neither lifted nor lessened, but with the mercury at 38 to 40. Just before sunrise, at which time there was no sign of frost, the temperature dropped sharply to 31. Within a few minutes the grass and roofs were as white as though a light snow had fallen, trees were transformed into a lacework of frost, while clotheslines waxed as large around as candles. Moreover, this heavy fog bank was locally distributed in sections. A man driving over from Voluntown passed into and out of the blanket three times in seven miles. The Tadpole pond area was clear at 7 a. m., while on Roode's plain visibility was 25 feet. Motor vehicle drivers who were on the road when the temperature changed were obliged to clear their windshields every few minutes. Then, at 8 a. m., up went the silver again to reach 50 at noon.

Breaks Collarbone

David Goodenough is confined at home again with a broken collarbone caused by a fall. This is the second time the same accident has happened to him.

Mrs. W. A. Broadfoot entertained the Ladies' society of the Congregational church at her home Thursday afternoon. The president, Mrs. Abraham Zegeer, presided. Reports were received of the Harvest supper and the supper served Wednesday evening. Plans were discussed for the bazaar in December. Mrs. W. H. Payne and Mrs. Earl S. Hiscox were appointed a committee on old-time new silver. The members who served were Mrs. W. H. Payne, Mrs. C. D. Wolf, Mrs. Fred Whalley and Mrs. Earl Hiscox.

Mrs. Anna Cummings, of Franklin, Conn., comes today (Friday) to spend the winter with her cousin, Miss M. A. Burdick.

Friday night is Neighborhood Night at Lisbon grange. Colchester, Bozrah and Brooklyn granges are to be represented. It is expected that reports will be heard from the National Grange.

Miss Adeline Jaskiewicz, not Glowacki, furnished piano music with Olga Zegeer at the O. E. S. banquet Thursday evening.

Miss Jessie Knapp, of Portland, Me., is a guest at Dr. and Mrs. G. H. Jennings'.

As has been Miss Dorothy Paul's custom each year, money to be used for Christmas cheer at Uncas-on-Thames will be received at her home on East Main street.

BERMAN-HARASKEWICZ GET ROAD CONTRACTS

(Special to The Bulletin)

COLCHESTER, Nov. 20—A largely attended special town meeting was held at grange hall at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon for the purpose of hearing and acting on the report of the town road repairs committee as to the preparation of specifications for the maintenance and repair of the highways of the town and the receipt of bids submitted under these specifications; also to see what action should be taken relative to the acceptance of any or all of the bids. At the October town meeting, the road repairs committee, Fred O. Brown, Chauncey G. Markham, D. Eugene M. Clifford, Hyman London, Edward T. Peck and Leon Broder, was empowered to confer with the selectmen in preparing the contract specifications, the time limit for submission of bids having expired November 10.

At Wednesday's meeting, Selectman Kramer reported that three bids had been received for the ensuing year's contract, as follows: Samuel Berman, repair of Colchester district roads, $4,300; Westchester district roads, $3,250; Walter Doubleday, Colchester roads, $1,450; Westchester district roads, $2,950; Joseph Haraskewicz, Westchester district roads $2,950. A motion was passed to award the contracts to the lowest bidders, Samuel Berman being the low bidder on the Colchester district roads while the other two bidders were tied on the Westchester road figure. Mr. Doubleday finally withdrew his bid letting the Westchester road contract go to Mr. Haraskewicz for $2950. The contract specifications require the application of a thousand yards of gravel in the Colchester district and a thousand yards of gravel in the Westchester district. The contractor is to furnish the gravel also is to furnish any lumber needed in repairing bridges. The contractors can use the town's road machinery, but it is to be returned to the town farm at the expiration of the year's contract in as good condition as when taken away. Snow removal, brush cutting and all ditch and grading work are included in the contracts.

By a vote of the meeting, the selectmen were empowered to inspect the roads to make sure that the repair work is done according to contract.

NEW LONDON PREPARES FOR EXTRA TRAIN SERVICE TO SAT. GAME

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 20.—The New Haven railroad is planning the transporting of one of the largest crowds of football fans that has attended a gridiron game in many years to the Yale bowl, at New Haven, Saturday. About 45 trains will be operated, to say nothing of the trains that will be run in two sections to assist in the transportation of the followers of Yale and Harvard. Of the large number of special trains 27 will be run over the New York division and 18 over the Shore Line division and through this city. Two of the 13 trains, however, will be operated Friday and will arrive here late in the afternoon, the first special being scheduled to reach New London about 3:20 o'clock and the second about 4:55. The other 11 trains will be operated Saturday forenoon. The first train is scheduled to arrive in New London about 10:10 and the other eight specials will follow every five or ten minutes. In order to provide the specials with every possible service, a tool car and an emergency engine will be held in readiness at Midway so that in the event of an accident, equipment and workers can be dispatched to the disabled train with the least possible delay.

The Portland Trawling company, owners of the trawler Petrel, which went ashore on Block Island Tuesday morning in a dense fog, may cause the boat to be salvaged. It is known that the trawler is much more seriously damaged than was at first believed and because of her position on the rocks a large expenditure will be necessary in order to float the fisherman and that amount, it is believed, would be more than the Petrel is worth. The owners will decide within a day or two however, whether the salvaging work will be started.

GOT THEIR TURKEYS EASY, BUT WILL FIND THEM COSTLY

As a result of their attempt to provide themselves with an abundance of turkeys for Thanksgiving, Raymond Earl, Raymond Earl, Jr., the elder Earl's daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Jordan and Thomas Thompson, all of Stonington, were arrested yesterday by State Police Officer Arthur Whitmarsh, charged with theft. They provided a surety on their respective bonds of $500 and will be tried in the Stonington town court tomorrow. The father, son and daughter, together went to the farm of Nelson Wheeler, of Stonington, yesterday and while the woman engaged the watchman on the farm in conversation, attracting his attention from the other men, the turkeys were stolen. The birds were put in an automobile and carried to a place of hiding. When the watchman discovered the theft of the turkeys a short time after the visitors had departed, complaint was made at the state police barracks.

HARDY HAD WOMAN FRIEND ON TRIP IN STOLEN MACHINE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 20.—The police are still without a positive clue which might lead to the arrest of Herbert Hardy, 72 Poquonoc road, Groton, who until last Sunday was employed at the service station of the Thompson Motor company, Bank street, and who is wanted on a charge of theft of an automobile owned by Frank Miller, of Waterbury. Although Hardy is known to have been seriously injured when the auto, an Oakland coupe, was damaged, for the driver sustained numerous and extensive lacerations, his whereabouts are as much of a mystery today as when he abandoned the automobile in a damaged condition Sunday forenoon. Hardy did not receive medical attention at a New London hospital, but it is believed that he is receiving treatment at a rooming house where he has secreted himself since the night of the accident. Mrs. Hardy, who had been visiting her mother in Chelsea, Mass., returned to Groton yesterday, but she is not occupying her apartment because of the absence of her husband, and is residing temporarily with friends on Thames street, the borough. Mrs. Hardy, when interviewed today by police, asserted that she was ignorant of the whereabouts of her husband and that she was not seeking to ascertain where he was in hiding. Hardy, it is said, after driving the automobile from the service station, to which he had a key, drove to New Haven and with a female companion. On the return trip to New London and when near Branford, Hardy lost control of the steering wheel, resulting in the car crashing through a fence. The auto was badly damaged and Hardy received numerous injuries, principally lacerations. He was taken in charge by the state police of Westbrook barracks and officers saw to it that the driver's wounds were dressed, but they did not hold Hardy for investigation. He was allowed to resume the trip to New London and upon his arrival on Washington street the car was abandoned. Hardy's vest was found in the auto and it partially told a tale of Hardy's injuries for the garment, front and back, was saturated with blood.

A probate certificate was filed at the office of the city clerk today transferring title in the house and lot on Lincoln avenue owned by the estate of Mary E. Burns, to Annie McMahon, Catherine Pincus, Gertrude A. McElroy and George H. McElroy.

Husband Leaves Hospital

Oak Strahan, 3 Thames street, Groton, employed as lineman by the Southern New England Telephone company, was discharged today at Lawrence Memorial hospital where he had been a patient many weeks. Strahan and his wife were injured on the Military highway, Groton, when the automobile which the husband was driving hit a tree. Mrs. Strahan, who also sustained injury, is still a patient at the hospital.

The Savings Bank of New London has filed notice for record at the office of the city clerk that it intends to bring foreclosure proceedings against Felix Mandler.

An autotruck owned by Chas. Zienecker, Swesboro, N. J., and driven by George Williams of Gibbsport, N. J., hit Margaret Daily, 3, residing with her parents at 29 Truman street, this forenoon. The child, who sustained only minor bruises, although knocked down, was hit when she ran from the sidewalk in front of the truck.

Overcome In Trench

Howard Beebe, 24, residing in Graniteville, Waterford, and employed by the Connecticut Power company, was overcome this morning while working in a trench on Montauk avenue. Beebe, who was taken to Lawrence Memorial hospital, is not in a serious condition and it is believed that he will be discharged within a few days.

SUSPECTED RUM-RUNNERS ARE BROUGHT INTO PORT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 20—Two suspected rum-runners, the speedboat, Choctowa, hailing from Bridgeport and the dragger Cinderella, one of a fleet of draggers operating on the north shore of Long Island for escallops, were seized, together with their crews last night when the boats were discovered being operated without lights. The Choctowa and the Cinderella were brought into port by the capturing boat, the U. S. coast guard destroyer Cummings. The crew of the two boats will be presented before customs officials within a day or two, or just as soon as the destroyer Cummings arrives in port, for the crew of that boat recently seized the speedboat Mohawk and it is desired that all three cases be presented at the same time. Both the Choctowa and Cinderella were seized when they were discovered running in the darkness without sidelights displayed and when the boats were about 20 miles south of Montauk Point. The Choctowa is a 75-footer and coast guard officials assert she is a sister craft of the speedboat Pueblos, captured recently with a cargo of about 400 cases of liquor. The Cummings will conclude her patrol duty late this afternoon and will return to the harbor and it is expected that the crew of the three boats will be given a hearing tomorrow afternoon or Saturday.

Mrs. George Whittlesey, of the Crocker house apartments, is in Chicago, to which city she was summoned this week by the serious illness of her daughter, Mrs. William A. Kendall.

LAW DEALS STERNLY WITH NEGLIGENT HUSBAND

Frank H. Redden, 361 Bank street, engaged in the insurance and real estate business, was in the police court this morning charged with non-support of his wife, Marguerite, and their infant daughter, Joan Louise Redden. Redden was represented by counsel. Judge Daniel M. Cronin found Redden guilty as charged and made it imperative that the insurance man provide adequately for the support and proper maintenance of his wife and child. Judge Cronin ordered Redden to contribute $15 weekly toward the support of Mrs. Redden and their baby and imposed a sentence of six months in jail in case of Redden's failure to comply with the court's mandate. Redden, through his counsel, filed notice of an appeal and was ordered to provide a surety on his bond of $700 to assure his being present when the case is heard at the next term of the superior court. The court also ordered Redden to post a bond of $700 as assurance that the amount of money stipulated to be paid to Mrs. Redden would be furnished her weekly until the case is tried in the higher court. A. M. Bonitz qualified as surety on both bonds. Redden was arrested last night by Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith on a warrant issued by Prosecuting Attorney Max Boyer following Mrs. Redden's complaint because of her husband's failure to properly provide for his wife and child.

Alexander Gianarcopelas, 107 Broad street, Groton, was charged with parking his automobile overtime on Bank street. The driver failed to appear in court and his bond of $2 was forfeited.

Mrs. Blanche Smith, 342 Montauk avenue; Mrs. Anthony Marshall and infant daughter, R. F. D., Groton; Frank Pisatia, 192 Pequot road, Groton; William Bolles, Uncasville; Geo. King, Blackhall; John Shipple, 34 River street, Cambridge, Mass., Edward Cwynar, Moosup, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today ordered the suspension of the drivers' licenses of Joseph Leahy, 39 Belden street; Joseph Benarich, U. S. coast guard destroyer Wilkes; Wilder L. Robbins, 31 Moore avenue; Joseph Karpovas, U. S. coast guard destroyer Ericcson and Leo L. Kelly, 46 West Coit street.

Inviting Burglars.

Two more store entrances were discovered unlocked by the police last night. Patrolman Louis Pine discovered the door unfastened at the confectionery store of John Nichols, 80 Broad street and Automobile Patrol Officer Clarence Martin found the door unlocked at the store of Jacob Lazarow, 69 Blackhall street.

HOLIDAY DINNER PLANNED FOR 100 NEEDY CHILDREN

The Chief Warrant and Warrant Officers' association have arranged for providing 100 children with a bounteous holiday dinner and entertainment Thanksgiving day. The juniors will gather at the B. P. Learned mission where Supt. Richard W. Mansfield will supervise the selection of children for the feast. The children will be taken in government trucks to the United States Coast Guard academy mess hall at 3 o'clock where a full course turkey dinner will be served them. Later in the afternoon the children will be guests of the association at one of the motion picture theatres.

Stolen Peerless Abandoned

Miss Catherine McQuillan, 234 Connecticut avenue, informed the police this evening that she had recovered her Peerless automobile that had been stolen, stating that the car was found abandoned at Harrison's Landing, Waterford, last night. The auto was stolen while parked on Green street last Tuesday night.

Lyme Boy Missing

J. T. Daniel, 14, is missing from his home in Lyme and the state police and New London police have been requested to lend their assistance in finding the youth. He is described as being about five feet, six inches in height and weighs about 150 pounds, has black hair, blue eyes and light complexion. The youth wore a blue sweater, long dark gray trousers and black and white sport shoes.

Were Riding Dead Head

Two men, who boarded a New Haven railroad train at Providence this afternoon and who were intoxicated, were arrested when the train arrived in New London for they did not possess cash to pay their fare. Special Agent John Anderson arrested the pair on complaint of the conductor. The men were locked up and will be in the police court tomorrow.

Burial In Vermont

The body of Napoleon Aubin, of 845 Bank street, who died Tuesday night at his home of a newly discovered malady known as the Hodgkins disease, which is a form of glandular malady, was forwarded to Burlington, Vt., today for funeral and burial.

J. J. Hope, of 40 Reed street, a patient in a sanatorium in the middle west, is reported to be gradually regaining his health.

In accordance with the vote recently passed at a town meeting of Groton, Hibbard N. Alexander, accountant of New London and former tax collector in this city, has been appointed auditor for the town, for a term of two years. Heretofore two auditors were elected at the annual town meeting.

An entertainment was given this evening in the vestry of the Poquonoc Baptist church by members of the C. E. society of the church. Two playlets, "Thanksgiving Ann" and "The Blue Cashmere Gown" were presented.

A meeting of Brainard lodge of Masons held in the temple, corner of Green and Starr streets, this evening was attended by a large number of members, together with visitors from Westerly.

A frame garage and a small automobile of the coupe type, owned by Robert Vescovi, 28 Willetts avenue, were destroyed by fire early today, from an unknown cause. The fire was discovered about 12:35 o'clock and a still alarm was sent to fire headquarters. Deputy Chief Calvin Edmunds and Ockford Hose company responded, but by the time the firemen arrived at the blaze the garage was a mass of flames and with no chance of being saved.

Mrs. Rosemary O. Anderson of the Mohican hotel left for New York this afternoon to attend the dinner meeting of the child welfare committee of America, Inc., at the home of Dr. Warren Smadbeck at 50 West 74th street, Saturday night. Mr. Anderson will represent Connecticut at the dinner.

WHEN CHILDREN CRY

CHILDREN often cry for no apparent reason. Many times we can't guess what is wrong. The crying may mean a touch of colic; the little bowels may be sluggish—or some other upset. It may mean any of the common little ailments that children suffer. To bring quick comfort to your little one, give a few drops of Castoria. Most upsets of children are soon soothed away by this pleasant-tasting remedy that children all love.

In five million modern homes, Castoria is a mother's first thought when a child is out of sorts, feverish, cross, doesn't eat right or sleep right. When bad breath, coated tongue, or languor tells of constipation. These five million wise mothers know that children should never be given stronger medicines meant for the fully developed systems of grown-ups. Castoria is gentle—safe, yet always thorough and effective for a child of any age. It may be given to the tiniest infant for any little upset. When buying, look for the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher on wrapper.

WESTERLY

TO ATTEND CONFERENCE OF BUSINESS EXECUTIVES

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Nov. 20.— Representative Clifford W. Campbell, Water Commissioners Lewis Stanton and Farquhar Smith, George B. Utter, Rogers E. Trainer, secretary of the Westerly chamber of commerce, left Westerly Thursday noon on the Mayflower express for Boston, where at the Statler hotel they will attend the fourth annual conference of the New England council of business executives. On earlier trains went Chamber President Dr. John Champlin, Sr., Frank A. Sullivan, a member of the council executive committee and Henry L. Burdick.

Rehearsals, progressing for the amateur production of the play "Lightning" to be staged by members of the Westerly Players club under the direction of George P. Chapman, have continued the past weeks. The presentation, to be made for the benefit of the Westerly chapter of the American Red Cross drive, will include well known local talent. American Legion hall on Main street has been used for rehearsal purposes but on Wednesday night, when a regular meeting was being held by Harold W. Merrill post, No. 16, American Legion, the rooms of the Westerly Square and Compass club, No. 176, National League of Masonic clubs, in the Potter-Langworthy block on High street were used.

"The Evolution of Thanksgiving" will be the subject of the sermon to be delivered by Rev. Harvey H. Conklin, pastor of the Grace Methodist Episcopal church, at the special union Thanksgiving services to be held on next Wednesday evening at 7:30 at the Broad Street Christian church, under arrangements made by the Westerly Pastors' association, Rev. Arnt L. Schoning, president.

Little Rhody council, No. 30, Sons and Daughters of Liberty, of Westerly, will be the specially invited guests to attend services next Sunday evening at Grace Methodist Episcopal church when the pastor, Rev. Harvey H. Conklin will have for his sermon subject, Christian Liberty. Smith, guards, and Past Commanders Arthur J. Card and Arthur E. Thompson, members of Narragansett commandery, No. 27, K. T., of Westerly, were New London visitors on Thursday night when they attended the annual inspection of Palestine commandery, No. 6, K. T., of New London, at its asylum, Brainerd temple.

Frank Puomi, residing in that section of Bradford located in the town of Charlestown, R. I., has received summons to appear in this Friday's session of third district court, charged with being the owner and driver of the Dodge touring car which collided with the Packard car owned and driven by Harry L. Bolles of Westerly on last Friday night in Bradford. The Bolles auto was reported as being operated between the Pawcatuck river bridge and the railroad crossing when the car driven by the accused side-swiped the auto occupied by Mr. Bolles and wife. The Dodge was reported as proceeding without stopping. No one was injured but the Packard auto sustained damages in having a left front fender damaged, a left rear fender badly crumpled and left rear hub cap torn off and body dented in damages estimated at over $100. Driver Bolles reported the accident to Westerly Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown at the Westerly police station and the court summons for Puomi followed.

GREENEVILLE

JUDGE PETTIS IS SPEAKER BEFORE ST. ANDREW'S MEN

The December meeting of the Men's club of St. Andrew's Episcopal church was held in the guild room of the church with a large attendance present. The meeting was opened with President Mr. Lockhart presiding. Vocal solos, elocutionists and violin solos furnished the entertainment for the evening. The speaker of the evening was Judge H. N. Pettis who, as on several occasions in the past, gave a very interesting and inspiring address to the men on the characteristics of Connecticut. Following the business meeting a luncheon was served by the members of the entertainment committee. A very enjoyable night was spent by all.

Jacob Goldblatt has returned to his home on Central avenue, after spending a few days at the home of his aunt at Worcester.

Miss Delia Shea and John O'Shea have returned to their home at Jewett City, after spending a few days as the guests of their cousin, Mrs. Michael Shea, on North Main street.

Mrs. William McDopp has returned to her home at Providence, after spending a few days with relatives on Boswell avenue.

A very delicious and appetizing supper was served by the members of the Ladies' guild of St. Andrew's Episcopal church Thursday evening in the guild room of the church with nearly 200 present. The tables were very prettily decorated with streamers of crepe paper artistically placed through the centers of the table with lighted candles in their proper places, giving the room the atmosphere of the season. The supper menu consisted of baked beans, salad, rolls, pickles, cold meat, cake and coffee. Following the supper, a Christmas sale of handmade fancy work was held. Mrs. Anthony J. Bernard was chairman of the successful affair and she was ably assisted by Mrs. Charles Erwin, Mrs William A. Taft, Mrs. William Winterbottom and Mrs. Edward R. Risley. Mrs. Charles C. Perry had charge of the tables. The following were waitresses, namely: Mrs. William Shaw, Mrs. Arthur Addie, Mrs. James Johnson, Mrs. Howard Adams, Mrs. Schofield, Mrs. Scoville, Mrs. Richard Seed, Mrs. Ebberhart, Miss Edna Wallace, Miss Ruth Donahue, Miss Marjorie Finlayson, Mrs. Olin, Miss Martha Campbell and Mrs. Tefft. Mrs. Banfield, Mrs. Lathrop and Mrs. A. Erosofske had charge of the supply table. Mrs. Howard Adams and Mrs. Risley were in charge of the candy booth. The apron and fancy table was in charge of Mrs. John Hall, Mrs. Alex Finlayson, Mrs. Howard Gordon, Mrs. Prodell and Mrs. E. J. Norris. Miss Dorothy Winterbottom had charge of the grab bag. Mrs. William A. Taft had charge of the sale of tickets at the door.

COMMITTEE WILL REPORT ON SAFETY OF SIGN

Appointment of a committee of four builders to consider the safety of a metal sign on the roof of the building at 115 Main street, owned by Mrs. Tessie Alexander, has been made by Fire Marshal Henry R. Taft after several complaints about the sign had been received by him.

The sign was erected about six years ago by the Joseph Fine company of New London, which had a store in this building at that time. It is constructed of angle-iron and is covered with sheet metal. In size it is 35 feet long and 11 feet high, and the question has been raised whether this is now in in safe condition on top of the building.

The committee consists of Paul H. Zahn, Patrick F. Sweeney, William S. Spencer and Paul Zachae. They, together with the chief, inspected the sign Thursday morning. An opinion will be returned to the chief within a few days.

WILL CONDUCT DEDICATION OF MASONIC TEMPLE

Members of the Masonic fraternity of this city and of all the lodges in the eighth district, to which invitations have been sent, will be present in large numbers this (Friday) evening at the Masonic temple on Washington street for the dedication of the temple by Most Worshipful Grand Master Elbert L. Darbie of Danielson and his associate grand lodge officers.

The dedication ceremonies are to take place at 7:30 and will be preceded by a supper at 6:30, the entire programme being one at which all Master Masons will be welcome, whether members of local lodges or not.

Colorado's 1930 sugar beet crop has been estimated at 2,144,000 tons, the greatest yield to date, with a value of $13,000,000.

BARN, 13 COWS AND 30 TONS OF HAY BURNED IN COLCHESTER; $6,000 LOSS

(Special to The Bulletin)

COLCHESTER, Nov. 20.—Fire of undetermined origin, about 7:30 o'clock this evening, caused estimated loss of $6,000 when a large dairy barn with 13 head of cows, a quantity of grain and about 30 tons of hay was burned to the ground on the farm of Dymetro Krop in the Chestnut Hill section of town. The fire had gained considerable headway when discovered and due to a small supply of water it was with difficulty that the house, summer kitchen, woodsheds and horse barns were saved.

Mr. and Mrs. Krop were in the house shelling corn while their little boy was undressing in an adjoining room preparatory to going to bed, when the boy happened to look out of the window and saw the flames shooting out of the cow barn. Hearing the boy's cry, the father rushed from the house and opened the barn door, hoping to enter and get out the 13 cows, but the flames had gained such headway that it was impossible to go into the building. Two horses in another barn nearby were saved.

A call was sent to the Colchester fire department and Chief Harold Brown and squad of men reached the scene in record time. Finding the house and an adjoining building used as a summer kitchen in great danger of catching fire from the burning barn the firemen and several of the neighbors set to work wetting down the walls and roofs of these buildings. There being no water at the house it was necessary to carry it in milk cans and pails from a small ice pond nearly a half mile distant. Charles Emmons, a sailor on furlough staying at the home of one of Mr. Krop's neighbors, narrowly escaped serious injury when he fell from the roof of the house, landing feet first in an empty barrel and fell over, hitting his chest against the edges of a big wooden tub. Working feverishly, the firemen succeeded in keeping the fire from spreading to the house and adjoining buildings, and at a late hour tonight the large pile of hay was still ablaze, but was under control.

Two rows of charred carcasses was all that remained of the 13 cows, one of which Mr. Krop said was about six years old, one about a year old, while the rest averaged three to four years of age. The loss on the cows was estimated at about $2,000 and the loss on the barn, hay and grain at $4,000, which, it is understood, is partially covered by insurance. Mr. Krop was warm in his praise for the members of the local fire company through whose strenuous efforts the house and adjoining buildings were saved.

WOMAN FINED FOR STRIKING HER NEIGHBOR

Found guilty of breach of the peace, Mrs. Christina Kirkup of Mt. Pleasant street, was fined $10 and costs in the city court Thursday morning. She was accused of striking Mrs. Frances Bostick last week, and the case had been continued in the court until Thursday morning. Mrs. Bostick, who is a neighbor of the Kirkup woman, claimed that the latter hit her with an iron bar and split her head open. Mrs. Kirkup admitted striking the Bostick woman but claimed that she used a piece of wood and not an iron bar. Eight stitches were required to close the cut on the woman's head, one of her fingers was injured and she was bruised about the back. Mrs. Bostick implicated Mr. Kirkup in the attack and he was also arrested but the charge against him was nolled. A neighborhood squabble was the cause of the trouble.

HIT PEDDLER'S WAGON, RECKLESS DRIVING CHARGE

Charged with reckless driving Albert J. Bryant, 33, of Taftville, was presented in the city court Thursday morning, but, as a state's witness was unable to be present because of injuries, the case was continued until next Wednesday. Bryant's machine, it is said, struck a fruit peddler's wagon on Boswell avenue, near Seventh street, Wednesday morning, throwing the peddler, named Hankin, to the street, and damagin the wagon. Bryant is said to have given the peddler a false registration number, as the registration number of his. Bryant's car, and to have then driven away. A bystander, however, secured the correct number and turned it over to the police, who, upon checking it up, learned that it had been issued for Bryant's machine. He was arrested by Constable Louis A Paquette.

Will Speak at Synagogue

The speaker for the service this (Friday) evening at the Community synagogue on Church street is to be Rabbi Ralph Simon of New York, who is also expected to speak at the open forum which will be held in the social rooms after the services.

TAFTVILLE

Mrs. Daniel Sweetser of Haverhill, Mass., is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Grant and family of the Old Canterbury turnpike.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Johnson of Baltic road have moved to a house in Baltic.

Charles Volkman and his daughter, Miss Annie Volkman, have returned to their home on Norwich avenue after spending several days in Portsmouth, N. H., where they were guests of Mr. Volkman's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Volkman.

A Boston paper notes that Curtis A. Hedler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gustave Hedler of Terrace avenue, is noted among the first ten students in the freshman class of Worcester Polytechnic Institute in the strength tests conducted by the physical education department. His score was 784.

Among those attending the American Legion and Legion auxiliary installation ceremonies at Oxford, Mass., this week were Miss Aurette Fournier of Providence street, Mrs. Robert J. Gelino of Blissville and Victor Fontaine, Jr., of Upper Merchants avenue.

With golf fast becoming a popular pastime in the village the standing committee of the Taftville Congregational church is having its problems Somebody teed off from the rise in the big lot north of North B street and the ball made a hole in one, going through one of the big windows on the west side of the church where it was found in the middle of the vestry floor. During the season the church windows are usually the victims of baseballs, and it has been necessary in some cases to have a constable assist in controlling youthful enthusiasts about the sacred property. The committee has cried "fore" and intends to take every step to find the offender. The fact that the window of the village church has been smashed by a golf ball is evidence of the changing fads and fashions of the times.

Mrs. Thomas Perkins Sears of North Fifth avenue entertained the members of the American Legion auxiliary at her home Wednesday evening, at which time the newly elected officers of the local organization were installed. Mrs. Sears acting as past department vice president acting as the installing officer. Miss Aurette Fournier, the retiring president was presented with a past president's badge. Among those attending was Mrs. Grace McNally of Poquonoc Bridge. A social hour followed and delicious refreshments were served by the hostess.

George H. Young of Newton, Mass., a former resident of North Third avenue, has been a recent visitor in town.

The members of the Overseers and Foremens' club are making plans to serve a Thanksgiving dinner to some of the children of the village.

The members of the Ladies' Benevolent society of the Taftville Congregational church met Wednesday afternoon at the church parlors, each member bringing a contribution of fruit or vegetables which were later distributed to various families of the village. Mrs. Richard B. Snow presided at the business meeting after which there was a social session, refreshments being served.

LEWIS FINISHES FIRST IN WEST SIDE PINOCHLE CLUB

NORWICH TOWN

EVERY-MEMBER CANVASS FOR FIRST CONG. CHURCH

The following letter is in circulation among the members of the parish this week:

To the friends of the First Congregational church of Norwich.

Greeting: The autumn season is again upon us. To us it is the season of preparation for another year's work, in the life of our church. A note from our pastor follows:

Although some of you are unknown to me, I want to take the opportunity, during this Every-Member canvass to extend to you my heartiest greetings. Later on, when time permits and the rush of events is over, I shall call and make the personal contact that a pastor should make with his people. Until then, these words must stand in lieu of the other. I wish also to speak a word in encouragement of this financial drive.

The church needs the willing cooperation of all, if it is to do its work in the community and at large. And though it has working for its advancement loyal men and women, who form its committees and its membership, yet there is need for more and still more to lend a hand. And I ask at this time that our young people may feel the call to service. Sooner or later, the support and the carrying on of the church must and will devolve upon them. And now is the accepted time to make a hand and heart offering. And so shall our work be blessed our financial committee find a ready response to cheer them on in their labors, the harvest prove plentiful, and the blessing bountiful in return.

Sincerely your pastor,
WILFRED M. WILTON.

During the past year our society has lost through death some of our most helpful members. Staunch and loyal, always, to Him whom they were glad to own as Lord and Master, they were an inspiration to us all. We shall miss their counsel greatly.

During the year, the necessary repairs, which a large property like our church buildings, needs, have been attended to and added to this, the floor to the vestry has been newly covered with linoleum, and the walls and woodwork are now being painted.

Efforts have been made to keep the budget for 1931 within the limits of the last few years. Our benevolent projects for the year will be practically the same as last year. It is very heartening indeed to find the various organized units of our society working so harmoniously together to attain this goal.

Church societies are similar to nearly all other organized bodies or fraternities, in that, while they distribute large sums for benevolent purposes, they thereby incur large items of expense. While many organizations have stated amounts of assessments, the church relies largely on contributions from its members and friends. Our church is fortunate in that a number of our former members have left differing amounts to help in keeping our society a live institution. It is earnestly hoped that many who have not taken out pledge cards, will do so this year.

The committee in charge of the Every-Member canvass is asking the members and friends of our church to bring their pledge cards with them to the church service Nov. 23, and place them on the plate as the collectors take the morning offering. If you cannot attend this service, kindly send your pledge card by mail to Henry Frazier, Norwich Town, Conn., some time during the following week. Those unable to do this will be called upon during the afternoon of Nov. 30.

"But whoso hath this world's goods, and seeth his brother have need, and shutteth up his bowels of compassion from him, how dwelleth the love of God in him?"

"My little children, let us not love in word, neither in tongue. But in deed and in truth." I John 4:17-18.

Minister.

Miss Elaine Norris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Norris, was included in the large gathering from Norwich Town at the supper Monday evening at the Central Baptist church, Norwich.

Mr. and Mrs. Lynde Stanley Gay (Mary Kilkenny) have returned from their wedding trip to New York and New Jersey and are located at their home, 8 Julian terrace.

Mrs. Edwin Lathrop returned recently to her home at Norwich Town, following two weeks' visit among relatives in Hartford and vicinity. When Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Fox, of Wethersfield, recently spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Lathrop, of Fitchville, Mr. Lathrop's mother returned to Wethersfield with them. While there she was the guest for several days of Mr. Fox's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Edward G. Fox. Later, Mrs. Lathrop visited for more than a week with her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. George MacAllister, of Hartford. During her stay there Mrs. Lathrop called on a former Norwich Town resident, Mrs. Orrin F. Price.

Home From Rochester

Mrs. John Olsen, of Norwich Town, in company with others from Norwich grange, Patrons of Husbandry, No. 172, Mrs. Louis Russell and her mother, Mrs. William H. Beetham, also Lawrence Spencer, returned recently from an automobile trip of over 1,200 miles. The objective was Rochester, N. Y., where last Friday afternoon they, with hundreds of other grangers, were given the seventh degree while attending the 64th annual session of the National Grange in the new Masonic temple recently dedicated at Rochester. Mrs. Olsen and friends left Norwich Thursday morning, Nov. 13 arriving home late Monday evening the 17th. A visit was made to Niagara Falls during the trip. When returning home the journey was by way of Buffalo, through the Five Finger lakes section to Syracuse, Albany, down the Hudson river and over the Storm King highway and Bear Mountain bridge by way of Danbury and New Haven, to Norwich.

MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER FOR MISS ESTELLE OLSSON

A delightful miscellaneous shower was held Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Axel Bjorck, of No. 15 14th street, in honor of Miss Estelle Olsson of No. 155 Roosevelt avenue. There were twelve present and Miss Olsson received a number of pretty and useful gifts. During the evening refreshments were served by Mrs. Bjork assisted by Mrs. H. Anderson. Those present were Mrs. Roger Jensen, Mrs. Arthur Olssen, Mrs. Jacob Gallup, Miss Dorothy Pearson, Ida Peterson, Misses Gladys and Ruth Erickson, Miss Elizabeth Haden, Miss Fanny Anderson, Mrs. Axel Bjorck, Mrs. H. Anderson and Miss Estelle Olsson.

PILES

Ended Without Cutting or Salves

Thousands of Pile sufferers have learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with an internal medicine. Neither salves or cutting remove the cause.

Bad circulation of the blood in the lower bowel causes piles. The veins are flabby, the bowel walls weak—the parts almost dead. To end Piles an internal medicine must be used to stimulate the circulation and strengthen the affected parts.

Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was the first to discover a real internal Pile remedy. He called his prescription HEM-ROID, and prescribed it for 1,000 patients with the marvelous record of success in 960 cases, and then decided every Pile sufferer should be able to get HEM-ROID from their own druggist with a rigid money-back guarantee.

Dr. Leonhardt's prescription has a wonderful record of success right in this city and Lee and Osgood invites every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID and guarantees to refund the purchase price if it does not end all Pile misery.

BANKERS WANT SHIPPEE RETAINED AS COMMISSIONER

Retention of Lester E. Shippee as bank commissioner of Connecticut was favored by the Connecticut State Bank and Trust company association at the annual meeting in New Haven Wednesday. Resolutions indorsing the efficient administration of the state banking department affairs for the past several years were adopted. Speakers paid tribute to the manner in which the work of the department has been done.

Allen H. Newton, retiring president, presided and the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Robert D. Goddard of Bridgeport, City Bank & Trust company; vice president, Howard H. Warner of Central National Bank of Middletown; treasurer, W. Brues of Darien Trust company; secretary, Walter Goddard of Stratford Trust company. It was the largest attended meeting the association has held.

Bank Commissioner Shippee, in his address, said the "tendency towards large scale operations, both within and without banking, has brought us to the eve of a new era of banking in which we all may be affected by new laws and new circumstances beyond our control." He added: "The best banking brains of this country are earnestly seeking to preserve what is best in our present banking system and to chart a safe course for the future."

The speaker cited a number of the proposed changes and the probable effect of them. He spoke briefly on chain banking. Concerning banking in Connecticut, the commissioner stated that the past decade has witnessed great strides in banking. "Connecticut has an enviable banking record and a reputation for conservatism and adherence to sound banking principles," he said. "This standing is deserved and has been well earned, but it does not mean that there are no flaws in our methods and banking laws." The commissioner suggested strengthening of laws and correcting practices to place banking on a still higher plane.

"There should be team work and cooperation on a large scale in the adoption of standard practices, reasonable charges and interest rates which enable banks to operate on a normal safe margin of profit," he said.

"There is no mystery in the process by which banks earn sufficient income to meet expenses and pay dividends. What the bank has to sell, that is, credit and services, must yield a return greater than the sum of the interest it pays on deposits, the cost of labor, and the expense of recurring overhead items."

Concluding his remarks, Bank Commissioner Shippee urged constructive thought and cooperation on the part of the bankers. He thanked the bankers for their cooperation during his ten years in the banking department of the state.

GREAT TURNOUT OF NORWICH ELKS TO GREET VISITING DISTRICT DEPUTY

Norwich lodge of Elks, No. 430, gave Dr. Henry Martin of New Britain lodge, No. 957, district deputy grand exalted ruler, the greeting of a crowded lodge room at the Elks home Thursday night when he made his official visitation, accompanied by an imposing suite. Close to 400 were in the lodge room when Exalted Ruler James T. Egan called the meeting to order and extended greetings to District Deputy Martin, who had for grand esquire O. Lambert Lord, P. E. R., Rockville lodge, No. 1359, a past district deputy; H. O. Clough, exalted ruler, Rockville lodge; J. P. Cameron, esteemed leading knight, Rockville lodge; Herbert R. Coffin, trustee, Rockville lodge; George W. Hickey, exalted ruler, Willimantic lodge, No. 1311; O. O. Butler, P. E. R., New Britain lodge; M. Walter Flynn, exalted ruler, Westerly lodge, No. 678; Frank M. Bedard, exalted ruler; W. W Wheatley, trustee, and George P Berris, tyler, all of Putnam lodge, No 574.

Two candidates were initiated by the officers of Norwich lodge in full form which won the approbation of the official visitors, a number of whom made brief addresses after District Deputy Martin had spoken in an interesting way of the principles and progress of Elkdom in the state and nation.

Announcement was made of the annual Elks memorial Sunday on Dec. 7, for which Rev. J. H. King of New Milford, a former Norwich boy, is to make the memorial address and the musical programme will include the Philharmonic quartette and Malone's orchestra.

After the lodge meeting a social session was held in the hall, at which refreshments were served and there was a vaudeville programme, with numbers by Ronnie and Van, humorists; Geraldine I. Havens, soloist; Jack McCloud, banjoist; and Mae Wilson, pianist. This part of the evening was in charge of the entertainment committee, Frederick G. Thumm, chairman; Joseph Rozanski, secretary; J. Lincoln Crawford, secretary; Joseph Farrell, Saul Budnick, Earl Taggart, Oscar Silverman.

Before the lodge meeting there was dinner at Norwich Inn for the visiting officers and the officers of the lodge, covers being laid for 20.

Rheumatism Goes
Swollen Joints Vanish

How To End Rheumatism in Less Than a Week

If you suffer from torturing rheumatic pains, sore muscles or stiff inflammed joints, it's because your system is full of the dangerous poisons that cause rheumatism and make thousands helpless. What you need is RU-MA and need it right now.

RU-MA acts on the blood, stomach, kidneys and liver, and drives the dangerous rheumatic poisons from the system through the natural channels of elimination—it eases pain the first day.

You must use an internal medicine to free the joints and muscles of crippling stiffness soreness and torturing pain. That's why RU-MA succeeds while external remedies and pain deadening drugs give only temporary relief.

Lee & Osgood says no matter what kind of rheumatism you have or how long you have suffered, try RU-MA—it must completely end all rheumatic agony or you get your money back.

HOOVER FOR SINKING FUND AHEAD OF TAX REDUCTION

Chief Executive is Opposed to Any Encroachment Upon the Statutory Provisions of the Sinking Fund to Enable Continuance of the One Per Cent Tax Reduction—Considers It Unsound Finance to Make Any Attempt to Alter Laws Applying to the Public Debt, Which Has Been Reduced From $26,000,000,000 to $16,000,000,000 Since 1920

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21— (AP) — President Hoover announced today that the administration was opposed to any encroachment upon the statutory provisions of the sinking fund to enable the government to continue the one per cent tax reduction.

The president said the sinking fund now amounted to approximately $430,000,000 a year and that other allocations applied on the debt brought the total payment to about $1,[illegible] annually.

He said the sums other than those made mandatory by the statutory provisions might be used to help the government in a financial way but that he believed it unsound finance to make any attempt to alter the laws applying to the public debt.

Suggestions have been made that by suspending the operation of the sinking fund the government would have enough money to enable it to continue into 1930 the one per cent reduction granted on incomes in 1929.

It had been pointed out that the public debt which at its peak was approximately $26,000,000,000 had been reduced to $16,000,000,000 since 1920 and that the government was far ahead of the statutory sinking fund requirements.

The treasury yesterday let it be known that it would not suggest suspension of the sinking fund to congress, believing that there was not sufficient cause for such action.

The president said:

"The administration is opposed to any encroachment on the statutory provisions for retirement of the public debt. The sinking fund now amounts to something over $430,000,000 a year.

"Hitherto we have allocated various funds, such as surplus of foreign debt payments, to retirement over and above the statutory provisions which excess sums would, of course, be available for current use without encroachment upon the satutory requirements. It is sound government finance to hold to the sinking fund provisions of the public debt."

NORTHWEST COMMUNITIES STILL ISOLATED BY STORM

CHICAGO, Nov. 21— (AP) — The northwest plains struggled to restore communication and order today in the regions isolated by snow and wind.

As the storm, in a calmer mood, moved into Minnesota and Wisconsin, the Dakotas and western Nebraska found themselves snow-bound, communication lines torn down by the wind and transportation impossible in many sections.

Twenty-four hours after the peak of the storm, many communities had not been heard from, but the reports that had trickled through the crippled communication lines told of two deaths, trains delayed, roads blocked by huge drifts and thousands of poles and miles of wire leveled by the sudden blast.

Temperatures throughout the middle-west were lower but the snow was confined mainly to the upper Great Lakes region.

INSTALLED AS PRESIDENT OF FORDHAM UNIVERSITY

NEW YORK, Nov. 21—(AP)—In a colorful ceremony before leaders of the Catholic church and representatives of the nation's institutions of higher learning the Rev. Aloysius J. Hogan was installed today as president of Fordham university.

The 38-year-old university president, one of the youngest in the country, accepted the post in an address outlining his educational philosophy as an inheritance from the wise men of ancient Ireland and the system formulated by St. Ignatius of Loyola, founder of the Society of Jesus.

Patrick Cardinal Hayes, honorary master of ceremonies, led a procession of educators and welcomed Father Hogan to his office.

Dr. Frank Perrepont Graves, state commissioner of education, delivered the main address, tracing the history of the university and extending congratulations.

ACQUITTED OF MURDER ON PLEA OF UNWRITTEN LAW

LA PLATA, Md., Nov. 21—(AP)—Pleading the unwritten law and lack of intent to "hurt anybody," Mrs. Luin Mae Gamble, 50, the mother of ten children, was acquitted late today after a one day trial for the murder of Mrs. Elsie Davis, 23.

Mrs. Gamble admitted firing the shots early last September from which Mrs. Davis died four days later. The younger woman was seated in an automobile at the time with Joseph Gamble, fisherman and bee keeper, the defendant's husband.

Gamble took the stand for the prosecution. The jury was out 35 minutes. The state asked the death penalty.

Mrs. Gamble asserted that for several weeks she had repeatedly pleaded with Mrs. Davis "not to break up my home," and charged that the other woman had threatened her.

REBEL LABOR UNIONISTS RIOTOUS IN BARCELONA

BARCELONA, Nov. 21—(AP)—Rebel members of the labor union Syndicato Unico, who have refused to obey their leaders' order to return to work after the general strike, continued rioting here today and one of their number was killed in a clash with police.

The encounter took place in the factory town of Gava, six miles from here. Four workmen were wounded as police charged a milling mob of strikers and strike-breakers, but the disturbance was quickly quelled and the police escorted the workers to their places of employment.

The rest of the city remained quiet and business was practically normal after the disorders of the past several days. Trolley service was still below par, however, for many cars were partially wrecked during the most serious riots.

MACDONALD ENDS DEBATE AT ROUND TABLE CONFERENCE

LONDON, Nov. 21.—(AP) —Ramsay MacDonald, in words which rang with hope for India's restless millions, today ended the five-day debate which has set the momentous Indian round table conference in motion.

Welcoming the almost unanimous opinion of India's spokesmen that the federal system of government is their country's goal, the prime minister once more pledged Britain to the principle of responsible self-government in India as in other units of the British commonwealth.

The great question during the coming weeks now is how—and more important to the Indian delegates when—that goal is to be achieved.

ACRIMONIOUS DEBATE IN FRENCH CHAMBER

PARIS, Nov. 21—(AP)—Premier Tardieu, in his continual running fight with the opposition, hurdled another obstacle today, but encountered a new one in an attack on French aviation.

A victory was scored for the government when a socialist resolution for an investigation of financial crashes by a parliamentary committee was so modified in committee as to avoid any interference with judicial proceedings now under way.

Before passage of this resolution, an attack on Minister of Air Eynac was launched by the Socialist Deputy Bouesse, a former military pilot. He declared tragic accidents which have been frequent in the last year were due to the inferiority of French machines and charged the administration with favoritism in promotions and negligence in supervising construction.

Despite the fact the resolution for the financial investigation commission was approved by the entire chamber with the exception of the communists, the debate became so acrimonious the president had to suspend the session.

STRUGGLE TO AVERT GRAIN PANIC MOVING FORWARD

CHICAGO, Nov. 21—(AP)—The government-sponsored agencies' struggle to avert a grain panic seemed won today as prices on the domestic markets moved another step forward apparently without leaning upon the support of active stabilization buying.

Traders understood the government allies had boosted its "ante" for May wheat another half cent overnight, but at no time during the day did the price for old May contracts descend to the 76 cent "peg" the trade recognized as the stopping point of the stabilization corporation.

Healthy export business in Canadian wheat, strong markets abroad and hints that Russian grain vessel charters might be cancelled helped lift values here. Wheat gained 3-4 to 1 5-8 cents a bushel, old December contracts finishing at 74 3-8 to 1-2, March at 76 3-4 and May at 78 1-2 to 5-8. Corn gained 5-8 to 1 1-8 and rested just a fraction under wheat for corresponding months.

SALVATION ARMY COMMANDER DENIES DISUNITY REPORTS

LONDON, Nov. 21— (AP) — Miss Evangeline Booth, commander of the Salvation Army in the United States, tonight denied all reports of disunity between herself and General Edward J. Higgins, commander of the entire army.

Miss Booth, speaking at the first public meeting of the organization since the arrival some time ago of 42 commissioners for the international conference, asserted that the story of her secession threat was so old that it "came out of the Ark."

CAPT. ROY W. AMMEL IN SATISFACTORY CONDITION

PANAMA, Nov. 21— (AP) —Captain Roy W. Ammel, who cracked up in an attempt to begin a non-stop flight to Chicago today, was examined by hospital physicians tonight and found to be in a satisfactory condition.

A bulletin issued by officials of Gorgas hospital said that contusions were found about the left clavicle, the spine, the chest and the left shoulder, but x-ray examination showed no definite fractures. Captain Ammel was conscious and showed no paralysis of the limbs.

40 PERSONS MAROONED IN SNOWBOUND CABIN IN N. D.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 21—(AP)—Forty persons, many of them women and children, have been marooned for two days in a small, snowbound cabin five miles from Mandan, N. D.

The Mandan chapter of the Red Cross was striving to reach the cabin with food

Word of the isolated group was brought by several men who ploughed through deep drifts to Mandan. The people sought shelter in the cabin after their automobiles were stalled by sleet and snow.

INCREASE IN EXPORTS OF SUGAR FROM CUBA

HAVANA, Nov. 21—(AP)—The Cuban Mill Owners association today reported sugar exports for the week ending Nov. 15 totalled 107,000 tons, the highest of any week during the year excepting the four weeks from April 19 to May 17. The total included 12,000 tons to the United Kingdom.

Receipts also were heavy, amounting to 54,000 tons and stocks at Cuban ports now total about 987,000 tons.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

MADRID, Nov. 21—(AP)—King Alfonso called for a showdown today in the face of persistent reports that his powerful Elite corps of artillery was ready to revolt, and made a personal inspection of the artillery barracks.

LONDON, Nov. 21—(AP)—Sir Herbert Stanley, long a prominent figure in Britain's colonial administration, has been appointed high commissioner for the United Kingdom in South Africa. Sir Herbert has been governor of Ceylon since 1927.

ERSTWHILE DRY ADVOCATE FAVORS REPEAL OF THE LAW

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 21—(AP)—C. C. Crabbe, former Ohio attorney general and author of the state's prohibition code, today declared he favored repeal of the 18th amendment and the Volstead act and modification of the state prohibition enforcement code to permit the sale of light wine and beer under government supervision.

In advocating repeal of national prohibition, Mr. Crabbe said he favored leaving the matter of control to the states.

In advocating modification of the state enforcement code, he said he favored "modification rather than nullification." He said he opposed return of the open saloon.

Still advocating temperance, the former dry leader said he does not feel that the present prohibition law had been respected by the people or enforced by public officials.

"It has been and is being practically nullified," he declared.

PERUVIAN CABINET RESIGNED LAST NIGHT

LIMA, Peru, Nov. 21—(AP)—The Peruvian cabinet resigned tonight.

The resignation, delivered to Provisional President Luis M. Sanchez Cerro by the seven members of the military cabinet tonight, said the officials had been in office long enough to see national reorganization begun and felt that the president now should be at liberty to choose new assists. be at liberty to choose new assistants.

They stressed the fact that their act meant no dissention and said it merely was a prelude to the return of constitutional normality.

The document concluded:

"x x and we hereby tender the resignations of our portfolios, which were given us by the makers of the Arequipa revolution as personified by you."

SEC'Y WILBUR'S COUNSEL TO CALLED HEALTH CONFERENCE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21—(AP)—Secretary Wilbur tonight counselled the delegates to the white house conference on child health and protection to help lead America's children along the ways of science that in the end they might be able to cope with science itself.

All rifts buried for the time being beneath a pyramiding succession of developments, the secretary as chairman of the conference described the two aspects of the conference as:

"To make your facts and findings a true harvest of science and experience.

13 ARRESTS MADE IN LOS ANGELES FOR KIDNAPING

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 21—(AP)—Police today announced three of 13 persons under arrest here and accused of membership in a kidnaping gang had been found to have criminal records in eastern cities.

The prisoners, held on charges of possessing narcotics, were rounded up in a series of narcotics squad raids last night. A scheduled line-up of the 13 before a score of robbery victims was delayed until tomorrow.

OBSERVE THEIR 70TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

BATAVIA, N. Y., Nov. 21.—(AP) — Mr. and Mrs. Henry O. Bostwick of this city quietly observed today the 70th anniversary of their wedding. Mr. Bostwick is 93 years old and his wife 90.

Charles B. Pixley, vice president of the First National bank of Batavia, is the only person now living who attended the original wedding. He was three years old at that time.

TWO CONVICTS TRIED TO TUNNEL TO FREEDOM

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 21—(AP)—A plot of two convicts, one under sentence of death, to dig their way to freedom was thwarted by prison officials today.

The condemned man, Arthur Cort, 22, and Joseph Wykoff, under 15 year sentence for shooting a policeman, had succeeded in digging a hole through an 18-inch stone and concrete wall.

ACTRESS CLARA BOW SEEKS FREEDOM FOR SECRETARY

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 21.— (AP) — Clara Bow, film actress, went before the county grand jury late today. She said she was going to ask the jury to indict Daisy Devoe, her discharged secretary, for grand theft.

WEDDING

Metcalf—Cabot

BEDFORD, N. Y., Nov. 21, — (AP)—Miss Pauline Pumpelly Cabot of Dublin, N. H., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Handasyd Cabot of Florence, Italy, and George Pierce Metcalf of Providence, R. I., son of Stephen O. Metcalf, president of the Providence Journal, and the late Esther Pierce Metcalf, were married today at St. Michael's Protestant Episcopal church.

Relatives and close friends attended the simple ceremony. In the absence of her parents, the bride was given away by her brother, T. Handasyd Cabot, Jr. The Rev. Arthur Ketcham, rector of the church, officiated.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the Bedford Golf and Tennis club. Mr. and Mrs. Metcalf left on a wedding journey to visit the bride's parents at the Villa Carbinelli, Florence. They will live at Providence.

The bride attended Miss Winsor's school at Boston and made her debut in 1920 at Dublin, N. H. She is a member of the Vincente club of Boston and the Boston Junior league.

Mr. Metcalf attended St. Paul's school at Concord, N. H., and was graduated from Harvard university in 1912. He was a first lieutenant overseas with the 302nd infantry during the war. He is a director of the Providence Journal, and a member of the Hope and Agawam clubs in Providence and the Tennis and Racquet club, Boston.

Plan To Increase And Maintain Employment

Adopted at the Closing Session of the New England Conference in Boston Yesterday

BOSTON, Nov. 21.— (AP) —Resolutions containing recommendations for immediate and long term measures to increase and maintain employment were adopted today at the closing sessions of the New England conference, held under the auspices of the New England council.

Elimination of overtime and reduction of working hours to hold actual layoffs to a minimum were advocated as immediate relief measures by the industrial section of the conference which also urged as immediate steps toward alleviating unemployment.

Programs to clean up, paint and repair plant property.

Co-operation with communities in registration of unemployed with regard for relative need for work.

Overhauling of machinery and equipment, and development of plant modernization programs.

Long term steps to stabilize employment recommended by the industrial section included the improvement of employe morale by keeping employes informed regarding the progress of companies' efforts toward maintenance of steady work for them; maintaining wages and working conditions on a level that enables employes to prosper as well in New England as elsewhere; devising means to instill pride in his work in every workman, and constant efforts to improve human relations within the organization.

Other long term measures recommended for industry were the planning and budgeting of sales, production and profits; aggressive and intelligent merchandising; co-operation by dealers in buying in advance of seasonal requirements, and adoption of extension of research.

Plans For Federal War On Lawlessness

Call For Congressional Action Against Gangsters, Racketeers and Narcotic Smugglers

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21. — (AP) — Gangsters, racketeers and narcotic smugglers are to get a dose of preventive medicine from the law enforcing branches of the federal government.

Direct congressional action against the machinations of the lawless may add potency to the government's ministrations before it finishes.

As the customs bureau announced today it was going to concentrate expert narcotic agents on the Pacific coast to combat smuggling, a member of congress said he would demand legislation specifically authorizing federal agencies to harmonize with state and federal governments in their work against racketeers.

Representative Woodruff, republican, Michigan, has under formulation a measure he will present to the house ordering direct action to prevent what he termed the alarming spread of racketeering.

"When Al Capone can go from Chicago to California, as the papers have it, and threaten the life of a man who is selling grape juice, something must be done," Woodruff said.

The Michigan representative said the racketeers received most of their revenue from the man in a legitimate business "and he is entitled to protection."

He added that in many cases, city, county and state officials had failed to halt racketeering. He commended Attorney General Mitchell for fortifying federal forces in Chicago for work against gangsters.

The custom bureau's staff of narcotic experts is to be headed by Melvin L. Hanks, credited with the successful prosecution of the Lau Lee opium case in Honolulu.

He will have agents in Seattle, Portland, San Diego and Los Angeles in addition to his San Francisco headquarters. The work will be to eradicate narcotic smuggling along the west coast and across the Mexican and Canadian borders.

That's His Signature

Your health—or your life—may depend on the accuracy of the prescription the doctor writes for you. He makes certain it is right before signing his name to it.

But he does not check the prescription more carefully than manufacturer or store owner checks the advertisement appearing over his name.

Look at any one of the advertisements in The Bulletin. Its sponsor is well known. That's his signature in clean, cold type—and he realizes that incorrect statements about it would jeopardize the health—the very existence of his business.

Continued advertising is invariably proof of honest advertising and honest goods. You and the millions of others who consult the advertising before you buy, have made advertising one of the great forces of modern business. You have made it important to the manufacturer, to the merchant—to yourself.

Consult the advertising with confidence.

GRANDMOTHERS ARE NOT LIKE WHAT THEY USED TO BE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21—(AP)—The average 1930 grandmother apparently is not pining for the good old days when children treated her with awed respect. She likes being called by her first name and waving a chrysanthemum at a football game.

Distinguished grandmothers who are members of the white house conference on child welfare in session here stoutly maintain that a child's best friend today is his up-to-date grandmother.

Through answers to a questionnaire the typical conference grandmother revealed that she is glad to be removed from her pedestal and taken into her grandchild's confidence. She has changed her ideas in regard to rearing boys and girls.

WATERBURY TO HAVE GOLF COURSE CONSTRUCTED

WATERBURY, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Construction of a municipal golf course has been ordered by the park department to relieve unemployment. The labor will be paid by the fund now being raised by public subscription, which is expected to amount to $15,000 weekly. The unemployment relief committee has asked Judge J. Rufus Booth to allow it to use the $5,000 balance remaining from funds raised during the war for the united war campaign fund. The committee is asking all who are employed to contribute one per cent weekly of their earnings.

30 DEATHS CAUSED BY EARTHQUAKE IN ALBANIA

VIENNA, Nov. 21, —(AP)—A government dispatch from Tirana reported tonight that a violent earthquake had caused 30 deaths in the Albanian village of Telgac, district of Valona.

The dispatch added that great numbers were injured in the collapse of numerous houses, with heavy material losses.

The entire population was made homeless.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21—(AP)—Opposition to further direct or indirect railroad consolidations was voted today by the National Industrial Traffic league at the closing session of its two-day convention. The action referred to current congressional inquiry into railroad holding companies.

BIG LIQUOR SEIZURE BY COAST GUARDSMEN

BOSTON, Nov. 21.— (AP)—Nineteen men were detained here tonight facing charges of conspiracy in connection with the seizure by coast guardsmen of what officials of the service at first believed was a record seizure of liquor on the seas.

The coast guard took the ocean tug Murrell and two barges, the Edith and the Eagle Hill into custody off Monhegan Island, near the Maine coast, Wednesday. While the crafts were resting in the harbor preparatory to a search of them today, the coast guard officials estimated they had close to $1,000,000 worth of liquor aboard. The search revealed 150 cases of liquor, the officials said, and brought the estimated value down to $10,000. They said the liquor was found on the Eagle Hill and none on either the Edith or the Murrell.

The 19 men were not formally arrested but were detained and will face a federal commissioner tomorrow to answer to the conspiracy charges.

HELD FOR CIRCULATING A FALSE RUMOR ABOUT BANK

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 21—(AP)—The first arrest under state law making it a felony wilfully to circulate false rumors about banks came today along with optimistic statements from state officials about Louisville banks.

The Stock Yards bank had Albert Ivison, 52, branch manager of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company arrested on a warrant charging the tea company had advised its local store managers late yesterday the bank had closed. Ivison, quickly released in $500 bond, expressed regrets and said the company had been misinformed and had done "everything humanly possible" to correct the mistake.

DO-X ABANDONS FLIGHT TO AMERICA THIS WINTER

FINANCIAL CONDITION OF SOUTH PRONOUNCED SOUND

Eugene R. Black, Governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta, Says the Southern Banks Have Resources of About $10,000,000,000—Estimates the South's Real Worth at More Than $80,000,000,000—Declares the Banking Situation Sound—Sees No Cause For Uneasiness

ATLANTA, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Optimistic views of the south's financial condition were taken today by Eugene R. Black, governor of the federal reserve bank of Atlanta, and Julius Barnes, chairman of the board of directors of the United States chamber of commerce.

Mr. Black said southern banks have resources of approximately ten billion dollars, and Mr. Barnes, who was in the city to attend a meeting of the chamber of commerce directors, estimated the south's tangible wealth at more than 80 billion dollars.

The directors of the United States chamber of commerce met to obtain first hand information of business conditions in this section.

Mr. Black, declaring it may be well to "consider our fundamental situation" in view of recent bank closings, said: "There should be confidence that fundamentally our banking situation is sound, and with out agriculture, our industry and our banking resources, there should be no uneasiness as to our general situation."

"Our industries are on a sound basis and their products yield a cash return twice as large as our agricultural products," Mr. Black added. "Our problem of unemployment is probably less acute than in any other section.

"Our agricultural banks have largely liquidated their indebtedness to us and to their city correspondent banks. Our city banks have very large resources and are abundantly able to handle the financial problems of the south."

The development of the south during the past decade was termed "phenomenal" by Mr. Barnes.

"It has uncovered amazing natural resources in power, minerals and raw materials of all kinds," he said. "It has begun to convert these resources into merchantable commodities."

ROCKEFELLER TO PROVIDE FOR EVICTED SCULPTOR

NEW YORK, Nov. 21—(AP)—Cheered by assurance from John D. Rockefeller, Jr., that something would be done to mitigate his eviction, George Gray Barnard, sculptor, today turned over the keys of the Washington Heights studio where he has labored 12 years on a great memorial.

Obliged to depart because Mr Rockefeller had given the land on which the studio stands to the city for a park, Mr. Barnard left behind him the heroic figures he had created for his arch of war and peace.

But while photographers were recording his farewell, a message arrived that Mr. Rockefeller would see him immediately on his arrival in town next Wednesday. The capitalist, the message said wanted to do everything in his power to aid the sculptor's work.

It was considered a possibility that the studio would be moved bodily to a spot close to the sculptor's home, The Cloisters. Barnard has spent $250,000 on the peace memorial, which he planned to give to the city.

NOTE WRITTEN BY THE SLAYER OF R. GRAHAM

HACKENSACK, N. J., Nov. 21—(AP)—A statement from the widow of the slain man and a note written by the slayer gave police a more comprehensive picture today of the events behind the killing of Richard Graham, plumbing contractor, by Harry Elbers last Monday night.

The note found by police in a tool box apparently was written by Elbers before the slaying. It was addressed to his wife and it indicated he contemplated suicide.

"God permitting," he wrote, "I shall punish him either way. If you love him then your only crime is that of deceiving me. My sincere forgiveness you have and I pray to God to forgive you also.

"One wish—send me unaccompanied by anyone I know to the crematory; and have my ashes destroyed."

TESTIFIED THAT HE GAVE TWO $1,000 BILLS TO HEALY

NEW YORK, Nov. 21—(AP)—Jacob Cash, former city marshal, testified today that he gave two $1,000 bills to Martin J. Healy, Tammany leader and former city official, on April 29, 1927, the day Cash was reappointed marshal and George F. Ewald was appointed a city magistrate.

Healy, with Thomas T. Tommaney, is on trial for accepting a $10,000 loan from Mrs. Bertha Ewald as the alleged price of his support for Ewald's appointment.

A week later, Cash declared, he gave Mrs. Healy an $850 diamond and emerald bracelet.

ADDITIONAL REPORTS OF DISORDERS IN RUSSIA

LONDON, Nov. 22—(Saturday)—(AP)—Despite official assertions from Moscow that all is quiet in Russia, the Berlin correspondent of the Daily Express today telegraphed additional reports of disorder which he said had evaded the censorship.

The correspondent said the alleged mutiny of two red battalions near Moscow Wednesday was confirmed by new dispatches today and added that two other mutinies had occurred—one at Leningrad and another in the navy at Kronstadt, where officers and crew of the gunboat Vorkov were alleged to have been put in irons.

SUGGESTS ADOPTION OF AMERICAN FAMILIES

NEW YORK, Nov. 21—(AP)—The "adoption" of American families where the wage earner is unemployed, much the same as Belgian children and families were "adopted" during the World war, was suggested today by Mrs. August Belmont as an unemployment remedy.

The family heads would be "adopted," she explained, for the period of the emergency by relief groups. In making her proposal at a meeting of the emergency employment committee she suggested the slogan, "All for one, and that one the unemployed."

TALK OF HOSPITAL FOR DISABLED VETS IN MAINE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21—(AP)—If a suitable site can be found at a reasonable price, Representative Nelson of Maine said today it was possible that a new hospital for disabled veterans eventually costing $3,500,000 would be located on the east bank of the Kennebec river in Maine.

He said he had discussed the question with those interested and had been assured construction on the first unit would begin when a suitable site could be found "at a reasonable price."

PROHIBITION UTTERANCES BY DR. CLARENCE TRUE WILSON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21. — (AP) — Charges that anti-prohibitionists were conducting a "bushwhacking campaign" to impair enforcement and that current sales of grape concentrates to be made into wine were "dangerous to prohibition" came today from the Methodist board of temperance.

Dr. Clarence True Wilson, general secretary of the board, told newspapermen he believed the wine problem might demonstrate "the need of another amendment to the Volstead act."

Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, a former assistant attorney general in charge of prohibition, and now counsel for Fruit Industries, Ltd., a California concern making concentrates with the aid of a farm board loan, was described by Dr. Wilson in his interview as a "capable and shrewd lawyer."

"We were accustomed to leaving everything to Mrs. Willebrandt as representing our interests," Dr. Wilson said, "and until recently our eyes have not been open to the fact that she is now representing the grape interests in making a product easy to ferment into wine."

FIVE POLICE OFFICERS INDICTED FOR BRIBERY

WARREN, Ohio, Nov. 21—(AP)—Four patrolmen and a lieutenant, recently dismissed from the Niles police force, were indicted for bribery today by the Trumbull county grand jury.

The men are Edward Kennedy, former lieutenant, and Fred Henderson P. H. Booth, James Miles and Dominic Sharkey.

The policemen were among seven dismissed October 29 when they were charged with collecting graft from reputed bootleggers and gamblers in return for protection. Ten reputed bootleggers and gamblers, including James Jennings, political "boss" of the Niles third ward, signed sworn statements that they had paid for protection.

According to the statements, the money went to Chippy Mango, an admitted "pay-off" man, who testified to the grand jury that he had turned the money over to the policemen.

MOSCOW DENIES RUMORS OF ASSASSINATION OF STALIN

MOSCOW, Nov. 21.—(AP)—The official Tass news agency tonight declared that all rumors of the assassination of Joseph Stalin were "malignant and absolutely unfounded inventions."

The news agency also charged that all other rumors, concerning mutinies of red soldiers and the wholesale arrests of prominent leaders were in the same category and were designed by anti-soviet sources to divert public attention from the forthcoming trial of "Ramzin and other wreckers."

(This refers to the indictment of eight men who recently were charged with counter revolutionary activities).

NEW HAVEN MAN TOOK POISON TO END HIS LIFE

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 21—(AP)—The body of Richard E. Krahl, 58, who disappeared from his home here, Wednesday, was found today by a hunter near a brook in Beaver Pond lane. A package of poison and a bottle containing a small quantity of liquor were near the body.

Dr. Marvin M. Scarbrough, medical examiner, gave a verdict of suicide.

Relatives said Krahl had been out of work for 17 weeks and is believed to have grown despondent because of this. His widow and four children survive.

MOTORIST ARRESTED AT POINT OF REVOLVER

WATERBURY, Nov. 21—(AP)—Chased several blocks by a state policeman through a thin lane between north and south bound traffic on Watertown avenue at 5:30 p. m., tonight, Frank Haight, 27, of Greystone Park, N. J. was finally overtaken and arrested at the point of a police revolver. Haight who is said to have raced away after hitting another automobile, is a former Waterbury resident and a son of Charles P. Haight, assistant secretary of the Somers Brass company.

HAMPTON GETS NEW 750-GALLON PUMPER

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 21—Hampton's new reconditioned American La-France 750-gallon pumper arrived from Elmira, N. Y., at the Hampton fire station this forenoon. The pumper, weighing six tons and having a motor of 120 horsepower is of a similar type that has been owned by the local department for the past 10 years. Fire Chief Robert J. McDermott will put the pumper through a test next Monday at the pond near Bigelow hill and is sending invitations to the fire chiefs from North Windham, South Windham and this city to be present. The Reo chemical and hose wagon that has been in use by the department will probably be retained as an auxiliary unit. Hampton has many fine old homes, a number of which have recently been remodeled at considerable expense and the arrival of the new apparatus, which is the final step in the completion of the department's equipment, is hailed with much satisfaction by the townspeople.

Mrs. Bessie Bloom Wessel of the Connecticut College for Women delivered an address on "Why Work in High School?" at a Lyceum meeting of Windham high school held this forenoon in commemoration of the 2,000th anniversary of the birth of Vergil. President Thomas Juzdal of the Lyceum introduced the speaker and the minutes were read by Secretary Vincenzo Luciani. Incidental music was by W. H. S. orchestra, Miss Elizabeth F. Hunt, director. At the conclusion of her talk Mrs. Wessel presented the school with a volume of selected Phi Beta Kappa orations.

Football Traffic

This section began this evening to feel the weight of the football traffic to the Yale-Harvard game at Yale Bowl, Saturday. Much of the travel to New Haven from Boston will be diverted west at Phoenixville over the Warrenville-Mansfield Four Corners new highway so that Main street, Willimantic, will not feel the brunt of the extra travel. State police officers from the Danielson and Stafford Springs barracks are to patrol major points in this section, starting this evening and continuing until about Monday noon.

A postponement of the case of James W. Bottomley, of Spring Hill, charged with failure to grant the right of way as the result of a collision on Jackson street Thursday afternoon, has been made to next Monday. Seven of the passengers in the sedan he was driving were members of the freshman cross country team of the Connecticut Agricultural college who were on their way to Lebanon. Bottomley claims that the driver of the other machine, Mrs. Jessie Harriet Lowell, failed to give any warning of her intention of turning left into a driveway. The Storrs man was arrested after the police had found that his brakes had been applied for a distance of about 85 feet.

The Gloom Chasers, a dramatic club connected with St. Paul's Episcopal church, pleased a large audience at the parish house Thursday evening with the presentation of a versatile program including plays, selections and dancing. A one-act play, In Spite of the Family was given with the following members of the cast: Walter Williams, Miss Edith Grant, Miss Sylvia Adams and Kenneth Biggs. A comedy sketch Who Me? was presented by Edward Williams and Miss Marion Adams. Mrs. Edith Grant and Mrs. George E. Wilcox were heard in vocal solos and duets. An eight-piece orchestra played concert and dance numbers.

Officers of A. C. Tyler Camp, No. 8, U. S. W. V., elected at a regular meeting held in G. A. R. hall Thursday evening were: Samuel Chappell, commander; John F. Sullivan, senior vice-commander; Louis H. Ashton, junior vice-commander; Frank Teevan, chaplain; Thomas M[illegible]a, third trustee; Michael P. Cronon, officer of the day; Merton Gallivan, officer of the guard; Frank P. Fenton, historian; Dr. W. P. S. Keating, surgeon; Michael J. English, sergeant-major; John B. Gingras and John Brown, color sergeants; and William Maxwell, musician.

Mrs. Harry Cohen, Mrs. Loretta Reily and Mrs. Anna Jacobs have been appointed a committee of the auxiliary to James J. Shea post, No. [illegible], American Legion, for the contributions to the Christmas boxes which will be sent by the post to the Veterans' hospital at Rutland Heights, Vt.

In the Columbia town court this forenoon an 18-year old Columbia young man was arraigned for violation of the game laws by setting traps on which his name was not stamped. The youth had a trapping license and permission of the owner of the land to set the traps. He was arrested by Tolland County Game Warden George Wraight and Deputy Warden Olsen. The case was presided over by Justice of the Peace Byron Houston of Mansfield with Justice of the Peace Hubert P. Collins of Columbia appearing for the defendant. Judge Collins, alleging that the arrest was made on complaint of competitors of the youth, asked for dismissal on the grounds that the confession from the boy had been secured through compulsory methods. Justice Houston imposed a fine of $1 and costs, however, remitting the fine. The costs amounted to about $12.

Gold Star post of this city was well represented at the initiation of United States Senator Frederic C. Walcott into the Veterans of Foreign wars post at New Haven tonight. Deputy Chief of Staff F. N. Normandin and Deputy inspector Lewye N. Gerry acted as department aides to Department Commander Albert M. Simons. John Moriarty was aide-de-camp for the big street parade and Department Junior Vice-Commander James J. Lee was military aide to Senator Walcott. Attorney Arthur T. Kelley and John C. Frazier represented Gold Star post No. 1724 in taking part in the state-wide initiations. Junior Vice-Commander Lee presented the insignia to Senator Walcott.

Mrs. Albert Smith acted as chairman of the Ladies' society of the Congregational church which served the dinner to the Brotherhood, Thursday evening.

Judge of Probate Valentine L. Murphy was at his office today for the first time since his illness.

Police Court Judge Frank H. Foss this morning suspended sentences in the cases of two transients charged with trespassing on railroad property and ordered them to leave town at once.

Mr. and Mrs. N. T. Constant attended the exhibition of antiques in Hartford this week.

Additional donations made to St. Joseph's hospital since Donation day include a check for $100, one for $25 and one for $15 these having been turned over to the purchase of material for the sewing committee.

The Community orchestra, Miss Mary Rose Blanchette leader, has resumed rehearsals and recitals are planned for January and in the spring.

Mrs. Leone G. Clarke of Jackson street is to leave the first of January for the home of her brother-in-law and sister, Col. and Mrs. F. S. Long in Los Angeles, Calif.

DRAMATIC CLUB PRESENTS ENJOYABLE 3-ACT COMEDY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 21—A delightful play, "It Won't Be Long Now," a comedy in three acts by Milton Herbert Gropper, was presented before a capacity audience at the Windham high school auditorium by the school's dramatic club this evening. The attendance and a wide advanced sale of tickets netted substantial proceeds which are to be used for the erection of bleachers on the new athletic field. The play proved to be a most amusing and enjoyable comedy and the characters gave every evidence of excellent coaching. The characters were Minot Fryer, Richard White, Alexander Gordon, John Collins, Margaret Tracey, Gerald Ballon, Spencer Lincoln, Phoebe Merrill, Claire Mathieu, Doris Webster, Oliver Jacobs, Frederick Hadded, Theodore Wright, Louis Lombardo, Hyman Krug, and Robert Dineen. The properties committee comprised Ira Ruschman, and Leona Carpenter. Abbie Easterbrook was assistant prompter and the play was coached by Miss Elizabeth Griffin of the faculty. Lawrence King of the faculty and the commercial seniors were in charge of the advertising and business management. The W. H. S. orchestra under the direction of Miss Elizabeth F. Hunt played between the acts.

NUTS AND LEMONS IN CLEVER GRANGE CONTEST

The annual competitive programme of Columbia grange was held Wednesday evening before a large audience of grangers and their families, several neighboring granges being represented also. The grange was divided into nuts and lemons, the nuts putting on their programme first. The first number was a row of "nuts" behind a wall, which upon being "cracked" recited a verse. Raymond Lyman and Harle Field sang a duet with appropriate words dedicated to the lemons. There were two short sketches, vocal and instrumental music, and original poems, closing with a song to the tune of the Stein song. The lemons presented their programme, which consisted of two numbers, with instrumental and vocal music between. The first number was a lemon drill by eight sisters of the grange, who had "lemons" strung around their necks. An original song written by Mrs. Edith Isham was sung, and at the close of the drill the lemons were thrown at the audience. The second number was Prof. Butts (in the person of Clayton Hunt) who demonstrated his latest mechanical machine with the help of several who wished to be changed in some way. The last person, wishing to be changed from a woman to a man wrecked the machine. Both programs were much enjoyed by the audience and the judges found it difficult to choose between them. They finally decided in favor of the lemons by a scant two points. Thus the nuts will provide a supper for the lemons at some future date. The judges were J. Banks Jones, Edward Smith and Mrs. Ruby Gibson of Hebron grange.

ANOTHER OF COLUMBIA FAMILY FINDS HIMSELF IN TOILS OF LAW

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 21—Wallace A. Taylor, 45, a brother of Claude Taylor, who is now serving a long term at the Wethersfield jail following a colorful criminal career, is now himself incarcerated at the Tolland county jail. Wallace Taylor was arrested at the Cunningham home in Columbia last Wednesday after a search of his person by State Policemen Charles Daly and Henry Zehrer of the Stafford Springs barracks revealed a 25-calibre Colt automatic fully loaded. There were also several steel jacketed cartridges in the man's pocket. The finding of the revolver which was an incident to an investigation of chicken stealing activities being made by the officers led to a charge of carrying a concealed weapon against Taylor. He was arraigned later before Justice of the Peace Hubert P. Collins of the Columbia town court where he pleaded guilty to the charge and was bound over to the next criminal term of the Tolland County superior court under bonds of $1,000 which he was unable to furnish.

COLCHESTER

START MADE TO SECURE RUNNING WATER SYSTEM

A largely attended and enthusiastic meeting of local people interested in improving the borough water supply was held Thursday evening at the Van Cleve store. Albert T. VanCleve was chairman and Samuel Cutler was selected as acting secretary and treasurer. Plans were discussed regarding the installation of a running water system in the village. A committee was selected to get in touch with civil engineers with the object of securing estimates of the cost and probable sites for the pumping station, artesian well, etc. A. T. VanCleve, Samuel Cutler, Joseph Agranovitch, Joseph Dember, Leon Broder, Lucius C. Brown and William B. Gerhardt were chosen this committee. A fund was also raised to pay expenses for the engineer's survey. The possible cost of the installation of the system is thought to be about fifty thousand dollars which estimate is derived from figures received by Mrs. VanCleve from water company officials in villages the same size as Colchester. The unusual dry weather of the past two years has caused increased interest among the borough residents in any project which will improve the water supply situation. Many wells about the village have been dry for the past five months, recent rains not having affected them to any extent. A large number of the people favor the project in view of the fact that fire insurance rates would be reduced nearly 50 per cent, property would increase in sale value and there would then be an inducement for factories and city people to locate here.

Dr. Louis Goldberg, director of the Zionist Regional union of Connecticut and Rhode Island, spent the day in Colchester Thursday, discussing the work of the district with the various members of the executive committees of the Zionist and Hadassah chapters here.

Edward T. Bunyan and William E. Adams attended the state insurance agents' convention at the Hotel Taft, New Haven, Thursday.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Each motorist spent an average of $28.97 for tires and tubes last year, says the bureau of census.

HOW TO SPEND HIS PRIZE IS PUZZLE TO DR. BABCOCK

MADISON, Wis.—(AP)—Dr. Stephen M. Babcock of the University of Wisconsin donated $1,000,000—in the abstract—when he refused to patent his butterfat test that revolutionized the dairy industry.

Now he has $5,000 in cash as "interest" on the invention — the Capper award for distinguished service to agriculture. But he doesn't know what to do with the money.

"I might," he suggested, "buy peanuts. I like peanuts. But of course my enjoyment would be limited by the number of peanuts I could eat in a day without serious discomfort to myself."

The money was to be, specifically, for his "own personal use and enjoyment." He is 87 years old.

SHEEP NEED MORE FEED THAN THEY USUALLY GET

DURHAM, N. H.—(AP)—Sheep need more feed for mere existence than heretofore has been supposed, tests at the New Hampshire agricultural experiment station reveal.

Adult sheep require from 28 to 35 calories per kilogram of weight each day to maintain bodily requirements. In lambs the energy draft runs much higher, amounting to about 100 calories at two weeks of age as compared with 74 for calves.

Tends Lighthouse 46 Years

NORFOLK, [illegible] — (AP) — Forty-six years in the United States lighthouse service without missing a day for illness is the record of J. F. Mason, retiring here at the age of 70. Mason spent 32 years at Winter Quarter Shoals.

Tennessee highway commission claims the best marked highway system in the United States. More than 67,000 signs are in place.

BIGGER AND BETTER

THE NEW CHEVROLET SIX HAS MANY IMPROVEMENTS

The introduction of the new Chevrolet Six marks the most impressive forward step in Chevrolet's twenty-year record of constant progress and improvement. For this Bigger and Better Six offers new beauty, new luxury, new completeness and new quality—yet it sells at lower prices!

In every curve and sweep of Chevrolet's modern lines—in every detail of its new Fisher bodies, you will see the fine hand of the master designer and the skillful craftsman. And the more closely you inspect it, the more deeply impressed you will be.

The improvements in the new Chevrolet Six begin at the smart new chrome-plated headlamps and extend throughout the entire car. The radiator is deeper. The lines are longer and lower, giving an air of exceptional fleetness and grace. And the interiors of the new Fisher bodies provide a new degree of comfort and luxury: greater roominess; fine quality mohair or broadcloth upholstery; more pleasing interior fittings; and a new, completely equipped instrument panel.

The chassis of the new Chevrolet Six has also been refined and advanced in a number of different ways. The frame is heavier, deeper and stronger than before. There is a smoother operating, long lived clutch; a sturdier front axle; an entirely new steering mechanism; an easier shifting transmission. In fact, every vital feature of the new car has been made better to provide more thorough satisfaction for the owner.

And along with these improvements, Chevrolet offers the smooth performance of a 50-horsepower, six-cylinder motor—four long semi-elliptic springs—four hydraulic shock absorbers—a safety gasoline tank at the rear of the car—and an economy of operation not surpassed by any automobile.

» » AT NEW LOW PRICES « «

Fine as it is, the new Chevrolet Six now sells at lower prices—making the economy and satisfaction of Chevrolet ownership even more outstanding. We urge you to come in and see the Bigger and Better Chevrolet. Its modern design reflects the spirit of the times—and it represents a value which will command the interest of every buyer in the low-price field.

DANIELSON

STATE POLICE START CHECK ON HEAD LIGHTS

DANIELSON, Nov. 21.—State officers of the Danielson barracks are beginning a drive that will cover all of their territory to correct the laxity that has again sprung up relative to keeping headlights and tail-lights of cars in proper working order. There are altogether too many cars traveling the highways at night with only one headlight burning or with taillights out. At this season of the year when darkness comes on early and when there is an excess of bad weather the danger of motoring accidents occurring increases, the police point out.

Two arrests were made near Moosup last night in the opening of this campaign. John Sibeau, Moosup, was found operating a light truck with no tail-light, that appurtenance being broken. Sibeau said he had not been in the habit of using the truck after dark, so had neglected to repair the tail-light, which had the appearance of having been broken for a considerable period of time. He will appear in court at Central Village next Thursday.

After dark last night State Officer Royal V. Scranton encountered John Marcelino of Moosup driving a car on the Moosup-Sterling road with not a light showing on the machine, for the very good reason that they were not in working order. Like Sibeau, he declared he had not been using the car after dark. He also got a summons to court. It also developed that he had no registration with him, which means another charge on the complaint.

It is possible that a car driven by a sailor that ran into a group of people coming home from church in New Bedford on a recent Sunday, killing two of them, is somewhere in this territory. The sailor driver made off at high speed immediately after he ran the people down and managed to escape. There is very good reason to believe, on the strength of information that has been obtained in official circles, that the car was brought into this part of eastern Connecticut and that it may be here yet.

WEDDING

Martin—Bessette

At St. James 'church at 5:30 this morning Miss Alice A. Bessette and Richard Martin, both resident here, were united in marriage by Rev. F. X. Baldwin, M. S. They were attended by Dr. and Mrs. William M. McLaughlin, cousins of the bride. Mrs. Martin, an accomplished musician, was the organist at the Orpheum theatre for several years and is very well known here. The groom is with the First National stores.

Tonight was observed as Pilgrim evening by the members of the Wesleyan circle of the Methodist Episcopal church. Miss Gladys Dayton was in charge of the program, after which there were games and refreshments were served. Gifts of fruits, vegetables and canned goods that were brought to the meeting are to be forwarded to the Deaconess home in Providence. Mrs. Albert Abbott and Miss Annie Long were hostesses.

Charles Lavallee, Plainfield automobile dealer, has been ordered by State Officer Royal V. Scranton to appear in the town's court at Central Village next Tuesday to answer to a charge that he has failed to report, as required by law, the sale of a used car. The charge develops as the result of an investigation the state officer was making in an effort to trace a car the state officers wish to locate.

It was understood today that a very special effort will be made in Danielson this year to provide Christmas cheer for the worthy poor and the unemployed. The usual organizations will work to this end, stressing the fact that the need of giving generously by those who can afford to give is greater this year than it has been for more than a decade past. Though more fortunate than are most New England communities of its size, as to having the great majority of its people employed, Danielson has a greater number who will need help the coming Christmas time than usually is the case here. The appeal to the generous who have it to give will stress this point home.

This afternoon Mrs. L. E. Kennedy was hostess to the members of the Entre Nous whist club. At bridge, honors went to Mrs. Frank J. Gorman, Mrs. Rene Buteau and Mrs. Augustine Meade.

Killingly high school and Putnam high school will play their annual Thanksgiving football game in Danielson this year, on the Quinebaug grounds.

Our Masters was Rev. Harding W. Gaylord's subject when addressing the members of the Danielson Rotary club last evening.

Scores of cars out of Massachusetts and Rhode Island were routed through Danielson this afternoon and early evening, New Haven-bound, for the Yale-Harvard football game on Saturday.

Thanksgiving services will be held at the Westfield Congregational, at the Methodist Episcopal and at the Baptist churches Sunday morning. In the evening, under the auspices of the Danielson Federation of Churches, a pageant is to be presented at the Baptist church.

At the Nazarene church Sunday there is to be special music and singing at all of the services. Clarence Vale, singing evangelist, will speak at the evening service. He will also attend the service at the county jail in Brooklyn in the afternoon, at 2:30, and will sing for the prisoners.

There is to be a service at St. Alban's church Thanksgiving morning at 9:30, and at 10:30 Rev. J. Rees Jones, the rector, will conduct a service at Trinity church in Brooklyn.

Miss Laura A. Jacobs of Broad street is in Washington, D. C., visiting with Captain Walter F. Jacobs, U. S. N., and Mrs. Jacobs.

Members of the Employed Boys' club will leave here just before one o'clock Saturday afternoon to attend the Brown-New Hampshire football game at Providence.

HARDIE M. BERGIN, SALES MANAGER FOR P. AND A. DIES AFTER OPERATION

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 21.—His friends and business associates were stunned this morning over the announcement of the death during last night at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam of Hardie M. Bergin, sales manager for Powdrell and Alexander, world's largest manufacturers of curtains, with six plants in this town.

Mr. Bergin underwent an operation for appendicitis last Saturday. During the present week his condition gave rise to some feeling of alarm, but there was no presumption on the part of his friends that he would not recover.

Mr. Bergin, about a year ago, suffered an attack of ill health and went south to recuperate. Upon his return here he appeared to be in good health again and has been regularly giving attention to his duties, directing the sales force of the big organization with which he was identified throughout the United States. It was regarded as possible today that his general condition of health was not as good as it appeared to be.

Mr. Bergin, whose home originally was in Fort Hill, N. C., first came to Danielson about eight years ago, when the business of Powdrell and Alexander was in its infancy. He remained here only a short time, studying processes and acquainting himself with various features of the curtain manufacturing business. In the years that have since elapsed, up to his coming to Danielson following the removal of the general offices of the company here from Boston, he has been identified with the sales end of the business. He was eminently successful and by his highly meritorious service was advanced to sales manager.

During the past summer Mr. Bergin had a cottage near Webster lake and since fall set in has been living in Webster and traveling to Danielson every day. He was married early this year to Miss Elizabeth Eaton, who survives him. Mrs. Bergin is staying for the present with Mr. and Mrs. Harold A. Roberts of L'Homme street. He was 37 years of age.

COMMITTEE BELIEVES WHITE WAY NO BENEFIT TO TRADE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 21.—The street lighting committee of the common council contends that the belief held by numerous merchants in the city that a vast outlay of money for the improvement of the municipal street lighting system in the business section will influence greater trading, is "a mere illusion," as one member of the committee expressed himself this morning when discussing the recommended proposition of replacing the present light standards with a modern white way system on Front, Union and Main streets.

A few months ago the matter of installing new lighting equipment in the business section was brought to the attention of the common council by officials of the chamber of commerce. The proposal was considered by the council's committee but was not recommended for approval. Since then the matter of improved methods of illuminating the business center has been a dead issue, revived from time to time during occasional impromptu chats between city officials and merchants.

Rev. Joseph Vasey, pastor of the Congregational church will preach the sermon at the union Thanksgiving service to be held next Thursday morning at the First Baptist church on Church street, at 9:30 o'clock.

All schools in the city were closed today to afford local teachers an opportunity to visit schools in neighboring cities, where they made a study of the various systems of instruction. The majority of members of the town teaching staffs visited schools in New London, Hartford and Norwich.

Special trains conveying Harvard and Yale rooters to the Yale bowl in New Haven where the annual eastern states grid classic will be played Saturday began rolling over the Norwich branch of the New Haven road early this evening. The regular Boston-New York expresses on the midland division of the road were carrying the extra sports passenger traffic this afternoon. The crowds expected to be New Haven bound Saturday morning caused railroad officials this afternoon to express belief that extra coaches will be added to the forenoon express trains tomorrow.

Part of the exodus of Crimson fans motoring from Boston to New Haven passed through here this afternoon. Many of the automobiles were draped in the Harvard colors, while others displayed the robin egg blue banners of the sons of Eli.

The passing Thursday of Aaron M. Bowen, known far and wide as the Eastford correspondent was chronicled this morning in every paper in the state and in many instances editors saw fit to comment extensively in editorial columns on the death of the Eastford man who has turned out newspaper copy for more than 35 years in a style that was inimitable.

About $100 was raised Thursday evening for the benefit of the Day Kimball hospital nurses home building fund, by promoters of the Putnam Boxing club who staged the fight card in St. John's arena. The bouts were witnessed by a large crowd of enthusiastic rooters who were more than pleased with the high calibre of fistic entertainment put on by the best amateur stock in Connecticut and Rhode Island.

About 65 members of the Putnam council of the Telephone Employes association, representing the Danielson and Putnam divisions, gathered at Odd Fellows hall on Pomfret street, Thursday evening for the annual Thanksgiving social and dinner. Following the serving of an excellent turkey dinner prepared by the Ladies' Aid society of the Methodist church, a programme of after dinner talks was initiated by E. Leslie Beebe, manager of the local exchange office, who spoke for the commercial department. Wire Chief W. T. Jones of the local exchange spoke in behalf of the staff of the plant department, while Miss Mary Smith and Miss Katherine Aylward, chief operators of the Putnam and Danielson exchanges respectively added their appreciative remarks in behalf of the operating forces working in the exchange offices under their supervision. Following the dinner an executive session of the council was held. A delightful programme of games and dancing brought the function to an enjoyable conclusion.

A naturalization session of superior court will be held here in December it was announced today by Curtis Dean, clerk of courts.

Halleck Lefferts, headmaster at Pomfret school and Rev. Frank H. Bigelow, of the Rectory school in Pomfret, returned today from Simsbury where they attended the annual fall meeting of the Connecticut Headmasters club, which was held Thursday. Mr. Lefferts is a new member of the club, this being the first year at the Pomfret Boys' Preparatory school.

The police department took up the work of painting the safety zone lines of the city streets today. On School street at the intersection of Grove street, the word "stop" had been painted and is underlined with a white strip several inches in width. The purpose of the marker is to slow up traffic coming out of the side street onto the heavily travelled state highway. Several accidents of a serious nature have occurred at this place.

Every cell at the Putnam police station was occupied Thursday evening as the result of a troupe of rounders storming the little jug across the river in quest of a "flop for the night." During the evening two knights of the road were suddenly disturbed from their sleep when they were ordered out of their steel latticed bunks to make room for a pair of prisoners. One of the rounders inquired of Patrolman Page why he was removed to a corner on the floor, to which inquiry the officer replied, "Our guest quarters are reserved for cash customers."

The Putnam high school football eleven will meet the Douglas high school squad Saturday afternoon at the School street athletic campus. Although the Noyesmen figured in a 6-6 deadlock with the Douglass aggregation at the beginning of the season, they are favored to win tomorrow by a small margin on the strength of the changing of the backfield which in practice today appeared to be a speedier combination.

W. H. Duval, president of the New York corporation bearing his name, which holds controlling interest in the Waterman Worsted company, was in this city Tuesday on business. While in conference with officials of the local plant, which is to remove to Goffs Falls, N. H., about January 1, 1931, Mr. Duval issued no statement confirming or denying rumors that the machinery in the Pomfret street plant will not be combined with other apparatus in the new factory near Manchester, N. H.

JEWETT CITY

GETS EXTRADITION PAPERS AFTER MANY DELAYS

Extradition proceedings to bring prisoners from one state into another for trial are sure some problem, with a string of red tape as long as the moral law. Officer Henry Vegiard, after actually receiving the legal request from Gov. John H. Trumbull and signed by him, for the extradition of William Howeson, Jr., and Ernest Lamarine, held by the Philadelphia police, was obliged to proceed to Harrisburg Thursday to actually secure the signature of Gov. John S. Fisher, of Pennsylvania. The officer's credentials when he left here late Wednesday evening resembled a passport sufficient for a trip around the world, and bore blue ribbons, the signature of the governor and the great seal of the state of Connecticut. It was expected that the officer will arrive here sometime Friday night. Patrolman Hector Sibelaud has been on duty for Policeman Vegiard during his absence. By many it is not believed the two prisoners are equally guilty.

Weather permitting, electric energy will be shut off in the borough of Jewett City on Sunday, Nov. 23, from 8 o'clock a. m. to 8:30 a. m., and from 1 o'clock until 1:30 o'clock p. m., in order to make necessary repairs. The Connecticut Light & Power Co., Danielson district.—adv.

CONNECTICUT REPRESENTATION

In view of the situation that is taking shape in anticipation of the opening of the final session of the present congress, there is much uncertainty as to what will be undertaken and accomplished. Efforts to the contrary notwithstanding, there are indications of much the same kind of stalling that has featured the past.

Instead of accepting the reapportionment that was voted at the last session there promises to be an effort by representatives of various states to prevent the losses of members that are due because of the readjustment. Whether they will be successful is uncertain. Whether any action will be taken is equally uncertain, but if nothing is done to counteract the legislation the reapportionment will go into effect.

That being the case, Connecticut has reason to take action at the coming session of the legislature for a redistricting of the state. It is now divided to provide for five congressmen. The districts are not all of a size, either as to territory or population. Probably they are as near populationwise as could be expected under the conditions, but with a sixth congressman to provide for a rearrangement will be required, and the breaking up of the towns into six districts is work that devolves upon the legislature.

If the new districts are to have as near 280,000 as possible, it means a trimming for certain of the districts and the running of new district lines, or it means that the present districts, uneven in size, remain and a representative-at-large from the state be chosen as the sixth member of the house delegation.

The second district made up of the four eastern counties, under the 1930 census, has a population of 253,000. This is fairly close to representation for the average district, so much so that it might still remain unchanged, even though the largest territorial district. If that should be the case, it would mean a readjustment of the other four districts, two of which, the first and fourth, were well beyond that figure at the old census.

Whether congress will permit the reapportionment that has been provided for is a bit uncertain, but whether it does or not the general assembly will have time in which to act after congressional action becomes a matter of record. It is, however, something that needs to be kept in mind.

AFTER DRUNKEN DRIVERS

For the protection of the public, the motor vehicles department has put forth definite plans for the past several years on the occasion of large gatherings in any part of the state. This applied particularly to the big football games at New Haven and to the boat races on the Thames. On those days auto drivers are urged especially to observe the rules and to drive with due respect for the other fellow. State police are concentrated on the main highways for the purpose of enforcing the regulations and preventing conditions that operate against safety.

Good results have attended these efforts and there is justification for maintaining such insistence upon safe highway conditions, particularly when there is an unusual volume of traffic.

Because of complaints which have been made to the department, attention will be directed today, on the occasion of the Yale-Harvard game, toward the prevention of intoxicated persons driving automobiles. There have been flagrant violations of the law against operating while intoxicated. That is bad enough under normal conditions, when the streets are not congested and when there are no serious traffic problems. To have the safety of the highways thrown completely out of joint because those who are intoxicated insist upon driving motor vehicles is a menace to every other driver of a machine and to pedestrians. There is no intention to allow a few to endanger the lives and safety of the others.

In furnishing the warning that it has, the motor vehicle department has reason to expect satisfactory compliance. It isn't relying upon that, however, for it has arranged for sufficient state police to see that there is reasonable enforcement of the requirement. Thus, those who insist upon a personal demonstration that drunken driving will not be tolerated are likely to be accommodated. It is a day and an occasion when all can be expected to be treated alike. The warning indicates that there will be no favorites and there should not be. The great number of motor vehicles carrying the crowd to today's game will be sufficient to handle without wasting any time upon those who are a serious menace to highway users under the most favorable conditions.

GERMANY'S INTENTIONS

According to the statement which has been made by Foreign Minister Curtius of Germany, he is endeavoring to explain the situation which prevails in Germany and to indicate what course may be expected by the government.

It is a question whether the economic situation in that country is going to permit it to meet its responsibilities under the treaty and the Young plan. There are those in Germany who are putting up a howl against the treaty terms and insisting that it be scrapped. They displayed considerable strength at the last election, but it doesn't appear from the words of the foreign minister that any such idea is contemplated.

Dr. Curtius has put forth a statement of the government's foreign policies. He has been speaking for the benefit of Germany and at the same time for the benefit of other countries. He made it evident that Germany intends "to restore Germany's finances and as such it has a distinct purpose of its own," but he also dwells upon the possibilities in case the time comes when such restoration is considered impossible. There may be necessity in the government taking protective measures and in case there is he sets forth that there are provisions in the Young plan for so doing. The government would avail itself of such provision if necessary and that would mean, in case the fiscal reforms are not sufficient to meet the situation, the application for a moratorium on such payments as Germany is expected to make.

If this is a statement intended for the special benefit of the German people, it is tempered by the statement by the foreign minister that it is a step that would be taken only if necessary. There appears to be no immediate need of any such action and the foreign minister evidently intended to indicate to other countries that Germany would take such a step only after fully recognizing what it would mean to Germany.

Dr. Curtius sets at rest any thought of tearing up the treaty or treating the Young plan in any such reckless manner. He points out the course that is prescribed and open under stress and makes clear that any moratorium would apply to only such obligations as are covered by the Young plan.

FIGHTING THE GANGSTERS

Indications have prevailed for a long time that much of the crime by organized gangs was due to the fact that it was not properly combated by the authorities in the localities where it is committed. Indications have repeatedly pointed to the fact that these gangs were so powerful or influential that they feared no interference. The result has been the creation of lawless conditions the like of which never existed before.

While these conditions have not been confined to any one locality, they seem to flourish in the larger centers. These gangs operate in all directions and there is no limit to the crimes they will commit. The taking of life is no more than the theft of some article. All they seem to seek is a chance to carry on their activities and for those who attempt to interrupt or penalize bullets are ready.

It is unfortunate that the big cities have lent such encouragement to the gangster activities. It is their direct problem and along with it the duty of the state to apply the remedy. They should not rest content until such conditions have been eliminated, but such doesn't appear to be the case.

But, while there is a grave responsibility resting upon the cities and states to deal with this condition, it is evident that there is help that the federal government can render, and information to the effect that it is already engaged in preliminary work through the department of justice that will strike at these gangsters, whose activities have come to be nationwide, lends hope to the belief that laxity in other directions will be removed and needed control of the growing criminal class established. There is a condition existing which has been tolerated too long, so long, in fact, that it is not going to be an easy job to eradicate it.

GENERAL SUMMERALL

Even as soldiers come and soldiers go, so do officers and commanders. In order to make place for others and give the younger men a chance those at the top are required to step out at a given time.

Such has come to some of the nation's great men in the army and navy. This week it has been among the experiences of General Charles P. Summerall, who for the past four years has been chief of staff. He retires after a record that is highly creditable to himself and to the country. His service covered a long period and he was a conspicuous figure in the World war while stationed as a divisional commander in France. He was an effective leader, tireless in his endeavors, and always aiming at accomplishments. In that ambition he was successful, though he had to admit as the time for retirement came that he had not been able to accomplish all that he desired. Such is the feeling of the hard worker who invariably establishes a goal which it is difficult to reach. Nevertheless, he would not be satisfied with anything else and the failure to reach the mark one day never prevented him from setting an equally ambitious one the next.

As chief of staff he displayed this trait quite the same as when he was a divisional commander. His aims did not cause him to overlook the welfare of his men and he thought and labored in their behalf. He has done much for army conditions and yet there, as well as in the field of action or in other directions, his ambitions were always a step in advance of accomplishments. It is inevitable that such a leader should regret his inability to do all he wanted to do, or to finish the tasks he had set. Such an expression was characteristic of a hard-working, forward-thinking chief of staff.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

There are some people who seem to have chronic aches and pains, and for this they are entitled to some sympathy. But they lose the latter when they bore their friends and relatives with a frequent recital of them. To hear some old men talk you would thing that theirs were the only backs ever hit by lumbago; and theirs the only stomachs that got all twisted up with cramps. Some recite their woes for the mere fun of telling them; others, I fear, for the annoyance it produces; still others, because it seems to put them into the hero class. They begin with the tooth ache and get so much real fun out of it, that they keep right on until they run the entire gamut of known diseases from brain fever to corns and bunions. When this habit is once formed it grips like the rum habit. Such people do not seem to realize that others know anything about physical handicaps.

I don't suppose there is any sin in filling other people's ears with all your little aches and pains—it's just simple weakness, and you can let it go at that. But we are certainly justified in showing our righteous indignation when some newsmonger digs up some old skeleton in the family closet and peddles the slush all over the community for the sheer love of creating a sensation. The following is a fair illustration of what takes place far more frequently than it ought. A boy came home from school one day all excited and burst out with this: "Say, ma, did you know that Deacon Jones when a young man was once hauled up for stealing codfish? He's a healthy deacon, isn't he?" His mother who knew all about a floating rumor to that effect years ago said, "Where in the world did you get that stuff?" "Why, I heard his aunt and another woman talking about it on the street."

Not only in America, but in Europe as well, there are many tales of suffering from unemployment and it touches the sympathy of all who have a warm, human heart. But now and then a bit of news creeps in along this line that does not at least, bring tears to many eyes. It has been cabled from Europe that the last scion of the former house of Hapsburg is dead broke in Switzerland. This is perfectly logical of one who has been a dead beat for years. Morally and intellectually he has been "dead broke" for more than a decade. The awful disgrace of earning an honest living would have been his lot for years had he not been supported in criminal idleness by an ignorant and misguided people. Even Europe will one day wake up to the fact that to give expensive free lunches to a parasite hardly comports with modern progress.

What a rich field an American audience is for those who can "pull off" real stunts in their respective callings! It may be that the rank and file of our people are not so keen on instruction as entertainment, but let an instructor be able to "deliver the goods" and he will be in demand. No people on earth are more versatile than Americans and they want everything that is going. A motion picture must be a good one to hold the crowd, and if the crowd is pleased it is very generous. See the fortunes made by our great actors and actresses! The great comedian, novelist, editor, lecturer, preacher, whatever the "stuff" he pulls off, if it is only great "stuff," has his fortune assured. The crowd is keen to a man who is only shamming, and its treatment is merciless. Moral: Whatever line you work master it from A to Z.

The present all-important problem that is making such an acute presentation to the sympathy and generosity of the American people—and, for that matter, to the people of Europe as well—is unemployment. The solution of the problem is even harder than it appears on the surface. The difficulty mainly seems to be to discover how many of the unemployed who are entirely out of work or are on very limited time are suffering for the real necessities of life. We do not like to believe, but we are forced to do so, that very many will not seek work if there is any possibility of being fed and clothed without it. The writer was told the other day by a man who needed quite a number of men to do a large piece of work for him that he advertized for help. The next morning more than a dozen men, supposedly from the ranks of the unemployed, answered the advertisement, and they all came in good automobiles. Was it not hard to believe that these men were very hard up?

In these days of labor shortage when we might naturally expect to see vast numbers of men on the road begging for bread—and they might do it with some show of reason these days—they are not in evidence. Where is the great, burly, unshaven fellow who used to come to the kitchen door for food? Where has he gone; this chap of the red face, not wholly caused by exposure to the sun? Has he become converted and is now at school studying for the ministry? With a smitten conscience he may have gone into a monastery to repent of his sins. It may be that the sight of a buck saw and a woodpile was more than his delicate constitution could stand! Whatever has caused him to lose his nerve, we certainly miss his shiny face, delicate frame and heavenly smile when we handed him hard doughnuts instead of cold sirloin. Perhaps he has gone to New Jersey where there is more doing.

The Man Who Talks would like to make a suggestion to all the readers of The Bulletin in regard to a matter that lies very close to his heart. By this time we have come near enough to the Christmas season to make some intelligent planning as to the distribution of our gifts. Do not existing conditions justify us in deviating somewhat from our usual mode of giving? Usually it is in exchanging gifts between relatives and friends who would survive without them. Let us have in mind those homes that will be sorrowful this year because of unemployment. The way will not be clear for them to gladden the children with Christmas presents. Would it not be a genuine act of Christian charity to bring joy to the children of these homes? To be sure the children of the well-to-do may be remembered as usual. But let the usual giving to older persons this year go into those homes where there will be tears and sad little hearts if Santa Claus should pass by their homes this year.

If there is a journal in the United States that seems to speak "ex cathedra" on all topics that journal is The Literary Digest. It is certainly admirable in having the courage of its convictions. In the last issue it had a short article on "How to Close the Jails." In this article a supreme court judge says: "Permit me to state that my experience during 25 years on the bench, in which time over 4,000 boys were convicted of crime before me, of whom but three were members of Sabbath schools, have satisfied me of the value of Sabbath schools to a community in helping to safeguard it, to the extent to which Sabbath schools exist, from the growth of criminals." Could stronger evidence be produced than this in supporting one of the greatest of agencies that help the young to walk in the paths of rectitude?

WHISTLER, NEWLY ELECTED TO HALL OF FAME, ONCE LIVED IN STONINGTON, POMFRET

In the person of the great artist James Abbott McNeill Whistler, eastern Connecticut has her first representative elected to the Hall of Fame. The hall now includes 69 persons, of whom only one other, Gilbert Charles Stuart, is classified as a painter. Samuel Finley Breese Morse, also an eminent painter, is included, but he owes his election to the invention of the electric telegraph rather than to his work as an artist.

Whistler's early boyhood was spent in Stonington and his youth in Pomfret. A brother, George William, 12 years his senior, was born in New London in 1822.

Father Was Railroad Pioneer

The artist's father, George Washington Whistler, was an eminent engineer and pioneer railroad builder. Born at Fort Wayne, Ind., May 19, 1800, he went through West Point and after a distinguished career resigned from the army on Dec. 31, 1833. With Jonathan Knight, William Gibbs McNeill and Ross Winans he examined the railroads of England on behalf of the directors of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, and afterward engaged in the construction of that road, the Boston and Albany and other lines.

He married a daughter of Winans. In 1824 he became engineer to the proprietors of locks and canals at Lowell, Mass. It was at Lowell on July 10 of that same year that James A. McNeill Whistler was born.

From 1834 till 1837 the elder Whistler gave much of his time to locomotive building; and when he took charge of the Stonington railroad in the latter year, he removed his family to Stonington.

Concerning the Stonington ties there formed by young James McNeill Whistler, the Bulletin correspondent had this to say in the issue of Oct. 15, 1886:

Gave Away Stonington Sketches

By cable to the Tribune we learn of J. McNeill Whistler's proposed visit to this country. Mr. Whistler has relatives here and spent most of his boyhood in the borough. His father, George W. Whistler, was prominent in the building of the Stonington railroad, just half a century ago. Afterwards he became interested in railroad construction in Russia, where he died, and his remains were brought here for interment in Evergreen cemetery.

Young Whistler occupies a front seat among artists and is quite a character beside. Many years ago he made for a friend here a few off-hand clever pen sketches which have been kicked around the garret until recently, when it is found they are of great value, worth, it is stated, a thousand or more dollars, simply for being the product of his pen.

Further facts are given in the Bulletin of May 28, 1912:

The family resided on Main street, Stonington, while the father, an expert engineer, was engaged on the railroad being constructed to Providence from Stonington. Their home was with Maj. Whistler's sister-in-law, Mrs. George E. Palmer.

Confirmatory to the above statements, the Bulletin of July 21, 1903, contains a letter from Emma W. Palmer of Stonington, daughter of Dr. George E. Palmer, which says, "We are connected very closely with Whistler, Dr. George E. Palmer having married his mother's sister, and much of his early life was spent here in Stonington."

From 1840 to 1842 the elder Whistler was chief engineer of the Boston and Albany railroad, with headquarters in Springfield, Mass. In 1842 he went to Russia to act as engineer for the contemplated railroad from St. Petersburg to Moscow, as well as to build extensive dockyards and to improve the Russian rivers and harbors. He died in St. Petersburg, April 7, 1849.

Meantime his family seems to have been living in Stonington. After her husband's death Mrs. Whistler removed with her children to Pomfret. The following extract from the Bulletin of April 8, 1922, describes their life in that community:

Lived Simply at Pomfret

The house at Pomfret where James A. McNeill Whistler, great American painter, spent his boyhood days, was burned to the ground Wednesday morning, April 5. This farmhouse, known as "The Bowers," was a landmark in that section, for in it, in the days of the Whistlers, an important part in the social life of the town was played.

Mrs. Whistler and her two sons came to Pomfret from Stonington after the death of her husband, who left his family only a small sum of money. Previous to coming to Pomfret the Whistlers were prosperous and the boys lived like little princes. But in Pomfret they lived a simple life.

Whistler himself went abroad in very early manhood, and remained abroad almost continuously till his death, which took place at London July 17, 1903. He started his formal career as an artist in 1857 by enrolling in the studio of Gleyre at Paris. His etchings brought him fame as early as 1859. Shortly thereafter, and till his death, he occupied the front seat referred to by the Bulletin's Stonington correspondent.

The Famous Libel Trial

However, the seat did not go uncontested. In 1877, writing of Whistler's "Nocturnes" and other pieces, John Ruskin, the eminent critic, remarked:

"For Mr. Whistler's own sake, no less than for the protection of the purchaser, Sir Coutts Lindsay (the director) ought not to have admitted works into the gallery in which the ill-educated conceit of the artist so nearly approached the aspect of willful imposture. I have seen and heard much of cockney impudence before now, but never expected to hear a coxcomb ask 200 guineas for flinging a pot of paint in the public's face."

Whistler sued for libel. The case, possibly the most famous in all the history of art, was tried before Baron Huddlestone and a jury. They were audience to a display of the wit for which Whistler was famous.

The attorney general asked, when the price of a picture was under discussion:

"And so you ask 200 guineas for the labor of two days?"

"No," Whistler retorted, "I ask it for the knowledge of a lifetime."

"Do you think that you could make me see the beauty of that picture?" the attorney general went on.

"No," the artist responded, "I fear it would be as hopeless as for the musician to pour his notes into the ears of a deaf man."

The trial greatly damaged Ruskin's reputation as a critic and greatly stimulated interest in Whistler's work. Whistler won, though the damages awarded him amounted to only a farthing. He made a watch charm of the coin.

YOUR HEALTH

Your Friend—The Hospital

By S. Wachsmann, M. D., New York City.

(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

From the milder cases who are sent to the hospital for observation and rest, let us now turn to the more serious diseases which naturally belong to the hospital. Very often the family, well meaning of course, is only too willing to sacrifice their own comfort and will promise the physician to provide everything that may be necessary. It happens then that in the first few days everything seems to be going along smoothly, but if the condition gets worse, more serious and critical, the family gradually begins to feel that after all the patient might be much better off in a hospital. Unfortunately, by this time the patient may have become weaker and even the transportation to the hospital becomes a grave problem, because the trip in an ambulance is by no means a thing that should be taken lightly. The change in circumstances and surroundings has a bad effect on the patient whose vitality is already impaired. It is ever so much more advisable to transfer the patient at the earliest possible date.

Everybody knows that sudden changes or complications may occur almost with every serious illness. All sudden turns can be dealt with more successfully in a hospital where one word of the attending physician starts the machinery and the staff of the hospital going to meet the critical situations that may develop. X-ray equipment is ready if needed and the operating rooms are kept in a constant state of readiness.

Let me emphasize again that the hospital and the public ought to be friends, and the friendship will be strengthened if the public will know how to use the hospital to the best advantage for both, by not expecting the impossible, but whenever hospital treatment is indicated not to delay too long in having the patient admitted before it is too late.

The hospital has also other functions and activities besides taking care of patients under its roof. The clinics which are an important part of every large hospital are conducted for the purpose of treating people who are not bed-ridden and can even attend to their work or occupation. They also spread information in the community to help in the prevention of disease—for example, mothers are taught to feed and dress the children properly and a great deal is done to lower the infant mortality.

A rather important part of the large hospital is the Social Service bureau. This bureau is in charge of trained social workers, who look into the homes and surroundings of the patients' families, and give advice which enables the family to correct such conditions and circumstances as might impair the people's health.

When the public will see and appreciate what a good friend the hospital really is and what important services are rendered by it, more kindly interest will be manifested in all hospitals in general and more support will be given to them to fulfill their mission.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Blacky The Crow Guesses The Truth

Seek and you will find each day
Knowledge all along the way.
—Blacky the Crow.

Of all the people in the green forest none is smarter than Blacky the crow. Indeed, few are as smart. Certainly among the feathered folk none is his equal. The reason is that Blacky is always ready to learn. He is smart enough to know that he doesn't know it all; that something is to be learned every day even by the wisest and the most clever.

"You win, Peter," said he.

Blacky had taken no part in the excited search for the unseen singer in the green forest. From the top of a pine-tree he had watched all that went on. At first he had been quite as much puzzled as any one by that strange song. He noticed at once that Peter Rabbit didn't seem at all curious about it but appeared to be enjoying the perplexity of the others.

"Peter was right when he said he had heard a strange song over here, and now he has found out who the singer it," thought Blacky. "He got us all over here so as to laugh at us. I notice that scamp, Whitefoot the wood mouse, disappears about the time that song is heard and that it seems to come from near where he disappears. It seems to me that when I first started out in the great world my mother told me something about Whitefoot's family. Let me think. Let me think."

Blacky didn't have to think long. It suddenly came to him that he had heard that a wood mouse sometimes sings. Never having heard one sing he had forgotten all about it until now. Blacky's eyes twinkled. He said nothing but kept his eyes on Whitefoot. Presently Whitefoot disappeared in the hollow top of the old stump when the others were looking elsewhere. At once that song was heard again and Blacky knew that it came from the top of that stump. The others thought so too at first, but when they discovered no one there but Whitefoot they decided they were mistaken and began looking elsewhere.

Blacky flew over and alighted on the ground near Peter Rabbit. "You win, Peter," said he. "They say that he who laughs last laughs best, so I guess the best laugh is yours. You were right when you said you heard a song in the night, but you were wrong when you said the singer was one of the feathered folk. I know your singer was that night and who your singer is this morning."

"Who?" demanded Sammy Jay, who came along just in time to overhear this last remark.

"Whitefoot the wood mouse," replied Blacky.

Sammy stared at Blacky for a moment. Then he began to laugh. "Ha, ha, ha!" laughed Sammy. "Whoever heard of a mouse singing?"

"I have," replied Blacky. "I heard it a long time ago when I was young, but never half believed it."

"And I for one don't believe it now," interrupted Sammy Jay.

"Just the same Blacky is right," spoke up Peter Rabbit. "Whitefoot is the one who has been doing the mysterious singing. If you don't believe it he'll prove it to you."

Peter thumped. At once Whitefoot popped up on the edge of the big old stump. "Sing!" commanded Peter.

Whitefoot did sing, while the feathered folk gathered around and looked very much as if they still doubted what they heard and saw. "Why haven't we known before this that you can sing?" demanded Sammy Jay.

"Because I seldom do sing and you have never happened to be around when I have been singing," replied Whitefoot.

"We've all learned something," declared Blacky. "I've learned that it doesn't do to tease people unless you know you know all the facts. The rest of you have learned that it isn't necessary to wear feathers in order to be a singer. All of us have learned that much as we may know we can learn more each day. Now I'm going to get my breakfast."

The next story: "Lightfoot's Little Joke."

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21—It was the Bystander's good fortune to have known General Bliss back in the last of "the old army days" before the World war, even before the Mexican border mobilization and the passage of the first national defense act in 1916.

The army of today had its beginnings in those two pre-1917 happenings.

The Bystander also knew General Bliss as chief of staff in most trying times.

Yet the incident concerning this old soldier that comes first to mind, now that he is dead, full of years and honors, has nothing to do with either period of his career.

The scene was in France at the peace conference. The only survivor among the actors now that Bliss is dead is David Lloyd George, wartime prime minister of England.

With 'Big' Three

For it fell to the lot of General Bliss, under command of President Wilson, to discuss before the "big three" at Versailles the merits of the plan Marshal Foch had devised for penning Russia's red revolution, within a military guard line, a "cordon sanitaire," as Foch termed it.

And Bliss, gruff old soldier that he seemed, might have been expected to criticise in detail yet approve in principle such a scheme.

He did not. He waved aside technical military considerations, fell back upon a lifetime of scholarly and philosophical devotion to the study of history and set a ruthless foot upon the Foch plan. It died a-borning.

Philosopher

The Bystander happened to read in Washington at that time a confidential text of what Bliss said to the "big three." Probably it has been published now. In any event, the Bystander has never forgotten it, since it pictured a Bliss so utterly different from the blunt, harsh tongued, grim faced old soldier the world knew.

The Bliss of that scene in France was a philosopher in shoulder straps—a man of whom the Bystander had thought he caught rare glimpses even before.

He talked with sympathy and understanding of the cycles of revolution spread over the written pages of the history of mankind; of the germs of human thought and emotion that underlay each as humanity struggled upward.

If Russia's turmoil was based on no new idea of human beterment, he argued, it would prove a mere incident in history. But if it held a new germ of truth the Foch plan would be a futile gesture.

"Bayonets never have stopped and never will stop an idea," said this life-long professional man-at-arms.

That was the end of the cordon sanitaire. And it was, the Bystander has reason to think, the biggest moment in the career of Tasker Bliss in his own eyes.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

Patient Waiting

How much of patient waiting we have to learn in the early spring days and how eager we are to hasten the blooming time. We would bring forth the tender plants and tender buds only to be nipped by a sharp wintry blast. Patience, we often declare, is a virtue but we say it in a lugubrious tone though we acknowledge it to be a most beautiful trait in a character. The Christian who waits on God in all things patiently is a comfort to all those around him. He is willing to wait God's time and when the warm sunny days are interspersed by the cold, rainy ones, or to have run away, he smiles and says, Our Father made this creation, and he knows the plants must not be hurried. There are many spiritual lessons in the blooming of the plants for the children of the King. How perfectly the flowers fulfill their creator's plan. The lily remains a lily, and the violet a violet; neither tries to look like the other. God wishes is to retain our individuality. We must seek first to find His plan for our life and then look to Him for strength to carry it out.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Company, Fairfield.

The Fairfield branch of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. was founded in 1897 as the Fairfield Rubber company, and for years was the recognized leader in the manufacture of rubberized fabrics for the carriage trade.

As the carriage industry gave way to the automobile, it was only natural that this newer industry should turn to the Fairfield Rubber company as the source of supply for their top requirements, under which condition Fairfield rubberized fabrics became the leading materials for motor car tops.

In 1916, in order to supplement their lines of coated fabrics, E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. purchased the Fairfield Rubber company, and now operate it for the manufacture of various types of rubber coated fabrics. Under du Pont control and management the Fairfield branch has enjoyed a tremendous expansion.

For the automobile trade they have developed Du Pont Everbright Pontop, a rubberized top materials of unusual durability for closed car tops. This material is the largest selling deck material manufactured. Here also is manufactured a line of du Pont teal for covering collapsible coupes and sport cars.

In addition to automotive products, which comprise the largest percentage of Fairfield's manufacture, an extensive line of rubberized fabrics for various other purposes has been developed. Chief among these new materials is Du Pont Fairfield fabric. This material is used extensively in the manufacture of raincoats and in the roughwear field for such garments as wind breakers, sheep lined coats, leggings, etc.

Another important product manufactured at Fairfield is Du Pont Ventube which is a flexible tubing manufactured from rubberized fabric and used for secondary ventilation in coal and metal mines. It is also used in the ventilation of tunnel construction. This material is used in practically all the important mining centers in the world.

Recently the Fairfield plant developed a product known as Du Pont Pontan, which is being used extensively for quarterlinings in shoes, where it takes the place of sheep skin previously used for this purpose.

A complete line of rubber sheeting for hospital, institutional and household use is included among the important rubberized items manufactured at this plant. Du Pont sheeting for household use is obtainable at department stores and drug stores throughout the country.

A specialty which has been developed at Fairfield is Du Pont rug anchor. This is a specially prepared fabric used under rugs to hold them firmly in place. The product is sold by the better floor covering stores throughout the country.

The complete line of Fairfield manufacture contains rubberized fabrics for a large variety of uses. In addition to the items enumerated above, rubberized fabrics for the corset industry, for refrigerator gaskets weatherstripping, playballs and the novelty field are manufactured in volume by the du Pont company.

This company maintains extensive laboratories at Fairfield for research and development work, and it is because of these facilities that they have been able to establish themselves as outstanding leaders in the field of rubberized fabrics. The Fairfield plant is operated as a branch of the Fabrikoid plant located at Newburgh, N. Y., the entire production at Fairfield being devoted to various types of rubberized fabrics.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Questions

Mr. Editor: Can "A Republican" approximate how much it cost to carry the last republican primary from the town of Preston in the nomination of representatives to the next legislature?

Does he know why five offices have to be filled by two men from the same office receiving their appointment from the same source?

Can he tell the body politic why one man who is the titular leader of the party has to hold a state job at $5,000 a year, a county job at $360 a year, a town job at $300 a year?

Will he explain why the county had to expend about $250,000 for a new county home that certain people should have their name on a bronze plate?

Will he indicate the relationship between the Connecticut Light and Power company and other officials in high municipal office? Throw on the calcium Mr. Editor, serve your constituents—let no guilty man escape.

WHY WE SELL
Pasteurized Milk
ONLY pasteurized milk offers you the highest degree of absolute safety, and only the purest of milk is good enough for your family. The esteem which we hold for our customers is such that we can only offer them pure, rich, safe, milk, for no other food is quite as vital.
So many illnesses grow out of raw milk that neither you nor we can afford to gamble with health. Use only pasteurized milk. It costs no more.
Louis Pasteur, a famous French scientist, inventor of vaccinel treatments, known to you as vaccinations administered to children, was also the discoverer of pasteurization of milk.

HISTORY OF DIOCESE BY VICAR-GEN'L DUGGAN

Norwich Catholic parishes are given space in the history of the Diocese of Hartford (the state of Connecticut) just issued under the title, "The Catholic Church in Connecticut." The volume of 641 pages was compiled by Rt. Rev. Msgr. Thomas S. Duggan, D. D., Vicar-General of the diocese, rector of St. Joseph's Cathedral and for the past 35 years editor of The Catholic Transcript.

In a single hundred years in Connecticut the denomination has grown from a lone parish and a Roman Catholic population of half a hundred, to over 230 parishes and upwards of 600,000 souls.

The first parish church of the diocese was established in Hartford; but the first church in Norwich was not far behind and of its beginnings, early struggles and ultimate marvellous achievements Monsignor Duggan writes with the skill of one who has his facts well in hand, and who has a trained eye to survey the field, past and present, selecting salient data from a great mass of historical and mere parochial records. With characteristic good judgment, the historian has set forth those occurrences which have made for the growth of the diocese and the church in a general way, and their relativity to what has transpired through the other parishes of the state as a whole. He "looks quite through the deeds of men" and has left pictures of places and portraits of the builders of the diocese, to remain on its pages so indelibly as to make the volume one for reference, to be reread and valued by the generations which will derive inspiration and new heartening, as they ponder this record of a people, humble and obscure in beginning, but favored by Divine guidance and beneficence, until its dozen nationalities, of varying tongues, of diverse origin, differing in color and diversified in customs, nevertheless have carried on in the firmness of their faith, are welded into one great flock, hearing the voice of the one Shepherd and of His representatives on earth. It is a remarkable work and is as entertaining as it is historically accurate and valuable.

The book is issued in two editions, each liberally illustrated, containing index, statistics, portraits, cuts of church edifices and other ecclesiastical institutions, et all. The first is a practical issue and the other a de luxe volume. There has been keen interest throughout the diocese over the completion of the work and Monsignor Duggan is receiving the felicitations of clergy and laity on this latest triumph of his pen.

VERMONT ACADEMY LOSES SECOND IN 3 YEARS

NEW YORK, Nov. 21—(AP)—Vermont academy eleven of Saxon, Vt., lost its second engagement in three years today, bowing to New York university's freshmen, 6 to 0. The game wound up the Violet freshman season with six victories in seven games.

White plunged over for the lone touchdown of the game in the fourth quarter after the N. Y. U. backs plunged from Vermont's 40 yard line to the three yard mark. A poor kick by De Bellis gave N. Y. U. the ball in Vermont territory. The try for point was blocked.

Vermont made its strongest bid in the first half and outplayed the Violets after a featureless first period. De Bellis missed a try for field goal in the second quarter from N. Y. U.'s 28 yard line and twice Vermont penetrated the Violet 20 yard line after long passes. The Freshman managed to halt both attacks short of the goal.

N. Y. U. missed a fine scoring opportunity in the third quarter when the strong Vermont line held for downs on its own six yard stripe.

DR. JEFFERSON CONCLUDES SERIES OF ADDRESSES

Rev. Charles E. Jefferson of New York, concluded on Friday evening at the United Congregational church the series of inspirin gaddresses which he has been giving for meetings this week under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian association.

His text was the verse from Matthew, Let your light so shine before men that they, seeing your good works, shall glorify your father who is in heaven. In other words this meant that the Christian's life should become a social force, drawing the hearts of men nearer to their maker, the preacher said. Jesus said I am the light of the world and ye are the light of the world. It would seem that the Christian's supreme mission is to shine and it is also the mission of the church to shine, to light up a world that is dark. If the individual or the church is not shining the question is what has caused them to be dim. The church is ranked by God according to its ability to shine, declared Dr. Jefferson, who said that he would leave as a closing word with his Norwich audiences the words of Jesus, Let your light so shine that men seeing your good works shall glorify your father who is in heaven.

Rev. Theodore M. Shipherd of Park Congregational church presided and conducted the opening devotional exercises.

NORTH STONINGTON MAN CHAMPION WOOD CHOPPER

A wood chopping contest, under the auspices of the New London County Farm bureau, took place Friday at the wood lot owned by Ripley Parks in North Stonington. At 11 o'clock there was a discussion on the management of the lot and those present inspected the growth of a thinning demonstration in 1926. An outdoor luncheon was enjoyed at noon and at 2 o'clock the wood chopping contest took place.

Chopping an 11 1-2 inch log in two minutes and 10 seconds, Charles Elias of North Stonington won first prize, a Diamond axe. Second prize went to Alfred Crofts, also of North Stonington. Mr. Parks, who is considered one of the best wood choppers in the state, chopped an 11-inch log in 58 seconds and felled a 10-inch tree to a peg in 45 seconds.

Rev. Philip L. Massicott was the celebrant, Rev. John H. Quinn the deacon, Rev. Henry Chabot the sub-deacon and the children's choir sang.

The burial was in Sacred Heart cemetery, Wauregan, and Rev. Father Quinn conducted the committal service. The bearers were James Moore, Austin Coughlin, Leander DeForge, Richard Maggia, Dominick Diversi and Barthelmow Constantine. There were many beautiful flowers and mourners were present from Danielson, New Haven and Central Village. Dougherty Bros., undertakers, of Moosup, had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Paul Prive

The funeral of Paul Prive was held Friday morning at 8:15 o'clock at his home, No. 148 Main street, Baltic, with a large attendance of relatives and friends. There was a requiem mass at the Church of the Immaculate Conception at 9 o'clock, and Rev. A. A. Jalbert was the celebrant. Miss Nellie Milner presided at the organ.

The interment was in the Sacred Heart cemetery, Wauregan, and Rev. Fr. Jalbert conducted the committal service, Emil Casavant, Henry Barr, Ovila Privy, Arthur Duprey, Paul Greenwood and William Privy were the bearers and included in the large attendance was a delegation from St. John's society and mourners from Rhode Island, Massachusetts and New York were also present. There were many beautiful floral tributes. Undertaker G. G. Grant had charge of the funeral arrangements.

OBITUARY

Miss Hattie B. Palmer

Miss Hattie B. Palmer died at 5 o'clock Friday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson C. Disco of No. 210 Broadway, with whom she had been making her home for several months past. Her death followed an illness of about two weeks. Miss Palmer was born in Norwich 62 years ago, the daughter of Charles H. and Abbie Heath Palmer, and was educated in the public schools here. She was a life-long resident of Norwich, where she was well known and respected, especially by the older citizens. She was a member of the Central Baptist church. Two brothers, Willard Palmer of Groton and Walter Palmer, boss farmer at the Norwich State hospital, survive her.

Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Hanson have retired after tending the Willapa, Wash., Harbor light for 35 years.

In his address on Why I Feel Repaid for My Work as Local Leader, Paul Holdridge of Ledyard, said:

Perhaps not the most important reason that I like to be a 4-H local leader but surely, one that really counts is the fact that always I have a good time at 4-H club meetings. Sometimes the meetings don't seem to go very well. Generally they go very good, but, whether good or bad, everybody seems to have a good time. There is always that Four-H club spirit present which has taught us to work together, and to play together, but, whether working or playing, to have a good time.

Another very important reason is the knowledge the leader gains from the meetings. I honestly and truly believe that the leader gains more from the meetings than the members. This is because the member expects the leader to know about the projects, and wishing to do what is expected, the leader will study to keep ahead of the club members and I know that I have to do some studying to even keep up with some of the members.

And, of course, everyone likes to feel that he is doing something for his community. A local leader gets quite a little credit. Sometimes I feel that he gets some of the credit that should belong to the older members of the club, to the parents and to the friends of club members without whom I doubt if any Four-H club would be a success.

These reasons, first, that I can always enjoy the 4-H meetings, second, that I learn a great deal from clubwork, and third, because clubwork is a definite factor for the good of community life, are only a few of the many good reasons for being a local leader, but I believe that anyone of them would more than repay me for all the time that I have spent as a local leader.

Mrs. Clark Woodmansee of Preston, in her talk on Why I Want My Children to Belong to 4-H Clubs, said:

First of all it is a good thing for boys and girls, especially those who live in the country, to belong to 4-H clubs because they can work with others who are interested in the same things. In this way receiving much more benefit than by working at home by themselves [illegible] thought of as drudgery is considered an art.

In the second place, the girls learn how to do certain things such as canning, cooking, sewing, and so forth the right way. In canning, for example, many fruits and vegetables are economically used which might otherwise be wasted, in cooking, many times, it is very helpful if there is someone who can prepare and serve a meal and in sewing, I think that all mothers will agree that it is a great help if the girls can, at least, mend their own stockings.

Perhaps in many cases these things could be taught at home, yet there would not be that interest, competition and experience which are obtained through club work. For the boys there are poultry, dairy and a number of other clubs and I hope that our boy will be interested in some of these clubs as soon as he is old enough to join so that he will have something worth while to do on the farm, and something that is really his own, with the responsibility and interest which naturally follow.

Third, it gives the boys and girls the opportunity of meeting other 4-H club members from different parts of the county and state, therefore adding to the number of friends and acquaintances and giving them a broader view of usefulness and service to their home, their community and their country.

The awards were presented by Fred M. Abell, president of the New London County Farm Bureau, Randolph W. Whaples, county club agent and Miss Elizabeth Grover, assistant club agent. Moving pictures brought the meeting to a close.

D. A. R. MOTION PICTURE REVIEW FOR NOVEMBER

In the review of motion pictures by the D. A. R. reviewing committee, the following are some of the productions noted this month:

Check And Double Check — Amos and Andy give a very delightful performance in this amusing comedy. Good, clean comedy; well directed. Family junior matinees.

A Lady's Morals—Dorothy Farnum, author, Sydney Franklin, director, and a fine cast have made of this romance a picture of outstanding merit. Although the love story seems to be pure fiction, the production as a whole is one of the finest. Family. Too mature for children.

Tom Sawyer —Jackie Coogan will delight all his old admirers and win many new ones by his interpretation of Mark Twain's inimitable Tom. Family. Junior matinees.

Whoopee— The comedy situations are ridiculous; the sets gorgeous; color sequences beautiful; but some of the dialogue is vulgar. This highly entertaining comedy will probably prove one of the big hits of the year. Family.

Renegades—Filled with tense, dramatic, sometimes confusing moments, the picture will not appeal to the average audience. Adults.

Her Man— This picture is well written and ably directed, but is not of a type that interests the average audience. The story is laid in low saloons in some outpost of civilization. Adults.

The Virtuous Sin — Kay Francis Walter Huston and a very good cast re-enact the dramatic story of a Russian wife who loves her people so much that she would give more than her life to save the life of her husband for Russia. Adults.

Africa Speaks—A very fine travelogue through Africa's wildest territory, starting from the mouth of the Niger river. A thrilling picture of adventure. Family. Junior matinees.

NORWICH DEFEATS WESTERLY IN K. OF C. PINOCHLE

In the opening match of a series of pinochle games between the Knights of Columbus lodges in Norwich and Westerly, which was played Friday evening in the K. of C. home on Broadway, the Norwich players took the match by a total of 31,618 points to 19,724 for Westerly. A buffet lunch was served after the games.

The following were the individual scores:

Norwich 31,618—E. Mullin, 2028; Wm. Harrington, 2249; John Tarrant, 3296; E. G. McKay, 2260; J. O. Donovan, 2261; J. Lyston, 2897; Fr. Dargan, 1979; J. Cronin, 1859; D. Mullin, 1900; Wm. Stoudt, 2668; F. Kingsley, 2802; Wm. Shannon, 2419.

Westerly 19,274—J. P. McMahon, 2018; C. L. Murphy, 1466; William Bell, 1520; M. Cunningham, 1053; M. Driscoll, 1151; E. W. Murphy, 1165; Fr. Cassagne, 1486; George Lavanini, 1681; J. Gencarelli, 2454; S. Pigitoni, 1848; E. Shackley, 2463; J. McCarthy, 1419.

SUPERIOR COURT GRANTS 3 FORECLOSURE JUDGMENTS

Judgment of foreclosure by sale, in the amount of $3,147.30, was entered by Judge Christopher L. Avery at a short calendar session of the superior court in New London Friday in the case of Alvard J. Huggard, of Montville, against Mrs. Eva May Jones, of Quaker Hill. The mortgage is on two houses and a tract of land at Quaker Hill, and Judge Avery ordered that the property be sold Dec. 20 at 10 a. m. Arthur H. Shurts, agent, was appointed as a committee to conduct the sale; and James A. May, Lloyd Gallup and Albert Patterson, all of this city, were appointed as appraisers.

Foreclosure judgments were entered in the cases of the Eastern Connecticut Bond and Mortgage Co., against Brockett and Freedman, et al. In the Brockett case the amount involved is $1,006.40 and the defendant was given until Dec. 15 to redeem in this amount. In the Freedman case the amount involved is $1,572.67 and Dec. 15 was also set as the final date for redemption.

In the case of the Chelsea Savings bank of Norwich against Cicconi and others, foreclosure judgment in the amount of $1,556.67 was entered, and Dec. 15 was also set as the redemption closing date.

Action on a motion filed by counsel for Mary H. Moutran for an order requiring her husband, Alfred Moutran, New London linen salesman, to pay her alimony, pending the disposition of a divorce suit she had instituted against him, was continued for two weeks through mutual agreement of the opposing attorneys.

Motions for more specific statements and for an additional bond were granted in the case of Gray and others against the state of Connecticut.

An order was issued to cite George C. Butts, Jr., as a party defendant in a civil suit that has been brought by the Savings Bank of New London against George C. Butts and others.

SUMMONED INTO COURT ON CONTEMPT ALLEGATION

On the allegation that Reuben Prottas, former Niantic merchant, had failed to pay alimony pendente lite of $18 a week to his wife in connection with a divorce suit which has been brought against him, Prottas was brought into the superior court at New London Friday to answer to a motion that he be adjudged in contempt of court, this motion having been made by Attorney Max Boyer, counsel for the wife.

Attorney Leon Beisheim, appearing as counsel for Prottas, said that his client had given his wife $40 Thursday night and set forth that he had been unable to make previous payments because he had no money. Attorney Beisheim said that Prottas' store had been closed by creditors several weeks ago and that he was now preparing to file a petition in bankruptcy.

Attorney Boyer charged that Prottas was defiant in his attitude towards his wife and had openly boasted that he would not pay his wife any more than $10 per week. She is suing for divorce on the grounds of adultery and on April 17, last, Judge Allyn L. Brown ordered Prottas to pay her the sum of $18 per week and Attorney Boyer said that Prottas had committed a direct contempt of court by ignoring the order.

Judge Avery ordered the case continued for two weeks and advised Prottas to make arrangements in the meantime to bring his payments to his wife up to date.

A motion by Attorney Boyer asking that Evangelo Panagiotou of Norwich be also adjudged in contempt of court for failing to pay alimony to his wife Olga, pending the trial of her divorce suit against him, was dismissed. Dismissal was ordered after Mr. Boyer, counsel for Mrs. Panagiotou, had made it known that the defendant had paid up his alimony arrears since the motion was set down for hearing.

SECOND SIMILAR ACCIDENT FOR SUMNER C. LANG

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 21.—Sumner C. Lang, 72, of 63 Boy State avenue, West Somerville, Mass., who was, a few days ago, found not criminally liable in the death of George T. Platt, aged Andover baggage master, figured in another accident on North Windham road and Phelps crossing near here about 5 o'clock this afternoon in which a woman was injured. The woman, Mrs. Josephine Demauro of North Windham, aged 62, was driving a wagon on which there was no light. Mr. Lang came along in the same direction and hit the vehicle in the rear, completely wrecking the buggy.

Mrs. Demauro was taken to her home by George Hall of Hampton. Upon examination by Dr. Nathan Spector she was found to have sustained a sprained left shoulder, sprains of both ankles and lacerations on the right calf. The horse was apparently uninjured but the Lang machine was damaged to the extent of two broken headlights and one front fender. Investigation by Police Officer Pierre Marrotte, disclosed that Mr. Lang could not have been traveling at a very fast rate of speed as the broken glass from the headlights was under the front wheels indicating a quick stop.

In the fatal accident at Andover in which Mr. Platt received injuries from which he died some days later at St. Joseph's hospital, Mr. Lang struck the baggagemaster who was wheeling a wheelbarrow, containing mail matter, from the railroad station to the post office at Andover.

Coroner Arthur G. Bill found that Mr. Platt had failed to have a proper light on his wheelbarrow and that Mr. Lang was partially blinded by the headlights of approaching automobiles, thereby establishing a condition similar to that existing in this afternoon's mishap. Mr. Lang is a salesman for the Delaware Mills, Inc.

TEACHERS OF TWO DISTRICTS HELD DISCUSSION MEETING

The teachers in the towns of Woodstock, Pomfret, Union and Eastford, under the supervision of Calvin Stanley, visited the schools of Canterbury, Lisbon and Sterling last Tuesday. Following the visitation day, the teachers of these two supervisory districts met with the teachers of the Plainfield schools at the Plainfield High school for a discussion period.

Prof. George Howe of the New Britain State Normal school, who is conducting an extension course with these groups, opened the discussion, setting forth some of the principles of the modern school and how the subject matter should be adapted to meet the needs of today.

Following Mr. Howe, Mr. Stanley opened a lively discussion, setting forth his ideas as to the best methods of procedure in the education of the children. Following Mr. Stanley, Edwin B. Floyd, field supervisor of rural education, continued the discussion of the value of the modern progressive school in child development. His teachers eagerly corroborated his ideas by definite experiences from their own school room and a lively discussion ensued between the various groups of teachers.

Dr. Welte, principal of New Britain State Normal school, in discussing the educational procedure, expressed his appreciation of what the modern school is doing for the child.

Mr. Chapman, superintendent of Plainfield schools, addressed the group, giving them some inside views as to what a modern, progressive high school is attempting to do for the pupils. He said that such activities as would promote the physical, social and mental growth of the child into the best type of citizen are of most value in his high school.

Mr. Light, state director of rural education, concluded the meeting by emphasizing that life during the past 25 years has been so completely changed that the machine age has given us more leisure time, better living conditions, etc., that the principal business of the schools is to so educate the pupils that they will adjust themselves to meet these new conditions of life in developing worth-while citizens with attitudes and habits essential to building worthy citizenship.

Following this discussion, the home economics department of the Plainfield High school served a delicious supper which was appreciated by the visiting teachers. The general comment of the meeting was that it had proven to be most stimulating and thought-provoking.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

YALE WEEKLY EXPRESSES ITSELF ON ARMY-NAVY GAME

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 21—(AP)—Yale Alumni Weekly today commenting on football and praise of the Yale-Princeton game as one that showed "what intercollegiate football can be," said it would like to see renewal of the Army-Navy game annually.

"There are, we realize," the Weekly said, "real difficulties in the way; we should like to see West Point take the lead in settling them for the good of the game throughout the country."

Alluding to some demand which has been manifest by Yale alumni for a game with Navy the weekly said that many Yale men would like to see the university's athletic authorities adopt the broad policy of scheduling only such football teams each season as have Yale's own eligibility and preseason practice rules. "The question is," "Just what is university football for?" If it is what we believe Yale takes it to be, a sport, then Yale should play only with teams that have the same viewpoint and which put it into practical effect by regulations which coincide with that attitude."

RADIO CO. TO DONATE 15,000 RADIOS TO CAUSE

NEW YORK, Nov. 21—(AP)—The fund to be netted for the unemployed when Army and Navy clash in the Yankee stadium Dec. 13 took on new proportions with the announcement of completion of arrangements for broadcasting the game.

Philco Storage Battery Co., sponsors of the broadcast for which all facilities of the National Broadcast Co. and the Columbia Broadcast company have been donated, have donated 15,000 radio sets to be auctioned off by the Salvation Army with the proceeds, estimated at about $180,000, to be tossed into the fund. A cash donation of between $30,000 and $50,000 also has been made by the Philco company.

The broadcast is due to start at 12:15 p. m. Graham McNamee and Bill Munday will describe the scenes for the National Broadcasting company with Ted Husing at the mike for Columbia. The coast to coast networks of both companies will be in operation.

DARTMOUTH ELEVEN OFF FOR PACIFIC COAST GAME

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 21—(AP)—The entire student body gathered at the railroad station this afternoon to accord the undefeated Dartmouth college football squad a noisy send-off as an official contingent of 55 left in a special train for Palo Alto, Cal., where the team will oppose Leland Stanford in the Rose bowl on Nov. 29. This is the first trip to the coast since 1920, when the University of Washington was defeated.

Prior to the departure of the Indians, the players went through their final home drill this morning. A stop will be made in Chicago long enough to give the players a chance to have a drill on the Oak Park high school field.

Kansas political leaders have formed political clubs among students at more than a dozen universities and colleges.

PETROLLE SURPRISES BOXING FANS BY LACING MCLARNIN

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Billy Petrolle, rugged, clouting veteran from the hills of North Dakota, turned in the ultimate in surprises for the fight faithful tonight by hammering Jimmy McLarnin, the Clouting Colt, into one of the worst defeats of the Irishman's spectacular career.

A crowd of 12,500, banner throng in these days of unemployment, bounced around in their seats in vociferous amazement as Petrolle, granite-chinned and relentless as a maddened bull pup, smashed the class of the welterweights about the ring for ten full rounds, dumped him in the resin twice for counts of nine in the fourth session, and ran away fresh and eager with the unanimous decision at the end of the battle. It was one of the most exciting and bloody battles the Garden ever has seen and McLarnin at the close was a fearful sight.

Blood streamed from cuts below his eyes, in his lips and alongside his nose, and there were lumps along both cheek bones that threatened to cut off his sight in the closing rounds. The crimson stream covered his face and chest and the sight of the gory figure of the deadly Irishman, reeling through round after round and desperately fighting off the ever-threatening knockout, just about furnished the customers the millenium in fistic spectacles.

New York faithful have become so accustomed to seeing McLarnin clip his rivals on the chin and scarcely bother to see where they fell that they made him a three and four to one favorite to beat the hard-hitting westerner, who long ago was believed to have seen the best of his fighting days. But Petrolle fooled McLarnin, and fooled the betting customers, too. With a curling left hook that drummed all night on the side of cherubic Jimmy's head, plunged into his body, and kept him constantly on the run, Billy alternated with straight rights that made a mess of the other side of McLarnin's face and in the clinches he always seemed to hold the upper hand.

McLarnin in defeat was a game and inspiring battler. In the very first round, Petrolle, fighting out of a crouch, plodding relentlessly forward with both fists flying, whipped a right to Jimmy's head that opened a cut under his left eye. In the second McLarnin almost went down under a blistering barrage to the chin, but he managed to keep himself erect and even square the third round with a last minute rally that set Petrolle back on his heels.

Then, when he seemed at last to have found himself, McLarnin ran into that same left hook, a numbing, twisting wallop that caught him full on the chin and floored him for a count of nine less than a minute after the start of the fourth round.

Jimmy reeled to his feet, took everything the furious punching Petrolle had in his arsenal, and then crumpled again for nine under the barrage. But he came up, bloody and battered, absorbed one of the fiercest beatings he ever has been forced to take, and was still on his feet, punching back sullenly but with gathering strength, as the round ended.

From that point on, though McLarnin rallied to carry the fifth and ninth rounds, it seemed only a question of how much punishment Jimmy could absorb and still keep on fighting.

As the rounds wore on he took a terrible lacing but at the end he was still squinting through the blood, still popping with hsi left, wavering backward, waiting for the right hand shot that landed occasionally but never seemed to disturb Petrolle.

Billy won seven rounds, McLarnin two and one was even.

The astonishing conquest, third in succession in which a highly rated favorite has gone down to defeat in the Garden ring, jumps Petrolle, the Fargo Express, now steamin gout of Duluth, into the commanding position among the lightweights. He whipped Tony Canzoneri decisively a few weeks before the Italian won the 135-pound title from Al Singer in a surprising knockout here last week. Earlier he dropped a hair-line decision to Jackie Kid Berg, British whirlwind, in another spectacular duel.

Petrolle's victory rounds out the trio of underdogs in the betting who have finished out in front in the last three Garden fights. Kid Chocolate was a four to one favorite when he lost to Fidel LaBarba, Singer was a four to one choice over Canzoneri, and McLarnin was about anythnig you wanted to ask from three to one up. McLarnin had a slight weight advantage, scaling 141 pounds to Petrolle's 138.

NEW CITY RECORD SET FOR SINGLE BOWLING STRING

Sidney Shabecoff, one of the premier bowlers of the city, hung up a new city duck pin record for high single in a match at the Aetna alleys last night. Sidney hit the maples for a total of 185 which beats the old record held by Claude Combies by two pins. In his string Sidney missed a one-pin spare, took only two on another and then missed another two-pinner. However, he had four strikes in succession. If he had picked up the two spares he missed and had gotten anything on the other one he would have been close to the 200-mark if not over it.

LOUGHRAN STAGES RALLY TO BEAT LEVINSKY

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Tommy Loughran, boxing wizard from Philadelphia, completely subdued the wild, heavy-swinging King Levinsky, in a ten-round bout in the Chicago stadium tonight.

Knocked to the floor for a count of nine in the second round, Loughran former world's light-heavyweight champion, came back with all his amazing boxing skill to defeat Levinsky beyond all question of doubt.

Loughran won nine of the ten rounds, losing only the second when the Kingfish hit him on the side of the head with a right hand punch he started off his shoe tops.

The verdict of the two judges and the referee, Dave Barry, was unanimous, and met with a roar of approval from the 13,420 spectators.

Academy and Bulkeley today. The gridiron rivalry of many years standing will be renewed at the Academy campus this afternoon with an Academy team of only mediocre calibre clashing with a Bulkeley team of equal strength. Which should make it a pretty good game at that.

We remember when these Academy-Bulkeley tilts used to be as torrid affairs as one could see anywhere in the country. Half the fun of attending an Academy-Bulkeley affair was in watching the fights that started in the crowds. There is very little of that nowadays and the interest in the game extends only to the student body and a few of the old grads.

I remember one game in particular a number of years ago when one of our Academy students was a timekeeper at the game which that year was played in New London. The Academy toward the tail end of the game was one touchdown behind but was going strong toward Bulkeley's goal. However, the time was fast speeding away and it seemed almost impossible that the Academy could reach the goal in the time left. However, by some miracle the Academy timekeeper's watch stopped and the Bulkeley timekeeper was relying on the Norwich watch to keep his time. The Norwich time-keeper did not become aware of the fact that his watch was wrong until after the Academy tied the score with a touchdown. When it became known that the game had gone overtime there was a grand rush for the Norwich timer but he managed to get away by fleetness of foot alone.

That bout last night between Petrolle and McLarnin must have been a sweet contest to watch. Those who saw it had nothing to complain about in the way of action. Which reminds us that on Dec. 5th local fans will have a chance to see one of those same kind of matches when Vic Darr and Al Koziol tangle at Parish hall. Darr is the ruling favorite but there are plenty who are of the opinion that Koziol will take Darr regardless of his showing in the last bout.

Down at Yale bowl today will assemble the sons of old Eli and the sons of John Harvard. No matter what has been the success of these two teams during the season there is always bound to be a big turn out. And anything can happen in this game today. Harvard can lose every game during the season and still call it a successful year if they but trim Yale. And the same holds true with Yale. Today's game to the football enthusiast who doesn't own a sheepskin from either institution is just another game. Neither team has shown the power of previous years but seem to be well matched.

MILLER-McKAY AGAINST GUNSHINAN-AHERN TONIGHT

Massie B. Miller, professional at the Norwich Golf club for the past few years, makes his last public appearance tonight in a pro-amateur match at the Castle Garden indoor golf course. The local professional, who leaves Monday morning for the winter tournaments in Florida, will be paired with E. G. McKay, runner up in the club championship this year. Miller and McKay will play against Barney Gunshinan and Dow Ahern of Willimantic, Gunshinan being the professional and Dow Ahern is the club champion of the Willimantic Country club. This is the first pro-amateur match to be held in the city on an indoor course.

This match will be watched closely as each of the four is an exceptionally good man with the putter. Following the match Massie will give a short exhibition of driving. The match is scheduled for 9 o'clock.

MISSIONARY WOMEN PROTEST AGAINST COLLEGE YELLS

BATON ROUGE, La., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Resolutions protesting football yells at Louisiana State university were adopted today by the Women's Missionary union of the Judson Baptist association.

The ministers were asked in the resolutions to join in the protest.

The women were asked what yells were objectionable. They replied they would not repeat "such words."

ONLY ONE GAME HAS BEARING ON NATIONAL GRID TITLE TODAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 21—(AP)—There is just one college football battle tomorrow, so far as the national championship situation is concerned and it will be fought out in suburban Chicago between Northwestern's Wildcats and Notre Dame's Rough Riders.

It brings together two of the greatest unbeaten teams of the year. It will be watched only by some 49,000 spectators at Dyche stadium, although mammoth Soldier field could be sold out to its capacity of around 125,000 if the game could have been shifted there. It will be followed indirectly by millions of radio listeners.

The outcome will be scanned with special interest on opposite sides of the continent, for West Point has a date with Notre Dame next Saturday at Soldier field and Southern California has a reception committee waiting for the Rough Riders at the Los Angeles coliseum, Dec. 6.

Win, lose or draw, Notre Dame will play its final two games before close to 200,000 spectators in two of the biggest sports arenas of the entire country.

The ability of Rockne's Raiders to get along without Joe Savoldi, as well as the winning streaks of both teams, will be at stake in the battle of Evanston.

Though they may arouse much less national frenzy, the two traditional "naturals" of the day, Harvard-Yale at New Haven and Stanford-California at Berkeley, will be played before far bigger crowds. Around 90,000 probably will witness the coast's "big game" between the two principal victims of Southern California's high-scoring juggernaut. Down east, the ancient tussle of the Blue and Crimson will be witnessed by more than 75,000 spectators.

Both promise to be fairly close and hard-fought, although Stanford and Yale are conceded slight advantages on the season's records. California and Harvard, after a series of disasters, can be counted on nevertheless to make mighty efforts to pull something out of the wreckage.

The Big Ten season in the midwest comes to a close, with Michigan favored to whip Chicago at Ann Arbor and clinch the right of the Wolverines to share the conference championship with Northwestern.

Old rivalries are keen enough to make interesting such other conference games as Ohio State-Illinois, Purdue-Indiana, Minnesota-Wisconsin. Iowa takes on Nebraska in the renewal of another neighborly rivalry.

Southern gridirons have a breathing spell, so far as the conference championship race is concerned, with Alabama and Tulane setting the pace. These two will be tied, with perfect conference records, if they dispose of Georgia and Louisiana state, respectively, Thanksgiving day.

The Big Six features the classic between Kansas and Missouri. It will be none the less hard fought because of the early season debate over the eligibility of certain Jayhawker players, including Jarring Jim Bausch, and the ouster move against Kansas.

Bo McMillin's Kansas Aggies, play Centre in a game that revives memories of the days when Bo led the "Praying Colonels" of Kentucky to nation-wide gridiron fame. It might be a better match if McMillin could play for his old team again.

The Southwest Conference race is still undecided despite the sensational rush of the University of Texas. The Rampaging Longhorns do not play tomorrow but Southern Methodist and Texas Christian, the 1929 champion, hope to keep in the running by beating Baylor and Rice, respectively.

Utah in the Rocky Mountain Conference and Washington state in the Pacific Coast Conference already had clinched their sectional titles, the former for the third straight year.

The eastern field still presents a scrambled situation with Colgate, Fordham, Yale Army and Dartmouth among the strongest. The Elis, if they beat Harvard, will have a claim for sectional honors. Fordham must beat Bucknell tomorrow to stay in the running. Colgate has engagements to keep with Brown and New York university, the latter a benefit game. Army meets Notre Dame and then its old rival, the Navy. Dartmouth closes its campaign by going west to play Stanford next Saturday.

OVER 77,000 EXPECTED TO SEE YALE-HARVARD GAME

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 21.—(AP)—The football stalwarts of Yale and Harvard today went through their final paces in the Yale bowl preparatory to the renewal tomorrow of an ancient rivalry dating back to 1875.

A crowd of 77,000 is expected to see this annual football classic between a Yale team which tonight ruled a slight favorite and a Crimson eleven, which hopes to salvage something out of a luckless season at the expense of the Elis.

Pre-game activities tonight gained steadily in momentum as automobiles laden with Crimson and Blue supporters began to converge on this city of venerable elms. Dances and other social functions were being held in most of the fraternity houses, while many who will witness the game at the bowl tomorrow attended the annual Yale-Harvard glee club concert.

Generous use of the aerial attack is expected in tomorrow's game. During the week, the Elis have concentrated on a defense for Crimson forward and lateral passes and with the aid of Benny Friedman, one-time Michigan star, have developed an aerial offense which they hope will match that of their ancient rival.

The Crimson squad arrived here this afternoon and spent an hour in the bowl in a light workout. The Elis also completed their training with a light drill after the visitors had left for Wallingford where they will spend the night at the Choate school.

A murky sky tonight held a promise of rain for the game, which is scheduled to start at 2 p. m.

Probable lineups for the game were announced as follows tonight:

Yale	Harvard
Flygare, le	le, Harding
Wilbur, lt	lt, Richards
Stewart, lg	lg, Myerson
Loeser, c	c, Ticknor (C)
Linehan, rg	rg, Trainor
Vincent (C), rt	rt, Trafford
Barres, re	re, Ogden
Booth, qb	qb, Wood
Austen, lhb	lhb, Crickard
Dunn, rhb	rhb, Huguley
Crowley, fb	fb, White

Officials: Referee, Ed Thorpe, DeLaSalle; umpire, W. R. Crowley, Bowdoin; linesman, T. J. McCabe, Holy Cross; field judge, Palmer, Colby.

MANAGERS AND BOXERS TESTIFY FOR NEWMAN

BOSTON, Nov. 21—(AP)—A parade of boxing managers, fighters, officials, and promoters today in Suffolk superior criminal court corroborated Moe Neuman's contention that on the night of September 13, 1929, when the state charges he and his brother, Jeff, shot and killed Samuel Reinstein, he was present at a Millville, N. J., boxing bout.

Neuman, a Philadelphia boxer, is charged with murder in the first degree. The shooting occurred in a Back Bay hotel, where Reinstein and a 23-year-old Baltimore, Md., girl, Margaret Wheeler, were registered as man and wife. Miss Wheeler, who admits having known Neuman and his brother in Philadelphia, has testified both Neumans were in a room next to that occupied by Reinstein and herself for several days prior to the shooting. A hotel clerk has also identified Moe Neuman. His brother has never been captured.

Today, however, the first day of evidence for the defense, was marked by unanimous testimony of more than half a dozen witnesses that Neuman was 40 or 50 miles from Philadelphia on the day and night of the crime. Neuman himself claims that prior to his arrest in a Philadelphia hospital after he had been shot by gangsters, he was never in Boston.

According to the story told by the defense's witnesses, Neuman was in Philadelphia helping Benny Bass, widely known boxer, to train for a fight on September 18. He was so employed from the seventh to the 17th of the month.

WOOD LEADS FIELD IN OREGON OPEN

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Craig Wood, stocky long-driving New Jersey professional, today led a field of 90 in the first day's play of the 1930 Oregon open golf tournament by a one-stroke margin. He toured the difficult Columbia course in 69, three under par.

Al Espinosa, Chicago, and Gene Sarazen, New York, posted cards of 70. Behind them came Al Zimmerman, Portland, and Clarence Clark, Tulsa, Okla., with 71's.

Dr. O. F. Willing and Johnny Robbins, both of Portland, led the amateurs with 72's, even par for the 18 holes.

Mel Smith, Columbia pro, Leo Diegel, Agua Caliente, and Abe Espinosa, Chicago, also scored 72's.

Arlo Kyle, Portland amateur, made a hole in one. Kyle started badly, taking a seven on the first hole. On the second, a 145-yard layout, his drive landed just off the edge of the green and the ball rolled straight into the cup. Kyle finished with a 74 to place him among the leaders. Horton Smith, New York, shot a 73.

ACADEMY AND BULKELEY SQUARE OFF HERE TODAY IN 66TH GRID MEETING

Probable Lineup.

Bulkeley.	Academy
St. Germain, le	le, Sheridan
Smith, lt	lt, Cote
Woodworth, lg	lg, Richards
Johnson, c	c, Abugie
Buizenski, rg	rg, Stevens
W. Brooks, rt	rt, Yanakowski
Rockwell, re	re, Cotter
Hallfetras, qb	qb, Zietorac
L. Priolo, lhb	lhb, Geer
Collins, rhb	rhb, Mero
Lathrop, fb	fb, Golembski

Bulkeley and the Academy, probably the oldest high school rivals in the country, will carry all their traditional and fight into their 66th gridiron meeting this afternoon at the campus, each hoping to save something from unsatisfactory campaigns. The Academy will be seeking only their third win of the year in their ninth and concluding game, while Bulkeley, in eight games, has won only three. One game will remain after today for Bulkeley, that with Chapman Tech at New London next Saturday.

While there is no danger of any title toppling on the result of this afternoon's contest, still the fact that it is Academy vs. Bulkeley will be enough to make the game an interesting and hard-fought affair. It usually is. The rival school bands will be on hand to lend color to the attraction and, no doubt, each squad will have a large number of supporters.

Bulkeley Slight Favorite.

The season's records give the Tigers enough of an advantage to be called the favorite. Bulkeley has defeated Fitch, Windham and Meriden, lost to Westerly and New Haven Hillhouse and tied with Stonington and South Manchester. The Wildcats trimmed Chapman Tech and Bulkeley of Hartford in their first two games, then lost five straight to Warren Harding, Westerly, Fitch, Windham and Weaver of Hartford, most of them by top-heavy margins, until they tied Stonington in a scoreless battle last Saturday at the campus.

This tie with Stonington is what is giving Academy supporters their hopes for a victory over their old rivals today, for in that game the team rallied from some weird performances and outplayed Stonington, a team which had tied Bulkeley and Windham, but was not able to push over a score, although having the ball within the 20 yard line four times. Some have attributed this good showing to some pointers given the team last week by Paul Bitgood, the school's basketball coach and a former Conn. Aggie all-round athlete. He has not been out this week, however, and whether the team will forget all it learned and slip back to its former weak work, is doubtful.

Tigers Haven't Won Since 1925.

In this Academy-Bulkeley series, it seems to be the fashion for one school to dominate for a period and then another take the whip hand. At present, Bulkeley hasn't won since 1925, when it cashed in at New London and not since 1924 at the campus, leaving it five years since on any field and six at the campus. Last year, the Academy broke a 13 year spell on New London fields by winning, 7 to 0, and in 1926, the Academy broke a five year string of defeats by winning at the campus, 6 to 0. Bulkeley has taken practically everything else from N. F. A. this year and desires very much this football decision.

The Academy has shown surprisingly little offensive work this year, having scored only 25 points against 116 for the opposition, and two of the four touchdowns that went to make up the 25 points were on "breaks", one against Chapman Tech was a blocked kick and the one against Bulkeley was an intercepted pass.

Anyway, the action begins at 2 o'clock and should attract in the neighborhood of 3,000 or 3,500 fans.

AL GOLDEN DIES WHILE ATTENDING BOXING BOUT

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Al Golden, part owner of the Kings Park race track near Montreal, died of a heart attack in Madison Square Garden tonight.

Golden, a guest of William V. Dwyer, owner of the New York Hockey Americans, collapsed during the exciting fourth round of the Jimmy McLarnin-Billy Petrolle bout. Dr. William H. Walker, physician for the New York state athletic commission, pronounced him dead.

WESTERLY SHUTS OUT CHAPMAN IN GRID CONTEST

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 21.—Westerly defeated Chapman Tech, 13 to 0, here today. The first touchdown came early in the game. Mudge, Westerly halfback, ran 60 yards to the Tech 15-yard line. On a reverse play he went to the five-yard line and then Stenhouse plunged over; also for the extra point. Westerly kicked off and Chapman Tech started a drive with Hewitt and Rogulski carrying the ball, but the half ended with the ball on Westerly's 20-yard line.

In the second half, Tech kicked off and an exchange of punts found Tech on Westerly's 35-yard line. Rogulski and Hewitt battered their way to the five-yard line but the Westerly line held and Stenhouse kicked out of danger. A poor kick by Gonsalves, Tech fullback, gave Westerly the ball on the Tech 19-yard line. Mudge was thrown for a 12-yard loss on the first play but a pass, Lamb to Stenhouse, made the touchdown. This all happened toward the end of the third period. The dropkick for the point failed. The fourth period found Tech threatening several times but the Westerly line held firmly in its own territory. The kicking of Stenhouse kept the Blue and White out of danger.

For Westerly, Mudge, Stenhouse and Trumpetto starred and Kosowsky, Hewitt, Olson and Chihowski for Tech.

Summary:

Westerly	Chapman Tech
Collins, le	le, Kosowsky
Dolan, lt (C)	(C), lt, Mansfield
W. Lamb, lg	lg, Saxton
Azzinaro, c	c, Barrett
Itchkawich, rg	rg, Griswold

THREE IMPORTANT GAMES TO BE BROADCAST

NEW YORK, Nov. 21—(AP)—Three important football games, one of which will be re-broadcast in England, will be carried on the networks tomorrow.

Fifteen minutes of the contest between Yale and Harvard, which is to go to the WEAF chain of the NBC at 1:45 p. m., is to be relayed to overseas listeners by the British Broadcasting company. Short waves will take the signals to London.

This game will be announced by Bill Mundy and it will be the first time England has had a football rebroadcast from the United States. Graham McNamee, who was scheduled to be at the microphone, is out because of a throat affliction.

The WJZ chain is to be divided into two sections for the broadcasting of the Navy-Maryland affray and the Notre Dame-Northwestern contest. An east group will transmit the former game at 2:15 p. m., with Ford Frick announcing, and a mid-west network will take the other game at 2:45 p. m., announced by Ben Kaney.

The Notre Dame-Northwestern contest is to be described to the full Columbia network by Ted Husing at 2:45 p. m.

Lavigne Kayoes Paulin

BURLINGTON, Vt., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Midget Lavigne, bantamweight champion of Vermont, knocked out Lou Paulin, Stamford, Conn., in the seventh of a scheduled ten-round bout here tonight.

Lawless Outpoints Townsend

DETROIT, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Bucky Lawless, clever Syracuse welterweight, easily outpointed Billy Townsend, of Vancouver, B. C., in a ten-round bout here tonight. Lawless weighed 147, Townsend 144 3-4.

College Football

At New Haven—Harvard Jayvees 6; Yale 31.

BRIDGEPORT, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Humberto Arce, 175, Porto Rico, outpointed Lou Bogash, 170, Bridgeport, in an eight-round feature bout on the Puritan A. A. boxing card, at the Park arena, tonight.

YALE-HARVARD GRID CLASSIC HEADS EASTERN SLATE TODAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—(AP)—The Crimson cohorts of Harvard, hungry for victory after five lean Saturdays, march against the Blue battalions of Eli at the Yale bowl tomorrow in the outstanding football game of the day in the east.

This 49th battle in a rivalry stretching back to 1875 heads a pre-Thanksgiving program which includes such games as Navy-Maryland, N. Y. U.-Rutgers, Temple-Carnegie Tech, Villanova-Georgetown, West Virginia-Washington and Jefferson, Fordham-Bucknell and Lehigh-Lafayette.

Several leading teams are holding their fire until Thanksgiving day when the list of traditional contests will include Penn-Cornell, Columbia-Syracuse, Brown-Colgate and Pittsburgh-Penn State.

Picking a winner of the Harvard-Yale game was never more hazardous and the prospect of a real battle will combine with the color and tradition of the occasion to draw a capacity crowd of 75,000 to the bowl.

Despite four defeats and a tie in its last five games, Harvard is considered stronger than its record. Yale was hard pressed to stand off an inspired Princeton team last Saturday.

Both teams have plenty of incentive outside of the natural desire of any Harvard man to beat Yale and vice versa. For Harvard the game means a chance to save a disappointing season. For Yale it means the end of a Crimson jinx that has trailed the Bulldog the last two years in the games with Harvard.

Although Yale holds a margin of 27 victories to 15 for the entire series, Harvard has held the upper hand since the war and a team coached by Mal Stevens has yet to achieve the crowning feat of beating Harvard.

Lafayette and Lehigh, renewing another old rivalry tomorrow at Easton, have played each other more times than any other two teams. Their series did not start until nine years after Harvard and Yale first met but they used to meet twice a season, as a result of which their record to date shows a total of 63 games.

Lafayette is on the long end with 35 victories, but Lehigh won out by 13-12 last year and this season will have the advantage of playing on its home field. On their records to date it looks like anybody's game.

The Navy-Maryland game at Annapolis has stirred up plenty of interest with the Old-Liners conceded a good chance to spill the Middies' somewhat disappointing team. Army expects a good workout against Ursinus in preparation for the battle with Notre Dame a week hence.

Rutgers once made a habit of trimming New York university but times have changed and not even the presence of a great Rutgers fullback in Jack Grossman is expected to keep Chick Meehan's Violets from cleaning up at the Yankee stadium.

Across the Harlem at the Polo grounds, Fordham tackles Bucknell's strong eleven.

Brown, despite its Thanksgiving game with Colgate, is to take on New Hampshire. Western Maryland, unbeaten in two years, expects to add another victory at the expense of Albright at Reading. Boston college will attempt to spank Boston university and Holy Cross will entertain Loyola of Maryland in some of the other leading games.

Temple and Villanova, two of the best of the small college outfits, can be counted upon to test Carnegie and Georgetown to the limit, if not to upset them. West Virginia, victorious over its old rival, W. & J., by a 6-0 score last year, will attempt to repeat on its home field.

Mr. Driver
You Owe It
To Your Family--!

Your car is a member of the family circle. It cost you real money—when it operates properly it affords you all a lot of real pleasure.

When it goes bad, the whole family misses it—you realize just how much it means to you. You owe it to your family to keep it in good running order. Now, do you know that—

Nine-tenths of motor troubles come from faulty action of the valves? Well, that's a fact! When the valves warp, lose compression and leak, the whole motor is sick for the valves are the heart of the motor

Faulty valves need correction They must be properly, accurately, scientifically corrected, if you are to enjoy the full power and efficiency of the motor. Grinding valves in with grinding compound does not correct their faults. Grinding is guesswork. Motors and valves are not made by guess, do not work by guess.

There is only one safe, sane, sensible, scientific system of valve correction and that is the KWIK-WAY SYSTEM—recognized as standard throughout America—and we employ that system. Come in—see how accurately it works—see what a perfect job it does.

You owe it to your family—and yourself—to see that your motor valves are properly corrected Drive in—NOW.

Moving Pictures at Y. M. C. A.

The splendid five reel moving picture, "Love Harbor," will be shown in the large gymnasium of the local Y. M. C. A. on the coming Sunday at 4 o'clock.

This is a sunshiny story of friendship centered about three old seadogs, and the love of a little girl. She is adopted by a wealthy woman, but renounces her wealth to be with her impoverished grandfather.

They finally win the happiness they longed for and realize that love and companionship can furnish greater satisfaction than the empty pleasure which wealth itself affords. The story is one that strongly gripps the heart, because it is so very human.

In addition to the showing of the picture, there will be a brief talk suggesting the lesson the picture teaches.

To this service the adult public is cordially invited and youth fifteen and over will be admitted.

Hillcrest Theatre

Norma Shearer wears one of the most costly garments ever designed for motion pictures in the Pullman train scenes of "The Divorcee," her new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer talking picture now being shown at the Hillcrest theatre Sunday only.

The gown, a lounging affair, was created by Adrian and executed in gold brocades of solid patterns and panels. It was insured for $1,500 during the production.

"The Divorcee" was recently awarded the prize for being the finest motion picture of the year and Miss Shearer also took a first prize for her outstanding performance in "The Divorcee."

Matinee at 2:00 and two shows at night, at 6:30 and 8:30.

Coming Tuesday—Ann Harding in her greatest role and greatest picture, "Holiday."

A Few Things To Be Thankful For

They're a fixing up the turkey, they're a touching up the sass,
They're cuttin' up the pumpkin pie, it's handier to pass;
They've got the ol'plum puddin' a sizzlin' in the pot,
An' the vegetables, Mandy says, will be all pipin hot.
So, now, it is my privilege, an honor, for to go, an' top a keg of cider in the cellar down below;
I'm the only one who'll touch it, an I'm going to tell you pat,
Of all Thanksgiving blessings, I'm thanked most for that.

We've got a crowd invited to dinner; there's Bill Hubbs,
You recollect ol' Bill of coarse,
What married Widder Grubbs.
An' there's ol' Joshua Tadpole, that sparked Jemima Gee,
Without exaggeration, he can eat enough for three,
An' when the good ol' turkey shows itself upon deck,
Mandy takes good care to see ol' Joshua gets the neck,
The doctors stopped Josh eating, said he'd suffocate in fat
So humbly ask a blessin' and be thankful for that,
The minister's a comein; he's a man we all hold dear;
(Eats as tho' he hadn't tasted food for half a year.)

An' the way he says the blessin'—it's a blessin short and slim,
Shows turkey, not religion's got the upper hand of him,
His wife, too, was invited—say, that woman talks a streak;
Can't get a word in edgeways if you waited for a week;
She's bedfast with the rheumatiz, and sicker then a cat,
So pulverize the turkey and be thankful for that.
O' Doctor Squills, alas! can't come—you know ol' doc of coarse of coarse;
He'll practice on a human being, or medicate a horse.
Doc never went to college,
But he'll kill a man as slick,
As them there city doctors can, an', maybe, twice as quick.

"Doc" ain't much good at treatin' folks, but every one alows
He's a wonder when it comes to doctorin horses, hens an' cows.
Doc's gone today to treat a hog thats sick at Poker Flat;
So, down the cranberry sass and be thankful for that.
We'll gather around the table thats groaning with good cheer,
For ol' Thanksgiving only comes once a year.
Don't bother 'bout dyspepsea, but let the vittles soar
To that spot assigned by nature till you just can't hold no more.
Just loosen up the buttons,
An' the neckwear got untied;
So's to give the good ol' turkey room to circulate inside.
Then slide into the rocker, or stretch out upon the mat,
An' that you ain't exploded,
Thank kind Providence for that.
—Charles N. Duglass.

The Puzzled Turkey

My life is dark and dreary;
You ask the reason why?
No kith or kin surround me,
A lonely orphan, I.
An incubated turkey
Is what I chance to be,
The brooding wings of "Mother"
Have never sheltered me.

The modern incubator
Played the maternal part,
With mercury to measure
The warmth of parent's heart.
A cruel fate there placed me,
'Mid countless alien eggs,
Whose occupants were startled
By my long turkey legs.

Since then my home the farmyard,
Yet scarce a home to me;
One longs, as one grows older,
For proof of pedigree.
Perhaps I'd be a "Daughter,"
Or a "Colonial Dame";
But, oh! I cannot give them
My mother's maiden name.

The feeling stirs within me,
I come of good old stock,
Superior to Leghorn
Or even Plymouth Rock.
'Tis most humiliating
The way they look askance;
Even Guinea fowl, in passing,
Bend on me pitying glance.

And when at night we're roosting
Chance words I hear them say—
"Poor thing! Her hours are numbered—
'Tis near Thanksgiving Day."
Why should I fear Thanksgiving,
Amid these peaceful scenes?
Ah! If I had a mother
She'd tell me what it means.

AN INTERESTING CONVERSATION

Dear Friends of the Corner: Although our page isn't as full as it might be when we all get our thinking caps on, we'll have so much to tell and the page will be as full of interest as ever.

I had the privilege of going to Cape Cod last year and as the places of interest and beauty are numerous, you can well believe me, that I had a good time.

But after all, as people to my mind are more interesting than anything else in the world, I will tell you of a conversation I had with a woman while there.

I had missed the bus and had started walking from Hyannis to West Dennis, so that when a lady with two children in a Cadillac machine asked to help me along, I gladly accepted her invitation. As that was quite a distance we got quite well acquainted before we reach our destination.

ANSWERS AND INQUIRIES

MRS. E. W. S.: Letter sent as requested.

ZANY: Matter given attention.

She told me she had been subject to nervous indigestion, you know, I worry about my husband's business. Things aren't what they used to be. "It isn't fair," she exclaimed. "Some people have so much. I say, it isn't fair." I was too polite, but I could have said, "No, it isn't a bit fair. You should share this automobile with me, for I have none, and you should have bought me a dozen ears of this early corn (for she had purchased some corn on our way home for the children's dinner, I guess) and although I have my fill of corn, I certainly don't buy it at the very beginning of the season, anymore than I buy strawberries in February."

"If my husband could have his way," she went on, "he'd sell out but he works for his father and his father won't listen to it." "Your husband has other work he prefers?" I said. "No. He doesn't just know what he wants to do."

Russell H. Conwell in his "Acres of Diamonds" says, "Of all the simpletons the stars shine on, I don't know of a worse one than the man who leaves one job before he has gotten another. But I wasn't going to call her husband a simpleton.

I said, "Ever read Acres of Diamonds"? No, she hadn't thought so. I wish she would read it someday or other.

Conwell tells us that our "acre of diamonds" is in our own back yards, if we would search for them.

"Years ago," she went on, "there were no machines and not such competition." "Sure enough," I agreed. As we were riding along the beautiful shore, we could look out to the ocean. I naturally asked her the names of the different islands and bits of land. "You see that island over there?" she asks. I said I did. "Will you believe it, my husband and I have lived here all our lives and we've never taken that trip. (Some of us, probably, have never taken the trip to Block Island.)

"You don't say! But it isn't uncommon. Only, who knows but what your husband's acres of diamonds lie right there on that island since you've never been there, and don't know the business conditions? Of course, we laughed.

"Oh, my husband would be O. K. if his father would let him use a little of his own ideas; but no, he has to do just what his father did years ago, before conditions changed so! You know my husband never would have gotten a machine when he was young, but when the old man went to Europe one summer he began to run one and the result was he's had one ever since." (Evidently pa knew enough about business to make a go of it and go to Europe in the summer!)

"It strikes me, I ventured, "your father-in-law is a man who comes from Missouri; you've got to show him. Why doesn't your husband do the same thing in the business world! Next summer, when his father makes his trip to Europe, let the ideas he's wanted to put into practice be put into practice and the old man may let it stand; on the other hand, if the ideas are no account it will make youh husband feel better, and he can give his father full credit for better judgment.

Some of the Corner writers have called us to do our bit. I was thinking, Saturday, after reading the page, suppose we had to move away from this part of the country, wouldn't a daily paper without the Social Corner page be lacking in interest for us?

Since my contribution is quite lengthy this time, I'll close. CHELSEA

METHOD FOR CARE OF COLLARS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: It has not been so very long since I wrote and perhaps I should leave the space for others. But I saw an inquiry from one of the sisters that I could answer, so thought I would write again. Just A Nut inquires regarding the care of callas. We had a calla for years in my home and were always successful with them, so I will give our method. We had four bulbs, so used a large pot. First we put in stones for drainage, then a layer of dirt, then about four inches of good fertilizer, then about two inches of dirt. Then set in the bulbs and then more dirt, pressed the bulbs in the dirt firmly, this filled the pot. Then the pot was set in a deep dish, which we kept filled with water and set by a sunny window. Soon the bulbs would begin to send up leaves which grew large and stocky and when the right number of leaves had grown, (I think five), the buds would begin to show and soon the beautiful white flower would open. This method never failed for years and if Just A Nut will try it, I am sure she will be rewarded with success.

How we all miss the pretty flowers that have been a delight to the eye all summer. But they are nearly all gone. However, as I go down our street, I still see a yellow flower, something like a mariogold, bachelors buttons, petunias and five varieties of chrysanthemums in bloom. But their time is short, old winter will soon get them.

Greetings Hope Cobweb. I was pleased to think you remember me.

Twice Twenty: Your piggy surely did choose an inopportune time to monopolize the road. However, I guess there are plenty of road hogs at the present time who monopolize the road.

Well, Olga, you wrote a good stirring letter and by last week's page I think you should be pleased with the result.

E. L. M.: Am still looking for that call.

With best wishes for all and sympathy for the sick and those who have lost dear ones.

WAYS TO CLEAN CHIMNEYS.

Dear Editor and Friends: Well I guess we have gotten all the rain we wanted. Hope the sun shines again before it becomes too moldy to shine. Well the wind is blowing some tonight.

Now is the time to care for your chimneys. Put a piece of old zinc wash board in the stove once a week. That keeps the soot from gathering in the pipe and chimney. I don't think there is anyone more afraid of chimney fires than I am, so I do all I can to prevent them. Another thing, burn raw potato parings. I have cut small potatoes and put them in to burn. It forms an acid I'm told.

Well talk about a busy and noisy place. Oh me, oh my, two drills about 20 feet from my door and a steam shovel. That is going some.

Kochia: You thought I need not be lonesome. Well, I have had about a dozen men to look at for two weeks. Well I don't know which is the best looking. One of them calls me mother when they are going to blast. Glad you had such a fine time at the dance; but keep on the lookout next time. He will wallop you if you don't. But they do have nice times up there.

Where are the old writers. Come, give us a letter once in a while. I am almost as bad but I write when I can. There are times when I cannot see to write, but I think of you all often. It is coming long, dreary winter nights. Now I heard a robin, a pheobe and a bluebird, but spring is a long way off yet.

Will think of you all. May God bless and be with you all is my heart's best wish.

NONESOPRETTAY (Club No. 4)

FARM BUREAU MEETING

Dear Editor and Sisters: I wonder how many Social Corner members there were at the annual meeting and banquet of the New London County Farm bureau held in the Masonic temple in Norwich last Friday night? I know there was Laurett, Beers, Pyrethum, Y. Y., E. L. M., Milky Way, Naomi. After the supper there was community singing and what a noise. Everyone had a thing to make a noise of some sort and they all used them. There were 350 present. After the reports of the county and home demonstration agents, Mr. Clark and Miss Russell and the county club agents, Miss Grover and Randy Whaples, the secretary and treasurer's reports, Chester Gray, the representative of the American Farm Bureau Federation in Washington talked to us on the Tariff Question. The nominating committee, Joseph Clarke, chairman, read the list of officers and directors for the ensuing year and they were elected. Mr. Gray again took the floor to tell about the national convention of the W. B. F. to be held in Boston next month. Then Don Fraser, cartoonist and originator of Yankee Bill in the New England Homestead each week, gave a very interesting chalk talk. Isn't it surprising what a few lines put in the right place, will do. After the programme an orchestra played for dancing and Randy led the crowd in some games. It is very gratifying to know that girls in our town won the Singer Sewing machine contest in the county and a girl in New London county won the state contest. A girl from North Stonington was selected as the most outstanding 4-H club member to represent Connecticut at the National club roundup at Chicago, and last year another girl from our end of the state, Franklin, went to Chicago. New London county has many outstanding club members and state champions. I hope some of the S. C. members that were at the meeting will write in about it.

Milky Way said there was a good crowd at the meeting and Ravena took charge of the program. I was sorry I could not go, but those things can't always be helped. Tuesday night was grange night and North Stonington degree team with Mrs. Marcia Thompson, master, put on the third and fourth degrees very efficiently. State Deputy Mell, of Lisbon grange, was there and gave two readings which were well received. Everyone seems to like our plan of having racks with coat hangers for coats with shelf over the top for hats instead of hooks.

Next Friday night there is to be a meeting in the school hall with the idea of organizing a Parent-Teacher association. I hope I can go as I think it is a good thing as it would be better all around if there was a better understanding between the parents and teacher. Perhaps, I'll write about it next week.

SUMAC (No. 6.)

TOO BUSY TO WRITE

Dear Corner Members: It is some time since I have written a letter, but I have really enjoyed reading the letters sent in by others.

I have meant to write more often, but find very little time for letter writing. Most of us think that we hate to write letters and that may be the reason for a decrease in Uncle Sam's post office business. During the past months this has fallen off so much that there is talk of raising the price of postage to make up the deficiency.

Years ago people wrote long closely written letters which clarified their thoughts and spurred them to use a larger variety of words than was used in conversation. It was a form of self-improvement and today we are feeling the loss of the art of letter-writing as much as the post office feels a loss in business. Let us not get too busy to write letters if not for our own improvement then for the pleasure of others.

I was much pleased to see that the Corner covered more than one page last week, so hope the good work will continue.

The people who have no water in their wells will rejoice to see the rain. We have many reasons for Thanksgiving and I hope all have a pleasant holiday.

"Just where you stand in the conflict,
There is your place!
Just where you think you are useless,
Hide not your face.
God placed you there for a purpose,
Whate'er it may be;
Think he has chosen you for it,
Then walk loyally." ROSARY.

ON RAISING CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Dear Social Corner Folks: I manage to write to the Corner every six months. It isn't much, but every little bit helps. The picnics that the different clubs have are held quite a distance from where I live, so I don't attend them, but I love to read about them.

A sister asked about raising chrysanthemums. I have a few and have very good luck with them, only this summer was so dry they were smaller, but I love them just the same. The best place for them is beside a wall or fence where the sun can get at them. The wall protects them in the winter from harsh winds and the leaves that fall are enough for a covering. I dig around them in the spring and give them some rich soil once a year. I was told that they need transplanting in a new place every three or four years. Pinch off some of the small buds and the flower at the very top will be larger.

Ex-Army Nurse: May God bless you. You sure did your share. We think our troubles are hard to bear, but we don't know half of what others go through.

Pernickety: Your letters are very nice and I've read them all. Your flower garden must be lovely and so many names of flowers. I couldn't remember them all.

I had a lovely ride last Sunday to East Berlin. Had dinner to a relatives and it was so good. The day was beautiful so enjoyed myself very much.

Wish I could write some of the letters some of the Corner members send in.

I wonder what has happened to Maise. She sent in one letter a long time ago and I haven't seen another since.

The Corner is losing a lot of its members. My sympathy goes out to their families. We don't know how to feel for them till our own go. Best wishes to all.

WHITE CHRYSANTHEMUM.

MANY VISITORS AT CLUB MEETING

Dear Social Corner Members: I know many of you are rejoicing over the wonderful rainfall we have had. We have had plenty, but I know how hard it has been for those who have been without. I have always said if I was going to buy a home I should want to see it first on the hottest day in the year to see if there was any breeze coming from any side and now I think it would be a good time to buy in a dry time.

I must say a few words about the good time we had at Club No. 6's meeting yesterday. It was held in the Baptist church vestry in Westerly and was a fine place for a meeting. I think there were 45 in attendance. Dorothy Bradford, the hostess and her helpers, gave us an excellent dinner and such an abundance. The programme consisted of songs, recitations and contests. We were glad to have so many visitors from other clubs with us.

Sumac: We missed you. Hope the kiddies are soon all right.

Topsy: Where, oh where, are you?

Rebecca and Lucille Drew: It seemed so good to have you with us.

Dearie: I saw you when you came in to the A. F. B. M., but not another glimpse of you. I went to another turkey supper Monday night so think I will have chickens for Thanksgiving.

Milky Way: Too bad you missed out, but, maybe, you felt better the next day. It sure was some feed.

Little Rhody: You make Rhode Island Johnny cake exactly as I do.

Pernickety: Have just read My Antonia and liked it very much. I don't have much time to read and it is nearly always light reading. I guess I am like you in not remembering what I read. I often bring home books that I have had before and as I read them it comes to me I have had them before. I have recently read Mary Minds Her Business by Geo. Weston. I liked it very much. If you haven't read it try and get it, it is not a new book.

Some in my family like cranberry jelly and some cranberry sauce, so last week I tried a new way that worked out fine. I took two quarts of berries, covered with water and cooked till soft, then drained off the juice and made jelly. To the pulp I added sugar and cooked that a little while and had sauce that partially jellied when cold, so everyone was suited and I got a good deal more out of the berries than I usually do.

O. D.: Did you see Tom Sawyer? I did, also Amos and Andy. I liked them both.

American Girl: What happened to you Tuesday?

M. P.: Now that you are driving all around why can't you and Prairie Chicken come down to see me some afternoon.

I hope everyone has a pleasant Thanksgiving and no matter how hard up we are we all have something to be thankful for and things could be a whole lot worse. E. L. M.

THANKSGIVING

Dear Social Corner Editor and Readers: While listening to the radio a few days ago, announcement was made that President Hoover had proclaimed Thursday, Nov. 27th, a national Thanksgiving.

The thought came to me that we had greater cause to be thankful for the coming holiday (baring some politicians) than were our first settlers, the Puritans, as they found themselves on the barren storm-lashed shores of Plymouth bay, surrounded by such perils as the near approach of a long cold stormy New England winter, with but hastily, temporary constructed shelter; a scanty supply of food; beset by lurking murdering savages; sickness and the grim death peril, a visitor in nearly every family. Yet, with all these vicissitudes surrounding them, they offered up thanks to the Supreme Being for their deliverance from religious persecution, that denied them the freedom of worship as their conscience dictated. Driven as they were to these shores, they were the first to proclaim and establish our first Thanksgiving in the year 1620. The first published record of that eventful day was in the year 1631. From then on, it was rigidly observed by these good people, whether they were blessed with a bountiful harvest, or whether drought or other unavoidable disasters came to them.

Their Thanksgiving was, as now, observed and celebrated after the products of the field were garnered and safely stored away for use of both man and beast.

Not until 1624 did they have any neat cattle. Mr. Winslow, returning from England, brought with him four neat cattle; three heifers and a bull; the first brought into the colony; consequently they had been four years without milk, except the milk of human kindness.

Their meat was such as was procured from the forest, deer, elk, moose, bear and smaller game. Fowl, such as wild turkeys, geese, ducks and small game birds. Fish, clams oysters and lobsters were plentiful from the ocean, as were the meat producing animals from the forest.

After a set day was observed for Thanksgiving, and before the colony had grown to a considerable size, several families congregated in some one house for Thanksgiving festivities. As the families increased in numbers, the children left their homes for other sections; married and reared children; then came the joyful home coming to the parent hearthstone to join in praise and Thanksgiving for the numerous blessing, vauchiafed to them.

As the years rolled by and the seasons brought to them bountiful harvests, the troublesome Indians were either banished or in part subdued. Our forefathers had greater cause for Thanksgiving.

Let us look in upon some of the happy families. We see the children and grandchildren making merry, while mother and grandma are busy preparing the county to which they are soon to partake.

From the spit upon which the once proud gobbler is being turned, emits a most appetizing odor; from the improvised oven comes the tasty mince, apple and pumpkin pies, not forgetting the most wonderful of all pies, the generous and tasty chicken pie. Of the choice bits of chicken there was enough left out in preparing the chicken pie, to give the family a greatly relished breakfast of fricasseed chicken.

The Pilgrim's Thanksgiving soon spread to other colonies, until it became general all over New England. In their journeys to be present at the feast around the hearthstone of their fathers, they came on foot, or in ox-drawn carts. Not until the 18th century was Thanksgiving generally observed by the more distant colonies. Settlements had then been made, and the nucleus of many cities throughout New England had been formed. Each state set apart a day of Thanksgiving as best-suited their fancy and conditions.

In my grandfather's early life the governors of the states by proclamation, set a certain day, usually the last Thursday in November, the day being rigidly observed religiously and socially.

We will now look in upon these good people of this, my grandfather's day; the coming together of the members of the family. Scattered as they were, the old home had attractions like a magnet that drew them from miles far away, to the home of their childhood. Some came on foot, some by ox-drawn carts, some in the one-horse shay, others from the far west (as was York state then) by stage coach. What a day of joyful greeting. The little grandchild whom grandma had never seen is the first to share a fond hug and kiss. Son John and his young bride, a beautiful and lovable girl, is another one that father and mother had never met. They both are clasped in the arms of both father and mother and receive their blessing. Others from Vermont and Massachusetts with those at home made up a company of no less than a dozen of this family to share in the morrow's festivities.

Mother and grandmother are busy preparing the tasty pies and other dainties for the feast. The wonderful 20-pound turkey, the pride of the flock, has been made immaculately clean, and with the well-seasoned dressing, such as none but mother, superintended by grandma, can make, is stuffed to overflowing and ready for the large and properly heated brick oven with the well-seasoned wood cut and brought in by one of the boys, who says: "Mother, I knew you would want nice dry wood to heat the oven tomorrow morning."

"It will take some time to get the oven properly heated to bake that prize turkey and other things," says Billy. "You are a fine boy to get mother such nice dry wood. You shall have a nice big piece of mince pie tomorrow, with lots of plump raisins in it."

Father has piled the big box by the chimney corner, full of hickory wood to be used in the big open fireplace in the old kitchen that will be used for a dining room tomorrow. The other rooms with smaller fireplaces, have the same supply of wood. We now see the flames and sparks fly up the chimney, as the blaze makes the room warm and cheerful, around which the happy family are sitting. The older ones discuss the topics of the day, while the younger ones play games and sports, such as only the young ones enjoy in another room. The baby, the pet of the household, is fast asleep, hugged up in grandma's arms. After a good night's rest, the family was astir, as the bright sun appeared in the east, and the eventful day was ushered in with songs of praise and thanksgiving. Breakfast is announced, fricassee chicken is on the bill of fore. This is a busy day for all; no drones in this hive of affection and duty. Pots and kettles suspended from the crane, filled with vegetables, emit an appetizing odor, only to be outdone by the delicious odor emitting from the contents of the old brick oven. Mother's home-made bread is putting on a nice brown in the old tin oven before the open fire. Father has cracked a large pan of hickory and butternuts, James has brought from the cellar and filled what is called the "Mayflower fruit dish," with the choicest of apples.

The big earthen cider pitcher, filled with sparkling cider, stands on the sideboard, a companion to a generous mug of Jamaica rum sling or punch; a common beverage in those early days.

Dinner that would have been praised by a king is announced by grandma; with a few strokes on the triangle. Around a table groaning under the weight of a variety of food, such as was produced on the farm of a thrifty 18th century farmer, there is soon to be assembled a family of 14 including the Dominey and his good wife who are invited guests. After a generous sampling of the tasty and seductive rum punch, by all, they are seated; the Dominey occupying the head of the table, who calls down God's blessing upon the assembled family, and the generous bounty of both food and drink. After the feast, with joyful hearts and full stomachs, they retire to the sitting room where until a late hour they enjoy themselves in song and praise to Him who has made it possible for them to share in the bounty that in His goodness He has given them, and permitted those far away and near, too, to assemble in their old homes to enjoy with father and mother the Thanksgiving greeting, that had its origin in the days of the trials and hardships of our Pilgrim fathers.

Through the rural communities, particularly throughout New England by proclamation from the governor this day was observed, but not until the administration of President Grant, (if I remember correctly), was the day made a national holiday. Those living of the "boys in blue," had then returned from four long years of war. Joy and sorrow mingled as they seated around table and hearthstone of the old home. The vacant chair, the young widow in her garb of mourning, were mute evidence that the family circle had been broken. The young husband, with the flush of youth pictured in his noble face, gave his life for his country on the battlefield of Gettysburg. Many like him never came back.

There have been great changes in the names of celebrating Thanksgiving day since my early life. Up until 20 or more years ago, the sons and daughters who were away from the old home, were invited with their families to be with father and mother on that day in the old home to celebrate the day of all days to them. Feasting and frolic occupied the time in these happy home visits. The day's pleasures were usually brought to a close by the young people in attending a grand ball at some one of these hotels; George Billings at Scotland, Nathan Bennet's Baltic house at Baltic, Ed Jenk's hotel at Canterbury Green, The Atwood and Snow taverns in Hampton. All of these hostelries remain today only in memory. Thanksgiving, to the regret of us young old fellows, has lost much of its attractions, so it has to the younger ones of the good old New England stock.

The boys and girls not satisfied with farm and country life left the old farm to seek business, pleasures and fortune in other climes, in the far west, in the rugged ice-bound shores of Alaska, in the sunny south land. One traveling will meet a New England boy or girl in most any section of the country he may chance to visit. Wherever they might be, they looked forward to home-coming, to be with father and mother on that memorable day. But now the fathers and mothers of the New England stock of farmers have grown old and unable to longer care for and till the farm; it has passed into hands of a different class of people who know little and care less for the once great home-coming day of all days. The farm and home of the once thrifty American farmer has now no attractions for the children and grandchildren. The last visit paid to the old roof-tree was when father and mother were laid away in yonder church yard.

Christmas and New Years have largely superseded the long time practice of celebrating Thanksgiving day. While I live I shall ever revere that day as one that brought happiness and joy to the hearts of both the old and young of New England.

I wish all a most happy and joyful Thanksgiving. With the boasted national and individual wealth of this country, let us wish and hope that not one man, woman or child will go to bed hungry or cold.

QUID NUNC.

HINTS FOR CHRISTMAS

Dear Editor and Social Corner: Soon we will be busy with our turkey sauce and pie and hurrying to see that last minute details are complete. Just pause a moment to think of the true meaning of this great day. It truly is one to give thanks for. It so often seems as if, when the times are so bad, we have not very much to be thankful for. Just look around you. There are so many who are so much worse off. Think what the blessing of good health means. It is so hard to be blind, crippled, bed-ridden or the many other terrors of life. Why, if you have no car, just think of those grandfathers who also had to walk or go horseback. Now there are buses and taxies always handy.

Here is a couple of hints for Christmas. Every busy housewife needs holders. A couple in a little case with loop answer and are always in use, also a strip of rope to tie around waist with two holders on short pieces sewed on, is a help when busy baking, as they are always being looked for. A handy handkerchief case is made by a 18-inch square of black satin with initials embroidered in center, forget-me-nots in each corner. Sew 1-2 inch white lace around edge. Now take yellow silk and make a scented lining, put yellow baby ribbon around edge. Now join to the black back and have black baby ribbon at corners and tie opposite, so the initials come in the center of back and the forget-me-nots in the front. It is really the useful gifts we most enjoy. The ones that are reminders every day of our dear friends.

For the handy pincushion, use 3 balls of cotton shaped like lemons with a little plain chain stitch in block. Attached to yellow baby ribbon is quite useful.

Little white linen table pads are always useful. A set of four different sizes may save the table in time of need.

Here are recipes that I find are good:

Ornamental frosting: Drop 2 egg whites on plate. Beat with fork until very stiff, add 2 teaspoons cream tartar and add a little at a time, 1 pound of sifted frosting sugar. 1 heaping teaspoon marshmallow and a teaspoon vanilla. Beat very hard until it will hold its shape. Put in bowl and keep covered with a damp cloth while using.

Delicious Cranberries: 1 1-4 pints sugar, 1 pint water boil until a good syrup, 1 qt. cranberries, add and stir. Cover and set one side five minutes. Do not raise cover. Put over fire again for five minutes, still covered. Now set one side. Do not raise cover until cold. Turn out. They will be like Marcieno cherries in jelly.

Cracker Jack: Three tablespoons molasses, 1 tablespoon butter, 1-2 cup sugar, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 2 lbs. of vinegar, 1-3 cup boiling water. Boil until it threads good, then add 1-4 teaspoon soda and beat. Pour over four quarts of popcorn. This is very much like the peanut taffy you buy. Can be made by adding the peanuts.

Guess I've tired you all out. Hope the sick are better and those out of work get a good job soon.

GREEN HOLLOW.

GREETINGS FROM ANASTASIA

Dear Social Corner Friends: It is a long time since I wrote to the Corner, but I have not lost interest in it and read most of the letters.

Olga: You sure scared me when you said we may lose our page. I always read your letters. You had the loveliest boxes on your porch this last summer.

Thirty Two: Here I am. Saw a letter where you asked about me. It made me feel good to think some one missed me. I don't remember welcoming you to Corner.

L. T. H.: Do you live in Scotland? I have been wondering a long time.

Sumac: Do you have help to be able to get out that much? If not, tell us how you do it.

Sister Ready: Where are you now? Our sister Student lost her husband last week Thursday quite suddenly. I'm sure she would appreciate cards from the sisters at this time of sorrow.

Student: You have my sympathy in your time of sorrow.

Crimson Rambler: Where are you? I haven't heard from you since I sent a card after you lost your husband.

Hope all who have been sick are on the gain. ANASTASIA.

FOLLOWS L. T. H'S ADVICE

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I am taking L. T. H's. advice about polishing up my pen, because it certainly needs polishing. I haven't written a letter in so long that I have nearly forgotten how to hold my pen. I read the nice letters in the Social Corner news and enjoyed them very much.

I agree with you, Betsy Bobbet, making sauerkraut is a very tiresome task. I tried it and didn't have any help, but made out to have two or three gallons, now that is all finished.

Hope Cobweb: I also enjoyed your letter and am sorry that I haven't been able to see you for so long, but am hoping that I will see you at the next meeting.

Theoda: I had not heard that sad news about Effie M., Corona or Aunt Tenna and am very sorry to hear that they have passed on.

I was very much disappointed Tuny Ann that I could not be one of the sisters to enjoy the good time at your place, but just couldn't make connections.

I hope I will see Olga, Altara, Paleface, Tuny Ann, Foxglove, Theoda, Foxy and Avonlia at the next meeting of Club No. 1.

Would like very much to hear from Whirlwind. Will try to write again, soon. BETTY LOU.

DORINDA CONFINED TO BED

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I am writing to this helpful Corner to tell you that one of our best loved sisters and neighbor (Dorinda) is confined to her bed with inflammation of the sciatic nerve. I am sure you all will be glad to send her a card or letter to help cheer her up. She is being very tenderly cared for by her husband, but as his eyesight is very poor it makes it very hard for both of them. Dorinda has used up her strength doing for others. I am very glad to follow her example and do this little bit for her.

Theoda: I have missed seeing you lately in W. I always enjoyed your chats.

Auntie No. 1: I was so glad to hear that you recovered from your illness. You, too, have [illegible] deal for others.

I feel sure many of you have Dorinda's address, but I will send it for those who haven't. Mrs. [illegible] Goodwin, Chestnut Hill, Conn.

Love and sympathy to all the shut-ins. TINY.

INTEREST STILL EXISTS IN CORNER

Dear Social Corner: Some one said to me not long ago that she did not think the Social Corner as good as it used to be. I do not agree with her, but granting it to be so, whose fault is it, anyway? I'll admit I'd rather the other fellow would do it when it comes to writing letters, and it surely is often hard to find time, but it does seem as though all of us who have received any pleasure through the Corner page and the friendships formed at the meetings, and who are still interested in it, should be willing to do our share. The excellent letters last week prove that interest still exists.

Soneone at the Club 1 meeting this month spoke about the apron I wore. Said she would like the pattern. She is welcome to it, but would like to have her tell me who she is, for I just can't remember which one of the sisters it was that spoke about it. By the way, those aprons would make acceptable Christmas presents.

How many of the sisters are joining in the county rid the rat campaign? I tried the poison recommended some time ago. Mixed it with raw hamburg, also with fish. No good. Rats wouldn't eat it. Had to burn it all. Then I got strychnine and soaked whole corn in it. Must be used with caution, but it works.

Don't you hate to throw away the sweet spiced vinegar from sweet pickles? I do, so this is the way I used it. One cupful, strained, went into my kettleful of mince meat. Another cupful was put into a bowl of chopped cabbage. The rest of it I poured over a dishful of cooked carrots and beets; let stand a few days, they make delicious sweet pickles. Also, when I am chopping cabbage (I use a meat grinder), I use up the "leftovers" on hand, in the pickle line, a few cucumber pickles, either sweet or sour, or both. An onion, green or ripe sweet peppers, or bits of celery make good additions.

Pernickety: I picked one white flower from my garden on the 17th. The plant was full of buds. These are Stocks, variety Princess Alice. I planted them for an annual, but so far freezing has had no effect on them. Never raised any before so don't know much about them.

Quid Nunc: No, the meal was not Kenyon's. We think it is better than that. I understood that it was ground on the farm where it was sold. Perhaps I'm mistaken. As for the way to make Johnny cake, I guess (you see I'm a Yankee) everyone has her favorite recipe, and probably all are good. My folks came from New Hampshire and Maine. With them a Johnny cake was made with buttermilk or sour milk, soda, and either sugar or molasses used in it, but it was baked in a sheet tin and cut in squares, eaten hot with good butter, there's nothing to equal it. Corn bread or brown bread was made the same way, but was either steamed or baked in a deep, round tin, making a large loaf, and was cut in slices. They sometimes made a hot water cake much like Sister Rhody's recipe, but instead of cooking on a griddle as is done in Rhode Island, it was spread thinly in a baking sheet and baked in the oven. This was called bannock. I cannot find the word "bannock" in the dictionary, so perhaps it is an Indian name. I have always thought that the R. I. Johnny cake, and the southern corn were the same. Can't some one tell us if that is so, or not? BETSY BOBBET.

UNEARTHS OLD ACCOUNT BOOK

Corner Editor, Writers and Readers! When looking through some old scrap books the other day I found one which interested me and perhaps it may some of you, more especially East Killingly people.

It is an account book kept by some one who had a store in East Killingly. He also sold wood and had teams for hire. The first and last parts of the book are covered with various pictures and verses which have been pasted in. The first date I find is Sept. 20, 1838. And the last one is July 18, 1841.

Following are some of the names and charges: Arnold Cole, 1 1-2 lbs. cheese, $1.11; Calvin Richmond, 6 pipes, $.04; Asa W. Brown, 1 pr. calfskin shoes, $1.42; Richard Bartlett, 3 1-2 lbs. sugar, $1, 1 1-2 doz. eggs, $.21, 12 1-2 lbs. flour, $.75, 1 pr. silk gloves, $.28; Otis Williams, 1 gal. molasses, $.40; Henry Brown, 1 snuff box, $.06, 1 whip lash, $.13, 1 pr. suspenders, $.17; David Chase, 1 bu. chestnuts, $1; Alva Chase, 15 1-2 lbs. codfish, $.70, 1 lb. candles, $.17, 1 qt. honey, $.27, 5 knots linen thread, $.20; Betsy White, 4 3-4 lbs. cheese, $.47; Mariah Tucker, 25 lbs. pork, $3.34; Joseph Oatly, 1 pr. gloves, $.71, 1 brown cloth cap, $.50, 7 yds. merino, $7.56, 8 sheets wadding, $.48, 14 yds. cambrick, $1.54; Cynthia Taft, 1 cooking glass, $1.67; Israel Chase, 6 qts. molasses, $.60; Carolin Bartlett, 1 pr. glass lamps, $1, 1 doz. glass plates, $.50; Daniel Chase, 1-2 bu. salt, $.40, 1-2 lb. tobacco, $.12; Stephen Potter, 1 pr. bellows, $.42; Gideon Burgess, 1 mug, $.17; George W. Pray, 1 pr. thick boots, $2.50; Royal Shippy, 2 lbs. candles, $.34, 2 doz. eggs, $.28, 1 doz. cigars, $.10, 1-4 lb. tobacco, $.06; Susan Hall, 1 hearth brush, $.58, 1 pr. bellows, $.58; Lawton Wade, 5 1-2 lbs. lard, $.87, 10 yds. plaid linsey, $3.34; Hasel B. Slater, 3 lbs. 6 ounces codfish, $16; Orrin Mathewson, 1 pr. buckskin mittens, $1; William Youngs, 5 3-8 yds. satinett, $4.30, 4 yds. flannel, $2; Lydia Alexander, 3 yds. ribbon, $.42, 1 yd. brown drilling, $.20, 1 pr gloves, $.30; John Smith, 2 ounces indigo, $.34, 1 comb, $.10; Justine Hammond, 1 pr. calfskin boots, $4; Artemas Warren, 1 plough point, $.58; Harris Hammond, 12 1-4 lbs. cheese, $1.35; Eben Basto, 8 yds. calico, $1.52; Calvin Cooper, 3 yds. broadcloth, $15, 3-4 yds. buckum, $12; Simon Baker, 4 1-2 lbs. butter, $1.12.

Hope some of our readers have something to say on this subject, "Some are born tired and some seem to have been born to make others tired." This letter for instance.

Long live the Corner page.

ZANY.

RECOVERING FROM ILLNESS

Dear Social Corner: Here are a few lines after a long silence and here is the reason for the silence. A month spent in the hospital, two more months with a friend in the country, gaining strength, then a month with cousins in Westerly, when I went to Watch Hill every day, part of the time, then two more visits with friends. Don't you think I ought to be well, now? I am nearer to it than I have been in many years. I can't thank my Heavenly Father enough for all He has done for me in the last six months. One of my good times was attending the last meeting of Club No. 4 in Putnam. I have not seen The Bulletin much this summer, but always enjoy the letters when I do get a chance.

Debbie: I was much interested in what you said about Joseph Lincoln, for I had been told that he was dead.

Bee True: I have thought of you many times since I read that your husband was blind. My father could not see to read for over four years before he died, so I know how hard it is to read aloud so much. But we are glad to do it when it gives so much pleasure to one we love.

Happy New Year: What became of that letter; did you send it while I was away?

C. J. H.: I was sorry to hear of the sickness; do hope you are both better, now.

Thanksgiving will soon be here, and I am sure we can all find something for which to give thanks.

ROBERTA (Club No. 4.)

LET US BE THANKFUL

Dear Readers of The Social Corner: Members of Club No. 6, I thought of you yesterday as you were enjoying yourselves in Westerly. Would like to have been there, but home duties bound me and it was impossible to attend, but as soon as possible I called E. L. M. and she gave me a very interesting report.

The season of Thanksgiving is near and to some it means just the red letters on the calendar and to prepare an extra dinner, but to the majority, I know, it holds a deeper meaning. I know you agree with me when I say let us be thankful we are at peace with the world. Let us be thankful for our churches in which to worship as we choose. For our free schools that our children may receive an education, that element that is so much required nowadays. Our free libraries where we may find pleasant reading matter in our few minutes of recreation in which we should indulge after the strenuous day. Let us be thankful for our various institutions, the hospitals to care for the sick and wounded, tubercular sanatoriums and insane asylums. Let us thank those who provide funds for the upkeep of the homes for old people and for the orphanages and for the various organizations that help those that are needy. Let us praise the inventors of the wireless, telegraph, telephone and electricity.

May we be thankful for our crops that withstood the long drouth and let us be thankful our homes were saved from those awful forest fires and from the terrible floods. We should be thankful we live in this little corner of the United States sheltered by rugged hills and woodland that we may not experience the terrible tornadoes and earthquakes. Let us be thankful for our friends. Those who stand by us in our happiness or in our deepest sorrow. Let us be thankful for our children, a gift of God and may they in turn love and appreciate their parents; and at this season, coming home from college or business means so much to both parents and children.

All praise is due Governor Bradford who, 308 years ago, was so thankful for the wonderful crop of maize compared with the year before that he set a certain day to offer prayers of thansgiving and was thankful to the friendly Indians who taught them how to plant corn and how to make meal. The great Indian chief, Massasoit and 90 of his braves, were guests of honor and came bringing five great deer and several large baskets of oysters. With plenty of corn, and barley, some vegetables, quantities of wild turkeys, ducks and geese, clams and oysters, oughtn't the Pilgrims have been thankful.

To be sure there are many more things for which we are thankful. Each of us have our own blessings for which we, in secret, give thanks. But we are most thankful we live in a Christian era and know there is an overruling power and guide that keeps us from straying not too far away from ourselves and the One who constantly watches over us. The One who does all things well. That you all may have a joyful Thanksgiving is the sincere wish of PRAIRIE CHICKEN.

VOTES TO SEND PAPER.

Dear Social Corner Members: Very glad to see so many at our October meeting in Putnam. I did enjoy not having to work for once.

It is very nice that I can share my exwar nurse with the sisters and the Corner members. I am only sorry I did not know that she would enjoy more letters before as it is a year since I received my first letter from her. She wrote a very nice letter for the paper and I hope she receives the paper soon. The ladies of Club No. 4 voted to send her the courier for a year and I sent in the money.

I have wanted to do something about a radio for the nurse. A sister with more courage has set ball rolling.

Olga: The pieces are 7x4 inches and they are to be cut in diamond shape by the muse and sewed together in box shape. It takes three to do that; are very odd when made of different pieces; no two alike, 969 in all. I have one I made 45 years ago lined with buff. I hop they have a meeting in Putnam in December.

Butterfly and Pep: Missed you in Putnam at our last meeting, also many other East Killingly members.

Thirty-Two: Just added another name to my list as the nurse knows me as "Grandmother at Twin Oak Cottage."

Neighbor Ever Ready: Are you lost to the world or only the Corner?

Aunt Jermima: When do I see you in Pomfret.

LAST ROSE OF SUMMER.

A FAIR CHANCE

Dear Social Corner Friends: "Why should children be herded in 'grades' and required to become like one another?" "If one child can memorize 10 words in ten minutes is that any reason why another child of the same age should be humiliated and discouraged if he cannot do as well."

Over 50 years ago the unfairness and the failure of "grades" and examinations was thoroughly exposed and why have they been retained and this system of arbitrary school standards still kept and saying to our children "measure up to these or be disgraced."

Is a child to blame if his health is frail or his sight imperfect or if he has lacked the proper pre-school teaching and training that we should see that all infants and pre-school age children now have? Thousands of these neglected children leave school every year rather than endure the shame of not having passed their grade, embittered and broken in spirit and doomed forever to feel inferior, handicapped and cheated of their rights.

"Children are not educated, they are not being taught to think. They are merely required to memorize—to memorize enormous amounts of more or less important lessons."

"How brutally unfair to say that one of the fails." "Fails to do what?" "He has failed to qualify in an arbitrary memory test devised by unintelligent adults"—they cannot help knowing how unreliable this test is improving the ability of the child.

"The business of schools is not to judge the child but to teach him."

"It is not the child that fails, it is the school is obliged to teach the child, to teach every child, we know they are not doing it yet."

"Our educational system should keep pace with our civilization."

If a child enters school who has not already received the proper social development, that should be the first work given him in school.

recent cases of serious injury or death that have occurred on account of untaught, unthinking, irresponsible children.

A daily test which exposes the training or lack of training of school children is their behavior on the street. Do they walk on the wrong side of the road and saunter along regardless of the motor traffic, inviting accidents by their heedlessness and lawlessness?

I was interested to see a third grade girl hold up a careless truck driver and make him wait until the school children had all crossed the street. Their behavior exposes the school training.

We have not yet got the needed control of conditions in all the homes, but there is no reason why every school should not be doing successful work now. With every child a thinking child, trained to think and to use his mind on every problem and occasion. Prepared to live in present day conditions, alert, careful, quick thinking and quick acting, learning to the best of his ability each day and with no thought of possible failure. Each doing his best always and judged only by his own amount of improvement and advancement, without regard to what others were accomplishing.

BOOKS THAT PLEASE AND OTHERS

Dear Social Corner Friends: It was a delight to me, to find in this week's Times magazine, a symposium in which eight of the leading ministers of New York city defined their ideas of religion and commented on the "cosmic religious sense" as defined by Professor Einstein. As was natural, the writers did not all agree, though but one openly disagreed with Professor Einstein. Personally, I liked the viewpoint of Rabbi Nathan Krass of Temple Emanu-El who wrote, "Einstein excludes. I would include. He avers that the people who are believers of the religion of fear, the devotees of the social-moral religion, the people of faith whose God is anthropomorphic, dishing out destinies, rewards and punishments, are not in reality deeply religious. I think they are profoundly, mystically, most intimately, most naively, yet most genuinely religious. Their ways may not be, and actually are not, my ways of religious experience, but inasmuch as they do have those experiences, fearing, revering, loving, striving to be morally and spiritually like the God whom they worship, they are religious," and also he says, "We must include all, even the crudest expressions of the yearning for contact with eternality and infinity, in the category of religion."

Sumac: The New York Times magazine also has an article this week on Sinclair Lewis in which you would be interested. It presents him in a more favorable light than he is usually shown to us in. Since I have read none of his books, I can't say whether I am pleased that the Nobel prize was awarded to him or not. I gather that you are not. Right? If you found "The Bridge of San Luis Rey" disappointing, I'll give you fair warning not to attempt reading "A Woman of Andros" by the same author, or it will end up in your kitchen stove and you will have to buy a new book for the library.

Quid Nunc: Thanks a lot for the stories; they were very amusing and I hope that you will write some more, in the same vein, for us to read. Perhaps I'm wrong, but it seems to me that such stories, which used to be told so commonly, are becoming a rather scarce article and show tendencies of disappearing altogether—at least in this locality.

Cassagnac: Well, of course I've assisted at the funerals of cats; mere, ordinary cats. What I asked about, though was cats who have been killed by curiosity. Any cat can have any one of its nine lives killed any old day in the week but I haven't seen or heard of an that were really killed by curiosity and I thought that you might have.

I'm sure you would have laughed if you could have looked in at my window at midnight last Monday. You would have seen a fat person wearing a green nightgown, sitting bolt upright in bed and singing. Yes, singing! For that book which I chose, hit or miss was a hit. It was a book of "Collected Poems" by Vachel Lindsay and the poem which inspired me to song, was "I Heard Immanuel Singing." There were other poems in the book which thrilled me quite as much, especially some of the wartime ones. I am enclosing one entitled "Surrender" which appealed to me.)

The second book I read last week was a complete failure as far as I was concerned. I took it from the payshelf and mourned the waste of my two cents. "Three Against The World" by Sheila Kaye-Smith was the title and the author's name. Perhaps the world didn't conquer them—but I wish it had. Ugh!

PERNICKETY.

SOME ENJOYABLE RIDES

To Our Editor and Friends of the Social Corner: We have had so many interesting letters about trips, I thought I would write a few of mine.

A neighbor and his wife invited another neighbor and me to take an auto ride to Hartford. We saw the place where they make airplanes, also the Fuller brush plant.

We rode out to Granby and called on the minister and his wife who had lived in our town. At their church they were having a supper, so we four went with them and enjoyed a delicious meal. Such good coffee would make Sister Brave take notice, and such splendid water. I kept one of the hostesses busy waiting upon me for it. Our ride home was through Simsbury, past beautiful homes which we admired.

Another day a neighbor's son and his wife invited Hubbie and me for a ride. They took us on a new road from Stafford eastward.

We rode around the school at Pomfret. We saw one of the finest apple orchards in the country. We rode through Canterbury where I saw a sign of Cheerio hospital. I would liked to have called there, as the nurse and her mother are old friends from my home town in New York state, but it was getting late and time to return home.

Another day the same neighbor's son and his wife took us to the Devil's Hop Yard. Such high mountains right beside a deep glen. It is so rustic and wild, yet beautiful. Plenty of tables for picnic parties. On our way home we passed Lake Hayward, a new development where some pretty cottages are being built. I was especially interested as I know people who are building there.

Another day an old school friend of Hubby's called with his wife and two children and invited us out to ride. We started about six p. m. and rode until 10:30 when the auto stopped short. Upon investigating they found the battery was sick.

The woman and her two sleeping babies and I had to camp on the South Coventry depot steps till our two hubbies could get help. They finally found a man about to retire who got out his auto and came back with them and and took us to our home where we put the babies to bed, then we got a midnight supper. It being Sunday night most places were closed but they found a place where they bought a new battery and started for their home toward Hartford.

Another day Sister Nema, who is with us at present and I called for Sister Hiker and we hiked to Pine Shores near Eagleville. It looks pretty there to see the trees even and green.

My last auto ride was a trip to the dentist, where I parted company with my teeth.

One of our sisters wrote she was undecided what kind of a radio to buy. Last November my husband got a Lyric radio. It is a fine sounding one and gives good satisfaction so far. We enjoy church services and concerts. It seems wonderful to hear from all parts of our own country, but more than wonderful to hear from London, especially to hear the Prince of Wales speaking as plainly as if he were in the room. Also the premier of Japan and other noted statesmen. A very interesting program is on Sunday afternoons at 3:30. This is in Chinatown mission where Tom Noonan is bishop. We recently heard the noted tenor, Justin Laurie, sing from this mission. Some of you may have heeard him sing at the Willimantic camp meeting. And to be sure we listen to Phil Cook, Uncle Abe and David, Amos 'n' Andy.

Betsy Bobbett: I have enjoyed reading about your flowers. I have some to care for. I was more interested in your sauerkraut. You must have been tired. One time I grated a cocoanut for the top of a pudding I made in a large meat roaster. It took all day. I was tired and my ambition was gone. I could hardly eat. Hope Cobweb: Your kitchen mending is good. I mended the kitchen sink with a mendit which has served for the past three years.

Marigold and Betsey Bray: I hope to be able to come to call on you soon. If I had a car and could drive I would take you both for a ride.

Lady Slipper and American Girl: I have been to the Weber duck farm, quite an interesting place. I formerly lived in Franklin, Mass., the next place to Wrentham.

Green Hollow: I was interested in your letter about colonial house. Our ancestors built a large home at South Hampton in 1640. I have a picture of it. There have been ten generations raised in it by the name of Sayre. Now it has been taken down. I have a shingle and a nail from it.

Irva Lynn: How did your barrel of potatoes come out? When are you coming out this way on a midnight ride again? I shall expect to see you in an airplane next time. Hope it will be soon.

It frightened me last week to see only nine letters. Now, sisters, canning and house cleaning are over and you have nothing to do. Get busy and write some letters. I hope you all will have a pleasant Thanksgiving.

ATTENDS TWO CLUB MEETINGS

Dear Social Corner Folks: Am beginning to feel like a slacker, so will write a few lines to welcome new members and say I hope to see their contributions in the Social Corner page often, as we like to become acquainted with them in their letters as well as with them in person at the club meetings. That just reminds me I had the pleasure of attending Club No. 4's meeting in Putnam. There were 72 in attendance, I was told, and several visitors came in later in the afternoon. Then the week after I had the happy treat of visiting Club No. 5 in Norwich. Such a grand dinner, and so nice to see the members I had not greeted in a long time.

Wish to thank Twice Twenty and That's That for offer of seeds and roots of those very handsome amethyst colored flowers. I think it is splendid the way our members keep writing such interesting letters for us each week. Seems as if all the conveniences of every day life have been mentioned. But one might make patchwork sofa cushions for Christmas gifts. And a pencil and pad holder to hang on the wall in kitchen, is made of a bright piece of creton with three pockets to hold writing pad, two pencils and eraser. Colored bias binding for edges.

This week I converted a small water pail (white enamel one) into a flower pot holder by using glue to paste bright colored pictures and other sorts of paper upon it, in hit and miss fashion and crazy work patterns. Then gave it three coats of white shellac and gilded top rim and little lifters at the sides. Looks rather well with my pond lily leaf begonia plant in it.

Did you ever try Spanish steak? Two pounds of top round steak, two inches thick; leave on the fat. Brown in hot frying pan, then add three-fourths cup boiling water. Cover and bake 45 minutes in slow oven. Now sprinkle with salt and pepper and sliced onions. Bake another hour, then cover with solid tomatoes from a can. Bake 15 minutes then sprinkle with grated cheese and bake just long enough to melt cheese. The gravy will be delicious and steak tender. Compliments of Mrs. C. D.

Betsy Bobbett: Will answer your question. That Pontiac is still stationary. Hasn't moved yet. Never will be able to master the blamed brakes and handles and keys and things. Thought I was "progressing" and started up but found the darn thing balked and began to go backward. Nearly knocked the house down, so I said: "None of that for mine, I'll walk."

To the sister who asked, "Where are we now?" will say, the earth is entering sign Sagittarus Nov. 22 and continues to Dec. 20. This sign (or month) is ruled by Jupiter, i. e. Jupiter's vibrations are strongest at that time. This sign corresponds to the motor nerves and thighs in the human body, and rules success in new enterprises on the astra plane. The colors are red, green and gold. The gems are carbuncles, turquaises and diamonds. The tribe is Levi, meaning those who are united. The natural profession is traveling, buying and selling or anything in which penetrating foresight and executive ability is necessary. February and June are fortunate months for those born in this sign and Thursday is best day of week. Sagittamus people are fortunate during their own sign, Nov. 22 to Dec. 20 but should use care week beginning June 27.

Lular Wylie: Here's another x word fan. Just got my old man interested in them, too. Great sport.

THIS WESTERN DOG HUNTS, ALSO CATCHES A TROUT

Now that the hunting season has opened, the village gunners have taken from the attic their shot guns covered with cobwebs and oiled them to try their luck at the wild game in the woods and to see if the birds are thick enough to get a piece of paper, meaning you can hunt anywhere in Connecticut, and to shoot enough game to pay for it. George Bark, a crack shot of the village by the sea, can with a rifle shoot an apple from a man's head so many feet away. Also he can light a match with a fellow holding it with his teeth and would not touch the gold on his tooth. Sure-eye Bark with his dog, "Lightning," left recently for the woods in center Groton, where it is not posted, to try out the western dog which was sent to him by a friend out in St. Louis. It took Hunter George several months to train Lightning. This was his first time in the woods in the Nutmeg state. Going slow, the wind being still as the hands on the city clock looking here and there was Lightning. Soon a bird got up and quick as a cat the crack shot let loose one barrel and got a pheasant. It was a dandy. It got the shot in the head, so it did not spoil the pretty bird to be mounted for the Aunt Sarah Peabody club, of which Bark is a member.

It was getting near time to eat a corn beef sandwich and a shot of coffee and they were near a brook. A rest was needed. Lightning's master threw a stick in the water and Lightning went after it and seemed to enjoy it fine, doing that several times. Hunter Bark said: "This is the last time." So into the water the bird dog went and soon he let out a war cry that could be heard a mile away. Out of the water quick came Lightning and had no stick but a monster fish on his tail. It made the hunter laugh but his dog was mad. Picking off the fish, the hunter found it was a rainbow trout about 10 inches long.

So the bird dog had a rest and his master said "That is good! To go hunting and catch a fish without a line and hook, when the fish caught hold of the dog's tail!"

Tramping through the woods for another hour he got one more shot, making two. This time it was a woodcock, so that went in his hunting coat—two birds and one fish with two shots! Beating it back to the road and getting into the Buick auto he was ready to call it a day and not to wear out the western dog on his first time in center Groton woods. Reaching the gas station on Prospect Hill and Elm street corner, he stopped to weigh the pheasant. The scales read eight pounds, one ounce. It sure was pretty and Abbie Ellis wanted the wings for his sweetheart's new hat. But Happy Bark said, "No! That is for the Aunt Sarah Peabody club room." Taking out his pocket a rainbow trout to weigh that, the gang stared. "Where is your pole to catch that fish?" Then William Tell, Jr., known as Hunter Bark, told the story of his dog getting a stick out of the brook and coming out of the water with the pretty fish on his tail. That sure made the gang laugh. One fellow said, "Throw him the bird cage!" But Mr. Trout was weighed and was 1 3-4 pounds, also 10 inches long.

"Well, that sure beats anything I ever heard of!" Peter Dunn said. "I have been in the woods with a gun and a dog since I was 17; now I am around 60, but I never had a dog catch a trout with his tail! I've got to take off my hat to Crack-shot Bark for having a western dog that catches fish." The gang gave him a big cheer and the rainbow trout will make a Sunday dinner for two and getting that fish, the dog Lightning got a $1.25 A. and P. steak. He sure proved that he is a real dog when in the Connecticut woods.

GREETINGS FROM SILENT PARTNER

Dear Social Corner Friends: I suppose you all get blue and discouraged when you are sick. I get very much that way, for I was taken with a slight shock more than seven months ago and went to live in Norwich in a son's family. They have been very kind to me but if any of you have lived 47 years in one home you can realize what it is to be homesick, after you have left it. The doctor advises not much salt and says "no meat," all of which is a hardship to me.

I have lost 30 pounds weight since last winter.

Delight: Thanks for card you sent some time ago. Sometimes my hand is so weak I can't write, to acknowledge it. I don't gain strength very fast but can get around the house and do a few little chores.

Auralee: I am piecing a bedquilt by hand, of blocks about three inches square. Slow work.

Susanna: Can you give me address or any information about the jersey cloth dress factory where remnants are sold? My hand is very weak today and perhaps this will be the farewell letter of

FINAL PRICES IN STOCK MARKET WERE UP 1 TO 5 POINTS YESTERDAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 21—(AP)—Stocks, wheat and curb all took courage from the absence of important selling pressure today and moved rather confidently higher.

Shorts in the railroad shares got a red light in the last 15 minutes of trading on the stock exchange. They backed up so hurriedly that those issues piled up the best gains in weeks and the entire market was jolted out of a profit taking decline. Final prices were 1 to 5 points up, which meant a new high for the recovery.

The later rally in rails came swiftly and mysteriously, sending several of the stocks 2 to 5 points higher. It was based, perhaps, on a belief that October earnings, now beginning to appear, would show considerable improvement over September. Chesapeake and Ohio, one of the first to report, disclosed a small gain in net operating income over October of last year. In addition, a financial news agency carried an announcement that western carriers had been holding conferences in regard to a move for higher rates, a development which confirmed a growing belief that the railroads were contemplating a stand in their own behalf.

Additions to the list of bank closings in the interior failed to cause a ripple in stock market quarters. Other news that might have been construed as unfavorable, included a decline in construction contracts for the week ended November 14, a sharp gain in commercial failures for this week, and the inability of the weekly trade reviews to report much, if any, tangible improvement.

The stock market, however, seemed committed to the advance. Prices displayed familiar heaviness in the early dealings, but soon were back on the upgrade, with U. S. Steel, American Telephone, and American Can reaching new highs for the rally. Motor and accessory shares, as well as specialties and chemicals, figured prominently in the movement which reached its peak at mid-afternoon. Profit taking in the last hour, was quickly arrested by the strength of the rails and the entire market was again on the rise at the close, although final prices for the industrials and utilities were under the day's best figures.

The improvement in wheat futures, amounting to slightly more than a cent a bushel on the average, was reported to have been accomplished with little or no help from stabilization buying. Export demand was better and the market was also helped by unfavorable weather in Argentina. Corn gained about a cent in response to smaller receipts and firm southwest markets. Cotton here was a trifle easy, closing unchanged to 9 points lower.

Dun's review of business said it was encouraging that sentiment had made some gains, "largely in response to improved financial markets." It added that "the adjustments which are being counted upon to establish an effective basis for ultimate recovery, are proceeding steadily." In Bradstreet's opinion, warm weather during the week affected retail sales adversely, while some setbacks in industry seemed to "fairly balance what forward movements have developed."

The spectacular sally by the rails had the appearance of a professional move. Shorts who sought to cover found offerings scarce and had to bid actively. New York Central shot up 5 points to 140, but quickly lost half its rise. However, Lackawanna, Pere Marquette, and Baltimore, closed 5 points higher, Pennsylvania, Missouri-Kansas- Texas, Union Pacific, New Haven, Allegheny corporation, Chesapeake corporation, Erie and Missouri Pacific, were up 2 to 3, and Atchison, and Delaware and Hudson, 4. St. Louis Southwestern preferred failed to recover from a 15 1-2 point break that sent it to a new low.

U. S. Steel's top price was 149 1-2 and the final quotation of 148 3-4 represented a net advance of 1 1-3. General Electric, DuPont, International Harvester, American Water Works, International Telephone, North American, Montgomery Ward, Bethlehem Steel, and American Tobacco "B" gained 1 to 1 3-4 net, Sears Roebuck, United Aircraft, Simmons, Allied Chemical, American Can, Eastman Kodak and Vanadium, 2 to 3, and J. I. Case, 5.

Trading was light until the last half hour and total sales aggregated only 2,244,610 shares.

London exchange rates sagged, cables easing about an eighth of a cent. The Spanish peseta was soft.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 21—(AP)—A pronounced lower trend developed in foreign bonds today as pressure was renewed against German bonds.

Nervous selling apparently inspired by the remarks of Foreign Minister Curtius concerning the provisions for a moratorium under the Young plan depressed the International 5 1-2 per cent loan 2 points, and contributed to the unsettlement which affected both European and Latin American issues.

While financiers have pointed out that neither the principal nor interest of the bond issue offered last June, would be in any way affected by a moratorium, the 5 1-2s closed at the bottom price of 68 1-2. German 7s yielded 3-4. German bank issues, sagged 1 and 2 points, and scattered selling brought sharp dips in Berlin municipal and industrial obligations. Bavarian state 6 1-2s yielded 3 points and Cologne 6 1-2s, and Leipzig 7s more than 1, each. Bankers point out that a moratorium on reparations would actually help Germany in maintaining interest on these bonds, so the selling probably represented more hysteria.

In the Latin American section, some of the prominent issues of Argentina, Bolivia, Chile, Colombia, Peru, and Uruguay, showed sharp declines. Brazilian 6 1-2s dipped 2 1-4. Argentine 6s, of 1959, Colombian 6s, Buenos Aires provincial 6 1-2s, Rio Grande Do Sul 7s, and 6s, Sao Paulo 7s, Peru first and second 6s, were others under pressure. Montevideo City 6s reacted 14 1-4 points on a few sales.

Trading in domestic bonds was desultory, most of the day, and prices barely steady on narrow fluctuations. The final hour was the most active of the day and influenced a firmer tone especially in railroad bonds.

U. S. governments were in strong demand as has been the case most of the week, Liberty 3 1-2s, first 4 1-2s, 4th 4 1-4s, and Treasury 3 3-4s, all touched new high figures for the year. The Treasury issue which is not one of the most active in the government list sold 10-32nds higher.

Chesapeake and Ohio 4 1-2s, were in good demand following publication of the company's earnings, and railied 7-8. St. Paul 5s, of 1975, and the adjustment 5s, Illinois Central refunding 4s, M. K. and T. adjustment 5s A, Missouri-Pacific general 4s, Nickel Plate 4 1-2s, Pennsylvania 4 1-2s, Texas and Pacific first 5s, were among other rails that were firmer.

A 9 point rise in Anglo Chilean Nitrate 7s, was a conspicuous feature of the irregular movement of industrials. Several stock privilege issues moved upward with the share market, namely American National Gas 6 1-2s, Atchison 4 1-2s, Pathe 7s, and Utilities Power and Light 5s. Warner Brothers 6s, were weak.

WALL STREET BRIEFS

NEW YORK, Nov. 21—(AP)—Morris Markin, president of Checker Cab Manufacturing corporation, says the factory force at Kalamazoo, Mich., has been more than doubled.

Commercial failures for the week totaled 569, contrasting sharply with last week's total of 495 and the 472 defaults for the corresponding week a year ago, R. G. Dun and Company reports.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Nov. 21—(AP)— Rising prices for wheat went hand in hand today with reports that the volume of domestic flour trade had broadened. Persistent rumors of a revolt in Russia, received more or less notice also, as well as talk of cancelling of Black sea grain vessel charters, suggesting curtailment of wheat shipments from Russia. A fresh advance of 1-2c in prices that U. S. government sponsored agencies were bidding for some Chicago wheat future deliveries, counted further as a market stimulus.

After an advance to nearly 6c above low prices current here November 10, the Chicago wheat market closed unsettled 3-4 @ 1 1-2c higher than yesterday's finish, but fractionally below today's best figures. Corn closed 5-8 @ 1 1-8c up, with oats showing 1 1-2 @ 2c advance, and provisions unchanged to 7c lower.

COTTON

NEW YORK, Nov. 21—(AP)—Futures closed steady; unchanged to 7 points lower. Spot quiet; middling 10.55.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov 21—(AP)—The recovery in curb market shares was carried further today along with operations for the advance on the big board. Trading dwindled, however, with a turnover for the session of only 443,600 shares, a reduction of about 23 per cent from the previous session.

Advances were wide in a few of the industrials and specialties reflecting primarily the thin market in those issues. Aluminum Company of America, rose 12 points. H. C. Bohack advanced 7 points, in response to an extra dividend of $1. Crown Cork International, Mead Johnson, New Jersey Zinc, Northwest Engineering, and Westmoreland Coal, all gained 2 or more. Ford, Ltd., rose about a point. Deere, however, dropped nearly 3, then reduced its loss to 1. Johnson Motor recorded a new low at 8 3-4, and Axton Fisher lost nearly 5 points.

Utilities worked higher, and these issues remained the center of activity, particularly Electric Band and Share, which rose 2 points to get above 50 again. It closed at 50 3-8. American Gas gained nearly 3, and Associated Gas A, rose a point. American Light and Traction moved contrary to the trend and closed off 2 points.

Oils were mixed. Kentucky and Vacuum gained about a point. Indiana and Cities Service closed about steady, after sagging a little for a time. Gulf lost 2 points. Coppers were neglected. In the holding company and investment trust group, Pennroad rose a point in sympathy with rails on the big board. Goldman Sachs closed up 1-4, and United Founders closed unchanged.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

Starting today for four days at the Palace theatre is The Big Trail, the last word in talking pictures. This is the most pretentious undertaking in the history of talking pictures, the re-enactment of 100 years ago the trek of those sturdy souls over the 2000 miles of unknown land. There is not a scene in this great feature that is not true to life just as it happened in those days of the new west.

It all started in the month of April, 1830, when Jedediah Smith, David Jackson and William Sublette, St. Louis partners in furs, cracked their bull whips, cried "advance" and led a train of ten wagons, two dearborns and eighty-one men on muleback out over what had been a bridle path—the first wheels ever to turn on the northern route. They went only as far as the foot of the Rockies, but Jed Smith, who had seen Great Salt Lake and crossed the Sierras in mid-winter before any other white man, said the wagons could have gone right on to the coast.

Six years later, Dr. Marcus Whitman and the Rev. Henry N. Paulding, with their young wives, proved it, by journeying through to Fort Walla Walla where the British Union Jack then flew. In 1843 Whitman returned and led out a train of 200 wagons—the advance guard of the emigration that won the Oregon-Washington country to the United States, which in turn was part of the great mass epic of the winning of the west, a movement participated in by 250,000 pioneers.

To complete this fine bill of entertainment the Palace has added a program of the finest in short subjects.

Broadway Theatre

An amusing and fascinating illustration of the old adage that there is nothing new under the sun, especially under the African sun, is shown in "Africa Speaks," the Columbia African romance, which is now at the Warner Bros. Broadway theater.

The tense emotional drama of the picture is relieved by a hilarious incident which will cause theater goers to wonder sadly if all their vaunted and elaborate jazz sophistication isn't a stale copy rather than a new thrill.

At any rate, the theater-goer can judge for himself. The Columbia company consider it one of the most surprising and absorbing things they found in the screening of a picture where shock followed shock in the weird heart of the jungle.

"College Lovers," First National's all-campus romance, is the co-feature now playing at the Broadway.

"College Lovers" is a highly entertaining First National comedy picture of college life, with an unusual football game at the finish. It is unique in that Whiting, the hero of the story, is not a football player and does not win the game in the last minute of play.

During the past ten years 45 patients have been released from the National Leprosarium at Carville, La.

Figures Don't Lie

By ODGERS T. GURNEE

A HOOSIER SCHOOLMARM ASSUMES THE PERSONALITY OF A TRAVELING SHOWGIRL

MOLLY O'MEARA thrust back a recalcitrant curl and lazed luxuriously on the parlor davenport. "Thank heaven for Saturday mornings," she sighed, and riffled the pages of a magazine in her capable little hands. It was one of those things about kisses in the dark, bright lights and scarlet nights. Old Dean O'Meara, upstairs in the middle of his morning nap, would have gasped at the sight of it. But he didn't know.

The pages slipped idly through Molly's fingers until the fate that lurks in composing room and binderies brought the inevitable "break." The book lay open at the rear advertising section. Her eyes were drawn to the right-hand page by the compelling gaze of a bewhiskered gentleman in black-and-white halftone who shouted to her in 30-point bold-face type the astounding fact that "Figures Don't Lie." Beneath the flaming headline were lesser platoons of type conveying the assurance that in six lessons she could be transformed from a desk-bound drudge into a lightning calculator with the world of commerce at her feet. The gentleman gloried in the name of "Dr. Dionysius Mills, president."

"Saints preserve us," she moaned and slapped the offending Dr. Mills smartly on his engraved countenance with the other half of the book.

"If I ever hear or see another word about figures—"

She was startled into silence by the swiftly emerging form of a spindly youth.

"Miss Molly," he gasped, "father wants to know can you come to the bank right away?"

She jumped to her feet. "What on earth's the matter?"

"The examiner's coming this afternoon, an' they've got to get a statement ready, an' the adding machine's busted."

"Broken," she corrected in a daze.

"Yes'm, broken," he echoed.

There was a pause, a muffled explosion from Molly and the youth blinked.

"What did you say?" he asked.

Molly whirled and stamped a No. 3 walking shoe.

"I said 'darn,'" she announced.

Resignedly Molly got into a sweater and trouped downtown to substitute for the adding machine that had gone "bust." The brand of brain was upon her. It had been thus ever since the fateful night in her 11th year when she and the Dean went to the Lyceum course and saw a lightning calculator put down seven sets of figures suggested by the audience and write the total as soon as the last digit was chalked into place.

Molly would never forget it. For twelve years her dreams had been beset by enormous blackboards covered to the most minute corner with rows of chalk-white figures that danced and whirled before her eyes, always to flash out of sigh and reappear in near and correct totals.

And all because in an unguarded moment—really without volition—she had leaped upon her chair that night and shrilled in her 11-year-old soprano: "No, no, that's wrong." And it was!

Of course, it was a nine days' wonder. The Lyceum artist gritted his teeth but patted her head in public. He declared she was a genius and had a wonderful gift.

From that time on she was a marked person in Groveport. Old Dean O'Meara, of the State Normal, had gone to bed with a stroke during Molly's senior college year and she was all he had. She couldn't go away. So she taught school and subbed for "busted" adding machines—and dreamed. The magazine with the provocative contents which she had hidden in the davenport was just a surreptitious gesture toward that outside world from which she seemed so effectively and everlastingly barred.

Now that you know about Molly, you can understand the grim purpose which leaped Minerva-like from her clicking mind as she checked the totals of the bank statement that Saturday morning. It sent her homeward after the job was done with a tight wrinkle in the center of her forehead and a "dare-you-to-say-figures" look in her steely blue eyes.

"I'm going to Florida," she announced crisply as she wheeled her father's invalid chair into the sunroom after luncheon.

THIRTY-ONE days later to the dot, the day upon which she had promised to return to Groveport, Molly O'Meara arrived in Florida. All because of one ill-chosen but well-meant question.

"Librarian or school teacher?" asked a kindly old gentleman who sat opposite her on the train.

"School teacher," she answered. And, then the blighting import of his words struck her.

The man across the aisle smiled complacently. "I'd know the type anywhere," he stated. But he finished to an empty chair. Molly had gone, striding down the aisle.

Two young things were in the ladies' lounge when she entered. For the first time in years Molly used her eyes for the purpose of comparison. She surveyed herself frankly in the mirror. Stringy bobbed hair that was too long to give its natural wave a chance; a thin-nostriled, upturning nose that beckoned like a beacon for want of powder that would stay put; a "generous" mouth with a full-blown upper lip and a too heavily thatched arch of eyebrow.

We are quoting Molly's own valuation. Suffice it to say that she was a bit harsh with herself. Only the eyes passed muster.

"What," she inquired of her reflection, "can you do with an ensemble like that?"

She had decided that there was a great deal to be done. But it wasn't a hopeless job and she knew just where to start. So when the train reached Atlanta she gathered up her luggage and left it flat, regardless of the fact that her ticket read Miami. She arrived at the Florida resort a month later, half emerged from the chrysalis, hair no longer straying in wisps about her eyes, the uptilting nose serenely pointing heavenward, secure in its coating of powder that stuck, the thatched eyebrows gone in favor of a plucked crescent. The mouth hadn't been changed. It had not been necessary. Nor the eyes.

MOLLY snuggled deep into the embrace of the Miami sand and allowed herself the complete luxury of a sinew-racking stretch.

"I wonder," she mused, "who all these people are, where they came from?" She tossed the questions about in the back of her mind for a bit. And then: "I believe," she philosophized, "it would be a better plan to pick out one good subject and concentrate."

Whereupon, as if in direct answer to desire, a white and blue and brown figure splashed shoreward on the crest of an incoming wave and waded, knee-deep, to that particular section of beachfront which bisected Molly's arc of vision.

The brown portions became distinguishable as arms and legs and head. The white and blue were bathing suit. She watched him kick the clinging wet sand from his feet and shake the water from his head with a surging toss. Then he started directly toward her.

It may have been shyness that made Molly reach for the protecting rim of the beach umbrella. But what actually happened was that the thing was pushed up, that she found herself straightening her Seminole beach wrap about her shoulders and shaking out the wavy little lengths of her boyish bob.

But while the fate of empires trembled in the balance, while the world spun and danced its way toward eternity and Molly bared her soul in her eyes, he plowed on his way, his gaze fixed on something a league or two behind her—following his nose—oblivious.

One swift flush of shame swept over her and then the floodgates of her wrath! She turned to watch his vanishing back as he entered the bathing pavilion. "You porpoise," she thought scathingly. "I'll make you notice me. I'll get even if it takes all winter."

But it didn't take that long.

That evening at the hotel she was introduced to a Mrs. Amidon, who later presented her brother, Dion Stewart, the man whom Molly had vowed to conquer.

It wasn't until the second dance that he asked her where she came from, adding the gratuitous information that he was sick of New York and had decided to settle in a nice country town.

So Molly said she was from Chicago.

During the next dance, when he reached question No. 3 in the litany of first meetings and inquired about her vocation, she very gravely told him that she wasn't doing anything that season because she had broken an ankle while on the road with the No. 2 company of "Sins of Susan" last summer. And she showed him the injured member, but was apparent from his manner that he failed to find any flaw as a result of the unfortunate occurrence.

For a time Molly feared her dash into prevarication had been a bit too perpendicular, the amiable Mr. Stewart retreating into a sort of a shell that thrust up about him whenever she essayed to switch the conversation toward his personal existence. In fact, he appeared unaccountably distraught when she summoned up courage during the next-to-the-last dance and asked him what he did as a matter of daily bread.

"If I tell you," he whispered mysteriously, "will you promise never to tell my sister?" Without waiting for her breathless nod of assent he plunged on in a confidential air. "You see, I'm the black sheep of the family. They think I sell bonds or something, but I'm really the manager for 'Sock' McGlone, the lightweight champion. For heaven's sake keep it dark."

"Only a manager," she said with just that faint breath of scorn that devastates. "Haven't you ever fought yourself?"

"Oh, yes, of course. You know, I couldn't manage one unless I knew something about it. Matter of fact, I was lucky enough to win the middleweight title in college."

His voice trailed off sadly.

"I was badly smashed up in an auto wreck. It ended my hopes for a ring career. Tough break, wasn't it?"

"Very," assured Molly. "And where were you hurt?"

"Between the shoulder blades," he replied.

"What a strange place," she observed musingly, "to be struck in an automobile."

"In an automobile wreck," he corrected blandly. "I was afoot, running—working out on the road, y'know."

The waltz drifted off into a faint minor and died. Molly was devoutly thankful for the uprush of chatter and the hand-clapping. She was still dizzy from the speed with which Mr. Stewart had come to life.

In the sanctuary of her room Molly emerged from a bad half hour and decided there was nothing to do but see it through.

Despite a not-so-good night, Molly wakened earlier than usual. Only a handful of sun worshipers were in the lobby when she descended. Mr. Fortescu, the handsome brute behind the desk, was in a frightful humor.

"You must pardon me, Miss O'Meara," he breathed, "but I've just had a most distressing experience." Mr. Fortescu bit his under lip in a quiver of rage.

"A prizefighting person and his manager just attempted to insinuate themselves into our midst."

Sudden curiosity struck Molly.

"What," she inquired, "was the prizefighting person's name?"

"Really," sighed Mr. Fortescu, "I can't remember. But I think it was 'Swat' Something-or-other." He motioned feebly toward the veranda. "They're still out there."

At the foot of the steps Molly ran her quarry to earth. There were two figures, one small and bulgy as to shoulders, the other large and bulgy as to paunch.

"Are you Mr. 'Swat' McGlone?" she inquired promiscuously.

Both figures wheeled and the small one disengaged itself from a wide straw sailor with a flourish.

"And how!" it replied, bowing.

SHE disregarded him and faced the bulk at his side.

"The name," rumbled the big one, "is Dan McDonnell, manager of the world's champion." He indicated the other with a thrust of a bent thumb.

"Do you know a Mr. Dion Stewart?" she pursued anxiously.

The small figure showed signs of recognition.

"'At's all right, sister," he beamed, "we don't need no thoid party—"

The flail-like hand of the corpulent Mr. McDonnell fell upon his neck. "Nix on the skirts," he hissed, and thrust the little one behind him.

"No," he said menacingly to Molly "we don't know nobody named Stewart." He retreated down the shell walk, dragging the unwilling champion with him, "an' we never metcha at Coney Island, neither."

There was that significant steely glint in Molly's eye when she turned her back on the twin absurdities and re-entered the hotel.

"He lied to me," she said darkly. "He lied to me, and if there's anything I can't stand it's a—"

The invective died a-borning. It dawned upon Molly with shocking suddenness that her right leg was supposed to be hors de combat—and there were other complications—none of them true.

"Saints preserve us!" she gasped.

She was able to smile a bit wanly about it after a sketchy breakfast and a hasty retreat to the comparative safety of the beach.

She was drawing designs in the sand with a wavering fingertip when a foot entered the circle of visible beach in front of her. Then another. Her heart soared, turned over in midair and crashed as she raised her eyes. The legs were not tanned. They were sunburned, a beefy pink, and above them towered and abutted a very large and inebriated youth whose moonlike countenance glowed crimson beneath a thatch of straw-colored hair.

He smiled spaciously and came down in a series of spiraling loops, extending the parboiled shins gingerly into the shade of the umbrella.

"As I live 'n' breathe," he wheezed, "'Til' Miz' Miami herself." His grin strove to be engaging as he indicated himself with a flip of one corpulent paw.

"Th' name," he announced, "is Shopkins, Willard Shopkins." He gulped deeply to catch up with his breath and fixed her with an accusative eye.

"I been looking at you around the hotel, but you never give me a ripple."

"Suppose," she suggested in an ominously calm voice, "suppose we go swimming."

Ten minutes later Molly was in her bathhouse, wet and still smiling grimly. Mr. Shopkins was in the second circle of breakers, dazedly picking sand out of his ears and muttering to himself.

"Why," he gasped thickly, "did she wanna slap me down for?"

The mutual process of dodging which had come to be the absorbing occupation of the miserable Mr. Stewart and an abashed Miss O'Meara met with unqualified success until the dinner hour.

She entered the dining room determined to seek a secluded spot. The head-waiter greeted her blandly and started away at a foxtrot for the center of the room. Dead ahead loomed the broad shoulders of Dion Stewart and across the expanse of one of them his sister's eyes smiled in welcome.

"Saints preserve us," moaned Molly feebly.

Mrs. Amidon greeted her. "I've asked to have you moved to our table," she announced. "I thought it would seem nicer, being with friends."

By some conversational alchemy which Molly made no attempt to fathom, the dinner passed, while Mr. Stewart continued to pursue crab legs and his sister talked enough for both of them.

In fact, before she finished, she had talked too much. It was another of those sentences.

"We've planned a round of bridge," she said as they rose, "and of course we're counting on you for the fourth hand." It sounded innocuous enough. Certainly bridge with its inhibition of silence was better than an evening of dodging behind potted palms. Molly said "yes."

It was twenty minutes of 11 when they decided to quit.

Mrs. Amidon was separating the four individual scores and trying to total them. Rows of digits paraded before Molly's eyes. She forgot Mr. Dion Stewart, forgot her resolve and the solemn warnings of experience; her adopted personality — everything but figures.

Mrs. Amidon paused in puzzled silence, and Molly's tongue skidded into her teeth itching to shout the scores. "I'm lost," the other woman admitted. She shoved a clean sheet of paper toward her brother. "Here, Dion, you old figure shark, you count 'em while I read 'em off."

Mr. Stewart groaned and gripped the pencil, jotting down the rows of figures as Mrs. Amidon read them off. When he had finished the last row in each column, he drew a sharp line and methodically wrote down the total without any semblance of having added them.

"Ethel wins," he announced wearily, almost before she had tripped out the final honor count. "She's got 1787. I'm next with 1771." He threw down the pencil and cast an apprehensive eye at Molly.

Her cheeks were flushed.

"No," she said sharply. "That's wrong."

The other three gasped and the realization of what she had done made Molly speechless.

Mrs. Amidon's laugh cut across her confusion.

"I hope it is," she chuckled. "Dion's the cockiest young sparrow on the tree about his mathematics. But I'm afraid, my dear, you'd lose a bet on it. He's never been known to miss."

Molly struggled to kick her chair back from the table and escape. Stewart's startled exclamation rooted her to the spot.

"She's right," he said in amazement, "I've got 1791." He turned. "How in the world—?" But Molly had finally achieved a foothold on the floor and with that much gained nothing could stop her. She was half across the cardroom before he started in pursuit.

She saw his reflection in a mirror as she entered the front lobby and headed for the veranda. At the shell walk she turned sharply to the left, cut across the lawn and began to run for the beach.

Behind her she could hear the pad of his feet. He was running, too. Ahead the dark bulk of the boathouse loomed, at once inviting and forbidding. She slipped across the cleated boardwalk of the pier and pushed inside.

UNEXPECTEDLY a light popped on, blinding her, and she heard a familiarly thick voice from the gloom beyond. The beam wavered and she realized it was a flashlight. It came nearer and she recognized the overstuffed dimensions of the unamiable Mr. Shopkins.

He fumbled along the wall and clicked a light switch. Molly saw he was not smiling. In fact, it was apparent that his cumulative "jag" had reached a stage which made the boathouse a good place to leave.

She whirled on one heel. A sickening twinge shot through her left knee and she fell heavily. The heel of her slipper, wrenched loose by the strain, was sticking askew between two planks. She bit her tongue and tried to rise.

Shopkins waddled toward her.

"Got hurt, didn'ya," he gloated. "Tried to run away 'n' got hurt." He reached down and seized her wrist. "Jus' for that, Willard's gonna take you out in his boat."

She was conscious that Shopkins was carrying her over his hip like a sack. She felt the lurch of a boat as he stepped down from the landing stage and then another thrust of pain as he dropped her in the bow.

She heard him grunt, heard the cough of the motor as he spun the flywheel. Then a shout from somewhere far away.

There was a heavier cough from the motor, a staccato burst of explosions and the boat began to rock forward into the lagoon. She heard the shout again, nearer. A light flicked across her face and she struggled to rise.

A silhouette zoomed up from the planks of the landing stage, hung in midair and then perched on the tip of the stern. Between, the bulk of her abductor swelled amidships. He was cursing at the top of his voice. No sound came from the silhouette.

Then, abruptly, it moved forward. A thin glint of moonlight picked out a tanned face. She saw an arm whip back and move forward like a piston.

There was a gasping sound and the 200-odd pounds of Willard Shopkins seemed to lift and curve backward, his heels dragging momentarily at the dipping gunwale before he fell, spread-eagled, into the cross-chop sea.

THE victor was clambering across the motor toward her. Somewhere in their wake she visualized the pink face of her departed host.

"Get him," she demanded, "get him. He'll drown."

The approaching figure straightened. The eyes were like flame.

"I beg your pardon," he said stiffly, "I didn't know you cared." He bowed theatrically and dived over the side.

It took fully five minutes for Molly to get the tiller ropes untangled and bring the lumbering boat around. It took ten minutes more for her to creep back over the zigzag course and find them.

Mr. Shopkins was entirely unconscious of what was going on.

It was a tremendous task getting him on the landing stage. And Molly was of no earthly use. She couldn't stand on that left leg. But Stewart managed it.

Then, having dumped the gentleman unceremoniously on the boards, he looked long and intently at Molly and turned away.

She would have called him back, but something gripped her throat and choked her. And it wasn't pride. She managed to drag herself to the side of the still form on the planks and push herself erect. By taking off the other shoe she found she could hop a little, then hobble a step, halt for rest and repeat.

She had made half the distance to walk when the rattle of shell and sand told her some one was coming. It was Stewart.

Without speaking he stepped beside her and picked her up. "I didn't know you were hurt," he explained.

"It's really my leg this time," she said. His cool wet arms felt like ice against the hot flesh of her shoulder. She pointed. "The left knee," she said, and it seemed quite natural for him to close his long, capable fingers over the tortured spot.

"Thank you for saving me," she said as he began the ascent of the beach. "But couldn't you have been a little pleasanter about it?"

"I didn't hurt him," he responded savagely.

"I don't care if you did," she flared. "I'm talking about me. You hurt my feelings."

He stopped so suddenly that she thought he was going to drop her. But his arms gripped closer and one hand slid to her neck so that the fingers raised her head very near his own.

He appeared to be framing an apology. But he discarded the thought and looked sternly at her.

"Look here," he said, "before this thing goes any further we've got to have the truth. I lied to you."

"I know," she interrupted, "you never saw 'Sock' McGlone except from a ringside seat."

He looked his astonishment, but forebore questioning her.

"And I never was hit by an automobile," he continued in a dead voice.

MOLLY visualized the bulk of Mr. Shopkins flying backward over the boat rail and grinned into the protecting folds of Mr. Stewart's soaked and starchy dress shirt.

There was a long pause while he fumbled for words.

"And I'm not anything but a darned machine that juggles figures for a living."

"Is that all?" Molly asked after a decent interval.

The saturnine head nodded grimly.

"Well," she sighed, "I guess it's my turn."

She realized he was no longer walking.

"Am I too heavy?" she asked. He said nothing, but gripped her tighter.

"Well," she sighed again, "It's not true about 'Sins of Susan.' I wasn't in it. And there never was anything wrong with either of my legs—until now."

"No," he said absently. "I should say there wasn't."

Then he blushed. Molly could swear to that.

She said in a rush of confession: "I've got to tell you all the awful truth. I'm just a terrible fake and I teach school for a living in a sleepy place called Groveport, Ind., and I ran away to go places and see things—and I'm a freak that insists on adding up every row of figures I see or hear"—a tremulous, sobbing sigh—"and the darn things always come out right."

She wanted very much to sob openly on Mr. Stewart's broad shoulder and she even turned her head to bury her face in his neck, but somehow or other his lips got in the way.

It was a very salty kiss, what with Molly's tears and the drops of Atlantic Ocean that dripped down from Mr. Stewart's brow. But it was also a very, very satisfying kiss.

And it lasted a long time.

"I thought you hated figures," Molly said in a small and buried voice after a time.

"Not yours," he said, and then abruptly sat down with Molly on his knee and began fishing through the bedraggled pockets of his dinner jacket.

"Look," he commanded, spreading out two sheets of paper in the moonlight.

Dimly Molly could see the compelling figure of the whiskery gentleman, "Dionysius Mills, president," who had barked at her in 30-point type back in Groveport and driven her from home.

On the other sheet she saw the same figure with a new face, a clean-shaven face with piercing black eyes. It was Mr. Dion Stewart and beneath it she could discern the line:

"Dionysius Mills, Jr., president."

She gasped and he groaned.

"Now," he said, "you know the worst. The directors think father's picture is too old-fashioned. They want young blood." He cracked his knuckles furiously in despair. "And they've voted to put that thing in every magazine that goes to the morons of the world."

"I thought your name was Stewart," she said suddenly.

"It is," he answered. "D. Mills Stewart. We just left the last name off the advertisement to save the rest of the family from disgrace."

He leaped up so suddenly that Molly was catapulted into the sand. "I'll fool 'em," he almost yelled. "I'll sell out. Ethel's husband will take an option right now. We—" he swung down and gathered Molly up again. "We," he said commandingly, "will get married tomorrow and start our own business."

The moon went under and came out again before either could speak.

"We might," Molly suggested, "go back to Groveport and start an adding-machine business. Heaven knows they need one."

Annual purchases of tires and tubes for replacements on automobiles of the federal government are estimated to total nearly $1,000,000.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

The old timers who delight in telling of the early, long and cold winters of years past, the days when they claim snow fell in October and stayed on the ground until May, will probably receive a slight jolt when they are informed, through this column, that violets were picked in Norwich, November 17, 1880. Interesting extracts taken from the files of The Norwich Bulletin of November, 1880, follow:

Monday, Nov. 15, 1880—Spanish onions weighing a pound a piece are in the market. The aroma is not so weighty.

The coal merchants have so many vessels at the wharves that they have to work nights to get the cargoes out.

Butter is commanding stiff prices and a short supply of the prime article, gives vigor to the oleomargarine market.

The shallow ponds were frozen over Saturday night. The self-sacrificing boy will give his life pretty soon to see if it is thick enough to skate on.

Prof. Cooke's third entertainment at Breed hall, Saturday evening, was well patronized and proved quite as satisfactory as his former entertainments. He convinced his audience that he could "out-juggle" the so-called spiritual jugglers.

Tuesday, Nov. 16, 1880—The first snow storm of the season visited this section yesterday morning, clothing the earth in a robe of white. The mild temperature was unfavorable to its remaining and at noon the streets showed no signs of its presence.

The speculators in turkeys and chickens have been making their annual rounds among the farmers and by the middle of the present week several tons of poultry will be delivered in this city for shipment abroad.

Niagara Hose Co. give their annual social on the evening of the 24th at their house on Union street.

The Rev. L. T. Chamberlain, D. D., of this city, is chairman of the business committee at the Congregational council of St. Louis, and will read before that body a paper entitled "The relation of the church and missions."

The people of Bean Hill are very much gratified by the refusal of the selectmen to recommend several liquor dealers there for a license, who have made their places obnoxious to the publish for several years past.

Wednesday, Nov. 17, 1880—The special committee appointed by the common council to consider the feasibility of supplying the Fairview reservoir with water by turning the water shed of the Bog meadow farm and the Plain Hill section into it by turning the course of the present stream that conveys a vast amount of splendid water away from there, visited that section yesterday, to look over the region and get at the probable cost of the enterprise.

The Norwich Literary society held a very successful and interesting entertainment, last evening at their parlors in Williams building. The programme was varied in sentiment and style and proved very pleasing to the audience.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis E. Beckwith celebrated their crystal wedding at their residence on Connel street, last evening. One hundred and fifty invitations were issued and a large party congregated to do them honor. They royally entertained their friends and received the congratulations of all present.

Thursday, Nov. 18, 1880—The City Guard, Co. C. C. N. G., will be inspected and mustered by Col. J. P. Clark on Tuesday evening next.

The bar committee are contemplating the enlargement of the library room at the court house, after which new cases will be added, and the number of volumes in the library greatly increased.

Elias Cottrell, of this city, the genial and venerable janitor of the superior court, has held the office for 21 years. He has been absent from his post of duty but two days of his whole term of office.

Violets were gathered in the fields yesterday.

The quarterly convention of the Independent Order of Good Templars in New London county, was held at Taftville on Tuesday. There were delegates from several lodges in the county present. In the evening the lodge was thrown open to the public and an agreeable and social time was enjoyed.

Friday, Nov. 19, 1880—Still celebrating—Last evening the officers of the Garfield and Arthur battalion of this city appropriately celebrated the recent republican victory, in Steiner's hall. The ceremonies were of the serio-comic order and afforded fund for the last party assembled.

It is expected that the new steamer, now being built in Wilmington, Del., for the Norwich and New York Transportation Co., will be ready to take its place on the line about the first of June.

Norwich Hose Co., No. 4, gave their first social this season at their handsomely furnished house on Boswell avenue last night. Fifty couples were in attendance and tripped the light fantastic toe.

Saturday, Nov. 20, 1880—The Rev. Hugh Montgomery will preach at the union service to be held at the Greeneville Baptist church at 7.30 o'clock tomorrow evening. Subject, Half Measures.

The union Thanksgiving services of the Broadway, Park and Second Congregational churches will be held this year at the Park church and the annual sermon will be preached by the Rev. Wm. S. Palmer of the Second church.

Turkeys are retailing at 23 cents a pound in this market.

Christmas greens are already in the market.

The Garfield and Arthur Tigers at a recent meeting voted to give the balance in their hands to the Rock Nook home, and to present the handsome banner painted by Mr. Crocker to Capt. Ellis. A motion to disband was lost. The meeting adjourned sine die.

Canada exported passenger cars and trucks valued at $1,878,525 in September, an increase of 16 per cent over August.

Inhabitants of the little Hungarian town of Bonyhad are breaking their heads trying to devise some just punishment for a man who for many weeks thought it a great joke to break into one house after another only for the purpose of frightening the inmates by walking ghostlike into their bedrooms with a sheet over his head and quickly disappearing as soon as he had succeeded in creating an alarm.

POETRY

Going Home For Sunday

Saturday's over—from toil set free—
Sunday's tomorrow, big day fer me!
Can't wait for breakfast, just-wash and comb,
Crank up Old Sneezer an' head fer home!

Sunday back there! You maybe don't know
Just what it is fer a boy to go
Up to th' city, his way to seek—
Board, room an' washin' too much a week!

You'll call me homesick—'taint that at all—
Still, there is somethin' you'd maybe call
Loneliness, playin' th' "blues" an' things
Down 'round my heart — an' how it stings!

Folks, I'll admit that old Homebody ties
Bind me to Sunday to ease my sighs
See everybody you used to know—
Ain't been home lately? You'd ought to go!

Sneezer—old faithful—just coughs along
Tellin' my tires to be brave and strong,
They must bear Homeboy to where his soul
Anchors with joy at his Sunday goal!

Pass th' old schoolhouse, th' church, an' there,
Just comin' out from th' Hour of Prayer,
Neighbors stand forth with welcoming hand—
You of th' city can't understand!

Jokers declare I've come home to see
Some certain girl who's mesmerized me!
Maybe it's true—say, folks, there's no doubt
My people's neighbors sure find things out!

Mother tells Dad I'm lovesick, she knows;
Dad just chuckles, then says: "I suppose
You think he's here fer sociable call;
Ma, he ain't lovesick— hungry, that's all!"

—William Herschell, in Indianapolis News.

Indian Legend Of The Goldenrod

Along the trails the redmen trod
Stands, tall and proud, the goldenrod.
Chief Yellow Feather ere he died
Called all his warriors to his side;
"The white man comes to glen and glade
On forest paths our feet have made,
Soon not a moccasin will press
The mosses of the wilderness;
But though our lodges fall to dust,
Our bones decay, our arrows rust,
Our council fires no longer shine,
The ancient trails will yet be mine.'
So when the frost its fancy weaves
In silver on the fallen leaves,
Behold the goldenrod in bloom—
Chief Yellow Feather's nodding plume

—Minna Irving in the New York Sun

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"That girl over there shows distinction in her clothes."

"You mean distinctly, don't you?"—Boston Transcript.

Passenger—How do you know the way back?

Aviator—I just notice the shapes of the clouds and then it is easy.—Il Travaso.

"I'm through with Freddy."

"How come, dearie?"

"I heard him telling Jack that he had Ethyl in his automobile last night."—Exchange.

"What are the attractions of this resort?"

"Varied. Last week we had twelve cars stolen and five husbands absconded."—Il '420'.

First Office Boy—Don't you ever have a day off for your grandmother's funeral?

Second Office Boy—What! And me working for the registrar of births and deaths!—Inverness Courier.

Old Lady—That doesn't seem to me to be a big piece of meat for such a large animal.

Attendant—I suppose it does seem a small piece of meat to you, ma'am, but it's big enough for a lion.—London Opinion.

An Englishman on a visit to the west decided to go horseback riding. The hostler who was to attend him asked: "Do you prefer an English saddle or a western?"

"What's the difference?" he asked.

"The western saddle has a horn," replied the attendant.

"I don't think I'll need the horn," said the Englishman. "I don't intend to ride in heavy traffic."—Pathfinder.

A newly-promoted officer gave a dinner to his company. Addressing the men, he said, jovially: "Now fall upon the food without pity. Treat it as if it were the enemy."

At the end of the dinner he observed a sergeant sneaking away with two bottles of wine.

"What are you doing?" he asked.

"Observing orders," was the reply. "When you don't kill the enemy you take them prisoners."—Punch.

MARTY RUSSELL, NEW LONDON, HELD WITH WIFE ON A MANN ACT CHARGE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 21—Marty Russell, alias Mario Restivo, of 8 Cross street, where he and his wife have conducted a resort for several years, were arrested this noon by agents of the department of justice from Providence, charged with violation of the Mann act. It is the claim of the Rhode Island authorities that Russell and his wife are members of a gang who transport young women from Providence to New London for purposes of immorality. Russell and his wife, Anna, were presented before United States Commissioner Russell H. Corcoran and the case was continued to Friday next. Each was held in bail of $7,500 and being unable to secure a surety on their respective bonds, Russell and his wife were committed to jail. Two others of the alleged white slave ring are also under arrest in Providence, Joseph Patriaca and Lucy Baldi. Russell and his wife, according to the police, have conducted a liquor resort and house of ill fame a long time. Both have been arrested on charges of violation of the liquor law, but neither has been convicted of operating a house of ill fame or house of assignation. Several months ago, Michael Baldi, a former resident of New London, was "put on the spot" in Providence, for Baldi was led to an alley where he was shot down by a rain of bullets entering his body from the guns of Providence racketeers. Russell, who formerly resided in Providence, was in that city a few hours before the slaying of Baldi and the Providence police were of the opinion that the New London man had knowledge of the actual slayers of Baldi. During their unsuccessful search for the murderers, Russell was questioned at Providence police headquarters, but he did not furnish any clues that might lead to the apprehension of the murderers.

Brewer has a long police court record.

HAPPY PARROT'S CARGO STORED AT CUSTOMS HOUSE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 21—After a chase of nearly 10 miles, the Happy Parrot, owned in New Haven, a speed launch, laden with nearly 400 cases of liquor was captured off Cerberus Shoal, Block Island, late last night. The boat cargo and crew of three men were brought into port. This forenoon the Happy Parrot was piloted to the United States coast guard academy pier where the liquor was loaded upon trucks and taken to the customs house for storage. The crew this afternoon were presented before United States Commissioner Russell H. Corcoran when the cases were continued a week.

The Happy Parrot had been suspected of being a rum-runner several months. About 10.30 o'clock last night the crew of a 75-foot patrol boat, stationed at the New London base and which was patrolling Block Island sound observed the speed launch running low in the water. A signal was given the master to stop, but the order was unheeded. Several shots were fired at the rum-runner and three or four hit the pilot house and wrecked it, but none of the crew were injured. The boat is now moored off the state pier.

LOCAL DEMOCRATS SCAN THE POLITICAL PLUM-TREE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 21.—There is an opinion among some of the democratic faithful that Governor Cross may look to New London when he selects officials to appoint to positions within his gift as chief executive of this state. Governor Cross has important posts to fill and the democrats who were workers for him during the campaign that resulted in his election are of the opinion that he may show appreciation of that work. Some of the positions are purely honorary while others have salaries attached. It is understood that Governor Cross will insist that his selections be confirmed unless there is excellent reason for rejecting the candidates he names. He does not mean to appoint anyone in whom he has not full confidence and of whose ability he is not assured. The democrats in New London reduced the majority of the republican opponent of Governor Cross fifty per cent and that work is considered the sort that should be recognized.

WESTERLY

BRADFORD MAN CHARGED WITH EVASION HAS CASE CONTINUED

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Nov. 21—Third District court session was held on Friday by Judge Oliver H. Williams when a number of criminal and civil actions were disposed of.

Frank Tuomi, Findlander, residing in the Charlestown section of Bradford was brought before the court on the charge that on November 14th, after knowingly causing an automobile accident failed to stop and return to the scene. Oliver Forse, 19, of Westerly appeared as court interpreter when the defendant claimed not to understand the charges brought against him.

He pleaded not guilty, saying, "I never touched nobody's car." Prosecutor Ferguson informed the court that in Bradford on Friday evening the accused sideswiped the automobile owned and driven by Harry L. Bolles of Westerly. He declared that the accident was seen by other persons and that following the collision Tuomi drove his car to a garage. No one was injured but there was considerable damage done to the Bolles Packard roadster.

At the request of the defendant the case was continued to Friday, November 28th and Jacob Jacobson became surety for his court appearance in the sum of $1,000 bonds.

David L. Lamonte, 26, of Hartford, pleaded guilty to the operation on November 11th of an automobile on the Noose-Neck hill road, near the Hopkinton town farm at a rate of speed greater than reasonable and proper. Being found guilty he was sentenced to pay a fine of $25 and costs which he paid and was discharged.

Nathan Cline, apprehended by Corporal Albert L. Taylor of the Hope Valley barracks of the Rhode Island state police, following an accident on the Noose-neck hill road in which a man was injured and sent to the Westerly hospital, had his case continued two weeks on request of Prosecutor John Ferguson.

Civil Docket

Attorney John J. Dunn in the case of Louis Silverstein et al vs. Joe Stedman, informed the court that the defendant was ready to submit to decision. "I'll accept decision," said the respondent and the court fixed the amount $210 and costs.

In the case of Clyde Mills, Inc., vs. Joe Stedman, Attorney Dunn asked for a week's continuance, saying that assurances from a responsible party had been given that the matter, a suit in book account for the collection of rent, would be adjusted on Friday. One week's continuance was granted.

Feldman Brothers of Norwich in suit for book account were represented by Attorney Dunn and the respondents William Riddel and Mary Riddell by Judge Michael J. Turano. Judge Turano asked for continuance to file special pleas which was objected to when the court was informed that the respondents had been adjudged bankrupt three weeks ago. After a conference the claim for $235 and costs was submitted to in a decision for the plaintiffs by Judge Williams.

Albert S. Angell, against whom suit was brought by the United States Rubber company, had the case against him marked defaulted unless answered during the Friday session and the case passed for proof of claim.

Santo Turano et al sued by the Morris Plan company of Rhode Island had the case against him continued one week, being passed for hearing and judgment given by placing the same on the nisi docket.

Over a hundred and fifty Masons were present on Friday evening in Masonic hall to witness an exemplification of the master mason degree by the officers of Franklin lodge, No. 20, F. and A. M., Fred G. Kennedy, master. The special communication was held for the official visitation of Henry S. See, grand master of masons in the state of Rhode Island. He was accompanied by Grand Marshal Charles R. Manchester. Both men are past masters of Mount Vernon lodge No. 4, F. and A. M. of Providence. Following the degree work an oyster stew supper was served at tables placed in the armory banquet hall of Narragansett commandery No. 27, K. T. The annual visitation of Franklin lodge by District Deputy Grand Master Clarence A. Griffin will be held next March.

Nathan A. Collins, Jr., of Wood River Junction, Richmond, R. I., pleaded guilty on Thursday before Judge Oliver H. Williams in a special session of third district court to a charge of beating his wife, Norma Bell Mathewson Collins on November 16th. The defendant was brought before the court by Sheriff Fred T. Mitchell. Pending his arraignment an investigation was made of the Collins home by police authorities, following which the arraignment was made. Collins was sentenced to ninety days in Providence county jail.

The wife, following the officers' investigation, will be brought before the court today (Saturday) and also the children will come under the court's attention. There has been much family trouble during the past weeks and the court appearance of the parties follows numerous complaints.

FOUR STONINGTON PERSONS RECEIVE SENTENCES FOR TURKEY STEALING

(Special to the Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Nov. 21—A special session of Stonington town court was held on Friday morning by Judge William A. Wilcox, when a full court room of spectators heard eight cases disposed of, four of them being for turkey stealing, three for breaking and entering and one for non-support.

Raymond Earl, Raymond Earl, Jr., Mrs. Elizabeth Jordan, Earl's elder daughter, and Thomas Thompson, all of Stonington, presented confessions detailing how they had left their home, visited the farm of Nelson Wheeler of Stonington and while his attention was attracted by Mrs. Jordan, killed three turkeys and took them back home with them. This occurred after dark on Thursday and later a New York truckman was given one turkey together with turnips, squashes, etc. The accused have received help previously from the authorities of the town of Groton and apparently the quartet tired of appealing to authorities for assistance and had proceeded to help themselves.

Thomas Thompson, was found guilty and sentenced to six months in New London county jail, a fine of $100 and costs totaling $14.45. Raymond Earl, Sr., received a sentence of six months in jail, a $100 fine, and costs which totaled $14.45. Testimony showed that Mrs. Elizabeth Jordan did not live with her husband and for her part in the turkey stealing she received a sentence of six months in jail and costs which totaled $12.45. Raymond Earl, Jr., 21, although he drove the automobile, claimed not to have known that the Buick car was to transport turkeys and his mother was represented to the court as having four small children, and as a consequence of which Judge Wilcox imposed three months in New London county jail and the payment of $12.45 costs.

Samuel A. Melanson of Pawcatuck who had previously been before the Stonington town court on a non-support charge, again made his court appearance to state that he wanted counsel. The case was continued to December 2nd. Bonds in the sum of $500 were unable to be secured and he was recommitted.

Breaking and entering cases in Stonington, among them Linden Hall, owned by H. S. Owen, and located near the Stonington athletic field, which was reported by the caretaker, J. Benjamin Adams, has been investigated by Officer Arthur Whitmarsh and John H. Smith and as a result two Stonington young men, Edmund Joseph and Anthony Sylvia admitted the breaks and Edmund Aguiar admitted the receiving of the stolen goods. They were placed in the lockup in the town hall and each held till the session of court this morning, bonds in the sum of $500 each being asked, but as the sum was not forthcoming, they remained locked up all night.

The goods found were as follows: From the Owen house, a typewriter, 8 victrola records, a silver watch, a fountain pen, pearl handle knife, writing paper and several pencils and foreign coins.

Seven houses were found broken into on Lord's Point and the boys admitted entering three of these, where they secured a radio, a watch and small articles. They gave a written confession while under examination at the town hall.

They entered the Owen house on Armistice day and the places on Lord's Point, Nov. 18. The houses visited were Carlisle's, Carpenter's, Pike's, Gallup's, Prescott's and Manning's. Confessions made of their own free will by Edwin Joseph of Water street, Anthony Sylvia of Hancox street, Edmund Aguiar of Grand street, Stonington, were used in court.

Edward Joseph, 19, had Patrick J. Gilmore, Jr., appointed as his guardian ad litem. A plea of guilty was entered and this under the circumstances given in the confession was changed to not guilty. Judge W. A. Wilcox after a statement from Prosecutor Henry P. Hammacher found probable cause and Joseph was bound over for trial in the next term of the criminal court of common pleas for New London county. Bonds were set at the sum of $1,000 and he was remanded to jail to await trial.

Anthony Sylvia, aged 17 years, was the second called for trial and his sister, Miss Amelia Sylvia, acted as guardian. His complaint as in the former instance, cited breaking and entering and the larceny of goods from the houses named.

The third boy, Edmund Aguiar, aged 20 years, was arraigned on a like charge as the others, and David Pachio of Stonington was named as guardian. A plea of not guilty was entered, but the facts proved to the court that the accused had some of the stolen goods in his possession, they were found by the officer in his father's home on Grand street. Probable cause was found and he was bound over for trial before the higher court. Bonds being set in the sum of $1,000. Sylvia was the only one able to procure bonds and the others were taken to jail in New London for trial.

APPEAL OF MERCHANTS MEETS PROMPT RESPONSE

A much better response to the subscription paper being sent around to the merchants of the village to raise money to buy food for needy families in the village for Thanksgiving, is coming in than was expected. The paper states, "Mystic merchants, realizing the local depression and recognizing the direful necessities of many of our unemployed fellow citizens and their families, by this solicit contributions from those who feel that it is 'more blessed to give than to receive,' and with the advent of Thanksgiving day, the local merchants, feeling that they have much to be thankful for, take this method of alleviating the suffering of our needy ones. The entire sum by this means collected will be distributed by a committee, duly appointed by the local merchants, to those needy families who in the estimation and judgment of the first selectman, in conjunction with that of the Visiting Nurse association, are in need and worthy of assistance. This appeal is sponsored by the Mystic merchants. The total amount of the subscription will be announced through the medium of the press, also the total distribution thereof."

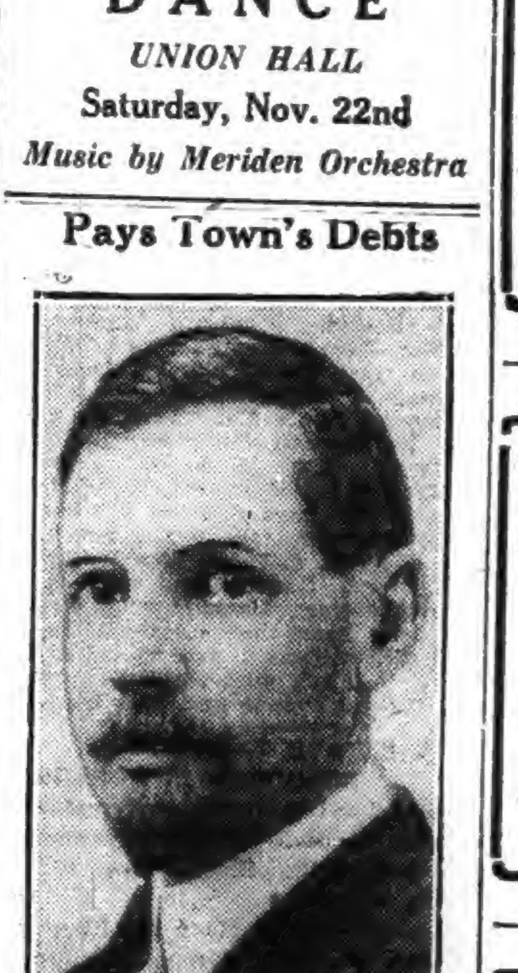
Pays Town's Debts



When Banker Wyatt Plantz of Pomeroy, O., was alive, folk used to think him too stingy to have a sign painted for his bank, which they called "The Bank Without a Name." Now they have revised their estimate since he willed the city $375,000, enough to wipe out the municipal debt and leave a surplus. Disappointed in love, he never talked of women.

Michael Doherty, Negro merchant, died at Lagos, West Africa, leaving a fortune of $3,000,000 to be divided among his sixteen wives and fifty children. He amassed the fortune with a fleet of dugout canoes from which he sold Lancashire cotton goods to natives.

GREENEVILLE

BRIGHT JEWELS CIRCLE MINSTREL A SUCCESS

A very classy and snappy minstrel was put on under the auspices of the Bright Jewels circle of the King's Daughters Friday evening at the assembly room of the Greeneville Congregational church before a large audience that taxed the seating capacity of the hall. All the young girls took their part in a professional manner, receiving much applause for their efforts. The jokes were very clever and related to some of the local people, causing considerable laughter. The soloists and the end women were received with a great deal of encouragement from the audience. They were the Misses Maude Smiley, Shirley Prentice, Margaret West and Lois Zahn.

Mrs. James P. Service was chairman of the committee of the successful affair while Mrs. Leonard C. Prentice was directress. The costumes were in charge of Mrs. Jennie M. Young who also made the costumes by hand. Miss Natalie P. Service was accompanist.

Following the entertainment a sale of candy was in charge of the Misses Ida Luther and Jeannette Beattie. The sale of tickets was in charge of Mrs. Charles D. Foster.

The program was as follows: Opening chorus, entire company; Little White Lies, Jean West; tap dance, Elizabeth Spalding; When It's Springtime In The Rockies, Honeysuckle; Betty Coed, four coeds, Lorraine Prentice, Rose Morton, Alice Quinley, Marjorie Buchanan; Gee, But I'd Like To Make You Happy, Pansy; fairy dance, Pearl Lockwood; recitation, Sambo; Just A Little Closer, Elsie Laycock; finale, entire company; interlocutress, Janis Service; end women, Pansy, Maude Smiley; Honeysuckle, Shirley Prentice; end men, Sambo, Margaret West; Snowball, Lois Zahn; chorus, Natalie Anderson, Lois Bausch, Zeta Berry, Marjorie Buchanan, Marion Clarke, Roberta Cole, Isabella Hague, Elsie Laycock, Pearl Lockwood, Rose Morton, Lorraine Prentice, Alice Quinley, Dorothy Spalding, Elizabeth Spalding, Mildred Turner, Jean West.

OBITUARY

Arthur W. Moore

Friday afternoon, about 3 o'clock, Arthur Wilfred Moore passed away suddenly at the home of E. W. Loomis at 224 Prospect street. Mr. Moore had been ailing for the past two months but his sickness was not thought to be of a serious nature and death was not expected by the members of his family. He was born in Belfast, Ireland, the son of the late Andrew and Anna M. Moore of Passaic, N. J. Mr. Moore came to this country when a young man. He was united in marriage in this city 18 years ago to Hazel Loomis, of which union two children were born, namely, Miss Eileen and Alec Moore. They make their home in New Jersey and have only been visiting here a few days. Besides his family the deceased is survived by his mother, two brothers, Alec Moore, of Los Angeles, Cal., and Ernest G. Moore, of Passaic, N. J., and three sisters, Mrs. Hilda M. Church of New York city, Mrs. John L. Lyons and Mrs. Francis Wyck Martin of England. Mr. Moore was a salesman by occupation and at one time worked for the General Electric company. Mr. Moore was well and favorably known throughout this vicinity and his many friends, upon learning of his sudden death, will be grieved.

FUNERAL

John P. Driscoll

The funeral of John P. Driscoll was held from his late home, 56 Central avenue, Friday morning at 8:15 o'clock which was followed by a solemn high mass of requiem at St. Mary's Memorial church at 9 o'clock. Rev. George J. Donahue was celebrant of the mass and was assisted by Rev. John D. Carey of Voluntown as deacon and Rev. Arthur B. Sullivan as sub-deacon. The musical program of the mass was in charge of the church organist, Mrs. Michael J. Farrell, who rendered Pie Jesu at the offertory and as a waiting hymn she sung Jesus Saviour of My Soul. At the recessional Mrs. Farrell played Chopin's Funeral March. Burial was in a family lot in St. Mary's cemetery and the bearers were Daniel Driscoll, Frank and John Hartie, Michael Donavan, John Geoghegan and Jeremiah Shea. The services were largely attended, with relatives present from New Haven, Providence, Hartford, New London, Attleboro, Mass., and other places. The floral tributes were both numerous and beautiful, speaking a mute testimony of the high esteem in which the deceased was held by his many friends and acquaintances.

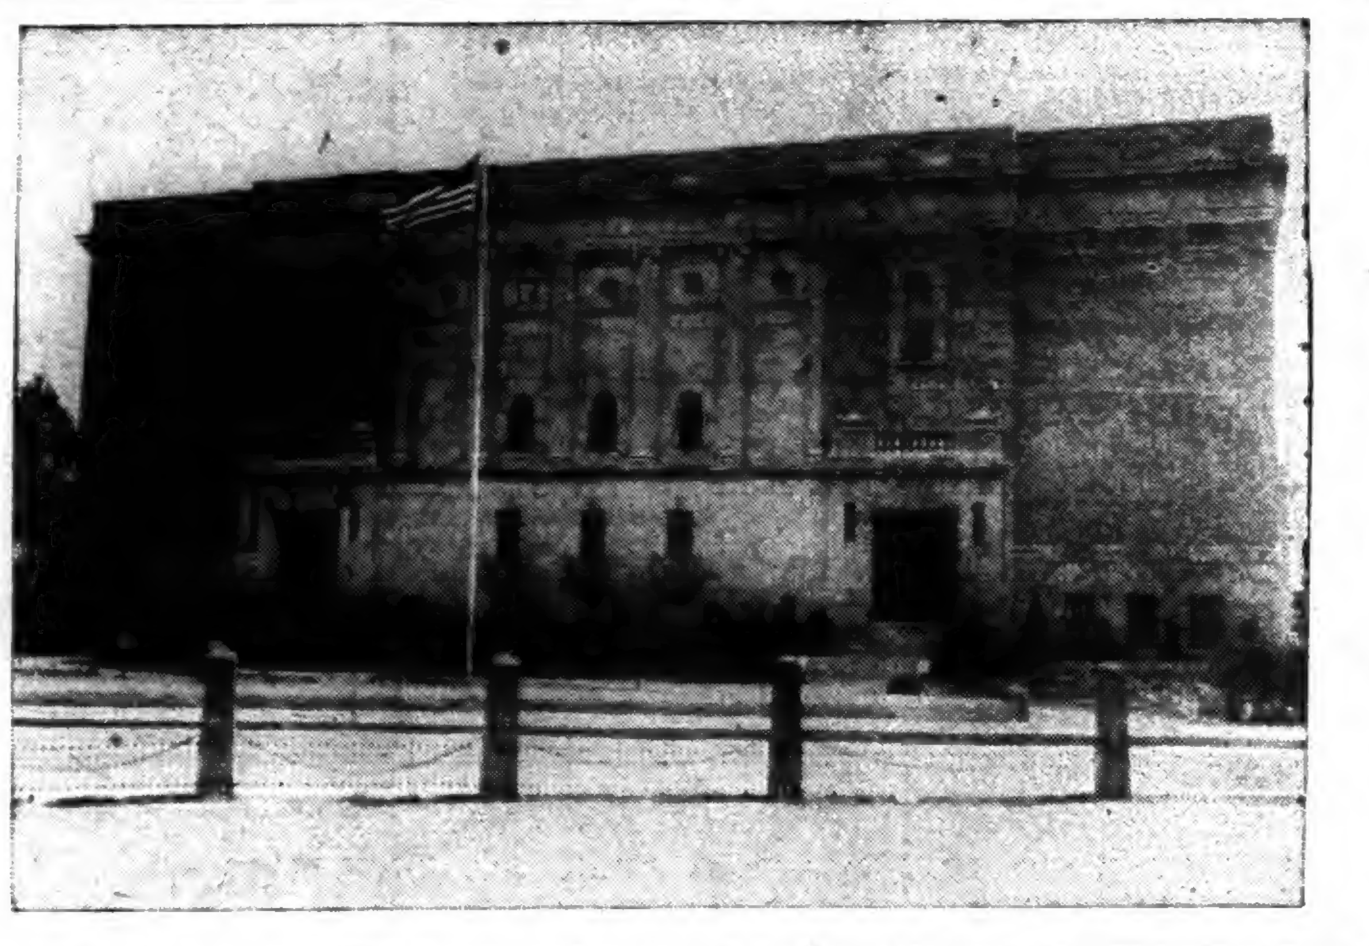
MASONIC TEMPLI



GRAND LODGE OFFICERS DEDICATE NEW NORWICH MASONIC TEMPLE

Masonry's beautiful new temple on Washington street, in which the Masonic bodies have been holding their regular meetings this fall, was formally dedicated Friday night with an assemblage of over 800 Masons that represented all parts of the state present for the imposing ceremonies. Plans for the dedication were made and successfully carried out by a joint committee of Somerset lodge, No. 34, and St. James lodge, No. 23, F. and A. M., these arrangements including the attendance of Most Worshipful Grand Master Elbert L. Darbie of Danielson, with officers of the grand lodge, to conduct the dedication.

The evening began at 6:30 when supper was served in the banquet hall to over 600, the grand lodge officers having the table of honor on the balcony floor.

For the dedication ceremonies a lodge room had been arranged upon the stage of the auditorium and here at 7:30 the officers of Somerset lodge, No. 34, opened the lodge in due form with the members of local and visiting Masonic bodies occupying all the seating space in the auditorium, both main floor and gallery. Worshipful Master Harry F. Kromer presided with the following staff of officers: Arad R. Manning, senior warden; Edwin M. Hanks, junior warden; Arthur M. Thompson, secretary; Richard P. Gregson, treasurer; Herbert H. Corey, senior deacon; Charles Williams, junior deacon; Fred R. Campbell, senior steward; William Buckley, junior steward; Rev. Percy A. Kilmister, chaplain; W. Avery Gallup, marshal; J. Frank Corey, organist; James C. Fitzpatrick, tyler.

Completing the opening of the lodge, Worshipful Master Kromer turned the chairs over to the grand lodge officers, who carried out the impressive dedication ceremonial in splendid form. Those officiating were the following:

Most Worshipful Grand Master Elbert L. Darbie, Danielson; Deputy Grand Master R. W. Howard A. Middleton, Broad Brook; Grand Senior Warden R. W. Sherwood H. Raymond, New Britain; Grand Junior Warden R. W. Samuel A. Moyle, New Haven; grand treasurer, acting, M. W. Theodore Foster; Grand Secretary M. W. Winthrop Buck, Hartford; Grand Senior Deacon R. W. William Rawlings; Grand Junior Deacon R. W. Thomas Desmond; Grand Senior Steward R. W. Arthur F. Lewis, Naugatuck; Grand Junior Steward R. W. Robert Bailey; Grand Chaplain Wor. and Rev. Leonard R. Richards, Pomfret; Grand Marshal George A. Case; Grand Tyler R. W. Morris B. Payne, New London.

Other members of the grand lodge in attendance were M. W. Arthur M. Brown, R. W. Louis O. Brock, R. W. Carlton W. Tyler, R. W. Walter Boynton, Wor. and Rev. Chandler; Wor. and Rev. William E. Greene, New London; custodian, Colin Buell, New London; trustee, Albert S. Comstock, 33rd, Norwich.

At the intermission a fine baritone solo was rendered by John Richardson for whom Charles A. Dowsett was accompanist.

When the grand officers had returned, Worshipful Master Kromer called upon several for remarks, these including Most Worshipful Grand Master Darbie, R. W. Deputy Grand Master Middleton, R. W. Payne, district deputy, and M. W. Past Grand Master Arthur M. Brown. All responded in a most pleasing way, expressing their congratulations to the Masonic fraternity in Norwich over the possession of such a beautiful fraternal home.

The reception committee, which assisted in showing the visiting brothers about the building, consisted of George A. Keppler, chairman, Judge Nelson J. Ayling, Rev. A. H. Abbott, E. Allen Bidwell, Arthur M. Brown, Albert S. Comstock, Guy B. Dolbeare, Harry F. Kromer, William S. Elliott, Fred R. Campbell, W. Manley Eastwood, Jr., W. Avery Gallup, Walter E. Gilbert, Edwin M. Hanks, Jonathan L. Johnson, Herbert M. Lerou, Herbert E. Lawrence, John B. Oat, Howard L. Stanton, Henry R. Taft, W. H. Wilberly and Frank L. Wilson.

The committee on arrangements comprised W. M. Harry F. Kromer, chairman, P. M. John A. Ferguson, P. M. George A. Keppler, P. M. Howard L. Stanton, P. M. Richard P. Gregson, P. M. William S. Elliott, W. M. Edwin M. Hanks, P. M. Gerard L. Rarace, P. M. Walter M. Buckingham, Arad R. Manning, and Alfred G. Bliven.

SPECIAL MOTOR ROUTE TO YALE-HARVARD GAME

In preparation for heavy motor traffic to New Haven today (Saturday) for the Yale-Harvard game, a special route to Yale bowl has been arranged by the state police for the convenience of motorists from eastern Massachusetts, Rhode Island and points north. This highway, which usually is not a heavy traffic route on Saturdays, will avoid most of the congested areas. Large signs have been erected along the route, giving directions to "Yale Bowl." These signs will be reversed after the game and will point out the best return route.

Those using the route will enter Connecticut from Massachusetts and Rhode Island at Danielson, over U. S. Route No. 6. The route will then follow through Brooklyn, Hampton, Chaplin, North Windham and Willimantic to the Columbia-Andover highway, turning left at this intersection on Route 111. The route will then be through Columbia, Hebron, Marlboro, East Hampton, Cobalt, Portland and Middletown. In Middletown, it will turn right at Washington and Main streets to Meriden, and then along U. S. Route 5 to Wallingford, North Haven, Centerville and Dixwell avenue, Hamden. The street directions from that point will be a right turn at Dixwell avenue and Arch street, to Fitch street, Whalley avenue, Central avenue and Yale bowl.

DIVORCE WITH ALIMONY FOR NEW LONDON WOMAN

In the superior court at New London Friday morning Judge Christopher L. Avery granted three divorces, as follows, in cases which were on the uncontested list:

On the grounds of desertion, Mildred Chapman Chester, of New London, was granted divorce from Daniel A. Chester, of that city, whom she married Sept. 17, 1919. Desertion was alleged since June 2, 1926. Mrs. Chester was granted $250 alimony and the father is to pay $4 a week for each of the two minor children, 10 and 7 years old, payments beginning Nov. 29. He is to have the right to see the children at reasonable times.

Divorce on the grounds of cruelty since Jan. 1, 1926, together with custody of two minor children, 5 and 3 years old, was given to Etoila Courchaine Moguin, of New London, from Francis J. Moguin, of Middletown. They were married Aug. 20, 1923.

For desertion alleged since Aug. 2, 1903, Anne Kannenburg Carroll, of New London, was granted divorce from Richard S. Carroll, formerly of that city, but now of parts unknown. They were married July 11, 1898.

The case of Sarah Kirkup Rankin against Irving E. Rankin was postponed.

TAFTVILLE

Mrs. Thomas Evans of New York is the guest of her parents, Postmaster and Mrs. Lewis R. Brand, of Versailles.

Much sympathy was expressed locally for the family of the late Paul Prive of Baltic, whose death occurred suddenly this week and who was buried Friday in the family lot in the Sacred Heart cemetery on the Old Canterbury turnpike. The deceased resided for many years on South B street, at which time he was employed as a loomfixer in the weaving department of the Ponemah mills. He had many friends and acquaintances in the village. Two of his children, August Prive and Mrs. Charles Martin both reside here.

A pen of 50 Rhode Island Reds, owned by Savage brothers of Bolduc lane, is breaking all records. For the first 17 days in November they laid 727 eggs, and are now ready to slip into first place in the home egg laying contest sponsored by the Connecticut Agricultural college at Storrs.

With an attendance of over 400, a most successful charity social and dance arranged by Mrs. Martin E. Mullen and Mrs. Ada Lafreniere was held Friday evening at Ponemah hall. The hall had been most attractively decorated with red, white and blue streamers, with bunting and flags at the windows. The music was by Professor Edward Brennan's orchestra, and Gus Czikowsky prompted for the square dances. Sod[illegible] been furnished through the courtesy of Alfred H. Labarre and ice cream by George W. Weller. The proceeds were turned over to Rev. Frederick R. DesSureault to be used in his charitable work in the village.

The patrons and patronesses were: Mr. and Mrs. Alex McNicol, Mayor and Mrs. Lee Roy Robbins, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bolduc, Selectmen and Mrs. William S. Murray, Mr. and Mrs. George G. Grant, Selectman Philiea Poirier, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Fitzgerald, Senator and Mrs. William J. Fitzgerald, Mr. and Mrs. Earle M. Wood, Representative and Mrs. Raymond Girard, Mr. and Mrs. Richard B. Socony Dealers Had Banquet

The Standard Oil Co. of New York were hosts to Socony dealers in this vicinity and surrounding territory at a banquet held in the Wauregan hotel on Thursday evening. J. C. Platz, district manager of this district, was the toastmaster. This banquet was in connection with the announcement of the new Socony De-waxed Motor oil. An illustrated lecture was given of the process and research work in connection with the manufacture of this premium motor oil now offered to motorists by Socony. There were also moving pictures covering the severe tests this product was put to on land and water and in the air. There were present at this occasion 75 Socony dealers and executives.

NORWICH TOWN

In the vestry of the Methodist Episcopal church Thursday afternoon, the November meeting of Dorcas Home Missionary society was held. This was also a thank offering meeting with special program in observance of Thanksgiving, in charge of Mrs. George Manning, followed by the Lord's Prayer in unison, with several readings and short sketches on Thanksgiving interspersed. Mrs. William Weaver, president of the society, presided at the brief business period. Those who contributed to the program were Mrs. Albert Miner, Mrs. George Manning, Mrs. Arthur Fulton, Mrs. Wellington Miner, Mrs. Henry Norrington and Mrs. Leon Ladd. Mrs. Albert Miner gave an interesting report of the annual Home Missionary convention held Nov. 6 and 7, in New London, to which she and Mrs. Norrington were delegates from Dorcas society. Mrs. Norrington gave a talk on Young People's Work. She also was authorized at the meeting Thursday to make an effort to organize a society among the young girls in the church. Mrs. Albert Miner accompanied at the piano for the hymns sung. The Mizpah benediction closed the meeting. A social hour followed when Mrs. Wellington Miner and Mrs. Leon Ladd served cake, fancy cookies and cocoa.

Mrs. George L. Randall returned to her home on West Town street Friday afternoon, following a visit with her sister, Miss Emily Parker, and her aunt, Miss Annie Skeer, of Newtown, Pa. Mrs. Randall, who left here Nov. 4, also visited for a week with Mr. and Mrs. A. Brandner, of Brooklyn, N. Y.

"DISTRICT SCHOOL" GIVEN BEFORE CROWDED HOUSE

Elizabeth street school auditorium had a crowd that filled it to standing room Friday evening when the West End Community association presented "The Old District School," a farce in two acts, which many times convulsed the audience in roars of laughter, especially in the closing act when diplomas were presented and the school visitors spoke a few words of advice to the pupils.

From teacher to the last pupil in the school, all were in wigs and costumes that made the setting complete from bad boy with his pranks to the teacher's pet, with her smiles and wiles, and the whole production was a pronounced success under the direction of Miss Nina E. Perry, with the following committee in charge: Horace [illegible] Corning, chairman, Miss Perry, Charles W. Parsons, H. O. Smith, Frank J. Fields and George R. Gifford.

The cast was as follows:

Teacher: Ezekiel Simpkins, Geo. R. Gifford. Visitors—Miss Amanda Quackenbush, Mrs. W. Partridge; deacon Wm. Rossoll.

Scholars—Lydia Pinkham, Mrs. E. J. Calkins; Jesse James, Howard O. Smith; Liza Ann Snodgrass, Mrs. J. Lichenstein; Semanthy Small, Miss Mary Coughlin; Mehitable Honswoggle, Mrs. H. Pukallus; Brigham Young, Frank J. Fields; Peruna Jones, Miss Anna Taft; Jim Blaine, Clifford Moody; Christopher Columbus, Everett O. Miller; Buster Brown, Jacob Lichenstein; Daniel Webster, Eli Jacobson; Petey Barnum, Merton Latimer; John Jacob Astor, Lloyd Cochran; Patience Puddlefoot, Mrs. A. Alquist; Ben Butler, Frederick M. Oat; Tooty Frooty, Mrs. C. H. Marsh; Cornelius Vanderbilt, Arthur Armstrong.

The music was by the Happy Boys orchestra consisting of Joseph Goodrow, Arthur Berberick, Eli Jacobson, Otto Berberick, Al Berberick.

The programme was given as follows:

FLOODS AND SEVERE GALES IN 5 EUROPEAN COUNTRIES

Destructive Gales Swept Belgium, France, Germany, Switzerland and Many Districts in England—Belgium Suffered the Greatest Property Damage—Six Deaths, Five in France and One in Germany, Were Attributed to the Gales and Floods—Exceptionally High Tides Were Reported in the English Channel and the North Sea

LONDON, Nov. 23.—(AP)—Floods and severe gales caused serious damage in five European countries over the week end.

Three great rivers, the Scheldt, the Rhine and the Seine has overflowed their banks owing to recent heavy rains. Destructive gales lashed other parts of Belgium, France, Germany, Switzerland and many distant districts in England.

Material damage was heavy, and six deaths, five in France, and one in Germany, were attributed to the gale and floods.

Belgium so far has suffered the greatest property loss, with the Scheldt breaking through its dykes at several points and overflowing the countryside. In the Termonde district thousands of acres have been submerged and troops have been rushed to the affected area to repair the breaches in the dykes.

In southern Germany, with the Rhine many feet above normal level, inhabitants in many places along the riverside have evacuated their homes.

Three electric power stations near Frankfort-on-the Main were put out of commission, and the bursting of a dam flooded the village of Ludweiler. Two aerial masts at Munich broadcasting station collapsed from the high wind.

In France the Seine was rising rapidly and navigation was interrupted. Grave fears for the immediate future were entertained as the situation was steadily growing worse. At Le Mans the river Sambre overran its banks, inundating several quarters of the town, causing residents to abandon their homes.

In the border districts of northern England, the heaviest fall of snow, sleet and hail so far this year occurred last night. In southern England a heavy gale howled all night.

The motor vessel Auriga and three barges were wrecked off the southeast coast and their 15 occupants were rescued only with great difficulty.

Exceptionally high tides were reported from British channel ports as well as from continental seaside towns across the channel and along the southern part of the North Sea.

Interruptions in communications between Berlin, Warsaw and Moscow, which occurred intermittently during the past two days and at first were ascribed to disorders breaking out in the Russian capital, were now said to be due to blizzards sweepink over the marshes, forests and plains of western Russia.

A violent storm visited northern Switzerland last night, unroofing homes in Basel, blowing down chimneys and uprooting trees. A slight earthquake shock in that district this morning added to the distress of the inhabitants.

In the Berne district of Switzerland thunder and lightning accompanied by hail did much damage to forests. Reports from Soleure were that great damage was caused in the Jura mountains. Telephone and telegraph communications were interrupted.

CALM FOLLOWS DESTRUCTIVE STORM IN SOUTHERN CALIF.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 23.—(AP)—A warm sun beamed over a comparatively calm southern California today in contract to the dust-laden, destructive gale of yesterday, which killed six persons, ruined thousands of dollars worth of citrus fruit and wrought unestimated damage to property in four counties.

State and county officials were making a survey of the damage today but said reports would not be finished until tomorrow.

The outlying districts, particularly the citrus lands, suffered probably the worst monetary damage. Nearly mature oranges, lemons and avocadoes, torn from the trees by a gale which at times reached an 85 mile velocity, covered the ground. Hundreds of trees were uprooted by the onslaught of the wind. In the cities billboards, trees, signs, awnings and structures built of flimsy material lay where they had fallen. Small craft, torn from their moorings and buried on the dry sand, were strewn along the beaches.

$25,000 DAMAGE SUIT RESULT OF SENDING BOMB BY MAIL

MARYVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 23.—(AP)—Sending a bomb through the mails from Los Angeles, Cal., to Townsend, Tenn., has resulted in the filing of a $25,000 damage suit here.

Clark Scott, whose left arm was blown away when he opened a mysterious package Nov. 25, 1924, has brought the suit against Francis Cadwell, who, according to Postal Inspector J. L. Pemberton, of Knoxville, admitted to Los Angeles authorities that he mailed the bomb.

Pemberton says Cadwell has an interest in a farm near Townsend. This has been attached.

An hour after the bomb exploded in Scott's hands, a telegram signed "Dementia" arrived from Los Angeles, warning him not to open the package.

NO HOPE FOR RECOVERY OF MARY "MOTHER" JONES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23—(AP)—Mary "Mother" Jones, 100 year old crusader for the laboring man, today continued successful in her long fight against death.

Her physician said last night death might occur at any moment from the ravages of old age.

"Mother" Jones has been steadily growing weaker since last September. For a time she seemed to rally, but last Wednesday she suffered a relapse and her attendants hold forth no hope for her recovery.

FASCIST DEPUTIES TO MEET IN ROME TODAY

ROME, Nov. 23—(AP)—Premier Mussolini's all-fascist chamber of deputies will re-convene tomorrow afternoon at Montecitorio palace with a large number of government bills, already passed by the council of ministers, awaiting its approval.

These include appropriations for the summer earthquake sufferers and the new criminal code prepared by Minister of Justice Rocco and a special committee of jurists, together with its companion measure instituting various reforms in criminal procedure.

NARROW ESCAPES FOR PASSENGERS IN BUS

TORRINGTON, Nov. 23.—(AP)—Several passengers in a bus owned by the New England Transportation company, escaped injury early this afternoon, when the vehicle went through a roadside fence and down a three foot embankment near the Nepaug reservoir. The bus left this city at 1.05 o'clock and the accident was believed to have occurred about a half hour later.

RALPH CAPONE TO CONDUCT RACING STABLE IN HAVANA

HAVANA, Nov. 23—(AP)—Ralph Capone, brother of the notorious "Scarface Al" of Chicago, has arrived in Havana. It is understood that he obtained a continuance of his trial on vagrancy charges in Chicago and will conduct his racing stable for the winter season here.

MAY CONTEST CONTINUANCE OF ENFORCEMENT COMMIS'N

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—(AP)—Unless the Wickersham law enforcement commission "recommends something constructive on the prohibition question, during the short session," Representative La Guardia, republican, New York, plans to make a contest against any appropriation for its continuation after next July 1.

"If the commission's recommendations are not constructive," the New Yorker, an anti-prohibitionist, said, "the two years of study at a cost of $500,000 will have been an expensive gesture."

It was La Guardia who raised a point of order against the appropriation of $250,000 for this year's study when it was found that no authority existed for its continuation. The law was amended to allow the commission to conduct its investigation into law enforcement for another year.

BROTHERHOODS TO FOSTER SIX-HOUR WORKING DAY

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—(AP)—A vista of legal intricacies lay open today through the decision of leaders in five major railway brotherhoods to foster proposals for a six-hour working day with eight-hour pay for railwaymen.

Laws which resulted from the workers' successful fight, a decade ago, for an eight-hour day, make necessary a long series of conferences before the fate of the new plan can be determined.

The preliminary step, taken yesterday, was discussed for nearly two weeks. It was one of many suggested as a means of relieving unemployment.

Another detail will be filled in at Cleveland Dec. 4 when the officers who met here, joined by a special sub-committee of 35, work out plans for a general conference of all those interested in the proposal.

KILLED ON THE HARTFORD-SPRINGFIELD HIGHWAY

THOMPSONVILLE, Nov. 23.—(AP)—Charles Crocker, 58, caretaker on the G. Harrison Mifflin estate here, was instantly killed tonight, when struck by an automobile on the Hartford-Springfield highway in front of the estate.

Daniel B. Warner, of Hartford, driver of the automobile which struck Crocker, was placed under $1,000 bond on a charge of criminal negligence. He said the man had stepped into the path of his machine from behind another machine traveling in the opposite direction.

CUBAN STUDENTS MAKING PEACE WITH GOVERNMENT

HAVANA, Nov 23—(AP)—Part of the university students held in jail at Matanzas, charged with participating in the disturbances which have put part of Cuba under martial law, have moved to make peace with the government.

Fifty of them, 25 men and 25 women, were released last night on $300 bail each on their promise to return to school tomorrow and preach goodwill in behalf of the government.

DISSATISFIED WITH THE BRITISH PALESTINE POLICY

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—(AP)—The national executive committee of the Zionist organization of America, the ruling body, of that organization, today adopted a resolution declaring its dissatisfaction with the British government's explanation of its Palestine policy and asserting its determination to continue to resist the policy. The committee unanimously adopted the resolution at the conclusion of an all day session.

AUTOIST FAINTED AND AUTO STRUCK POLE

HARTFORD, Nov. 23.—(AP)—Suddenly fainting while he was driving his automobile here late tonight, Charles H. Bassford, 40, an attorney of Nutley, N. J., crashed into a telephone pole and received cuts about the face. His car was badly damaged. He was treated at the police emergency hospital.

Gunmen Merciless In Chicago And Detroit

Two Women Were Killed in Chicago—Four Men Were Wounded in Detroit

CHICAGO, Nov. 23—(AP)—A gang of young robbers, panicked when lights were whisked off during a roadhouse holdup early today, poured a shotgun volley into a crowd of frightened victims huddled in a corner, killing two women, injuring another and probably mortally wounding three men. A dozen other persons were hurt less seriously.

The robbers, described as youths of about 18, took $200 from the patrons and had started to take their leave when the place was suddenly plunged into darkness.

Fearing a trap, the bandits, eight in all, blazed away in the general direction of the group which was jammed in a space of less than 18 by 20 feet.

Wounded and dying screamed and moaned and the survivors milled about, trampling and slugging, unable to distinguish gunmen from patrons. To add to the confusion a Great Dane dog, owned by Henry Goetz, proprietor of the resort, ran amuck slashing at the stampeding crowd.

Lights were finally switched on. Miss Barbara Lee, 22, and Miss Alice Ward, 29, were found dead. Miss Mary Ganey, 26, was not expected to live. John Gates, 39, James Miscus, 36, and Jack O'Bierne, 38, were badly wounded.

The robbers escaped in two automobiles.

The roadhouse shooting climaxed the worst week-end crime outburst in the Chicago area in months.

Detective Herbert Dillon was shot and killed by an unidentified Negro, who was in turn killed by Dillon's partner, Detective Patrick Gaynor. The police had answering a complaint that two drunken Negroes were disturbing the neighborhood.

Two automobile thieves who a short time previously had stolen a machine from Edward Solon, ran down and killed Victor Johnson, and injured his wife and nephew.

Members of a police squad interrupted a filling station robbery and shot and killed one of the holdup men, who had entrenched himself in a greasing pit.

William Woolfarth, 22, William Du Pont, 17, and Andrew Sanchez, 21, who recently escaped from prison in New Orleans, were picked up by a cruising automobile police squad and admitted 30 local robberies.

Scores of lesser crimes were reported.

FOUR PERSONS SHOT DURING ATTEMPTED HOLDUP IN DETROIT

DETROIT, Nov. 23—(AP)—A patrolman, a robber suspect and two employes were wounded in an attempted holdup of the Briggs hotel here early today.

Patrolman Francis Murphy had been stationed in the hotel because of a warning from Cleveland police that 12 hotels there had been robbed recently and the robbers were believed to have moved to Detroit.

Two robbers, believed by police to be those who took $725 in a robbery of the Norton hotel shortly after 3 a. m., were accosted by Murphy just as they ordered the night clerk to hold up his hands. They opened fire and wounded the patrolman in both legs. He fell to the floor but returned fire and wounded one of the men as they fled. Mack Wald, bellboy, and Michael Zelekin, newspaper vendor, also were hit.

Frank Ferris, 22, was arrested at his room in an apartment hotel after the house physician reported he had been shot.

The four wounded men were taken to the receiving hospital where physicians said Ferris and Zelekin probably would die. Zelekin was shot in the arm, leg and abdomen.

Lester Briggs, owner of the Briggs hotel, said Murphy had prevented the robbery of $26,000 in cash and jewels.

FOUR MEN AND A WOMAN HELD FOR BANK ROBBERY

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 23.—(AP)—Two score policemen, armed with submachine guns, pistols and sawed-off shotguns, captured four men and a woman wanted for bank robbery early today, after pouring round after round of lead into the house in which the five had taken refuge.

All five today confessed participation in the holdup last night of a branch bank and the theft of $7,500.

Three policemen and a civilian who joined in the bandit pursuit were wounded in the gun fighting that followed the robbery.

Those held for the robbery are Austin Hart, Edna Hart (believed to be his wife, Donald Ryan, Otto Jacobs and George O'Day. Police said all had confessed.

Besides Patrolman Alberts, two other policemen were wounded—Corporal Thomas Kiernan, and Patrolman Fred Wilson. Raymond Rizzo, a civilian also was wounded, though not seriously.

5,860 PERSONS APPLY FOR POSITIONS AS DRY AGENTS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—(AP)—Prohibition enforcement positions are popular nowadays.

The civil service commission announced today that 5,860 persons had applied for positions as prohibition agents, 681 others wanted deputy administrators' jobs and 318 sought the rating of senior prohibition investigators.

The applications came from 39 states, territories and the District of Columbia and do not include the list of eligibles already existing in other states.

Should congress allow the attorney general the 500 additional agents he has asked for, the commission said, the positions could be filled from the examination to be held Dec. 6.

TROLLEY CAR CRASHED INTO DRUG STORE WINDOW

SEYMOUR, Nov. 23—(AP)—All but one passenger escaped injury, when a street car en route from New Haven to Waterbury jumped the track in the business section here today, plunged across the street, and crashed into the window of a drug store.

The injured passenger was Albert Boase, 22, of Seymour. He suffered bruises and severe shock.

New Proposal For The Banishment Of War

Signed by Group of Bankers, Clergymen, Editors and Other Prominent Persons

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—(AP)—A proposal to outlaw by making its prohibition a basic principal of international law will be presented to President Hoover tomorrow in an open letter signed by a large group of American bankers, clergymen, editors and other prominent men and women.

The plan, which its sponsors said would be presented directly to the chief executive, urged enactment of this principal of international law, not through a treaty to be signed, but by a conference or negotiations or a congress of nations in which sufficient antions would participate to make it binding upon the world.

Pointing out that the proposal had been endorsed by the late Myron T. Herrick, former American ambassador to France, the letter asserted it had been held in abeyance pending the outcome of the naval reduction and world court negotiations.

If the latter question is to be brought before the senate at the December session, however, the letter said, the proposal should be held up still further since American adherence to the world court "should come before any other proposal."

The letter contended, on the other hand, that if the world court question was not to come before the senate in December, the proposal should be pressed since negotiations and agreement among the nations must precede its submission to the senate.

"The enactment would be different from any treaty," the letter said, "because a treaty, though it stipulates that it is to bind the nations signatory to it to the end of time, may lose its binding power through the renunciation of it by one or more of them in a way that would make the retention of its bonds unfair and oppressive to other nations that would be loyal to it. x x x

"No nation, be it ever so powerful, can withdraw from international law. x x x It may violate it and treat it with contempt, x x but the law will remain branding the offending nation as a disgraced criminal, guilty of the most serious offense against the entire community of nations."

The letter added that the proposal would not involve the United States in any entanglement in the "politics and wars of Europe."

NINE FIREMEN HURT IN $200,000 FIRE IN NEW HAVEN

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 24.—Nine firemen were hurt, one seriously, as fire destroyed a downtown warehouse here last night.

A falling brick wall ripped electric transmission lines from the poles, plunging a large portion of the eastern section of the city into darkness.

Fireman Herbert McNamara suffered a possible fracture of the ankle as he was struck by one of the bricks. Other men, working with him, caught by surprise as the wall fell, escaped with minor injuries. James Eagers was struck on the head by a brick, but his helmet prevented severe injuries.

Other injured men, who received minor burns and bruises and were sent to local hospitals for treatment, were Joseph E. Ryan, William J. Egan, Edward Lawlor, Cyrid Charboneau, Clifford Barrows, John P. Rogers, James F. McKeon and John J. McCue.

Damage was unofficially estimated at $200,000. All apparatus in the city gathered at the scene.

Three business concerns had space in the destroyed building. A paint firm, a wholesale grocery, and a storage company suffered total loss of property.

The blaze was first reported at 9.25 o'clock by Kenneth Garrett, who noticed the glare of the flames showing through the windows, as he drove by in a car. He called to a boy nearby to turn in an alarm. Two more alarms followed rapidly as firemen arrived to find the blaze already raging fiercely and rapidly gaining headway.

The battle was featured by electric displays as high tension wires hanging near the building became soaked and sparks leaped from wire to wire.

NEW KIND OF STRIKE IN SPAIN: STAY-IN INSTEAD OF WALK-OUT

SEVILLA, Spain, Nov. 23—(AP)—A strike of a somewhat different nature has been started here by 200 women employes of a match factory.

In protest against the suspension of one of the workers, the women decided not to leave the plant until she is restored to her former job. Also not wishing to abandon their work, for they need the money, they are continuing at their posts, eating, sleeping and receiving their families and visitors within the factory.

Police have been placed on duty to prevent any disorders.

NARCOTIC DEN FOUND BY POLICE IN BROOKLYN

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—(AP)—The simple folk of Bergen street, Brooklyn, who marveled for a long time at the parade of limousines that stopped before an unpretentious apartment house there, finally told police about it.

Early today the police raided the place and found a beautifully appointed narcotics den. They arrested three women and two men and seized a large quantity of narcotics.

NEW PROPOSAL MADE BY DR. CLARENCE TRUE WILSON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—(AP)—The Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals today urged an immediate amendment of the reapportionment law to exclude from representation some 7,500,000 aliens.

In a letter to Representatives Dickinson, republican, Iowa, and Rankin democrat, Mississippi, both of whom have urged such a move, Dr. Clarence True Wilson, general secretary of the board, intimated he was hitting out at both gangster and bootlegger.

INCREASED SALES BY DEPT. STORES DURING OCTOBER

Reported by Federal Reserve Board in Its Monthly Summary—Further Downward Movement in Wholesale Prices Noted—Report Shows Increased Activity in Cotton and Silk Industries—Industrial Production Decreased About 3 Per Cent During the Month

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—(AP)—Increased sales by department stores during October with decreased industrial production, a decline in factory employment and a further downward movement in wholesale commodity prices were reported today by the federal reserve board in its monthly summary of business and financial conditions.

The value of building contracts, which had grown in September, increased further in October, the board said, but by a smaller amount than usual. Contracts for public works and utilities increased but there was a substantial decrease in contracts for industrial building.

The board said that while the volume of distribution of commodities by rail showed a decline, retail trade increased considerably more than the seasonal amount.

"Industrial production, including both factories and mines, decreased by about three per cent in October, according to the federal reserve board's index, which makes allowance for the usual seasonal changes," the review said. "This decline reflected chiefly a further decrease in output of steel ingots, contrary to the usual seasonal movement, and a larger than seasonal decline in the output of automobiles.

"Output in the shoe industry was also curtailed. Consumption of cotton by domestic mills showed a further increase of slightly more than the usual seasonal amount, and stocks of cotton cloth were further reduced. Increased activity also was reported for the silk industry. Output of coal was in substantially larger volume than in September, while production of copper and petroleum declined.

"Number of workers employed showed a decrease for the month in foundries and in the automobile, machine tool, woolen and shoe industries, while increases were reported in the number of persons employed in the production of silk goods, hosiery and radios.

"Employment at coal mines increased considerably, partly in response to seasonal influences.

"The general level of wholesale prices, as measured by the bureau of labor statistics index, declined in October and the decline continued in the first half of November. Further decreases in the prices of many agricultural products, including grains, livestock and meats, were accompanied by reduction in prices of hides, tin, petroleum and gasoline, while sugar and copper advanced. The price of cotton rose considerably at the end of October from the low level prevailing early in the month."

The board said the total volume of credit at reporting member banks showed relatively little change from the four-week period ended Nov. 12. Loans on securities declined by $350,000,000, reflecting reduction in loans to brokers and dealers in securities, while all other loans increased by $150,000,000 partly on account of purchases of acceptances by the member banks.

Banks also increased their holdings of investments. The volume of reserve bank credit in use showed little change between the middle of October and the middle of November. There was a further addition of $30,000,000 to the stock of monetary gold and a decline of $20,000,000 in money in circulation.

The board said money rates in the open market had eased slightly since the middle of October with the rate on prime commercial paper declining from 3 per cent to a range from 2 3-4 to 3 per cent. It reported a reduction in the rate on bankers' acceptances of long maturities and said long time money rates as measured by yields on United States government securities had declined slightly.

DRINK CRAZED MAN KILLED YOUNG MOTHER AND BABY

KITE, Ga., Nov. 23—(AP)—Fred Wheeler, "crazed," police said, "with drink," shot and killed a young mother and her baby today, threatened to shoot his own mother and then, several hours later, when a posse was hunting him down, committed suicide.

The officers said he got a shotgun from a neighbor's house on his way home. He fired a charge through the window into the room where his family was sitting, and when his mother fled outside he threatened to kill her.

Mrs. Tom Kirkland, who was visiting the Wheelers, ran out of the house with her baby and started home, some distance away.

Wheeler raised his gun and fired twice. The first charge tore the baby from the fleeing woman's arms. The second struck her.

GROOM THROWS BRIDE FROM SPEEDING AUTO

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 23—(AP)—Investigation started yesterday when a woman's screams in a downtown district, and her ejection from her bridegroom's speeding automobile attracted police attention, today resulted in communication with Detroit authorities to check descriptions of stolen cars sought in that city.

The woman who was thrown from his fleeing car yesterday afternoon, was before her marriage to the suspected man, Mrs. Deborah Keenan, of East Haven. She was seriously cut and bruised when picked up by police pursuing the speeding car at the time she was forced out on the pavement, and was taken to New Haven hospital. Tonight she was reported resting comfortably.

THANKSGIVING DINNERS CHEAPER THAN LAST YEAR

NEW YORK, Nov. 23—(AP)—The Thanksgiving dinner that cost $7.70 for a family of five last year is $2.18 cheaper now.

The New York American a year ago published a menu for the Thanksgiving day table, providing turkey, oysters, vegetables, fruit and coffee, at a total cost of $7.70. The same menu today, the newspaper said, costs $5.52.

The eight pound turkey is $1.20 cheaper than a year ago. Every other item on the menu—oysters, turnips, squash, potatoes, cranberries, apples, oranges, coffee, celery and cauliflower—costs less than a year ago the newspaper found.

DEATHS DUE TO EXCITEMENT DURING BOXING MATCH

NEW YORK, Nov. 23—(AP)—A second death due possibly, physicians said, to excitement incurred in Madison Square Garden Friday night during the boxing match between Jimmy McLarnin and Billy Petrolle, occurred today when Jesse A. Nosentoff, 50, died of heart disease.

Nosentoff came to New York from Vancouver, B. C., McLarnin's home town, to see the fight in which McLarnin took a severe beating. He was found dead today on the street.

Albert Golden of New York died of excitement Friday night while the fight was going on.

SIXTH CONGRESSMAN WILL BE DECIDED BY LEGISLATURE

HARTFORD, Nov. 23.—(AP)—With Connecticut apparently assured of six members of the house in congress from 1933 on, provision for the election of the additional congressman is regarded as a certain subject for action by the general assembly session, which convenes in January. Grouping of the 169 towns of the state into six approximately equal blocks appears to be a formidable task, and is an element in the predictions of some party leaders that the present division of the state into five districts will be retained and the sixth congressman will be elected by the state as a whole and serve as a member at large.

SERIES OF ROBBERIES IN NEW HAVEN OVER WEEK END

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 23—(AP)—Robbers must have picked the occasion of the Harvard game as a time for probable good pickings in this city.

Police tonight were investigating a series of burglaries and robberies which netted jewelry, cash, and clothing totalling $1,968. In addition, some of the burglaries resulted in nothing taken, although safes were attacked, unsuccessfully, or found empty.

Three stores were entered. Police believe, by the same group. In a shop at 785 Chapel street, the safe baffled their efforts, although the outer door was destroyed. The safe at a ladies' apparel store at 783 Chapel street netted only a small amount of change. A third shop on Pitkin alley was invaded, but nothing was taken.

Reginald B. Parsons, of 145 Cottage street, reported that burglars entered his apartment and took jewelry and clothing valued at $935.

A stranger yesterday slugged John Schenartz, filling station attendant and escaped with $38 in cash. John A. Thomas, Yale student, was slugged. Recovering consciousness, he was assisted by two men claiming to be detectives who took him to a hospital and then escaped with his automobile.

A Harvard student, C. W. Dreyfus, reported that a bag containing articles valued at $500 was stolen from the lobby of Woolsey hall. H. C. Haskell of Manchester, N. H., says his pocket was picked at the game and his bill fold containing $40 taken.

FREE STATE OFFICIAL FIRED UPON FROM AMBUSH

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Nov. 23—(AP)—What appeared to have been an attempt to assassinate General Richard Mulmashy, minister of local government and public health, occurred here tonight.

The general escaped injury but one of his guards was wounded.

The incident was shrouded in secrecy but it is understood that General Mulcahy and some friends were about to enter the residence of Professor Hayes, speaker of the Dail Eireann when shots were fired. General Mulhacy's guard returned the fire and men were seen dashing away.

COAST GUARD CUTTER TO BECOME FREIGHTER

BALTIMORE, Nov. 23—(AP)—Stripped of its proud insignia, the old coast guard cutter Comanche, whose crew cut the cable and destroyed the Spanish fortifications at Cienfuegos, Cuba, has been sentenced to the ignoble life of a freighter in its declining years.

The vessel, veteran of two wars, was built in 1896 for $100,000, but was recently sold minus its instruments and equipment to a commercial company for $4,510. The boat in recent weeks has been tied up at the Curtis Bay Coast Guard station.

BOMB EXPLODED IN DANCE HALL IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—(AP)—A dynamite bomb was exploded tonight in Guyon's Paradise, a huge dance hall on Chicago's West Side. Police reports said there were no patrons in the establishment at the time.

The bomb was hurled through a window from the alley and landed near the orchestra pit. Damage was slight. Police attributed the bombing to labor troubles.

ADVANCES BY BANKS TO WHEAT POOLS AMPLY SECURED

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 23—(AP)—Beaudry Leman, president of the Canadian Bankers association, said tonight that "contrary to uninformed opinions which have been expressed of late, advances by the banks to the wheat pools are amply secured." He added that the banks are continuing credit facilities as heretofore.

ST. JEAN BAPTISTE COUNCILS GATHER FOR BANQUET

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 23—A gathering and banquet of 23 eastern Connecticut councils of the Union St. Jean Baptiste was held in St. Mary's hall here this afternoon with Conseils Florimond and St. Cecile of this city as host organizations. There was an attendance of about 250, covers for that number being laid for the excellent dinner served late in the afternoon by a committee of the Conseil St. Cecile ably assisted by a large corps of young women.

The meeting was convened and presided over by District President Mrs. Laura Grenier of this city. The vice-president is H. Benoit of Putnam. Among officials who were heard in remarks relative to the welfare of the Union in this section were: Alma Forcier of Goodyear, fourth vice-president of the Supreme Order, District Secretary Philip Codiere of North Grosvenordale and District Treasurer Arthur Cote of Baltic. Rev. Edward A. Mathieu of St. Mary's church was also heard in a brief talk. The banquet committee consisted of Mrs C. A. Lamoureux, chairlady, Mrs. Charles Dufresne, Mrs. H. Bedard, Mrs. W. Moreau, Mrs. E. Roy, Mrs. Levi G. Goss, Mrs. P. Bell, Mrs. Dina Lavigne, Mrs. E. Dupont and Mrs. Pierre Lambert. It was voted to hold the next district meeting at Taftville in March.

[illegible] Workers to Meet

An informal gathering of the 200 men and women on the teams for the local campaign for the new $500,000 Windham Community Memorial hospital will be held in the state armory at 8 o'clock Monday evening. The meeting will be in the nature of a rally and the workers will have an opportunity to select from files the names of prospective subscribers whom they wish to canvass.

WILLIMANTIC PRACTICALLY DOUBLED IN POPULATION

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 23—The city of Willimantic has practically doubled in population since 1880 according to the first series of the population bulletin for Connecticut recently issued by the U. S. department of commerce. The bulletin indicates that the city suffered its first decrease, one of 1.8 per cent, in the 1930 census, this being the first decline in population since the founding of the municipality. The town of Windham increased however, the figures for the town exclusive of Willimantic for the respective years of 1910, 1920 and 1930 being 1,374; 1,471 and 1,631.

The tabulation of census returns for the city of Willimantic for the past half century follows:

Year	Pop.	Number Increase	Per Cent
1930	12,102	—228	—1.8
1920	12,330	1,100	9.8
1910	11,230	2,293	25.7
1900	8,937	289	3.3
1890	8,648	2,040	30.9
1880	6,608	——	——

(A minus sign — denotes decrease)

The spurts of growing population between 1880 and 1890 and from 1900 to 1910 are credited mainly to those years when Willimantic became a strong railroad center and when the city enjoyed increasing importance with the growth of present industries and the addition of new manufacturing plants. The total population, 12,102, of the city divided into wards follows: Ward 1, 2,776; Ward 2, 3,830; Ward 3, 3,078; Ward 4, 2,417. The wards represent the four voting districts of the city.

"Dead" Man Much Alive

State police officers on duty in this section Friday sped to a wooded section of the town of Mansfield upon receiving a report from a hunter that a man, apparently dead, had been seen in an automobile in an isolated section. After considerable tramping around the officers located the car but the body was nowhere to be found. A further investigation revealed that the occupant of the car seen by the hunter was a laborer who occasionally made his overnight berth in the car and that he was merely having a sound snooze when taken for a corpse. The officers thanked the hunter for his well-meant caution and advised the sleeper to round up a feather bed for future use.

FUNERAL

Mrs. Helen F. Newton

Services for Mrs. Helen F. Newton were held at the grave in the Stockbridge, Mass., cemetery at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Arrangements were by Lincoln & Potter. The deceased who died in Storrs, was a native of Stockbridge.

Gaston Elcus, leader of the Boston Symphony orchestra gave the first of his series of six piano lessons here today in connection with the Blanchette School of Music.

Mrs. E. S. Young of Boston, Mass., arrived Sunday to spend the winter with her daughter, Mrs. Frederick R. Noble and family.

Dr. Henry K. Denlinger, professor of history at Connecticut Agricultural college will give a Thanksgiving talk, entitled The Pilgrims, at the weekly noon meeting of the Willimantic Rotary club to be held in the Nathan Hale hotel Tuesday.

Mrs. John Johnson of Eagleville has been admitted as a patient at St. Joseph's hospital.

Miss Elizabeth W. Peterson of The Ridges left this week end for New York city to attend the funeral of a relative held today.

Miss Sarah Landroche, housekeeper at St. Mary's parish house, is to undergo a major operation at St. Joseph's hospital Monday.

Mrs. Ida Loughlin has returned to her home on Bellevue street from St. Joseph's hospital.

Miss Catherine Twomey of Boston, Mass., spent the week end at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Twomey.

Mrs. Wilfred A. Gagnon and infant son were doing nicely at St. Joseph's hospital today.

Robert Moore, aged 9, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Moore of 450 Prospect street successfully underwent an operation for a ruptured appendix at St. Joseph's hospital Saturday evening.

AIR CADET CHAPTER FORMED IN BOROUGH

An American Air Cadet chapter has recently been organized at Colchester, sponsored by Rev. H. Herbert Tompkins, pastor of the local Congregational church, Earl R. Holmes, Dr. Arthur L. Stebbins, Cecil V. Howell, Bacon academy instructor, and Rev. A. Wallace Canney, pastor of Westchester Congregational church. Rev. Mr. Tompkins has been appointed district commander for the local chapter, which will start activities with a membership of about two hundred. The organization is of an informal nature, being devoted principally to providing the means whereby boys can follow up their aviation interest, with practical work by building model aircraft. E. R. Holmes' store is the local air cadets' headquarters, where application blanks, registration cards and equipment are available. Upon registration, each boy receives a registration card, an official A. A. C. mechanic's pin and a kit with which to build the first flying model plane. As soon as the member has built one flying model that will fly ten seconds he is promoted to the rank of pilot and given a pilot's badge. As soon as he builds a plane that will fly one minute and a half he receives the American Air Cadets' ace insignia, the highest rank in the organization. All cadets are eligible to compete in local, state and national model airplane tournaments and it is planned to hold local contests at regular periods. The Colchester chapter has received its charter from national headquarters, which is on display at the Holmes store, the club headquarters, together with a completed model airplane and interesting pictures of air cadet clubs in various towns throughout the United States. State chapters have been organized in Norwich, New London, Hartford, Willimantic, Jewett City, Moosup, Plainfield, Danielson, Putnam, Groton, Stonington, Deep River and Essex. Lawrence G. Cullen, of Connecticut avenue, New London, is state organizer. In this connection it is interesting to quote from a statement by Major General J. E. Fechet, chief of the U. S. Air corps: "The aviation industry will soon be dependent upon the youth of today for new ideas in design as well as carrying on the industry as a whole, and the establishment of a department to encourage young men along these lines should produce results."

The members of Bacon Academy Dramatic club are having daily rehearsals in Day hall under the direction of the domestic science instructor, Miss Pearl M. Tiffany, and the English instructor, Miss Barbara C. Cole, in preparation for the presentation of a three-act play, "The Burglary at Brown's."

Local schools close Wednesday afternoon for the Thanksgiving holidays.

Miss Genevieve C. Glover left Saturday to spend Thanksgiving week at her home in East Providence, R. I.

Benjamin and Abraham Singer have secured employment in New York.

Irwin M. Jones, of Lebanon, and Harold Darling, of Salem, called on friends here Sunday.

Mrs. Henry J. Bailey visited over Sunday with former Colchester residents, Mr. and Mrs. Selden P. Sears, in New Haven.

Mrs. Ina Griswold left Saturday to spend the winter with Misses Elizabeth G. and Susan J. Day, in Stamford.

Exhibit and Sale

Mrs. H. H. Tompkins, well known for her social and religious leadership activities, conducted a one-day exhibit and sale of Christmas gift articles in Merchants' Row Saturday from 10 to 4. The articles comprising the exhibit and sale were principally fireside handicraft work, of original design, artistic and yet all for practical use. This exhibit and sale was for the benefit of the Student Aid shops of Hartford, the purpose of which primarily is to provide funds for energetic and ambitious students in high school and college, who need financial assistance. A great deal of the designing and work exhibited was the work of such students. Mrs. Tompkins is herself a resident student at the Hartford School of Religious Education, one of the three schools making up the Hartford Seminary foundation.

WILLIMANTIC COUPLE CELEBRATE FIFTIETH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 23—A half century of happy wedded life was rounded out today by Mr. and Mrs. Ramuald Bergeron, the occasion bringing about a family reunion at their home, 42 Willowbrook street. Mr. Bergeron is 76 years of age and is a retired shoe-repairer. His wife, the former Adeline Payeur is 69 years old. Owing to a slight indisposition in her health a more elaborate celebration gave way to the quiet gathering of the children and grandchildren, who presented the couple with a handsome radio, $125 in gold and many flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Bergeron were married November 23, 1880, in St. Antoine de Tilly, P. Q., Canada. They moved to this city 37 years ago and for the past 23 years have resided at No. 42 Willowbrook street, in a neighborhood where they are held in the highest esteem. There were 16 children born to them, 11 of whom are living and all but two residing in this city. These were 36 grandchildren, 24, of whom survive and one great grandchild. Among friends who called at the house to bring congratulations was Rev. J. J. Papillon, pastor of St. Mary's church of which Mr. and Mrs. Bergeron and their children are devoted members.

HANOVER

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Craig of Danielson spent Sunday here and attended church with Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Hazen.

Mr. and Mrs. N. Lorne Greig of Dayville have been visitors at the home of Mrs. Greig's mother, Mrs. Angus Park.

The missionary meeting was held at the parish house Tuesday afternoon. There was a good attendance with the president, Mrs. Allison B. Ladd presiding and Mrs. Robinson W. Dean leading. The hostesses were Mrs. James Tucker and Mrs. Dwight C. Stone.

The Story Hour circle met at the parsonage, Friday afternoon.

The Daughters of the Covenant attended the closing service of Dr. Jefferson's sermons at the United church, Norwich, Friday evening in place of their regular gathering. Hanover people appreciated Dr. Jefferson, as appeared from the number seen in church every evening. Five local workers were at the supper given at the Central Baptist church, Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Allison B. Ladd, with their granddaughter, Miss Katheryn Margaret Robish, are spending a week in New York with their daughter, Miss Gertrude Ladd, a student at Columbia university.

Recent rains have filled in the pool at Judge Adams' park to such an extent as to give the children hopes of skating there on Christmas day, as they did last season.

A MODERATELY QUIET SUNDAY IN POLAND

WARSAW, Nov. 23.— (AP) —Poland passed a moderately quiet day in balloting on a national senate and a Silesian diet, although Police Chief Sznapka of Golasowice, in the Pless district of Silesia, was killed last night as the result of a pre-election outburst.

Numerous minor squabbles were reported today in Silesia which was German territory before the war, as the result of feeling between Germans and Poles.

OBITUARY

Col. Wilmer A. Cadmus

PATERSON, N. J., Nov. 23.—(AP)—Col. Wilmer A. Cadmus, president of the National Bank of America of Paterson, died today after a lingering illness of anemia.

During the war he served as lieutenant colonel of the 114th Infantry and also the 113th infantry in France. He also saw border service in 1916.

Col. Cadmus is survived by a widow and four adult children.

Love Balm Battle

Alleged perjury has entered into a heart balm trial instituted by Miss Elizabeth Kelley, 24-year-old Cleveland typist, above, against Alexander C. Weizer, 41, wealthy realtor. Immediately after the jury awarded Miss Kelley a $40,000 decision, defense attorneys charged that she had committed perjury when she said she never had been married. They contend she married an Abe Gold, in 1926, divorcing him a year later.

While digging in a sand pit at Hermon Pond, Me., Orrin Booker, of Bangor, discovered an Indian gouger. The implement is about a foot long and is two inches across at its widest part. Its blunt end is approximately three-quarters of an inch wide while its sharp end is an inch and a half wide and of graduated thickness. From the blunt to the sharp end is a wide groove which turned the crude tool into a handy thing with which Indians could gouge out trees for the purpose of boat-making.

MOOSUP

The annual concert and ball given by Moosup lodge, No. 113, A. F. & A. M., was held Friday night at the Community house in Plainfield with Al Pare and his Chicago orchestra as the musicians. A large assemblage gathered to hear the concert, after which dancing was the program until 1 o'clock. During intermission ice cream, cakes, cookies and coffee were served. The grand march was led at 9 o'clock by Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Main. The committees were: General chairman, W. C. Marshall; music, Roy Desinger, William J. Rogers, Jack Greenhalgh; decoration, Carl Main, Irving Tyler, Jack Greenhalgh; program and printing, William Rogers, Jack Greenhalgh, Henry Howard, Richard Daggett; refreshments, Noble Symington, Ray Gallup, Walter Cleland, A. E. Smith.

Miss Alice B. Makepeace, of the home extension service, Putnam, held her afternoon class at the Girls' club this week and spoke on Gift Suggestions. Gift ideas were exchanged by the members.

The speaker at the Baptist church Sunday morning was Leslie A. Allen, a prominent business man of Boston, whose topic was "Dry Bones."

The men of the Forum of the Baptist church met both Friday and Saturday afternoons to finish building an underground coal pocket at the rear of the church.

Miss Winifred Worsman, who is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Roy Playdon, is very ill with tonsilitis.

Sixteen members were present at the meeting of Deborah Avery Putnam chapter, D. A. R., in the Baptist church parlors, Friday afternoon, with Mrs. Thomas Seaton, hostess.

Around $25 was made at the play, "Please Stand By," given by the members of the Methodist Sunday school in the vestry. The entertainment was very interesting and keenly enjoyed. The committee which had charge of the affair was Floyd Main, Clarence Jeffers and Mr. and Mrs. Everett Dawson.

Friends were sorry to hear of the illness of Miss Elinor Briggs.

TO MAKE LONG FLIGHT IN MINIATURE AIRPLANE

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 23.—(AP) — The miniature fad has infected the flying brotherhood.

Joseph L. Jones, 18, of Riverside Conn., and Eddie Wingerter, 25, of Newark, plan to hop off tomorrow from Caldwell airport for Buenos Aires in a tiny plan with a gasoline capacity of eight gallons to three quarts of oil.

They said they planned to bring the plane down at almost every airport between here and the South American objective. Their route will lie over land except for the 300-mile hop across the Caribbean sea.

As a sop to safety in their water crossing, they will carry five extra gallons of gas in a can.

THREE CHARGES AGAINST A WESLEYAN STUDENT

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 23.—(AP)— The troubles of Joseph Whitney, student of Wesleyan university at Middletown, started a few days ago when he heard that a certain girl living in New Jersey, was ill.

First, he borrowed the automobile of President James L. McConaughy, of Wesleyan, intending to visit her. He neglected to inform the owner. The car was reported stolen.

Then Whitney was arrested here under charges of reckless driving, operating without a license, and taking a car without the permission of the owner.

He phoned President McConaughy from the New Haven police station, and asked him to give bond.

WOULD BAR IMMIGRATION AS UNEMPLOYMENT REMEDY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23—(AP)—The barring for two years beginning next July 1 of all quota immigration except the immediate relatives of persons already in the United States was proposed as an unemployment remedy today by Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania.

The Pennsylvanian, a member of the senate immigration committee, said he would introduce a resolution at the coming session to carry out the two-year suspension and predicted it would pass "almost unanimously."

The proposal bears the endorsement of Secretary Davis, who will resign his cabinet position to become junior senator from Pennsylvania next week. After reading the Reed resolution, the labor secretary said:

"That is good. I tried to get congress to do that very thing last winter and I am for it."

SPEED, ALTITUDE RECORDS HONORED AS WORLD MARKS

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Two world flying records set by American pilots have been honored by the National Aeronautic association.

It recognized the speed of 100.79 miles an hour made by Clarence O. Prest in a single-seat, light airplane as a new mark and the altitude record of 19,928 feet for seaplanes with a pay load of 4,400.24 pounds made by Boris Sergievsky.

Prest made his flight May 28 in San Bernardino county, California, while Sergievsky flew August 11 at Stratford, Conn.

Liquor by Air?

Russel (Curly) Hosler, crack pilot, who was an entrant in last year's All-American air derby, is one of the 20 important flyers indicted, at Detroit, charged with smuggling liquor from Canada to the United States in airplanes. Approximately 1,800 to 2,000 cases are smuggled, in this manner, monthly, it is estimated.

Boxing has been added to the athletic program of N[illegible]olina State college as a minor sport.

SPAIN RETURNING TO CONSTITUTIONAL GOVT.

MADRID, Nov. 23.—(AP) —Believing the serious labor disorders of the last ten days are over, the government today set about to speed up its program to return Spain to constitutional government.

The strikes in Madrid, Seville, Castellon, Jerez, Valencia and Oviedo appeared virtually ended. At Barcelona conditions had returned so much to normal that Governor Depujols permitted playing of the regular Sunday football games.

The government, believing the unrest in Andalusia is due to economic depression, has started a series of public improvement projects to solve unemployment.

Most of the universities are planning to re-open tomorrow although that at Barcelona will re-open on Tuesday.

Brought to a temporary halt by the labor disorders, the government is now preparing to set up the machinery for the election of deputies on March 1.

The newspaper ABC in an editorial says political uncertainty is underlying the economic situation and expresses the opinion that when parliament is reconvened it merely will "renew petty quarrels" without making an effort to solve the problems confronting the people.

Despite the lull in disorders, the government has not relaxed its police vigilance nor is it permitting radical political gatherings. A half dozen republican meetings in the provinces were ordered suspended today.

BANDIT CAUGHT AFTER AUTO CHASE AND GUN BATTLE

GREENWICH, Nov. 23.— (AP)— A youth identified as Carleton Searles, New Haven bandit with a long criminal record, who was arrested yesterday after a thrilling automobile dash and gun battle through the streets here was being held today for questioning concerning a series of robberies in nearby towns.

At the time of his arrest he gave his name as Robert Lutz and claimed to be from New Orleans. He was wounded in the shoulder in the street battle, and in turn wounded a policeman in the hand. Surrounded, after abandoning his car, he shot a second officer in the leg before surrendering.

DANIELSON

STATE POLICE CHECK ON WEEK END AUTO ACCIDENTS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 23.—This little town was not productive of too much news today, at least up to the time this was written. However, there is a chatty bit of material to serve up to the subscribers this morning. The readers of The Bulletin's Sunday Record, and you miss much eastern Connecticut news if you fail to read it, have the low down about the major news events that happened around here yesterday. But here is another day, and here is something about the news events of the past 24 hours.

A state officer assigned from the Danielson state police barracks was out this afternoon endeavoring to ascertain just how it happened that John Rosa of 123 Yorkshire street, Providence, driver of a car that knocked over Raphael Poitomic, 14, of Jewett City, in Plainfield, about 12:30 this morning, came to do it. The boy that took the "rap" is not reported as being seriously hurt, not was Mr. Rosa held for any violation of the motor vehicle laws. Not too much was known, in detail, about the affair here this afternoon, but it's a case for the week end record.

Everett Wade of Baltic and Frank Liepie of Wauregan, each operating an automobile, got in a jam this afternoon, or, more properly, their cars did, on the Brooklyn-Canterbury state highway, near the Brooklyn fair grounds. State Officer Lionel Poirier went out to check up the affair. It was not of a serious nature.

Not all dogs incur the death penalty for dashing out in the highway in defiance of motor vehicle traffic, but there's a dead dog just over the Chaplin line, in the town of Windham today, for doing that particular thing. And, sleeping his last sleep, he has the distinction of having been relieved from the suffering he was undergoing as the result of getting tangled up with motor traffic, injuries, of course, by means of a bullet from the service revolver of State Officer Henry Mayo of the Danielson barracks. The dog is reported to have been the property of Mrs. E. J. Shippee of Windham.

Having recorded so much about the dog that figured in this affair, one gets down to mentioning that Walter Anderson of Providence and Allen Steinhart of Cambridge, were drivers of cars that were heading toward Willimantic just before Mr. Dog dashed out in that road. Steinert was stepping his car along and had just hauled up abreast the Anderson car and was about to pass it when the dog appeared, disputing the right of way. The cars went into a jam, the Steinert machine swinging to the left of the highway, the other car shooting across to the other side of the highway. Notwithstanding the fact that a U. S. 6 federal highway marker was knocked over, its concrete upright breaking down, and that the Steinhart Packard rolled over on its side; there were no personal injuries of consequence.

The dog involved in the affair was struck by one or the other of the cars in the tangle and was so badly injured that he was put out of his misery by a shot from State Officer Mayo's revolver.

Much Football Traffic

There has been so much in the Danielson column the past two days about the "football" traffic through Danielson that it may become a bit tiresome for readers, but, no foolin', it's news. "Never seen anything like it," the late Tex Rickard is quoted as using as an expression when he was a bit amazed. It fits here for this particular comment.

They—state officers — were taking down the signs today that were the guides for the advancing host of motorists that rolled out of Rhode Island and Massachusetts through Danielson and Willimantic and on to New Haven for the Yale-Harvard game.

Nothing just like this traffic guiding ever had been arranged around this territory before. It appears that the Boston-Providence-Danielson-Willimantic route had been designated as the best one for the Bay Staters and the Rhode Islanders going to New Haven to follow. At intersections or junctions where a driver might go wrong, all the way out of Boston to New Haven, there were signs reading, in the morning, "Yale Bowl." There was one, for instance, here in Danielson, at North Main, Hutchins and Westcott road, where the Providence-Hartford route comes in— and New Haven 80 miles away! In the early afternoon the sign here was changed from "Yale Bowl" to "Harvard Stadium," and the ink was crimson instead of the blue on that Yale sign that was guiding them westward in the morning.

Routing traffic in this manner did not fail to click. Those who watched traffic through here were left with the impression that they saw all of the 80,000 people seated in the Yale bowl yesterday afternoon, but, of course, they didn't.

However, the routing arrangements sent a veritable blizzard of cars through here—not that it did Danielson much good financially, but there they were! And today there were those contemplative souls pondering over the problem of how to get such a motorized human avalanche as that to stop here and spend some money, which few of them did. Being on the main stem and getting no dividends out of it is not so hot, but maybe there's an answer to that in the minds of men—here in Danielson.

Brown Supporters Blue

Brown men in the doldrums today. Football team got a trimming by New Hampshire, 7-0, yesterday. Never happened before. Brown men say it will never happen again. An additional bit of information is that anyone who inquires whether Brown is a color or a city is apt to get his ears knocked off, about this town, anyway. Brown is Providence, make no mistake about that. It is!

Red Cross Drive Successful

Better stand up and give a cheer over the success of the annual Red Cross roll call in this town. It went scooting over the top. Set out to get 1,000 members — in money $1,000. Made that minimum on high, hard times not considered, and up to late Saturday night Mrs. Marjorie Waller, director of the roll call, reported receipts of upwards of $1,200, with more money to come in the coming week. Mighty fine little town — mighty considerate and generous people. That's Killingly.

This listening post gets the story that a considerable number of overcoats that are most certainly stored away, here and there, in Danielson should be dragged out of storage right now and be made available for worthy persons who need them and have no manner or means of getting them, honestly, and they would not have them any other way. It would be very nice if the unused overcoats were brought out, from here and there, and distributed to those who actually have a crying need of them. It would be nice, again, if they were given to Miss Miriam Boomhower, visiting nurse of the Civic federation, for disposal, for she knows much more than the average person possibly can hope to know without investigating at length as to where such gifts to the needy should go.

Orpheum theatre today only— the all-French version of the Play Boy of Paris, starring Maurice Chevalier, and all French cast. Every spoken line in the native language. Three shows. Matinee at 2:30. Evening at 7 and 8:45 o'clock.—adv.

'Nother nice day, and may pardon be asked for mentioning it. Indian summer, some called it. Local Indians agreed that was a perfectly good estimate of things. Hope it pours tomorrow. More rain is needed—everywhere hereabouts.

Harvard men hopping around as though the stock market had skyrocketed today. Not so many of them in this neck of the woods, but how they do love it when the Crimson trims Yale. Been doing that too regularly of late, all old-time Connecticut folk agree. Guess Killingly will have to send back its prosecuting attorney and its judge of probate to correct things a bit down at New Haven. They are both Yale "grads," but a bit out of practice, insofar as football is concerned. They might furnish the inspiration for a Yale team to beat Harvard at that.

Now that it has been mentioned, more or less publicly, this morning, by the way, it appears that it will be regarded, generally, as not at all a nice way to make money by staging indecent shows here on any future Armistice day. Much more might be said about this matter. At the moment a charitable consideration of the entire matter deletes further comment. Herein, however, is contained, public opinion considered, a suggestion that seems to have the background of public approval. It's a good tip to "lay off."

This is a most disappointing season, in view of the fact that not a soul, in this town, at least, has reported picking any apple blossoms, seeing butterflys or running across any blooming daisies during the course of a real wonderful fall period. Possibly such reports will be delayed until January.

BROOKLYN

The Thirteen club was entertained by Mrs. John T. Ashworth, Tuesday evening, Miss Ruth Johnson and Mrs. Walter Tripp being the prize winners.

An all-day meeting of the Home Economic group was held with Miss Helen Witter, Tuesday. A very profitable and enjoyable day was spent. The date for the December meeting will be announced later.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore N. Anderson have named their infant daughter Mary Frances.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Dixon of Danielson and Mr. and Mrs. Homer W. Dixon, of Norwich, were guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Potter.

Mrs. Alida Weaver, who has been a guest of Mrs. Charles S. Hyde is visiting her sister in Waterford, Conn., proceeding to Florida for the winter months.

Mrs. E. B. Cummings has closed her home and is with her cousin, Miss Burdick, in Jewett City for the winter.

Paul Slade of Providence has been a guest of his aunt, Mrs. M. J. Hunt at Ashland farm, the past week.

Friends of Mrs. Amos B. Root and her mother, Mrs. Henry Warren, learn of their safe arrival in San Diego, California, where they have gone for the winter.

The police have placed conspicuous markers at the junction of the five points in Brooklyn, giving the most direct way to New Haven.

It is hoped soon to have a rotary traffic sign where the five roads meet; this, and a line marking prohibitory parking on the corner, it is hoped, will lessen the danger of accidents.

A very satisfactory rehearsal was held during the week by officers of Brooklyn grange.

Brooklyn patrons were in attendance at a grange meeting in Lisbon on a recent evening, furnishing a part of an interesting program.

Brooklyn friends were sorry to learn of the illness of John F. Meyers of Mystic.

Miss Valerie Reeves visited her mother in Hartford over the week end.

Capt. and Mrs. H. L. Mason are closing their home, Hill View, today (Monday) and will leave for their winter home in Hammond, La.

RECTORY OF TRINITY CHURCH, POMFRET, ONCE WHISTLER'S HOME

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 23.—A feature story appearing on the editorial page of The Bulletin in Saturday morning's issue concerning James Abbot McNeill Whistler, great American artist recently elected to the Hall of Fame, has aroused more than ordinary interest. Biographers have written of the painter's life in eastern Connecticut spent at Stonington and Pomfret. Until Saturday, it was generally accepted that the Pomfret home of Whistler is still standing and today is one of the more beautiful residences on Pomfret street—and now the home of Rev. Frederick M. Coholan, pastor of Holy Trinity church.

According to The Bulletin's annalist, quoting a news story of April 8, 1922, the Whistler home was destroyed by fire on that date. This seems unlikely, since the Roman Catholic church rectory is frequently referred to as the early home of the artist whose works have earned him the distinction of a place in the hall which now includes 69 illustrious persons.

Recently the Whistler home was included in a list of historic landmarks of Putnam and vicinity which were mentioned in a paper before a meeting of the Elizabeth Porter Putnam chapter, D. A. R.

The Pomfret rectory, the accepted home of Whistler, is situated in the center of the pretty little village, nestling cozily among the more palatial residences of wealthy Pomfretians. It is a two-story frame structure, constructed along lines typical of early New England architecture. The beauty of the house possessing such historical background is reflected in its simple exterior color scheme of solid white, artistically set off with green-painted window shutters, the only trimmings.

In the summer time the placid beauty of the artist's one-time home, which is now the residence of Rev. Father Coholan, is enhanced by the lovely gardens that surround it. In winter, a snow-blanketed countryside lends a distinctive charm to the home setting where the famed American artist is said to have spent part of his boyhood.

PUTNAM

LOCAL FOOTBALL SEASON WILL CLOSE THIS WEEK

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 23.—The curtain will be rung down on the football season this week. The majority of county high school teams will round out the 1930 schedule on Thanksgiving day Thursday. Two hours before King Turkey is set before hungry mouths, the Putnam High school eleven and the gridiron aggregation representing Killingly High school in Danielson will renew traditional hostilities. The game this year will be played in Danielson and is certain to attract hundreds of rooters despite the fact that both squads have passed through a disappointing season. The Killonians, because of injuries sustained during the earlier part of the season, were reported as having cancelled a number of their scheduled games, and during the past few weeks have been preparing to take over their ancient Thanksgiving day rival. The Noyesmen, on the other hand, have been ardently awaiting the opening gun for some time and are confident they will retain their supremacy over Killingly which has been standing now for some years past.

William H. McCoy, Jr., returned to Woonsocket this afternoon, after spending Saturday and Sunday at his home on Ring street.

Superintendents of local institutions said today that special dinner programmes will be prepared for the inmates on Thanksgiving day, details of which will be announced later in the week.

"The Passion Play of Oberammergau" was the subject of an illustrated sermon given at the Congregational church Sunday evening.

The Wilsonville Woolen mills in Wilsonville have resumed operations after a suspension of several days' duration caused by a shortage of water, which made it impossible for the power wheel to run. Heavy rains of the past two weeks have raised the level of the Maanexit river to a height sufficient to flood the flumes of the mill and provide power for the plant. The handicap experienced by the manufacturers this season has caused them to consider the feasibility of installing an auxiliary electric power system. At the present the factory is operated entirely upon the power derived from the waters of the Maanexit stream.

The local police report today contained mention of but one arrest having been made over the week-end and this being for a minor offense.

A steady stream of automobile traffic bearing jubilant Harvard rooters down Cambridge way after a triumphant excursion into the Yale bowl in New Haven in the afternoon, filed through Bugbee square Saturday, beginning at 8 o'clock in the evening and continuing until an early hour Sunday morning. During the early hours last evening the density of the traffic was such that a police officer had to be assigned to traffic duty in the square to keep the cars from becoming entangled. In past years the Harvard-Yale football traffic has always been diverted through Danielson, but it appears that the new Hartford-Putnam route proved more attractive to the Providence and Boston followers of the Crimson and Blue.

Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Durand of Pawtucket were visitors at the home of Putnam relatives today.

Frank Tourtellotte and son Carolus spent Sunday with relatives in Hartford.

Edward A. Keefe returned to his home in New Haven tonight, after spending the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Keefe, of Ring street.

A large number of local football fans were in Southbridge this afternoon for the game played between a Southbridge semi-pro eleven and the Bulldogs of this city.

FUNERAL

Aaron M. Bowen

The people of Eastford and vicinity, as well as many from other parts of the state, filled the Eastford Congregational church Sunday afternoon for the funeral of Aaron M. Bowen, the Eastford correspondent, whose death occurred Thursday morning. Rev. George Reese, pastor of the church, officiated, and read the committal service at the grave. The bearers were Fred, Grover and Clifford Bowen, sons of the deceased, and Edward Keith of Putnam. Burial was in the family plot in Eastford cemetery. There were many handsome floral tributes.

ARMY PILOTS TO RACE FOR MITCHELL TROPHY

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich.—(P)—Pilots of the first pursuit group of the air corps will race for the John L. Mitchell trophy November 22, at Selfridge field.

The race is an annual classic formerly held in connection with the national air races, but scheduled this time as a separate event. The prize was donated by Col. William Mitchell, formerly of the air corps, in memory of his brother, who was killed in the World war.

Lieut. Paul B. Wurtsmith won the trophy last year with an average speed of 152.17 miles an hour. The high speed record for the race was set in 1924 by the late Lieut. Cyrus Bettis, who averaged 175.43 miles an hour.

JEWETT CITY

OPENING OF VIADUCT THANKSGIVING MORNING

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Nov. 23—Plans are taking definite shape for a celebration when the great new Quinebaug viaduct is formally opened to public highway traffic, probably Thanksgiving forenoon. State Highway Commissioner John A. McDonald of Hartford and Division Engineer John Smith of Norwich have stated that the job must be completed before its final entrance into the regular lanes of Connecticut traffic. With that end in view the regular gang worked all day Sunday putting on the finishing touches. Warden Edmond J. Jodoin, in view of definite arrangements being gotten under way at once, is asking through this column that prominent residents of Voluntown, Glasgo and Jewett City meet with him Monday evening at 8 o'clock at the town hall. The M. A. Gammino Construction company, the builders of the bridge and viaduct are anxious to cooperate in any way possible with the local committee and officials. Two bands are already assured, dozens of automobile owners will go into the parade with their cars decorated. It is also promised that there will be the revival of the fine old custom of men on horseback. At the meeting to be held Monday evening, an opportunity will be given for the expression of opinions and the suggestion of any plans looking to make the demonstration the grand success it should be. While the state of Connecticut takes no initiative in celebration of this nature, yet its moral support and favorable attitude may be fully relied upon. It is therefore taken for granted that Lucian H. Beebe the resident engineer for the state and Charles De Biasi, superintendent of construction for the contractor, will be on hand as contributing factors to the affair's success. The committee named by Warden Jodoin is Charles De Biasi, Alex McNicol, Prentice W. Chase, Burgesses Henry E. Olsen, John McDermott, Felix Guillotte, Thomas McBroome, Selectmen Arba Browning, Ulderic E. Jodoin, William McGovern, Edward Blake, Lionel E. Boucher, Peter Orga, Oscar Shaw, Louis Latham, Benjamin Kolbus, Charles Ruszenas, Everett H. Hiscox.

AUTO THIEVES BROUGHT BACK FROM PHILADELPHIA

This (Monday) morning in Griswold town court, William Howeson, Jr., and Ernest Lamarine who were admitted to bail of $1,500 each Saturday evening, will be presented before Judge John T. Barry, by Prosecuting Attorney Richard J. Dudkowski. They will be given a hearing in connection with the alleged theft of a Chevrolet automobile from the local salesroom, at about 3 o'clock on the morning of Nov. 15. During the past week Officer Henry Vegiard in company with Fred L'Homme brought the men from Philadelphia where they were picked up by the Quaker City traffic officers. Extradition papers signed by Gov. John H. Trumbull of Connecticut and by Gov. John S. Fisher of Pennsylvania were necessary to effect the release of the men by the Philadelphia police. Whole coming through New York city, on upper Broadway, the Jewett City car was hit by a Brooklyn taxi driver. The Metropolitan officer of the regular Broadway squad, after learning the story from Patrolman Vegiard, told the local men to go ahead. The Chevrolet people may make claims for damages which their new show model received in the New York mixup.

FISK RUBBER DISTRICT GIVES $57 TO RED CROSS

The Red Cross roll call has received a splendid contribution from the district from which the least was expected, that is the Fisk Rubber Co. district, where the mill has been closed for several months. Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Richardson were assigned the district from Main street to Brewster's Four Corners, as they are more conversant with conditions there than any other persons could be. Persons not paying rent and others where it was not deemed advisable, were not solicited. Mrs. Richardson was assisted by Stella Bernard and Saturday night gave the chairman fifty-seven dollars, with at least two more dollars promised. Last year the contribution from this district was thirty-nine dollars and the year before forty-eight. The membership list from this district includes three contributing members, the American Polish corporation, Fisk Rubber Co., and Walter A. Richardson. One dollar memberships, M. M. Casper, John Murtha, Catherine Damicluik, Kate Caron, Antonio Lamarine, Anna Keenon, Matthew Molunas, Nora Openchosfski, Joseph Dutka, Dory Jarvis, Mrs. John Wilson, Mrs. Joseph Ruszenas, Anna Ruszenas, Mrs. Josephine Bush, Mrs. Emma Gamache, Harold Field, Mrs. Cregan, Albert Malek, Clarence Dawley, Jennie Roy, Phillip Roy, Charles Ruszenas, Hugh Davis, Mrs. Hugh Davis, Hugh Davis Jr., Theodore Davis, George Davis, William Davis, Polydore Gingras, Anthony Skarodowski, Edward Dudkowski, Richard Dudkowski, Bolis Ambot, W. DANGEROUS EIGHTH STREET CROSSING

When the signal system for warning highway users at the Eighth street crossing was established to replace a flagman, it was claimed and expected that it would give as good protection during the hours that a flagman was ordinarily stationed there, and it was believed that better results would be secured since the signal system would be in operation 24 hours a day.

Such has not been the case. On repeated occasions it has been shown that the system was defective, that highway users had been falsely informed to such an extent that there were narrow escapes from being hit by a locomotive when the signal showed the green light for safety, while when the red light showed, indicating the approach of a train, those who waited found, upon investigation that no train was coming.

Conditions of that kind it had been thought had been remedied, but reports indicate to the contrary. This means that a condition exists at the Eighth street crossing which is a direct peril to the highway users. Instead of having respect for the signal, there is none. Users make light of the fact that there is no telling whether it is right or wrong. This may be good and sufficient grounds for those who understand the antics of the signal to be unusually cautious, but for the stranger and the person who puts his reliance in the signal it is going to mean a deplorable and needless fatality at that point.

Eighth street crossing is probably the worst public highway crossing in the city. The removal of a flagman from that point was protested by town and city authorities at the hearing. Regardless of the protests, the signal system was authorized and established. What has been the result? Instead of a crossing which could be used with reasonable safety during the day, there is now a crossing where users may be beckoned into eternity because of the false information.

Conditions at that crossing have been played with too long. By good fortune no one has been killed. If we must get along with a signal system that system should work properly on all occasions. That is what we have a right to expect and that is what should be insisted upon. It is quite evident that there is a condition there which has not been properly remedied.

GO WHERE DUTY CALLS

Even though it is most often that attention is directed to the coast guard through their activities in connection with the enforcement of the prohibition law, such is by no means the extent of their work. They are ready to answer the call for assistance from shipping and those in distress as well as uphold the laws of the nation on the high seas. The instances are not so frequent where they are called upon to aid vessels which have gone ashore or struck a reef, or to rescue crews of sinking or shipwrecked ships, but they have an enviable record in such service, a record which is increased whenever opportunity presents itself.

When the coast guard is called upon for assistance, it is invariably under the worst conditions. Trouble comes with storms, bad weather and under trying conditions. It is not a pleasure trip ahead of them when their aid is solicited. Whether it is midsummer or midwinter, whether it is the search for a disabled ship, the quest for one that is sinking in a storm, the relief of those in dire peril or one which is stranded on a dangerous coast, there is a duty to be performed and there is no quibbling. They face hard and perilous tasks with a determination that gets results if such a thing is possible.

There are plenty of instances which prove the courage and value of the coast guard. Their efforts are responsible for the saving of many vessels, the rescue of large numbers who go down to the sea in ships and the existence of a service on which great dependence is placed by seamen in case of emergency.

There can be no exaggeration of the sacrifice that was involved in the recent rescue of the crew of a stranded fishing vessel off the Massachusetts coast. It had to be made in a surf boat in the teeth of a cold northeast blow. Covering the necessary two miles out to the vessel and the same distance back would have been bad enough under favorable conditions but, with the cold and the spray, it not only chilled but numbed. It was a situation that had to be met regardless of the conditions and it was met. The distance was covered, the crew was saved and all returned in safety, regardless of the hardships. Such is the life of the coast guardsmen and many there are who have been placed at the peril of storm and sea who have experienced the benefit of their services. They get no more credit than they deserve.

WILL IT BE SUPPORTED?

In connection with the action which has been taken by the department of justice in making war against the gangsters of the big cities, there naturally arises the question as to how much public support it is going to get.

On the face of it the feeling would be that it would get full support for everything it can do. That is the natural supposition and yet it is to be realized that gangster conditions must be due to a greater or less extent to the toleration of the very people who would be expected to stand back of the government.

It is no secret that conditions which exist in any of the large cities, whether it concerns mismanagement, bad handling of municipal affairs or the continued existence of gangsters and crime, are possible because public sentiment doesn't step in and demand something better. There may be efforts to clean up such conditions and to apply corrective measures but they too often prove only a smoke screen. Those who are in control and those who could put an end to undesirable conditions are not interested in such a change. They are ready to allow things to go along as they are, so long as they are kept in their comfortable berths and their control is not disturbed. The responsibility for keeping them there rests, of course, upon the citizens. Either they register their satisfaction at the maintenance of such conditions or else they have become hardened to it and admit themselves powerless to effect a change. In other words, those who object realize that public sentiment backs the deplorable conditions, directly or indirectly.

Under such conditions what is going to be the attitude of the public toward the government's efforts? These may represent different methods of dealing with the situation, a determination to actually clean up and keep the cities from control of the gangsters. It is an effort that should inspire genuine and extensive support and it is only because there should be an insistence upon actual efforts by the cities themselves, and is not, that the question arises as to what attitude is going to be displayed toward the fight upon which the department of justice has entered.

A PUBLIC SERVICE

In the case of receiverships, attention is frequently directed to the large fees which are claimed by and allowed the receiver. It is often a fee that eats heavily into the funds of the defunct concern. It means that for a short period of time the receiver gets a handsome return for his services and the creditors or the others interested experience a cut, accordingly.

In view of such instances, it is an interesting development that has taken place in Indianapolis. There a prominent business man who has retired, and who therefore might be thought anxious to refrain from any such effort, has offered his services without pay as the receiver for a trust company that has gone into receivership. In making this offer he directed attention to the many receiverships in that vicinity where receivers had been given high compensation, a practice that has caused much comment. Because he has always felt that the depositor of a defunct bank should receive every dollar that it is possible to give him and because Indianapolis has been "most kind" to him he was willing to give his services to accomplish that very end. It doesn't appear that he was interested in the matter other than being anxious to render a service to those who might be helped by seeing that they escaped a heavy receivership fee.

That such is bound to be regarded as a high type of public service will be generally recognized. There are receiverships and receiverships. There are those who are probably as conscientious as receivers as the Indianapolis citizen, but there are others who take the view that a receivership means a big fee for little work and display a cold-blooded view toward the interests of the creditors or depositors. Few there are who are ready or can afford to serve for nothing.

DEALING WITH IMMIGRANTS

There is hardly a session of congress but what is asked to wrestle with some phase of the immigration question. Changed conditions, loopholes in the law, the need of meeting new problems, all bob up to figure in the demand for a revision of the immigration laws.

The committee on selective immigration of the American Eugenics society has been studying the situation and it has recommended to the president, congress and the nation generally the continuance of the national origins basis, further limitation by reducing the quotas, except that the present minimum quota of 100 be retained, the establishment of the principle of numerical limitation upon western hemisphere immigration, appropriation of adequate funds for deporting all deportable aliens in the country, registration of the alien population here, the selection of immigrants, overseas medical inspection.

There are certain of these recommendations which have been urged previously by this committee and by others. The importance of giving consideration to the present unemployment situation is bound to come in for its full share of attention at any consideration that may be given to the subject by the coming congress. Secretary Davis of the department of labor has been a consistent advocate of alien registration, while the value of overseas medical inspection cannot be overlooked in connection with the prevention of many public charges reaching these shores only to be returned and excluding at the start the mentally and physically unfit. The call for the appropriation of adequate funds to send those back who should be deported directs attention to the many who help fill institutions because of limited funds for deportation work.

TOUCHDOWN

Contrary to precedent, the opening game of the season was a thrilling one. Five minutes before the whistle blew in the last quarter Jack Brumley got hold of the ball and before any one seemed to know what was happening he was well down the field heading for the goal, the ball clutched tight. Jack made his touchdown, tied the score and the students of Midland college lifted him almost en masse, to their shoulders as they crowded cheering out upon the field.

During the game Lorna Lewis, a solitary figure sitting far back in the grand stand, had gazed upon Jack Brumley and sighed. For the first time in her three years of college, Lorna was in love. She had seen Jack on the campus many times in the last few days, but had never dreamed of speaking to him, although he was in some of her classes. And she had come today especially to watch him. How marvelous it was that he should have begun his third year on the campus so auspiciously. His name would be spoken almost reverently by the students of Midland, and he would shine as a social lion. How utterly remote he was from her world!

There would be dozens of girls idolizing Jack, she thought dismally as she made her way to her room in the dormitory. Lucky, indeed, would that young lady be whom he deigned to honor with her attentions. She was silly even to think about him. As she ate her dinner Lorna found herself wishing that Jack were an obscure student like herself, working hard to make his way through college. She wished that he knew some of the adversities as well as the triumphs of college life.

At last resolutely banishing all thought of her hero from her mind, Lora gathered her books and went over to the library. She must work hard over the week-end, for there was to be an examination in anthropology the first thing Monday morning and to keep her scholarship she must maintain her high standard. Finding an out-of-the-way corner in the library, Lorna opened her book and was soon lost in the study of the natural history of man. She was surprised by a light touch on her elbow and looking up gazed straight into the eyes of Jack Brumley.

"I'm awfully sorry to disturb you," whispered Jack softly so as not to disturb the other students, "but I've been sitting across from you for ever so long, trying to gain courage to ask you a big favor."

Lorna, too surprised to speak and quite overcome with confusion, waited to hear what favor he could possibly have to ask of her. She began to fear that he would read her inmost thoughts and know how she felt about him. She knew she was blushing furiously.

"I hate to ask it," Jack was saying, "but some one has run off with my anthropology book and I absolutely must study this evening. I wonder——"

"Why," she said, "I'll be glad to share mine with you. I must study my French tonight, too, so just help yourself to the anthropology."

"Gee, you're a peach!" exclaimed Jack, sitting down beside her. "Are you sure you can spare it?"

Two hours later Jack closed his book with a decisive bang. "Come on," he said, "that's enough for tonight. Let's walk around and get some ice cream."

"I thought," said Lorna as they went slowly across the moonlit campus, "that after this afternoon you'd probably be deluged with invitations. I certainly never dreamed I'd see you studying up there." Jack grinned.

"I'm working awfully hard to get through school," he said. "You see, there are six of us kids at home and I want to help the others get through college, later on." He laughed softly. "But girls don't understand things like that. I wish more of them could know some of the adversities, as well as the triumphs of college life." Could this be Jack, almost taking the words out of her mouth? So he wasn't remote from her work-a-day world at all.

"You were marvelous this afternoon," she exclaimed happily. "I was so thrilled watching you make that touchdown!"

"Were you, really?" Jack was delighted. "If you'll come next Saturday and let me get you a box seat down near the field where you can smile at me during the game, and afterward go over to the gym for the dance I'll consider it the biggest victory I could score!"—Chicago News.

Some Causes And Dangers Of Overweight

By Walter Gay Lough, M. D., New York.

(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

One rarely attends a dinner party but that someone, before, during or after dinner has something to say about diet, that he or she is getting too fat. Perhaps the cause of overweight that is at the top of the list is the consumption of larger quantities of food than the body needs for the maintenance of good nutrition. Statistics show that 25 per cent of the people are overweight. This means that as individuals approach middle life they are endangering their lives with the possible development of diabetes and various other constitutional diseases which, if not due to overweight, their course is influenced and not always favorably.

An excess of all sweets contribute to the production of overweight and disease is the result of it. So often the question is asked as to what effect, if any, water has in the production of overweight. Water within itself is not fattening, but drinking of large quantities of fluid with meals enables one to eat more, consequently in this respect water may be said to be fattening. Another cause of overweight is that of gland deficiency. There are glands in the body, namely the thyroid, pituitary, and others that control, by their secretions into the blood, the building up and tearing down processes continually going on in the body. Through disease, these glands sometimes become deficient in their ability to function properly, consequently instead of a normal balance being maintained between intake of food and its combustion, there is an excessive accumulation of fat. Another cause of overweight pertains to heredity. There are families where father, mother and children are very fat. While heredity may play an important part, yet there is no reason why a daughter should be fat because her mother is overweight, provided dietetic restrictions and proper exercise are instituted in early youth. Still one more cause of overweight is that due to insufficient exercise. If one eats as much as he wants and takes insufficient exercise, the result is an accumulation of large amounts of fat in the various tissues of the body.

The real danger of overweight lies in the destruction of normal tissues in vital organs, such as the heart, liver, blood vessels and others, and the replacement with fat in a greater or less degree. It is obvious that if the normal heart muscle is in part replaced with fat, it cannot possibly perform its work normally and general weakness will follow. Other dangers of overweight pertain to the progress one way or the other of various associated diseases, such as chronic arthritis, high blood pressure, diabetes, asthma, hardening of the arteries, chronic bronchitis, and many others. In any of these diseases the body has all it can do to combat the disease itself, without the additional burden of overweight.

I wish to emphasize the importance here of the physician being the judge of whether or not one should reduce, how much one should reduce, and in what way. While there are many dangers associated with overweight, there are also dangers associated with reduction cures, especially rapid cures.

The habit of having a periodic health examination by your family physician once every year should be cultivated. Not only will overweight be detected by such an examination, but a safe method of reduction will be instituted, if indicated, and what is probably more important, the detection of any other abnormality the correction of which may not only increase your span of life, but make it much happier.

Norwich 100 Years Ago

From THE NORWICH COURIER

One hundred years ago this week, according to the Norwich Courier of November 24th, 1830, J. Button opened a school of penmanship in Norwich. An announcement in that issue of The Courier says: "J. Button respectfully gives notice to the gentlemen and ladies of Norwich, and vicinity, that he will open a school at the building, two doors south of Norwich Bank, on Monday, the 25th inst., at 7 o'clock in the evening, for the purpose of instruction in the useful and important art of penmanship. From the experience he has had as an instructor, and the success which has hitherto attended his instruction, the subscriber hopes to be able to give satisfaction to all those who may receive lessons. Terms will be made known at the writing room."

Needham Slate announced to the public, in that edition of The Courier, that a two-year old steer had strayed from his place. "Whoever will return said steer, or give information where he may be found, shall be reasonably rewarded," he said in his advertisement.

J. Y. Niles took occasion to inform his customers and the public in general that he had received and was "opening a splendid assortment of dry goods." Among them, he informed the buying public, would be found many desirable articles, suitable for the present and approaching season.

Reuben Justin of Canterbury, according to an advertisement in the same issue, wanted a quantity of chestnut coal to be delivered that fall, for which he stated "good pay" would be made. He also wanted a journeyman blacksmith, one who was acquainted with making scythes.

W. P. Brown and Co., of Wingham, had on sale cotton and wool cards from the Leicester, Mass., manufacturies, and N. Gilbert advertised for white beans and flax seed at cash prices. J. W. Kinney, treasurer, notified that stockholders of the Shetucket Turnpike company that the fourth installment of $25 was laid on each share payable the 26th of that month.

CHILD TRAINING

Right Ideals About "Growing Up"

Edith L. Reid

"You forgot something," mother called to Gerald as he left the dinner table to join his playmates in the yard.

With reluctant feet and half sulking, Gerald came back. "When I grow up I'll never fold my napkin," he said, cramming a rather rumpled piece of linen into the ring, and banging the door by way of emphasizing his resentment.

"When I grow up I won't wear rubbers ever," pouted Betty Lou, when reminded of the wet sidewalks as she started to school.

"Teachers only have to ask questions—they don't have to learn any old multiplication tables," grumbled Joe, as he struggled over the "nines." "When I grow up, I won't have any books except about knights and airplanes."

These expressions of rebellion and dozens of others similar in tone are heard all too often by parents and teachers. Children complain about restrictions and what they regard as the freedom of adulthood.

Such a condition of mind is annoying to those who have the training of boys and girls. But the truth is that the child's attitude toward the future and its privileges is determined in early years by those in authority.

Unless the folding of the napkin at the table implies more than mere social conformity, it will very soon lack interest for the small boy. Let mother introduce this habit as a test of advancement in ability to do things.

"I believe you are almost big enough to fold your napkin now without anyone to help you match the corners. Let's try it for two days and see just how well you can do." After the two days the time may be extended to a week, always with the challenge to his growing powers of responsibility. This manner of training removes the idea of a command. From a mere rule of etiquette folding a napkin might become to Gerald an opportunity to display development.

And as to the wearing of rubbers, Betty Lou's mother may almost entirely remove this worry by making this a milestone in her small daughter's judgment and self-reliance.

"I believe you are old enough to decide whether you need to wear rubbers, dear. If I am not mistaken you can see when it is cloudy and when the walks are damp just as well as I can. So I am going to give you this 'growing up' privilege this week. You may prove to me whether I am right."

When the week is ended, mother may again say, "Well, you did pretty well, but just to show you are really ready for this responsibility all the time, we will try the plan one more week."

At this very point Betty Lou begins to sense that "growing up" is not throwing off rules, but learning to apply them through personal choice. By such a course the child loses the false notion that to grow up is to "do as I please." Growing up becomes a dignifying experience of every day.

When mothers hold out responsibility as a trophy to be won by diligence and acclaimed as an accomplishment, good habits and resourcefulness will result. Resentment will die unborn or become submerged in the zest of worthy performance.

Approximately 9,000 of the 18,000 fans who saw the Walker-Risko fight in Detroit sat in seats that cost 55 cents.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23—When New York state rolled up almost a three-quarter million plurality for Governor Roosevelt, it broke several political records.

But it also did something else of far greater interest to Washington onlookers. It furnished the democratic party with what is called a ready-made candidate for the 1932 presidential nomination.

Many Washington dopesters, even now, hold that nomination as virtually a foregone conclusion—short of an intra-party convulsion over prohibition or something else.

Triumph

The political story of Franklin Roosevelt, even in its present incomplete state, already is as remarkable in its way as the original family tradition set by the great progressive-republican, Colonel Theodore the First.

The Bystander has had the good fortune to have known them both at fairly close hand.

Yet it was not the political significances of Frank Roosevelt's all but unbelievable plurality in his second election to the governorship that appeared most impressive as the tale of those votes was told.

It was of the human, intimate, dramatic story of the man himself—of his far greater triumph over physical mischance, of the abounding will, of the courage that alone could have carried him through.

Brilliant as his political past may be, bright as the future may loom for him in public life, these are as nothing beside the human story of that battle against the stroke of paralysis.

That would have crushed a lesser man into political oblivion.

Stepping Stone

Think back to Roosevelt at the San Francisco convention—young, eager, splendid in health, athletic in body and habit, with good looks, social place, reasonable wealth and already winning second place on his party's national ticket.

Defeat of that ticket certain even as the nominations were made, could only prove a political stepping stone to him, it seemed. His big figure, crashing through opponents to bear New York's standard into a Wilson demonstration dramatized that convention for many an onlooker.

A year later he had fallen victim to infantile paralysis. It seemed a national career ended almost at its inception.

Yet three years pass and Roosevelt is dragging himself on crutches into the bedlam of old Madison Square Garden to nominate Al Smith for the presidency. Four years more and he is walking now, with cane and a hand on his tall son's shoulder, to do it again at Houston.

Today he is governor re-elect by three-quarters of a million votes.

What a story of courage, day by day, night by night, underlies those convention glimpses. It is the real story of Frank Roosevelt. Politics is merely the setting.

DO YOU KNOW CONNECTICUT?

By Conn. Chamber of Commerce

Q. From what states does Connecticut draw the greatest number of her American-born persons?

A. New York, first; Massachusetts, second; Rhode Island, third.

Q. Who were the "Hartford Wits?"

A. A group of nine men, young Yale graduates, who following the Revolution took upon themselves the task of resisting with satire the influences which were working towards lawlessness.

Q. How much does Connecticut spend per visitor per year on maintenance and improvement work on state parks?

A. Less than 10 cents per year per visitor.

Q. What are the leading vegetables grown in the state?

A. Potatoes, cabbages, onions, tomatoes and sweet corn.

Q. For what is Connecticut-grown tobacco used?

Q. Did government in Connecticut develop from one colony?

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

Western Union Telegraph Company Hartford.

From the invention of the telegraph in 1832 by Professor Samuel Finley Breese Morse, the new industry was developed through the organization of a number of small lines until in 1851 there were 50 telegraph companies operating throughout the United States.

Lines to operate between New York and Boston were built prior to 1850. But about this time, a group of Rochester people obtained the right to extend the system throughout the United States. This was the New York and Mississippi Valley Printing Telegraph company, incorporated in 1851. Due to inability to raise adequate capital, this project was abandoned, but the line was constructed to Chicago.

In 1855 the New York and Mississippi Valley Printing Telegraph company effected a consolidation of the various small companies. This step eliminated the wastes of duplication and competition and permitted the use of simpler and more economical methods. Great progress followed and in 1856 the company's name was changed to Western Union Telegraph company. The first dividend was paid in December, 1857.

Urgent demand for telegraph communication with the Pacific coast led to an appropriation by congress of $40,000 a year for ten years to develop such a line. The Western Union undertook the project and completed the line in 1861.

In 15 years Western Union rose from a merely local company with 550 miles of wire to a national system controlling 75,000 miles. Western Union serves the public today through 25,000 offices in the United States and in addition has connections with all telegraph offices in Canada and all points in Mexico.

In addition to the Morse system operated with key and sounders, there has been recently developed the Multiplex system, by means of which eight messages, four in each direction, may be sent simultaneously over a single wire. The Multiplex is ideal for lines where traffic is heavy and constant.

To meet the demand for automatic operation on lines where traffic is not so great, the Simplex printer has been developed. This is operated from a typewriter-like keyboard, sending direct to the line signals which actuate the printing mechanism at both sending and distant receiving stations.

More than 82 per cent of the Western Union's annual total of 200,000,000 messages is now handled by the automatic method. At present all large and most of the smaller Western Union offices are connected by Multiplex or Simplex circuits.

The officers of the company are: Newcomb Carlton, president; A. C. Cronkleite, vice president; Andrew Burleigh, secretary; G. K. Huntington, treasurer; T. W. Carroll, general manager; A. J. Collier, city superintendent, Hartford.

RECKLESS DRIVING CHARGE AGAINST TRUCK DRIVER

Fred J. Cepitani of Tenafly, N. J., a truck driver, was arrested Saturday afternoon at East Lyme by State Police Officer Brown of the Groton barracks and charged with reckless driving. He was detected operating a large truck owned by the Hudson Bus Transportation Co., through the town at an alleged high rate of speed. The New Jersey man will be presented in the justice court at East Lyme Nov. 28.

FISHING STEAMER PETREL TO BE LEFT ON ROCKS

NW LONDON, Nov. 23—Advices today are that the fishing steamer Petrel, ashore at Block Island, will stay where she is—on the rocks, as the craft is so badly damaged she cannot be floated. It is believed the collier Harry Bowen, also ashore, will be floated today. The Bowen was bound from Norfolk to Boston, and is coal laden.

Trolley car patronage was lighter today than it has been in many days because mild and pleasant weather created a desire on the part of pedestrians to stroll about.
